AIRLINES CRISIS FORCED ISSUE

LBJ JUNKS WAGE-PRICE GUIDEPOSTS?

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The words used by President Johnson in justifying the airlines strike settlement, rather than the size of the settlement itself, have led analysts here to believe that the Administration may be changing or abandoning its policy of wage-price "guideposts."

There would be nothing unusual in a settlement that cost in the neighborhood of 4% a year or even more, though the wage guidepost is 3.2%. Typical settlements reached so far this year, though they have been relatively few, have been in the 4% range.

But these settlements, such as those in construction, though they were in excess of the guidepost figure, were allowed to pass by the Administration, generally without comment. The guidepost principle remained.

Now the principle itself, at least by implication, has been abandoned. Many observers believe that this point had to come in any event, for reasons unconnected with the airline strike.

The President evidently felt that the public inconvenience caused by the strike required a settlement, even at the price of breaching the guidepost principle.

The guideposts started from the proposition that wages in the economy as a whole should rise in line with the rise in worker productivity, or output per man hour. Because productivity increases can vary in the short run, the guideposts used the concept of "trend" productivity, or the growth over a long period of time.

This figure, arrived at in last January's economic report of the President to Congress, was 3.2%. The key to the guidepost principle was that all workers are entitled to this amount in wage increases, regardless of productivity in their own industries. Thus barbers or hospital nurses, whose productivity cannot increase much, had as much right to 3.2% as airline mechanics, whose hourly production was rising at 6% a year or more.

Sources close to the Administration estimated the cost of the contract at $73 million over three years. The emergency board recommendations would have cost $76 million over 42 months, or about $67 million over three years.

The cost estimate that emerged from union sources caused a flap within the Administration and infuriated President Johnson. P.L. Siemiller, the union president, later issued a statement "to set the record straight" saying the union "has not attempted to estimate the cost of the settlement" because it lacked "sufficient facts" to do so.

COURT BARS PILOT STRIKE

Heads of Airlines Locals Balk, Urge Rejection of Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of machinists union locals representing nearly a third of the striking 35,000 airlines workers indicated Saturday night the new contract proposal will be rejected today.

The executive boards of local 1759 representing 1,200 employes in Washington, 1781 with 6,000 workers in San Francisco and 1650 representing 4,600 employes in Kansas City turned down the tentative agreement Saturday night.

The three boards will recommend to their memberships today that they reject the contract.

In addition, leaders of two other locals representing another 700 workers said reaction to the settlement has been "strongly negative." They are Local 1058 representing 500 workers in San Francisco and Local 796 with 200 employes in the Washington area.

* * * *

PRESIDENT FRANK R. Waldner of Local 1759 said he expects his local to overwhelmingly reject that offer."

Waldner said the principal objections concern a delay of fringe benefits until 1967, and various local issues concerning the carriers.

In Los Angeles, officials of United Air Lines Local 1932 and TWA Local 111 said their executive boards voted to recommend rejection of the new contract.

Tom Foster, strike chairman of Local 1932, said of the contract:

"There's no cost of living escalation clause, the time lapse for fringe benefits is too distant, the immediate wage increase was not enough, there's not a paid pension plan, there's no fully-paid health and welfare plan, and no improvement in overtime rates."

The possibility that one of the lines — Trans World — would remain grounded was averted late Saturday when Federal Judge Edmund Palmieri issued a temporary injunction ordering the line's pilots to return to work if the machinists ratify the proposed contract. The pilots threatened a walkout of their own Saturday in a dispute related to the IAM strike.

The other four lines — United, Eastern, National and Northwest — expect to get their planes back in the air within hours if the machinists approve new terms hammered out Friday at the White House after President Johnson entered the dispute personally.

Details of the contract are to be announced today after the IAM's 35,400 members vote.

* * * *

LATE SATURDAY, however, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., issued a statement in which he said the machinists had won a 36-month contract giving them a wage boost "somewhat more than 4%."

Morse said his statement has made to support an earlier one in which he contended that the settlement "was within the general framework" of the recom-

U.S. Armed Strength Buildup Passes 3,093,000 Goal Early

WEDDINGS ARE WHERE LITTLE BOYS SHOULDN'T BE

It was Saturday afternoon and not the time for any self-respecting boy to be decked out in ruffled shirt and cummerbund, doing duty as pageboy at a wedding. Such is the message in these views of John F. Kennedy at the wedding in Newport, R.I., of his mother's half sister, Janet Auchincloss, and Louis P. Rutherford. In photo on left John is restrained by an older boy at the reception. At right—one shirt tail out and the other on the way, and his cummerbund discarded—young John is led away by his new Swiss governess, Francoise Geizendorf, after scuffling with other pageboy. He's whooping, not yawning as it might appear.

Course of War to Determine Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The massive buildup of U.S. armed strength has passed its announced goal of 3,093,000 a year ahead of time. There are strong indications it will continue.

Pentagon officials are reluctant to talk in specific terms about the eventual size of the military forces.

When questioned, Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance has said "we cannot see clearly at this time what will be required. We do not know yet what the upper limit on military manpower will be.

Other sources said force planning is projected ahead three months at a time.

* * * *

THE COURSE of the war in Viet Nam is the major factor to determine the level to which over-all American armed strength will be raised.

The U.S. force in Viet Nam totals 280,000 men. This total is expected to climb to 400,000 by the end of this year and probably higher next year.

If conditions should dictate a bigger-than-expected reinforcement in Viet Nam, the effects would be felt throughout the military establishment.

For example, sending an appreciably greater force to Viet Nam would require an increase in the number of recruits and units to fill the holes left in the garrison in the United States.

A larger force in Viet Nam, under a one-year tour of duty, would necessitate a step-up in the output of replacements.

The big U.S. buildup was set in motion just one year ago.

Subsequent to that, Congress was asked to provide funds to augment the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force by 452,000 men.

Under the schedule laid out for Congress by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the new level of 3,093,109 men was to be reached by June 30, 1967.

However, the buildup progressed so swiftly that the objective was reached—and surpassed by a little—

Second B52 Raid Blasts 'Peace' Zone

SAIGON, Sunday (AP) — U. S. B52 bombers pounded the demilitarized zone today for the second straight day. The target was North Vietnamese troops in the neutral area.

A U.S. military spokesman reported the raids today but said he had no details.

The giant Stratoforts hit the demilitarized zone Saturday for the first time in the Vietnamese war.

As in the Saturday raids, the eight-engine bombers struck today in the southern half of the 6-mile-wide demilitarized zone where elements of the North Vietnamese 324B Division had been sighted.

* * * *

U.S. MARINES and South Vietnamese troops for the past two weeks have been fighting the North Vietnamese division in Operation Hastings one to two miles south of the zonal border.

The zone, established by the 1954 Geneva Conference, separates North and South Viet Nam.

A U.S. spokesman said after the Saturday raids that visual and aerial photo reconnaissance had uncovered large concentrations of North Vietnamese troops in the neutral zone.

The targets Saturday included an ammunition dump, a weapons storage area and 26 gun positions.

It was possible today's raids struck at the same or nearby targets.

Flowers Inundate Truman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, hospitalized for a "minor intestinal disturbance" and a general checkup Saturday, received scores of floral tributes, including gold chrysanthemums and red roses from President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

The floral display from Johnson arrived at Research Hospital early Saturday night.

A bulletin on Truman's condition was issued at 8 p.m. CST. It stated Truman "remains in satisfactory condition and is resting comfortably."

2,000 OUTSIDE CHURCH

Mrs. JFK's Sister Fights Mob, Weds

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy's half sister Janet Auchincloss, fought her way through crowds to be married Saturday with the former first lady in the congregation and 2,000 spectators jostling police outside the church.

Janet, 20, became the wife of Louis P. Rutherford, 21, New York City.

Hundreds climbed trees, telephone poles and out on roof tops to view the wedding party. Hundreds more lined the curb, spilling out into the street. There were crying babies, fat women in bermudas, camera-carrying tourists, guitarists still around from jazz and folk festivals and nuns watching from the windows of a convent across the street.

Many had seen Mrs. Kennedy married to the late President in the same church—St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church—in 1953. As soon as guests left the church, several hundred spectators rushed inside to grab mementoes of the wedding—flowers from the altar, leaves, pieces of green canopy over the door and pieces of the white car-

Bogalusa Colored Man Shot

BOGALUSA, La., (AP) — Clarence Triggs, 24-year-old Negro was shot to death Saturday in racially troubled Bogalusa.

Asst. Police Chief L. C. Terrell said Triggs, a construction worker, died of a wound in the head. The body was found near a wrecked car in a park just off a main highway through Bogalusa. Police Chief Claxton Knight said the car, abandoned by a motorist, was unrelated to the slaying.

Robert Hicks, president of the Bogalusa Voters League, said Triggs had participated in the civil-rights movement here.

PRINCE PHILIP IS ● ● ● ● ● ● ● FROM CLUB

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, has been blackballed for honorary membership in one of Britain's leading scientific societies, published reports said Saturday.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman declined comment on the reports and referred all questions to officials of the Institute of Physics and the Physical Society. Officials at the society were unavailable for confirmation.

The Sunday Telegraph said it had talked to members, who confirmed they had been informed that the prince—the Duke of Edinburgh — had been turned down.

The Telegraph's front-page report added:

"The result is an affront to the Prince. It has caused grave embarrassment to the society, particularly because it was the society itself which invited him to join."

THE PUBLISHED reports said the institute invited the duke to be proposed for honorary membership through its committees.

"It was felt," said the Sunday Telegraph's account, "that such a move would recognize his contribution to science in Britain and that his acceptance would be a compliment to the society. When Prince Philip was approached he agreed to accept nomination."

The standing procedure is to poll the society's members on the proposed nomination. Response to such polls is normally small but if one-quarter of those voting refuse, the proposal is defeated.

The Sunday Telegraph's informant said there were 850 votes cast, of which 250 were against Philip. So, he was rejected.

1.5-Inch Cloudburst Soaks Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS (UPI)— A mid-afternoon cloudburst dumped 1½ inches of rain Saturday and winds up to 50 miles an hour toppled trees at this desert resort.

Brief flashfloods cascaded out of the mountains, but damage was limited to secondary roads. Major traffic arteries were unaffected.

A few homes were mudded, but officials said property damage was minor.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Reagan Raps UC Regent for Brown Campaign Work

Ronald Reagan demanded at Grass Valley Saturday that a top political aide to Gov. Brown either get out of the 1966 campaign or resign as a University of California regent.

Reagan aimed his fire at Frederick G. Dutton, a former assistant secretary of state, in a speech to a Junior Chamber of Commerce state board meeting. The Republican gubernatorial nominee replied to charges by Democrats that he is trying to make the university a political issue.

RONALD REAGAN
'Quit One or Other'

He said it is Brown who "is directly involving our great university system in politics in this election.

First of all, the man who is heading his campaign—Fred Dutton — is also a regent of the university. It would be difficult to involve the university any more directly in politics," Reagan said.

"I am demanding that, for the good of our university system, that the governor ask Mr. Dutton either to step down from his campaign post or to resign as a regent."

FRED DUTTON
Involves University?

'Proof's Ready'

State Controller Alan Cranston said Saturday in San Francisco he would gladly meet Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan in Sacramento Monday and prove to him "that the John Birch Society is riddled with radical and religious bigotry." Reagan challenged Cranston in Chico Friday to "name names, dates and places and stop being so mysterious" about charges Cranston made in a "white paper" on the Birch Society.

"Even though I am astounded that Mr. Reagan should persist in his unwillingness to acknowledge the evils of the Birch Society, I am pleased to have been given this opportunity to provide him personally with the facts," Cranston said.

Cranston said he guaranteed to present Reagan with "names, dates and places which will prove beyond a doubt the anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism and racism which flourishes at all levels of the Birch Society." Democratic State Chairman Robert L. Coate called Reagan an "apologist" for the Birch Society and claimed that he was supported by it.

Back to Heat

French adventurer Jean Pierre Marquant, the rugged ex-paratrooper who walked 102 miles through the searing heat of Death Valley, returned Saturday to take additional film footage. He set out on foot from Ubehebe Crater bound for Scotty's Castle, about 12 miles. Accompanied by a two-man support team and refrigerated truck carrying supplies, he expected to wrap up the abbreviated walk and photography mission today.

On the Way

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Nugent will depart from Waukegan, Ill., by car today for Washington, where their son will marry Luci Johnson Aug. 6. Mrs. Phyllis Nugent, sister-in-law of bridegroom-to-be Pat Nugent, will accompany the couple, who will be honored by Ambassador and Mrs. W. Averell Harriman at a rehearsal dinner.

Twins Surprise

There was nobody to surprise when 18-year-old sailor Joseph Chernesky Jr. made a surprise visit home to Detroit. The doors were locked and the family car was gone when the young Navy man arrived on his unannounced 10-day leave. His parents were en route to pay him a surprise visit at his base in Florida, taking three other children, Margaret, 14; Christine, 10, and Pat, 8. After borrowing a sleeping bag from a neighbor and resting in a pup tent in the back yard, Chernesky got one consolation: His sister Lois, 20 showed up and they had a happy reunion.

A Duty Call

While stationed in Viet Nam last year, Spec. 4 Rayford Huber Jr. wrote a letter to his hometown magistrate explaining where he was and promising to answer motor vehicle summons as soon as he got home. He returned last week after his three-year tour of duty, and found himself a job. He also went to court, produced a somewhat yellowed, but neatly folded summons, and paid a $205 fine for driving with a revoked license. Magistrate John D'Angelo imposed the mandatory fine. "You are to be commended for your thoughtfulness in writing us, and for your uprightness," D'Angelo said. "It is gratifying to this court to see one who flinches neither at his duty nor his debts to society."

Now He'll Die

It appears that James D. French will get his wish and become the 83rd person to die in the electric chair of the Oklahoma State Penitentiary. The 26-year-old condemned slayer, barring further stays, is to die Aug. 10. He was serving a life term for murder when he strangled his cellmate, Eddie Lee Shelton, in 1961, and later was condemned to death. French repeatedly has said he is guilty and wants to die. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. French of Huntington, W. Va., have said they would comply with their son's wishes and make no further effort to save his life. "James begged us on our farewell visit not to intercede but to let him die," Mrs. French said in a telephone interview. "He said it would be a living hell in the prison because probably would be cooped up like an animal most of the time."

Both Go Free

The Rome court that found it impossible to convict Claire and Yousef Bebawi for the slaying of an Egyptian playboy said Saturday it was convinced one of them was guilty. The court said it exonerated the divorced Egyptian couple of the murder charge in order to avoid condemning an innocent person, since it was impossible to prove which one committed the crime. The Bebawis both were charged with premeditated murder in the 1964 pistol and acid death of Farok Chourbagi, Claire's 28-year-old lover.

WINS YOUNG AMERICAN MEDAL FOR BRAVERY

Girl, 18, Braves Sharks to Rescue 4

The most heroic boys and girls in the United States have been honored, since 1951, by an official national tribute—The Young American Medal for Bravery. Only the President himself can award this unique medal. Only a few youngsters, all under age 19, have won it with their valor. Here is the story of one of "America's Kids Courageous." Six others will follow.

By THEODOR SCHUCHAT
(Copyright, 1966, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK — It was a gay group setting out for a Fourth of July cruise in the Les-LeMar along Georgia's inland waterway that calm summer evening in 1953.

Disaster struck less than two hours later.

Mrs. Earnest Haar and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seybold, were in the galley of the 42-foot Haar yacht, fixing turkey sandwiches. Mr. Haar was alone in the wheelhouse separating the fore and aft compartments of his craft.

In the aft cabin, lounging on the built-in bunks, were Marilyn Haar, 18, and her young friends, Virginia Davis and Lois McKethan.

Abruptly, the Les-LeMar turned around. Then it capsized, "in the twinkling of an eye," Mr. Seybold remembers.

"We hit a sandbar! Quick —get to the door!" Mr. Haar shouted.

But there wasn't time. Water swirled through the vessel, lapping at the armpits of the seven frightened vacationers.

* * * *

INSTEAD of escaping from the wheelhouse, Mr. Haar groped for the stairs to the galley. Before he could reach his wife there, the icebox door struck his head and he collapsed in her arms.

In the aft cabin, the girls began to pray—"not for our lives, for we felt we had lost them, but for our souls." Virginia said later, "Marilyn remained calm and told us she was going down under the water to find a window and see if she could open it."

Marilyn dove into the muddy, black water, tugged at the window, then shot back to the surface for air. Again and again, she returned to the stubborn porthole.

On the tenth try, it opened.

Marilyn escaped and returned to guide her friends to safety. Virginia got out easily but Lois, who could not swim, came through the porthole, holding Marilyn's foot, only after considerable coaxing.

Once out, the raging current pulled her under, twice. As lightning crackled overhead, Marilyn swam to the struggling girl. Clinging to the capsized hull, Virginia reached out and pulled Marilyn and Lois back to the boat.

* * * *

MARILYN dove to the submerged forward deck, found life preservers for her two friends, then struck out for the forward compartment where the adults were trapped.

"We heard a knocking," Mr. Seybold recalls. "There, in complete darkness and separated from the outside by the impenetrable bottom of the boat, came the voice of Marilyn."

"Have faith!" she called. "Don't give up. God will show me a way to get you out."

As Marilyn sought a way to rescue them, the adults tried to escape. The Seybolds struck out for the wheelhouse, couldn't make it, and returned to the galley, Mrs. Seybold drowning in the attempt.

The rising water slowly rose to the necks of the terrified three survivors. Suddenly, the Les LeMar turned on its side. The shift swept the unconscious Mr. Haar out of his wife's arms, into the swirling darkness.

* * * *

THE SIDE of the boat now pressed down against Mr. Seybold and Mrs. Haar. Soon it would leave no place for their heads but beneath the rising water. Then Marilyn's voice was heard again:

"Are you there? Listen: I've found a porthole. It is open; you can get air if you can find it. Follow my voice."

The trapped survivors found the porthole and gasped for breath.

Then down Marilyn dove, again and again, pounding on the boat, searching for an opening, a window, a door.

"She knew of the danger of this shark-infested water," Mr. Seybold says with admiration. "She realized she could be trapped herself in the railing or the rigging of the boat, but she gave none of this any thought; her only concern was to find a way out for us."

Then Marilyn called again: "I've found a window! You can make it—you are saved, but listen to me and listen carefully.

* * * *

"THIS WINDOW is about 15 feet from where you are now at the porthole. I will knock on the boat as close to the window as I can, and you follow the sound of my knocking. You will have to swim underwater, but you can do it!"

"So we went, Mrs. Haar and I," Mr. Seybold remembers, "leaving behind so much of us there below in the water, in the dark."

Minutes after they escaped, the tide completely covered the Les-LeMar to which they clung, adults and teen-agers alike. Rain was falling steadily and the wind chilled them as they floated with the capsized craft, awaiting rescue.

"It was gruesome sitting there and every now and then seeing a shark swim past," Seybold remembers. "It made my blood run cold to sit there on the edge of that boat," Virginia adds, "and watch with the breaking of dawn, these creatures swimming around as if waiting for their human prey. I think the blood from Marilyn's wounds had attracted them to the scene."

* * * *

FOR 10 HOURS, the five huddled on the Les-LeMar's hull. They were discovered at 4 a.m. by passing fishermen.

On Dec. 14, 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower presented Marilyn Baker Haar with the sixth Young American Medal for Bravery for never losing her faith and courage that terrible weekend the year before.

Marilyn later attended Coker College. As a Red Cross swimming instructor at Hunter Field Air Force Base, she met and married William W. Ramsey. Today she is a housewife in an Atlanta suburb.

AFTER MOSCOW VISIT

Major War Fear Bared by U Thant

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Nations Secretary General Thant returned from an abortive peace mission to Moscow Saturday, warning that the conflict in Viet Nam is on the verge of erupting into a "major war."

Thant, who spent five days conferring with Soviet leaders, said on his arrival at Kennedy International Airport that the visit had "confirmed" his "fears" that Viet Nam "will develop into a major war."

"I don't want to go into specifics," he told newsmen, "but my feeling is that the fight might spill over the borders."

* * * *

THE SECRETARY general made similar statements earlier in the day as he left Moscow and during a brief stop in Paris to change from a Soviet airliner to an American one.

Thant described his talks with Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin as "very useful and frank" despite his failure to enlist Soviet support for Viet Nam peace talks. While the subject of Viet Nam "dominated" the talks, he said, the questions of disarmament and U.N. finances also came up.

* * * *

THE SECRETARY general said he found "a general feeling in Moscow that it is up to those who are fighting to take the initiative" in arranging a truce.

He said any move by the Soviets to join the United States in pressing for peace was unlikely.

"The United States views North Viet Nam as the aggressor and the Soviet Union views the United States as the aggressor," he said. "With these very different viewpoints, it is very difficult to reconcile their attitudes."

During the talks, Thant said, the Soviet leaders reiterated their public statements that "they are prepared to render all possible assistance to North Viet Nam."

Saturn Rings Ice, Says Soviet Savant

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday that a Soviet astro-physicist has evidence that the rings around the planet Saturn are made of ice.

Tass said Vasili Moroz has been studying the spectra of Saturn since 1961 and his work was done with "very sensitive astronomic equipment."

China General, Top Reds Flushed in S. Viet Jungles

SAIGON (AP)—The official Viet Nam press said Saturday some high-ranking Asian Communists, including a general from Red China met 10 days ago under an extraordinary security guard in the jungles of Tay Ninh Province of South Viet Nam.

Without touching on what may have been their subject matter, the government news agency indicated a chance military patrol broke up the session in confusion.

The Viet Nam press said South Vietnamese Army troops infiltrated the area, near the Cambodian frontier about 70 miles northwest of Saigon, and engaged in a firefight with elements of a full regiment of guerrillas posted in the jungles as a security force. By its account:

The Communist representatives broke up the meeting and pulled out, leaving behind a briefcase that was seized by the troops.

Captured documents named one participant, Vo Chi Cong, as counselor of the Viet Nam People's Revolutionary Party and personal representative of President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam.

On hand from Red China were Maj. Gen. Huyet Deat Trung, military adviser to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, and Maj. Ngu Goang Rang, political adviser to the front.

Both names were spelled phonetically in the Viet Nam press account. They sounded similar to Vietnamese names, but it is common for both the Chinese and Vietnamese Communists to change names. Ho Chi Minh's name, for instance, is one he adopted while hiding out in China from French police years ago.

* * * *

THE VIET NAM press story said a colonel named Mot Nang was present as a representative of the Cambodian National Defense Ministry and that a colonel identified only as Chewclani represented the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos.

Top leaders of the South Vietnamest Communist movement were reported on hand.

The party leadership of the Viet Cong has been known to maintain its headquarters in Tay Nihn Province, just across from the Cambodian frontier. The jungle canopy there is two and three layers deep.

American and Vietnamese troops and warplanes have joined in various sweeps that jarred but never fully broke the Red hold on the countryside.

Target-Shooter Dies in Surgery of Gun Wound

Frank Victor Fawley of Buena Park died in surgery Saturday after suffering a gunshot wound while target-shooting with friends on the desert near Apple Valley.

Fawley, 21, of 7331 8th St. was wounded in the lower left chest when a bullet ricocheted off a rock at Cottonwood Springs.

He died after six hours of surgery during which he was given 23 pints of blood.

Soviet Economic Growth Rate Slowed, Study Tells Congress

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Economic growth has slowed markedly in the Soviet Union since 1958 and the total size of the Soviet economy is still about 47% that of the United States, a major new study concluded Saturday.

The study of all aspects of Soviet economic performance and policy was made by a number of experts in this Joint Economic Committee. It runs 1,093 pages. The sections are by individual authors, who are named.

By 1964, one part of the study found, Soviet citizens had a standard of living only 31% that of Americans. It said:

"The Soviet population lives markedly better in the mid-1960s than it did at the end of the postwar reconstruction. Between 1950 and 1958, per capita consumption grew at an average rate of over 5% a year, but since 1958 the rate has fallen by half. Nevertheless, Soviet consumption per capita has increased from 27% of U.S. consumption per capita in 1955 to 31% in 1964."

* * * *

SHARPEST INCREASES in Soviet consumption have been in consumer durable goods, such as radios, television sets, sewing machines and washing machines, though not in automobiles. The number of these durable goods in use per capita remains, however, far below that of the United States.

The study on the over-all performance of the Soviet economy, measured by the gross national product, found that the growth rate averaged 7.1% a year from 1950 to 1958 but has slipped back to an average of 5.3% since that time. The study concluded.

San Pedro Cabin Cruiser Gutted by Blast, Fire

An explosion and fire gutted a $24,000 cabin cruiser off berth 74 in San Pedro about 7 p.m. Saturday.

There were no injuries when the 36-foot vessel burst into flames while tied up at the Shell Oil dock.

The owner, Leo Evans, 40, Hawthorne, motel and bar owner, said he and Robert Marshall, 34, of Showlow, Ariz., were knocked off their feet by the explosion.

"We immediately jumped to the dock, cast off the lines and pushed it into the channel away from the gasoline docks," Evans said.

Evans said he had taken 130 gallons of gasoline just before the blast.

* * * *

HARBOR Division firemen said the cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

Evans, Marshall, Duane Allen, 30, of 521 Javelin St., Torrance, and John Evans, 47, of 11045 Elbins St., Lakewood, had just returned on the boat from a cruise to Catalina Island. John Evans and Allen went ashore minutes before the explosion ripped the boat.

'SHAME TO JOIN A UNION'

Southland Nurses Firm in Bid for Salary Gains

By BILL DUNCAN

Nurse Julia looked down at her watch. It was a quarter to 7 in the morning. Her shift would begin in 15 minutes.

Routinely, she signed in and picked up a tray of thermometers sealed in germ-proof cellophane envelopes and then a clipboard with the names of 16 patients she would care for in the next eight hours. This day would have eight more patients that usual because the hospital was short several nurses.

Her days would start with taking temperatures of the patients and would include bathing eight patients, feeding all them breakfast and lunch, answering many lights (call from patients) and telephone calls.

* * * *

FOR THE MOST part, it would be routine — something she had done for 12 years as a registered nurse.

What wouldn't be routine would come at 10 a.m. when she'd be called to assist in the emergency room where a mother, cut and bleeding, would become hysterical when she learned that her daughter had died in the automobile accident in which she herself was injured.

Nurse Julia would hold the woman to restrain her from reaching the child's body. Her fresh white nurse's uniform would become soaked with blood as the distraught woman buried her head against the nurse and sobbed:

"Oh, my God, why?"

Nurse Julia would change the uniform for a green surgical nurse's garb and continue her duties:

—Comforting an elderly lady who thought her gall stones were surely cancerous.

—Giving solace to a young wife whose husband lay encased in a cast from neck to toe—the victim of a three-story fall when scaffolding collapsed.

—Easing the pain of a child horribly burned and slowly dying from injuries received when a pot of boiling water for the tea she was brewing to surprise her mother overturned and spilled over her body.

—Masking her own feelings as she answered the 11th "light" for a male patient who kept complaining.

There would be other emergencies and crises that day — a typical day in the life of Nurse Julia and that of any floor nurse in a hospital.

She does it for $450 a month — less than the pay of a clerk-typist in the business world . . . less than the pay of most retail clerks . . . less than the pay of a Long Beach meter maid.

The $450 is the average in most Southern California hospitals.

"The registered nurse is the most underpaid, overworked individual in our society today," said a charge nurse at one of Long Beach's hospitals.

Southland nurses are asking pay increases, but not as vigorously as nurses in San Francisco where a strike is near.

* * * *

A STRIKE is not beyond the realm of possibility. The Hospital Council of Southern California has set up a study committee to study nurses' salaries and working conditions.

Leadership in making the demands is coming from the California Nurses Association — a professional organization poorly subscribed to by the nurses themselves. It is not a bargaining agency, and some nurses have accused the group of not looking out for the interest of nurses.

"We are professional people and it is a shame that we should have to join a trade union to get decent salaries," argued a Bellwood Hospital nurse who said that her $450 a month was the top of the salary scale after 10 years. "But we will unless someone listens to our demands."

None of the nurses interviewed by the Independent, Press-Telegram really wanted their names printed. "If anything, it is unprofessional to strike," an Artesia nurse said. "Our first interest is in the patients themselves and the care we can give them, but there comes a time when you must do something drastic. If we strike, then you can use my name."

The nurses' demands for improvement come in a time of shortage of nurses — especially in hospitals where the hours are long and demanding.

Nurses in looking out for themselves can be handicapped by the very quality that makes them good nurses — a bias toward self-sacrifice for others.

* * * *

AS AN EXAMPLE, RN Lionne Conta, associate executive director of California Nurses Association, commented:

"It took the group sometime to ask the Hospital Council of Southern California for a salary study for fear it might be construed as a primary interest in salary."

She said the CNA's primary emphasis is on professional factors "we believe essential for an acceptable standard of patient care."

The CNA and the hospital council have set Aug. 8 for a review of proposed salary adjustments. A liaison committee will hear recommendations from a private consultant, hired by the council to study the problem.

* * * *

APPARENTLY WAGES are not the only condition the nurses want to negotiate. The CNA also wants more to say about the hospital operation, and the council appears willing to concede to some degree.

James Ludlam, legal counsel for the hospital group, indicated this in a letter to the California Nurses Association:

"On behalf of the council we can assure you that we also realize that there are many more problems that have been highlighted by recent developments than just pay scales."

Illustrative of the situation in nursing are these developments:

—A Long Beach nurse and a mother said she quit her job several years ago "when I discovered the babysitter I hired for my three children was getting more than half of my take home pay."

Parkland Hospital where President Kennedy died of an assassin's bullet, has recently started an international recruitment for nurses.

—Hospitals are sending out teams to try to pirate nurses from other states—particularly during the winter months in Northern cities.

—Medicare has set off a hospital crises and the demand for nurses is greater than at an time in history.

—Young women are shunning the nursing field for more lucrative jobs elsewhere.

Of the 200 registered nurses on the staff at Long Beach Memorial Hospital about 15 are members of the CNA. In the entire Southern region, about 6,500 nurses are members of the organization.

"But the membership is increasing steadily, particularly since the San Francisco crisis," said Ralph Eliasser, CNA public relations man.

"I'm ready to fight," a Bellflower nurse exclaimed. "When society has reached the level that it is willing to pay a topless bar maid $250 a week, its time it recognized the woman dedicated to a greater ideal."

Risk of Bay Area Nurses' Walkout Grows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —The possibility of a walkout by 2,000 hospital nurses grew Saturday when a 10-hour bargaining session ended in failure.

The nurses have submitted resignations which will take effect Wednesday morning unless agreement on higher wages is reached in the meantime.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulous called another meeting between representatives of 33 San Francisco Bay area hospitals and the California Nurses Association for Monday.

The talks which broke up early Saturday brought "absolutely no progress," according to CNA research director Tom Hartley. "As far as we're concerned, they (the hospitals) don't even have a proposition on the table."

If all the nurses who have submitted resignations honor them, the hospitals will lose more than half their nursing staffs. It would be the first major walkout in the nation by hospital nurses, according to the U.S. Public Health Service.

The hospitals are admitting only emergency patients, and the CNA has agreed to have some nurses available for emergency cases on a volunteer basis during the walkout.

The nurses are demanding a monthly salary range of $600 to $720 while a three-member fact-finding panel studies the issue. The hospitals have been unwilling to increase salaries an average of $60 a month.

"This squabble is not about the ultimate salary," said Hartley. "Rather, the salary being discussed now is that amount necessary to keep the nurses on the job."

Farm Help Finds Brink's Checks

WESTBORO, Mass. (UPI) —Two farm laborers found three money cases Saturday containing checks taken in last week's $131,000 Brink's armored car robbery in Bedford.

Wendell Hancock and Philip Bailey came across the small suitcases near a stone wall separating the farm of Edward Uhlman from Route 30.

FBI agents summoned to the scene told Uhlman the checks had been taken in the July 22 Brink's holdup.

Four bandits carrying submachine guns ambushed three Brink's guards outside the Mitre Corp. in Bedford and escaped with $131,000 in cash and an estimated $17,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John Droney said Friday police know the identity of the smooth-working holdup men but can't arrest them because of recent Supreme Court decisions.

FBI agents dusted the suitcases for fingerprints in an effort to provide Droney with the evidence needed to crack the case.

The commando-like holdup took an estimated 15 seconds, and the guards never had a chance to use their weapons.

* * * *

A BRINK'S spokesman said the guards "would have been crazy if they had tried anything. They were looking down the muzzle of a machine gun."

The stolen getaway car was found later the same day abandoned in Woburn.

Five days after the Brink's robbery, three bandits shot and wounded two armored car guards outside the Jamaica Plain Veteran's Hospital in Boston and made off with $68,000 in cash and checks.

No arrests have been made in either robbery.

Federal Banks Hike S&L Rate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seven of the 12 Federal Home Loan banks have announced they are increasing their interest rates on money borrowed by savings and loan associations.

The five other banks are expected to follow suit in hiking the interest rates from 5.5 to 5.75%. The boost reflects higher interest rates in the money market. The banks that have announced interest hikes and the dates the boosts are effective are: Boston, Sept. 1; Cincinnati, Aug. 1; Greensboro, N.C., Sept. 1; New York, Sept. 1; Pittsburgh, Sept. 1; Spokane, Wash., Sept. 1, and Topeka, Kan., July 18.

BRIDAL COUPLE SURROUNDED
Police clear a path through crowd for Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Rutherford after their wedding in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Newport, R.I., the same church in which the late President John F. Kennedy married Jacqueline Bouvier Sept. 12, 1953. Mrs. Rutherford (Janet Auchincloss) is half sister of the former first lady.

pet over which the bride walked down the main aisle.

Some of the spectators waited five hours to get good vantage points and police found it difficult to control the eager crowd. Many of the guests had to fight their way into the church.

As Mrs. Kennedy arrived, a crowd of about 500 surged forward shouting, "There she is, there she is," "She's beautiful," "see her." Dozens reached out to touch her and tried to grab at her yellow coat.

Smiling, she made her way through a narrow path to the door of the church accompanied by secret service men.

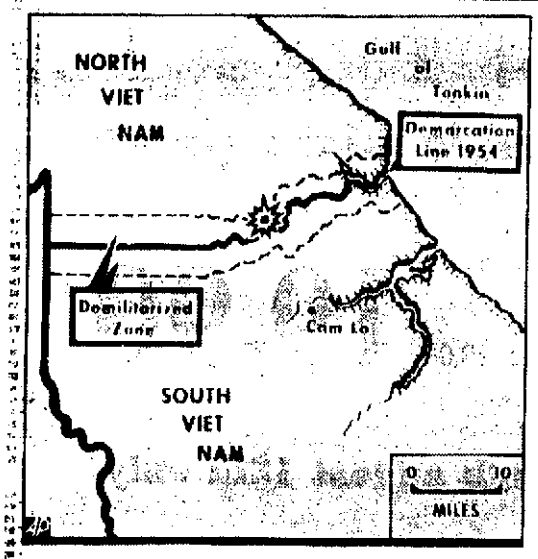

The crowd screamed again when Caroline Kennedy, 9, one of four flower girls in the 31-member bridal party, arrived. John Jr., 5, frowned when he heard the crowd calling his name and put up his fist. He was rushed inside.

The bride arrived 10 minutes late, delayed in traffic, and entered the church with a furrowed brow, seemingly on the verge of tears. The nuptial mass lasted 40 minutes. Most of the spectators waited for the party to come out.

The bride and groom left first without difficulty, but then hundreds of persons filled the streets making it impossible for Mrs. Kennedy's limousine to get to the church. There was a delay of about five minutes while police pushed people back.

Limousines were lined up for a mile on the narrow one-way street in front of the church. Similar traffic jams occurred on the road by Hammersmith Farm, the 75-acre summer home of the Auchincloss family and site of the wedding reception. The bride wore a short-sleeved dress—a sheer organza embroidered with silk petals—designed by Fontana of Rome. It was ankle-length in front, forming a ten foot train in back. Bridesmaids wore white princess-line long cotton dresses.

Caroline and the other flower girls wore long white silk organza dresses and wreaths of blue and white flowers. John Jr. and the other six page boys wore blue linen shorts and white silk shirts.

ing American strike, loosed at dawn, stirred moderate to heavy antiaircraft fire from clandestinely emplaced enemy guns.

In other aspects of the war:

—Briefing officers announced that U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops now have killed the equivalent of two battalions of North Viet Nam's 324B Infantry Division in Operation Hastings. This is a 15-day-old campaign just south of the demilitarized zone. The list of counted enemy dead rose to 830. Though some Marine units have been mauled, over-all Allied casualties were called light.

—Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed a longtime Viet Cong Stamping ground in Binh Duong Province, 50 miles north of Saigon, with no immediate contact. They are involved in a large, new sweep-and-destroy operation code-named Springfield.

—A recent visitor to Hanoi said the Russians are providing North Viet Nam advanced-model MIG21 aircraft to combat American raiders. He would not guess at the number. The war's dogfights so far have resulted in the destruction of 17 of the Communists' fighters, including three MIG21s, against a loss of five U.S. planes.

Military Buildup Past Goal

as of June 30 this year. This was shown in official figures released this week.

Although the total U.S. military force is now beyond the stated goal, two services — the Army and the Marine Corps—are below their objectives. The Navy and Air Force have more men on board than provided for in the projections furnished to Congress last August and January.

As of June 30, the Army stood at 1,199,764 men—some 34,000 short of the immediate goal. The Marine Corps totaled 261,659 as against an objective of 278,184.

* * * *

THE NAVY was pegged at 744,626, up about 17,000 from stated goals. The Air Force totaled 887,307 — higher by about 34,000.

Draft calls for August and September are at as high a level, relatively, as they have been throughout the buildup year — 36,600 for August and 31,200 for September. All will serve in the Army.

Pilots' Walkout Blocked

mendations made by a special panel appointed by the President in an attempt to avert the strike Morse was the panel's chairman.

There had been reports that the settlement was double the Administration's guideline of 3.2% for wage increases, but Morse said that "any allegation that the wage settlement goes beyond 4.4% is simply contrary to fact.

The Oregon Democrat said the union originally requested a contract that would have cost the companies between $115 and $117 million over a 36-month period.

Morse said his panel recommended a settlement that would have cost about $66 million.

"As I judge it," he said, "the settlement reached by the parties was for about $72 or $73 million dollars, with no cost of living escalator."

The new disput involving Trans World arose when the Air line Pilots Association (ALPA) charged in Chicago and New York that TWA had violated two sections of its contract.

An ALPA spokesman said that when the machinists' strike began, TWA failed to give pilots two weeks' furlough notice or two weeks' pay in lieu of such notice, as called for in their contract.

In issuing the temporary injunction in New York Palmieri said he would hold a full hearing on the dispute Tuesday.

2 Slain, 2 Injured in Courtroom Gunfight

PLENTYWOOD, Mont. (AP) A burly oil worker, fined on an assault charge, fatally shot the mayor of Plentywood and wounded the judge and a policeman Saturday before the wounded officer killed him with a bullet between the eyes.

The gunfight took place in the city courtroom just after Duane Falk, 33, of Plentywood, the oil worker, was convicted of assault and fined $50. Sheriff Lyle Medders said Falk stood up and started shooting.

Mayor Ludvig Tande, 46, shot in the arm and side, staggered through a door and died on the floor of the fire department garage.

Falk wounded Jutice of the Peace William Denikas, about 80, who had hobbled into the courtroom on crutches, and city policeman Ole Fiske, 59.

Undersheriff Ben Holt said Fiske, shot in the side, then struggled with Falk until Falk accidentally shot himself in the side. In an ensuing exchange, Fiske shot Falk in the head, Holt said.

Fiske was in serious condition in a hospital and Denikas, who normally is confined to a wheel chair, was in satisfactory condition.

Falk had just been convicted of assaulting Robert Engstrom of Reserve, Mont., in a Plentywood bar in June. Ed Rucker of Plentywood, the defense attorney who represented Falk, said the earlier fight was over $230 Falk contended Engstrom owed him for damage done to his car in an accident last year.

"I got the hell out of there in a hurry," Rucker told newsmen. "I hid in the fire garage next door and counted six shots. Then I started to go home for my gun and I saw Falk fighting with Ole Fiske," the policeman. Rucker said he could not tell who fired the shot that killed Falk.

Residents of this town of 2,000 in extreme northeastern Montana streamed to city hall, where Falk's body lay on the courtroom floor and Tande's on the floor of the firehouse.

"The whole town is stunned," said J. S. Polk, editor of the weekly Plentywood Herald. "The mayor was a leading citizen. People are just standing around stunned."

Bottle, Rock Strike Aide to Rev. King

CHICAGO (UPI) — A top aide to the Rev. Martin Luther King was struck by a bottle hurled Saturday from a crowd of whites jeering at Negro and white demonstrators protesting alleged housing discrimination on Chicago's southwest side.

The Rev. Jesse D. Jackson, a King aide and a leader of the protest march, said he also was struck by a rock. Jackson suffered a cut on the arm but was bandaged at the scene and continued the eight-mile "silent vigil" march to and from a Gage Park real estate office.

Two young white men were arrested.

* * * *

THE NEARLY 500 marchers had reached the real estate office, east of Kedzie Avenue on 63rd Street, prayed and begun the return march when the white crowd gathered at the west side of the busy intersection.

The whites shouted, "Go back where you belong, you scum," and, "What do you want to take peoples homes away for?"

Several whites carried crudely lettered signs reading "White Power." Some youths in the crowd chanted, "White Power, White Power."

Negro demonstrators carried signs reading "Negroes Are People, People Need Homes," "Down with Apartheid," and "We Will Now Be Heard."

Some of the marchers were Catholic priests and at least one was a nun. A white man shouted, "How much it cost you for the uniform, Father?"

* * * *

SOME OF the shouts were delivered in thick foreign accents. The area is heavily populated with Lithuanian immigrants. One woman jeered, "You should be ashamed for the mixing, you scum." Another yelled, "I tell you, it's worse than Communist Russia."

The missile which struck Jackson was one of several thrown from the crowd.

Cordons of police quickly shepherded the marchers into adjoining Marquette Park, where they paused to rest and sing civil-rights songs. Several hundred white youths gathered a short distance away and shouted more insults at the demonstrators.

1 Vote Time for UAL Machinists

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Striking machinists at United Airlines Saturday were advised voting plans on ratification of a new contract have been radically changed.

Local strike chairman Tom Foster said district officials notified him the four times originally scheduled today for voing on the pact are not workable.

Foster said members of local Lodge 1932 will now be allowed only one meeting — at 11 a.m. — at which to discuss the contract and cast ballots. The 8 a.m. and 5 and 8 p.m. meetings have been cancelled, he said. Voting will still be at the UAW Hall at 5250 W. Imperial Highway.

Foster said district officials told him the afternoon meetings would not allow enough time to get results to Washington in line with votes being taken elsewhere in the country.

'Soapy' Awaits Comeback Test

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON (AP)—G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, who resigned as assistant secretary of state to run for the Senate, tests Tuesday whether he still has the vote-drawing power in Michigan that kept him in the governor's chair throughout the 1950s.

Williams is rated by political observers as a strong favorite over Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanaugh for the Democratic Senate nomination.

He would like to win big in the Tuesday primary and carry the momentum over into the fall election contest with Republican Sen. Robert P. Griffin. Griffin has no primary opposition.

* * * *

KANSAS, IDAHO and Missouri also have primaries Tuesday.

In Kansas, Rep. Robert Ellsworth is trying to upset Sen. James B. Pearson in the Republican primary.

In Idaho, Gov. Robert E. Smylie, the nation's senior governor in length of service, is asking Republican renomination for an unprecedented fourth four-year term. Don Samuelson, a young legislator, is running against him.

Idaho is locked in controversy, cutting across party lines, over a 3% state sales tax. The tax is already in effect and the governor supports it. A referendum on the tax will be held in November.

Missouri does not elect a senator or governor this year, but three of its 10 House members have challenges in the primary. They are Republican Durward G. Hall and Democrats Richard Ichord and Paul C. Jones.

* * * *

A FIFTH primary of the week is Thursday in Tennessee. Gov. Frank Clement is making another run at Sen. Ross Bass for the Democratic nomination for the Senate. He lost to Bass two years ago for the two years in the unexpired term of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Former Gov. Buford Ellington and John J. Hooker Jr. are contending for the Democratic nomination for governor in what is generally regarded as a clash between the Kennedy and Johnson factions of the party.

Ellington resigned as President Johnson's director of the Office of Emergency Planning to run for governor. Hooker, a Nashville attorney, was an assistant to Robert F. Kennedy when the present New York senator was attorney general.

* * * *

TENNESSEE Republicans have a contest between Kenneth Roberts and Howard Baker Jr. for their Senate nomination. Their nominee for governor is Charles Moffett, former director of the University of Tennessee Evening School.

In Michigan, Republic Gov. George Romney is unopposed for nomination to a third term. His fall opponent will be Zolton Ferency, state Democratic chairman who has no opposition for his party's gubernatorial nomination.

In addition to Pearson and Ellsworth, there are two other candidates for the Republican Senate nomination in Kansas. They are William D. Tarrant, former mayor of Wichita, and Mrs. Ava V. Anderson, wife of a Concordia dentist.

Pearson came to the Senate in January 1962 by appointment and won election the following fall to the remainder of the unexpired term of the late Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel.

Ellsworth is a three-term House member.

* * * *

SEEKING the Democratic Senate nomination are J. Floyd Breeding, a former Congress member; Harold S. Herd, state senator; J. Leigh Warner, an insurance executive, and K. L. Smith, who was the Democratic nominee in 1962 against Republican Sen. Frank Carlson.

Republican Gov. William H. Avery has nominal primary opposition. So does Robert Docking, the prospective Democratic nominee. Docking, an Arkansas City banker, is a son of former Gov. George Docking.

Idaho has a three-way contest for the Democratic nomination for governor involving Cecil Andrus, William J. Dee and Charles Herndon.

THE STATE elects a senator this year but there are no primary contests over the nominations. Ralph Harding, a former House member, will try to unseat Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan in the November election.

Neither of the state's two House members — Democrat Compton I. White Jr. and Republican George V. Hansen —has primary opposition.

A candidate for Hansen's seat, via the Democratic primary, is Army Capt. George Willmore, fresh from flying helicopter missions in Viet Nam. He is opposed in the primary by A. M. Bill Brunt, a former state Democratic chairman.

* * * *

HERE IS THE August political lineup (primaries except where designated as conventions):

Aug. 2—Idaho: senator, 2 representatives, governor.
—Kansas: senator, 5 representatives, governor.
—Michigan: senator, 19 representatives, governor.
—Missouri: 10 representatives.
Aug. 4—Tennessee: senator, 9 representatives, governor
Aug. 9—Arkansas: runoff.
Aug. 13—Louisiana: senator, 8 representatives.
Aug. 16—Montana: senator, 2 representatives.
—Wyoming: senator, 1 representative, governor.
—Virginia: runoff.
Aug. 20—Delaware: local candidates.
Aug. 23—Alaska: senator, 1 representative, governor.
Aug. 27—Delaware: Democratic convention, senator, 1 representative.
Aug. 29—Delaware: Republican convention, senator, 1 representative.

A MERE 78

Quits Golf for a Job; It's in Africa

MONTREAL (AP)—At 78, Donald M. Lowe is giving up golf—to take up a two-year assignment as an engineer in Uganda.

Lowe has joined the volunteers of the Canadian University Service Overseas and is putting in an 11-hour day at Loyola College learning the Luganda language before taking off for Africa.

"I would not come out of retirement to take an assignment in Canada because there are younger qualified men who can do the job," he says. "This assignment overseas is another matter. I feel I can work with the people of Uganda in helping set up a modern road transportation system which they need."

A bachelor born in Scotland, Lowe served in both World Wars. After handling several major engineering projects in Canada, he retired in 1962 to a 36-hole day.

Travel Films Available at Public Library

Where to vacation and how to behave when you get there are covered in some of the 22 16-mm. films available throughout August at the Long Beach Public Library in Lincoln Park.

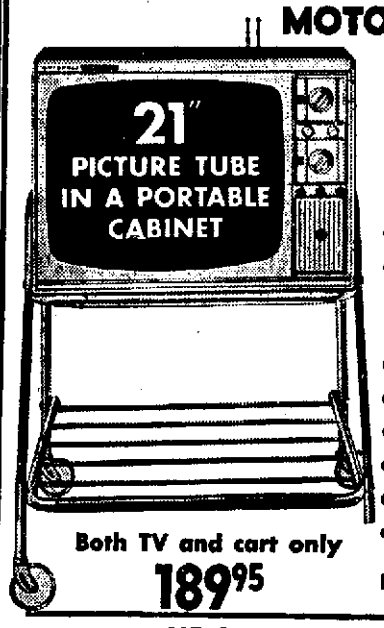

Films include: "Kootenay Lake Holiday," an exploration of scenic British Columbia, "Land of the Blue Tartan," which was made in Nova Scotia and "Yellowstone National Park." "Forest Murmurs" points out the ugliness caused by littering natural areas with trash and debris.

Additions to the library's permanent film collection include "The Clown Princes," a survey of styles and personalities of early day comedians such as Charlie Chase, Harold Lloyd and Laurel and Hardy, and "Girls in Danger," Mae Marsh, Leatrice Joy and others facing death (and worse) in old silent films.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Stilwell Search Ends in Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The seven-day search in the Pacific for Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell ended at nightfall Saturday.

The Coast Guard, which had directed the intensive operation, asked that ships and planes traveling in the area 400-700 miles southwest of here keep a lookout for traces of the missing plane.

The search had been scheduled to end at dusk Friday but four hours before the deadline a Coast Guard aircraft spotted a bright orange piece of wood in the area where the plane was last reported.

Two cutters and an airplane searched the seas again Saturday. The plane returned to its base at mid-afternoon and the cutter Taney headed for port about the same time.

The cutter Dexter remained on the scene until sunset, then made for home.

Opposes Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Congressman James D. Martin accepted the Republican nomination for governor Saturday night with a promise to outdo Gov. George Wallace in making Alabama more prosperous.

He told delegates to the GOP state convention that election of Wallace's wife, Lurleen, would establish a "dynasty that we can ill afford, that, indeed, could leave our state bankrupted." Mrs. Wallace is the Democratic nominee to succeed her husband when his term expires next January. She won her nomination in a statewide primary last May 3.

Martin, the Republicans' top vote-getter, became the GOP nominee after convention delegates shouted down a last-minute attempt to pull him out of that race and run him instead for the U.S. Senate. Martin had said previously he would oppose any such effort if it developed on the convention floor.

Crash Kills Five

WINSLOW, Ariz. (AP)—Five persons were killed and two injured critically Saturday in a two-car collision on U.S. 66 four miles west of Winslow.

Dead are Charles West, 53; Janice West, 47, and Wendy Joe West, all of Redwood City, Calif.; and Lawrence Avery, 26, and Mary Ann Avery, both of Hollywood. In critical condition in a Winslow hospital are Eric West and Nina Joe Milsap, 15, both passengers in the West vehicle.

Ky Condemned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-seven representatives joined Saturday in condemning South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for suggesting an invasion of North Viet Nam and eventual war with China.

The members, including three Republicans, said Ky's statement indicated he has goals far beyond President Johnson's limited ones. They called for "more forceful" efforts to seek a political peace.

Concern for Ironsi

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — Nigeria's government claimed Saturday to have crushed a revolt by dissident army troops but officials maintained silence on the fate of the president, Maj. Gen. John Aguiyi-Ironsi.

Widespread reports in Africa and abroad said Ironsi and one of his military chiefs fell into rebel hands at Ibadan, 150 miles north of Lagos.

The government broadcast repeated assurances that control had been restored but made no mention of Ironsi's fate.

Positive It's U-2

PANAMA ,C. Z. (AP)—The wreckage of a plane and human remains found by farmers in Llanquera, Bolivia, have been positively identified as those of a U.S. Air Force U2 and its pilot, Capt. Robert D. Hickman, 32, of Alexandria, La., a U.S. spokesman here announced Saturday.

Hickman's plane disappeared Thursday. Farmers found the wreckage Friday.

The announcement said identification of the pilot's remains and the wreckage was made by an investigating team headed by Lt. Col. Edward J. Fox, air attache of the U.S. Embassy in La Paz, Bolivia.

South Drenched

By United Press International

Heavy rain fell across the South Saturday, ending a drought in Virginia. Temperatures plunged 40 degrees in 12 hours in the Pacific Northwest.

Wrong-Way Crash Kills 5, Injures 2

INDIO (UPI) — A car traveling in the wrong lane of U.S. 60-70 collided head-on with an oncoming automobile Saturday, killing five persons and critically injuring two young girls.

The dead included four of the six members of the Robert Koch family of Santa Monica, who were riding in one car.

Koch, 43, his wife Ynez, 41, son Stephen, 16, and daughter Victoria, 6, were killed. Two other daughters, Heidi, 12, who underwent surgery., and Lisa, 14, were in critical condition at Indio Community Hospital.

The fifth victim was James Grouch, 47, of San Bernardino, driver and sole occupant of the wrong-way car.

Officers said the collision occurred on a stretch of divided freeway 11 miles east of here.

Probe Ends on Harbor Car Dive

Investigation into the mysterious plunge of a car salesman's 1966 demonstrator into Long Beach harbor ended Saturday when the owner refused to file a complaint.

The car dropped into the turning basin at the end of Edison Avenue Friday night. Navy divers located the auto in 30 feet of water, and a tow truck pulled it to the surface but, no bodies were found.

Detective Frank Estes said the car, a total wreck, is owned by Reiman-Turpin Pontiac, 412 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington.

• • • • •

THE CAR was checked out to salesman Joseph Silva, 57, of 310 W. Fifth St., Long Beach, who told Detective Estes he last saw the car shortly after 9 p.m. Friday when he parked it outside a bar in the central district of Long Beach.

Silva said he believes two young men he met in the bar took the auto, but he is not sure, Detective Estes said.

When the wreckage was pulled to the surface police found the key turned to the "on" position in the ignition, the gear shift in neutral, the headlights switched on, and the right front window down.

It wasn't known if anyone was in the car when it plunged into the harbor.

STATE LAW BEING REDRAFTED TO MODERN STANDARDS

Penal Code Revision Sure t

The proposed new California Penal Code will reflect what its writers feel are, in many cases, completely new standards of conduct, different by far from the standards which existed when the present code was enacted in 1872.

The Independent, Press-Telegram believes the revision to be of such importance to every citizen that it has assigned award-winning court reporter Bob Schmidt to the task of analyzing some of the more controversial areas in the present and proposed codes.

It is anticipated that some of the recommendations will be subjected to intense public criticism—some of it logical and reasoned, some of it emotional. The Independent, Press-Telegram in an effort to contribute to the logical, reasoned review of the code, will publish in months to come articles that will analyze some of the more important — and therefore controversial—proposals.

By BOB SCHMIDT
Staff Writer

Californians soon will have a new set of rules governing their conduct.

And the new rules may create as much furor as some recent court decisions which, in part, prompted the move to revise the state Penal Code.

Some crimes now labeled as felonies—the more severe violations for which offenders can be sent to state prison—may be graded down to misdemeanors. And some acts now called criminal may not, when the new code goes into effect, be against the law at all.

Among the controversial questions certain to be debated publicly and heatedly are:

Should any criminals be punished by death?

Should homosexual activity always be against the law?

Should abortion laws be broadened?

Should a young man be subject to prosecution for the felony offense of statutory rape when the girl involved is under 18, but seems older?

Should there be any restrictions whatever on the writings citizens may read or the films or pictures they may see?

Does a society which puts millions of dollars each year into the pockets of bookmakers and the sellers of lottery tickets really want tight gambling laws?

Should some offenses, such as minor traffic violations or common drunkenness be considered "crimes" or merely "infractions"?

How much latitude should communities have in enacting laws meeting local problems? (This is the "preemption" problem, possibly the most controversial of all topics to be considered before the new Penal Code is enacted.)

And—less serious perhaps, but an example of the need for bringing the Penal Code up to date—should it be a felony offense calling for a 1-to-10 year prison sentence to steal something from a building on fire in San Francisco? And only in San Francisco, according to Section 500 of the current Penal Code?

The monumental task was begun in 1963, when the Joint Legislative Committee for the Revision of the Penal Code was authorized. The committee hopes to have its work completed by 1970, according to Long Beach-Signal Hill Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, a member.

"This isn't simply an alteration or compaction of the existing code," Deukmejian says. "We are writing an entirely new Penal Code, starting from scratch."

The current code was enacted 94 years ago, Deukmejian points out, and although it has been amended and altered many times, and modifications have been made through judicial interpretation of the code's provisions, the lengthy, unwieldy document still contains an abundance of outdated pro-

Slumdwelling Eskimos United in Land Claims

By HOMER BIGART
New York Times Service

BETHEL, Alaska—The worst slums in the United States are not in the racially turbulent ghettoes of New York, Cleveland, Chicago or Los Angeles. By all available indices of poverty, they are sparsely strewn, like garbage on an ice floe, along the desolate sea frontier of the United States with the Soviet Union.

Except for Nome, Kotzebue and Barrow, the 50 or more Eskimo settlements on the Bering and Arctic coasts of Alaska are rarely seen by tourists. The squalor of the region has had little or no impact on the national conscience.

Eskimos, if thought of at all, were considered to be so friendly, so indomitably cheerful and so amenable that nobody in Juneau or Washington, except a few officials in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, ever worried much about them.

* * * *

SUDDENLY, however, state and national governments are becoming sharply aware of political agitation among the 50,000 Alaskan "natives." The term natives embraces 27,000 Eskimos, 17,000 Indians in the interior and southeastern Alaska and 6,000 Aleuts, a people of mixed Eskimo and Russian blood living on the Aleutian Islands and the Kenai and Alaskan peninsulas.

The last twelve weeks have seen the formation by Eskimos of political action groups. These groups will press Eskimo claims to vast sections of Alaska. Some leaders have even suggested the creation of a native party. But for the moment they will work within the existing parties. Most Eskimos are Democrats.

Because natives comprise more than 20% of the state population, their votes are important.

Eskimo leaders feel they can muster enough strength to defeat Alaska's lone congressman, Rep. Ralph J. Rivers, in his bid for renomination in the Democratic primaries in August. They are after Rivers because they consider him unsympathetic to their land claims—claims that have been labeled "fantastic" by Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska.

Various greedy motives have been ascribed to the Eskimo communities for demanding all of northwest Alaska and all the Arctic slope, north of the Brooks Range, including areas believed fabulously rich in oil and copper.

Native leaders retort they are simply demanding their rights under the U.S.-Russian Treaty of Cessation, under which Alaska was acquired in 1867. The treaty says, "Natives shall not be disturbed in the possession of the land they occupy."

And the new breed of Eskimo leadership, educated to middle-class values and wanting economic security, has evolved a rather subtle line of argument for native title to the land. These young leaders promise not to stand in the way of "orderly" industrial development and mineral exploitation. They say they only want to prevent the rape of the land and the pollution of the streams.

At a hearing July 8 before President Johnson's public land law review commission in Fairbanks, Hugh Nicholls, one of the most articulate of the new Eskimo leaders, noted that "the past performance of the white man speaks only too plainly of his inability or indifference in preventing stream pollution and depletion of the God-given natural sources of food."

* * * *

NICHOLLS IS a light-skinned Eskimo, a carpenter, a veteran of World War II, and executive director of the recently formed Arctic Slope Native Association of Barrow. Nicholls said the new political action group was backed by "90% of the native people."

Nicholls said the average native family income in booming Barrow was between $4,000 and $5,000. But Barrow was by far the richest Eskimo community, he said, while at Anaktuvik Pass, in the Brooks Range, the cash income per family might be as low as $500 a year.

Briton Evicts Yank Tenant in Protest to War

FINCHINGFIELD, England (UPI)—A British landlord has evicted his tenant, U.S. Air Force officer, as a protest against the Viet Nam War.

Norman Lewis, who also is an author, said he planned to give the home to the Save the Children Fund, a British organization that cares for injured and homeless Vietnamese children.

Lewis said he personally liked Lt. Caesar Querra, the tenant, but felt he "must make whatever personal protest I can against the war policy of the present administration in Viet Nam, which I consider to be barbarous, futile, and a growing danger to world peace."

Californians soon will have a new set of rules governing their conduct.

And the new rules may create as much furor as some recent court decisions which, in part, prompted the move to revise the state Penal Code.

Some crimes now labeled as felonies—the more severe violations for which offenders can be sent to state prison—may be graded down to misdemeanors. And some acts now called criminal may not, when the new code goes into effect, be against the law at all.

Among the controversial questions certain to be debated publicly and heatedly are:

Should abortion laws be broadened?

Should a young man be subject to prosecution for the felony offense of statutory rape when the girl involved is under 18, but seems older?

Should there be any restrictions whatever on the writings citizens may read or the films or pictures they may see?

Does a society which puts millions of dollars each year into the pockets of bookmakers and the sellers of lottery tickets really want tight gambling laws?

Should some offenses, such as minor traffic violations or common drunkenness be considered "crimes" or merely "infractions"?

How much latitude should communities have in enacting laws meeting local problems? (This is the "preemption" problem, possibly the most controversial of all topics to be considered before the new Penal Code is enacted.)

And—less serious perhaps, but an example of the need for bringing the Penal Code up to date—should it be a felony offense calling for a 1-to-10 year prison sentence to steal something from a building on fire in San Francisco? And only in San Francisco, according to Section 500 of the current Penal Code?

The monumental task was begun in 1963, when the Joint Legislative Committee for the Revision of the Penal Code was authorized. The committee hopes to have its work completed by 1970, according to Long Beach-Signal Hill Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, a member.

"This isn't simply an alteration or compaction of the existing code," Deukmejian says. "We are writing an entirely new Penal Code, starting from scratch."

The current code was enacted 94 years ago, Deukmejian points out, and although it has been amended and altered many times, and modifications have been made through judicial interpretation of the code's provisions, the lengthy, unwieldy document still contains an abundance of outdated provisions; contradicting, confusing, and overlapping statutes, and double delegations of authority.

The 10-member committee—five senators and five assemblymen under the chairmanship of Sen. Donald L. Grunsky of Watsonville—has been directed to:

1. Appraise and, if necessary or desirable, restate and redefine provisions of law relating to crimes.

2. Eliminate existing provisions of criminal law which are no longer useful or necessary.

3. Rearrange and regroup the provisions in an orderly and logical grouping of subject matter.

4. Appraise, simplify, and improve present procedures.

5. Draft a code of criminal procedure to embody existing and proposed procedures governing the disposition of criminal and quasi-criminal actions.

To do the research and actual drafting of the new Penal Code, a 10-member advisory board was created under the chairmanship of Prof. Arthur H. Sherry of the University of California School of Law at Berkeley.

A tentative plan, calling for 16 "divisions," has been drawn, Prof. Sherry explained, with areas now located in other codes, such as the Health and Safety Code and the Vehicle Code, scheduled to be incorporated.

The division expected to create the most controversy is the one numbered 11 and titled "Crimes Against Sexual Morality, Public Decency, and the Family."

Division 11 is subdivided into six chapters:

1. Rape, Abduction, Seduction, and Related Offenses.

2. Sexual Crimes Involving Children.

3. Bigamy, Incest, Sex Perversion.

4. Obscenity.

5. Prostitution.

6. Abandonment and Neglect of Dependents.

The subjects of sex and morality are themselves controversial," Prof. Sherry says, "so it figures that anything we do in those areas is going to be controversial."

The fat may hit the fire in September, when the proposed sections dealing with sexual activity are scheduled to be submitted to the committee for its consideration.

"We hope to be able to provide not only the chief recommendations themselves, but concrete and intelligent alternatives," Prof. Sherry explains, "so that if the first version is not sufficiently satisfactory the committee has sensible compromises it can consider."

Helping Sherry with the actual research and drafting are four "reporters" who have been studying the various sections of the current penal code, the history of laws relating to criminal behavior, the American Law Institute's model penal code, and the penal codes of six other states which already have completed modernization of their criminal laws.

The proposed code will be sifted through several advisory groups representing all segments of society before it is sent finally to the legislature for approval. It will not only specify those acts which are criminal, but also will outline the procedure for prosecuting suspects, for punishing those who are convicted, and the extent and manner in which those who are placed on probation or parole are supervised.

"Our law," said then attorney general Stanley Mosk in 1963, "must be understandable and . . . 'findable.' I think I can safely say that our (basic) criminal law is not 'findable'."

The writers of the new California Penal Code hope that its provisions are both understood and findable, and that it will help Californians live in peace with each other.

40,628 Non-Farm Jobs Available

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The State Employment Service is looking for workers—40,628 in non-agricultural jobs alone.

"That's more than three times as many unfilled job openings as the 12,468 at the end of 1958," Gov. Brown commented.

Brown said that California unemployment has been falling and the labor market is getting tighter. He said the federal manpower development training program is helping to fill many of the job openings.

The employment service reports that it made 64,659 non-farm job placements last month.

The current vacancies range from semi-skilled to highly skilled occupations.

The highest figures for workers needed include 760 machinists, 603 draftsmen, 777 mechanical engineers, 867 general mechanics and repairmen and 604 social and welfare workers.

HEARING SLATED

Beer Bar Curb Sought by City

A Long Beach City Council committee hopes to launch a statewide movement next week to reverse the increase in beer bar licenses.

Chairman Emmet Sullivan has announced that his legislative committee will hear testimony Aug. 8 on proposals to establish a quota system or some other legal device for limiting the licenses, now issued by the state without specific restrictions.

Sullivan said representatives of the beverage industry are being invited, along with any witnesses from the general public who ask to be heard. Appointments may be made through the city clerk's office.

The hearing developed in part from complaints of intrusion of beer bars into business districts immediately bordering on residential areas.

Because the City Council itself can't legislate on the subject, Sullivan said the aim is to draft specific proposals for consideration by the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Department and the Legislature.

Freighter for Cuba Launched in Spain

EL FERROL, Spain (AP)—The 9,390-ton Cuban freighter "Jiguani," built at the Astano Shipyard in this port in northwest Spain, was launched Saturday.

The freighter, one of 41 ships Spain is building for Cuba under a ships-for-sugar barter agreement, sailed for London to take on general cargo. It has a crew of 32.

$5,000 PRIZES OFFERED

Fishing Derby Offers Bonanza

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

The Independent, Press-Telegram 1966 Metropolitan Long Beach Sportfishing Derby will get under way this month and the $5,000 in cash prizes, plus others, is expected to lure probably more anglers to Long Beach than we have seen for years.

The derby starts Aug. 20 and continues through Sept. 18, and there will be a fishoff of 15 finalists on Oct. 1. Incidentally, Oct. 1 is the date for the opening of the California International Sea Festival at Long Beach, which no doubt will be shortened to the "Long Beach Sea Festival."

* * * *

SINCE THE MID-MAY announcement of the I, P-T sportfishing derby, there has been a tremendous interest by anglers who fish from piers, breakwaters, barges and sportfishing boats, all of which will be eligible for the derby prizes.

The piers and barges will have five species of fish, which will not be competitive with the same species on the live-bait or private boats. In other words, if you catch a barracuda, kelp or sand bass, bonito, a croaker or a halibut on a pier or barge, it will not have to compete with the same species caught on private, rental or sportfishing boats.

Species eligible for sportfishing and private boats—and private boats would include rentals—will be albacore, bluefin tuna, barracuda, kelp or sand bass, bonito, halibut, white sea bass, yellowtail, black sea bass, broadbill or marlin. The last three are in a special class but may be entered by any angler catching one of the three.

* * * *

SHEEPSHEAD, rockfish, sharks and all other non-game fish are not eligible.

There will be official weighing stations at Huntington Beach Pier, Seal Beach Pier, Long Beach Marina, Belmont Pier, Pacific Sportfishing, Pierpoint Landing, Norm's Landing, San Pedro, and Skippers' 22nd Street Landing, San Pedro.

A fisherman from any city may compete, but he must fish off those piers and the barges served by those piers or the sportfishing boats from the above-mentioned piers and landings. The contest does not go down the coast farther than Huntington Beach, nor up the coast farther than San Pedro.

That does not necessarily mean that a private boat can't fish far away from Long Beach. However, it is assumed that private boats capable of running great distances will observe the same rules that apply to U.S. fishing tournaments. No fish from far down the Baja California coast will be allowed.

* * * *

THE PERSONS NAMED to the derby committee are the following:

June Ascolesi, Belmont Pier; Fred Austin, barge Islander, served by Belmont Pier; Earl and Mabelle Cameron, Huntington Beach Pier and barge; Robert Caneen, inspector of patrol, Department of Fish and Game, Terminal Island; Donnell Culpepper, outdoor editor, I, P-T; Dottie Cummins, Skippers' 22nd Street Landing, San Pedro; Dave Dobbie, Seal Beach Pier and its barge, the Alaska; Larry Hagen, Norm's Landing, San Pedro; Dr. Thomas Kiddie, president, Southern California Tuna Club; J. E. (Mac) McClintock, Pierpoint Landing, Long Beach; Eddie McEwen, Pacific Sportfishing; Bernard J. Ridder Jr., business manager, I, P-T, and Norwin S. Yoffie, special promotions, I, P-T.

* * * *

FIRST PRIZES in the 15 categories will be $250 and second prizes will be $50. The anglers catching the heaviest fish, naturally, will be the winners.

In addition to the cash prizes, Garcia-Conolon is putting up 15 rods and reels for third prizes.

Entry blanks will be available at all weighing stations, only those previously mentioned. No stations below Huntington Beach will be permitted. If a private boat chooses to fish south of the border and make a fast run for Huntington Beach, the entry will be permitted, but only if vouched for under the rules which the clubs use—and that means the 32nd parallel.

* * * *

Posters giving full rules and regulations will be at all weighing stations and will be printed in this writer's column prior to the start of the tournament.

Any person 16 years of age or older must, as California law requires, possess a valid state fishing license, unless he is fishing only from a pier ONLY, where no license is needed.

Any catch made anywhere in violation of the California Fash and Game Code will be disqualified.

Wilkins Tells Black Power Misgivings

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Last week, two Negro leaders announced plans to hold a national conference in September to define "black power." The following article, based on a recent interview with Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, indicates how a key figure in the civil rights movement will be approaching that important conference.

Roy Wilkins sat at the counter of the Biltmore Hotel Coffee Shop in Los Angeles munching on some crisp bacon and toast and digging into a double order of hash brown potatoes.

"No eggs," he had instructed the waitress, "It's my diet," he explained.

Wilkins, here for the 57th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, had gone to the Biltmore that day to escape the hurly burly of convention activity at the Statler Hilton, where the group was headquartered. And the conversation at breakfast had turned, inevitably, to "Black Power."

VIEWPOINT

* * * *

IT WAS CLEAR from everything that Wilkins had said at the convention that black power could no more be a part of his intellectual diet than eggs could be a part of his food diet.

Yet the unsettled question was whether Wilkins, the confirmed integrationist, could find any acceptable basis for working with the other civil rights groups who were crying for black power.

For the alternative, it seemed to observers, was a painful rupture that could only hobble the whole civil rights drive.

There were reports even then of a possible summit meeting on black power. And Wilkins, sensing that a conference of civil rights leaders would be called sooner or later, apparently thought it might be useful to set down informally some of his own conditions for such a meeting.

* * * *

ONE THING was certain: cooperation with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and the Congress of Racial Equality, the leading black power groups, would depend, he said, on a redefinition of the slogan, perhaps its very abandonment.

Wilkins didn't try to conceal his irritation over the fact that black power had been implanted in the public mind as an aggressive separatist philosophy with overtones of black supremacy, as he put it.

He said he frankly couldn't see how any effort to redefine the term could possibly undo the damage that had already been done in fact.

Moreover, he was angry at SNCC for having "foisted" the slogan on the civil rights movement. The proper time for a conference, he indicated, would have been before, not after, the slogan's introduction.

* * * *

WOULD HE ATTEND a summit meet, though?

Maybe yes, and maybe no, Wilkins smiled coyly at a subsequent news conference. It would depend, he said, on how the invitation was worded.

Wilkins obviously wasn't closing the door. But neither, as his remarks in the interview indicated, was he going to play the game by SNCC's rules.

'THERE'S A HAZARD AFT, SIR'

Mrs. Joan Ririe of Torrance, whose sultry voice may replace the buzzers which warn of equipment malfunction or other hazards on U.S. submarines, is shown in the pre-recording room of Northrop's Nortronics Division. Her recorded warnings would say such things as "Fire! Fire!" and "Flooding! Flooding in the forward torpedo room!" She's done similar work for the Air Force.

SULTRY VOICE FOR SUBMARINE ALARMS

Navy May Enlist Sexy Sal

The sexy, sultry voice that the Navy may use to warn submariners of danger belongs to a girl who finds nothing unusual about her newest assignment.

She's Joan Ririe, an actress, speech expert, singer, dancer, and choreographer who has done this kind of work before.

In fact, the Air Force used her voice first as part of the warning system in B58 bombers. The Navy announced in Washington Friday that the idea will be checked out soon aboard an operational submarine as a possible substitute for buzzers, bells and flashing red lights as signals of equipment malfunction.

Mrs. Ririe's voice may sound sultry in the recordings, but in conversation it's sweet and lilting. The conversion is no problem, she says for a speech teacher and actress.

"Sultry was the way they wanted it to come through," she said in an interview. "It's a big first, for this sort of purpose."

Equipment utilizing her voice is produced by Nortronics Division of Northrop Corp. at Palos Verdes. It is designed so that if two malfunctions occur simultaneously the voice will report the most serious one first.

To get the right timbre, Nortronics summoned 200 young women, taped their voices, submitted the recordings to psychologists and human factors experts.

Mrs. Ririe, 34, won the Nortronics job. She lives in Torrance with her husband, Bill, a professional drummer known as Rye Ririe, and two children—a girl 3 and a boy 1½.

"It keeps me very busy," she said. "I've been in show business for years. When I'm not acting, singing, dancing, being a mother or working at Nortronics, I teach speech classes."

Mrs. Ririe—her professional name is Joan Elns—was under contract to MGM for seven years. She sings and dances with orchestras, among them Russ Morgan's, records for Decca and has many television parts. She has just finished the choreography for two shows.

But there is a special fascination about the sultry-voiced warning business, and she expects to get more of it.

"After all," she said, "the Air Force calls me Sexy Sally."

War Claims Her Brother, Fiance

READING, Mass. (UPI)—Tragedy in Viet Nam was brought home shatteringly to a 22-year-old girl here for the second time Saturday.

Appearing dazed and walking limply, Diane Croce attended a funeral service for her brother just a few weeks after attending a similar service for her fiance, also a victim of the Viet Nam fighting.

A Marine sergeant assisted Miss Croce from St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church after the funeral mass for Marine Lance Cpl. Robert J. Croce, 20. He died July 15 in "Operation Hastings," just four days after arriving in Viet Nam.

On July 6, Miss Croce flew with her mother to Chillicothe, Ohio, to attend the funneral of Navy Medical Corpsman George Cotrill, 20, killed June 16 in Viet Nam.

Diane and Cotrill had planned to be married July 17 but the wedding was postponed when he was transferred from Chelsea, Mass., Naval Hospital to Viet Nam.

Croce's flag-draped casket was carried into the church for the solemn high mass by six Marines.

Diane, a slender 100-pound girl with long black hair, maintained her composure during the service, attended by some 200 persons.

Her mother, Mrs. Bernard A. Croce, broken down and was assisted from the church by her husband.

Two other sisters and two brothers also were at the mass for Croce, who joined the Corps after graduating from reading High School in 1964.

A boyhood chum, who had talked Croce into enlisting in the Marines instead of the Air Force, is serving with the Leathernecks in Viet Nam.

The funeral procession moved slowly to Forest Glen Cemetery where Croce was buried in the military section.

Liberia Ship Runs Aground Explodes; 34 Flee Safely

SPENCER'S ISLAND, N.S. (AP) — The 4,200-ton Liberian freighter Janet Glory ran aground and sank Saturday in Nova Scotia's Minas Channel. All 34 persons aboard made it safely ashore, but a witness said the freighter exploded as she went under and capsized a small lobster boat reportedly carrying three men. Searchers found one body.

There was no immediate sign of the other two men believed aboard the fishing craft.

Cecil Grant, a store proprietor in the mainland community of Spencer's Island, said the freighter sank late Saturday afternoon after all 31 crew members, Greek Capt. Vassilakis, his wife and 11-year-old daughter were safely brought ashore.

The Janet Glory exploded as she went down, apparently when cold water struck her hot boilers, Grant said. The Lobster boat, reported close to the freighter as the foundered, later was found overturned, he said.

Grant said a Royal Canadian Air Force helicopter was in the area.

The Janet Glory, bound for Lake Charles, La., with 3,900 tons of barite ore loaded at Walton, N.S., ran aground in fog early Saturday on Rocky shoals off tiny Spencer's Island, about a mile from this community of the same name.

The Minas Channel is at the mouth of Minas Basin, an eastern arm of the Bay of Fundy.

Hoffa Snooping Reward Posted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters' president James R. Hoffa has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to proof that federal agents and "others employed by them" used wiretaps, stole documents and checked his mail during his Tennessee trials.

The offer was made in advertisements submitted to the Chattanooga News-Free Press Saturday for publication this week.

Hoffa was tried in Nashville late in 1962 on conspiracy charges but the case ended in a mistrial and he subsequently was indicted on jury-tampering charges growing out of that trial. In 1964 a federal jury convicted him after a six-week trial transferred here from Nashville. He is appealing his eight-year sentence to the U. S. Supreme Court.

* * * *

THE TEAMSTERS' chief leveled charges of wiretapping at federal agents during the trial here and in later motions seeking a new trial.

Hoffa's signed statement for the advertisements said he believes agents and others "committed law violations" as follows:

"Wire tapping of the phones of Attorney Z. T. Osborn" of Nashville, an attorney for Hoffa, "and of the phones of the undersigned (Hoffa) and his attorneys at the Andrew Jackson Hotel in Nashville and the Patten Hotel in Chattanooga.

* * * *

"PLACING eavesdropping devices (listening bugs) in the offices and hotel rooms of the undersigned and his attorneys in Nashville and Chattanooga.

"Theft of documents from the offices of his then attorney, Z. T. Osborn" at Osborn's former Nashville address.

"Mail covers on the mail of his then attorney, Z. T. Osborn; the undersigned and his other attorneys at the Andrew Jackson Hotel in Nashville and the Patten Hotel in Chattanonga."

Timetable on Safety Irks Ford

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Co. engineers regard the proposed new federal safety law as unrealistic, The Detroit News said in a coyprighted story in its Sunday editions.

The News, in a story by industry writer Robert W. Irvin, named Ford and said some 1968 luxury car models, including Ford's Thunderbird, could be kept out of production because of the timetable for putting the new laws into effect.

The News said officials of the other auto companies — Chrysler, General Motors and American Motors — do not voice the same concern though they also are critical.

"You're looking at a worried bunch of guys," Donald R. Frey, general manager of Ford Motor Co.'s Ford Division said in the published story.

* * * *

FREY SAID "this is not just a Ford problem. This is an industry problem."

The timetable gives the car manufacturers only six months to make design charges for meeting the new standards while the minimum time required for such changes is two years, The News said.

Congress is ready to pass a bill applying to all 1968 model cars. The new standards are to be published by next Jan. 31 to take effect within 180 days to 12 months.

$1 Million Painting of Venus Arrives

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Arrival in the United States of the famous "Resting Venus" by Paris Bordone, a masterpiece valued at more than $1 million, has been announced by a Washington collector and art historian.

Dr. Stefan Krajocovic said the famous oil painting was hidden in Vienna during World War II and during the postwar Russian occupation. He said it was originally part of the collection of Prince Giovanelli in Venice and coveted by Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

Dr. Krajocovic, who is chairman of the National Committee for the Liberation of Slovakia, said he would like to arrange a special showing for Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. He said the First Lady had inspired in the nation a "new love of beauty, but beautificatioin is not just for roads and streets. It also is for inside the home, and art best fulfills this need."

* * * *

DR. KRAJOCOVIC said "this Venus stands with the great paintings by Titian and Giorgione of the Greek goddess of love."

"The 43 by 69 inch canvas shows a nude Venus hiding behind a ballustrade over which hang red draperies," said Krajocovic. "Behind the vision of her body is a typical Venetian landscape with a hill topped with the ruins of a castle.

"The Venus is a dark blonde. Her right hand rests on a light blue pillow; her left arm is lifted and holds a white veil, while touching her hair with the tips of her fingers. The bed is light red and the landscape is done in warm colors."

Dr. Krajocovic said the canvas is the only original "classical Venus" in the United States and compares with the Giorgione Venus in Dresden and that by Titian in Florence. He said the lifesize painting had been authenticated by Dr. Antonio Morassi, director of the Brera Gallery in Milan; Dr. Amadore Porcella in Rome, and Ammerich Schaffran, art historian in Vienna who was the art expert during the Nuremberg Nazi trials.

HEADS HOSPITAL

Sister Saint Michael, former school administrator, is the new assistant administrator at St. Jude Hospital, Fullerton. A native of San Diego, she holds a master's degree from St. Louis University, and just completed a year's residency in St. Francis Hospital, Hartford, Conn. She will assist Sister Jane Frances, administrator.

L.B. Boys Will Shoot the Rapids

High adventure on the rapids of one of the world's most exciting rivers is awaiting 25 Long Beach high school boys.

Shooting the Green River through the spectacular canyons of Dinosaur National Monument in Utah, surrounded by some of the most beautiful scenery in the country, the boys will be part of the Los Altos YMCA's 1966 Utah River Boat Run.

Sponsored by the YMCA, the trip is open to any high school boy in the city.

* * * *

THEY WILL leave Long Beach, under the supervision of Dave Savage, Los Altos program director, Aug. 21 and return Aug. 29. They will travel by truck, camping along the way, to Vernal, Utah, in the heart of Dinosaur National Monument, to begin the raft trip.

From here they will go upstream about 100 miles to where their neoprene U.S. Navy assault boats have been anchored. From here starts the actual four-day, four-night boat trip.

Shooting the rapids when they come to them, and floating lazily in between, the boys will ride down the river. Camping along the river bank at night will give them plenty of opportunity to explore the country. If they like to fish, and are any good at it, they may supplement the ample diet provided.

* * * *

PROFESSIONAL boatmen will navigate the rafts through the rapids and supervise handling of the rafts.

One of the most enticing elements of the whole trip will be the magnificent scenery of the national monument.

After the four-day raft trip is over the boys will return by bus, again camping along the way.

Further information on costs and arrangements may be made by contacting the Los Altos YMCA.

Scientists Know Moon Like Own Backyards

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A quarter of a million miles away is an area of the moon that has become as familiar to a few score government scientists and technicians as the backyards of their homes.

Members of the U.S. Geological Survey's astrogeology branch know practically every pebble in a section covered by the last photograph made by the Ranger 7 spacecraft just before it crashed into the lunar surface two years ago.

Using highly sophisticated and painstaking photo interpretation techniques to analyze the Ranger's dying blink, the scientists have come up with a scale relief model and contour maps showing details as small as four inches in the 95 by 85 feet section.

With this pioneering feat of extra-terrestial mapping behind them, the scientists of the 200-person branch currently are studying photos and other data returned by the Surveyor spacecraft.

They're also preparing for what they expect will be a quantum jump in their knowledge of the moon through photos to be taken by a series of moon-girdling satellites.

* * * *

THE FIRST of these lunar orbiters is due to be launched from Cape Kennedy sometime between Aug. 9 and 14. Each is expected to take highly detailed photographs of about 6,500 square miles of the moon's surface.

Although the cameras will sweep wide areas around the lunar equator as their elliptical orbits bring them to within 28 miles of the surface, the moon mappers are interested mainly in photos of nine areas chosen as possible landing sites for the first American astronauts to step onto the moon.

The first lunar orbiter also will make two passes over the now-dead Surveyor soft lander. The nearly straight-down photos from the orbiter will help in interpreting some of the features recorded in the generally more oblique photos of Surveyor.

Photos of the key areas will be rushed to the survey scientists here and at the astrogeological facility at Flagstaff, Ariz., soon after they are received and processed by stations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This is expected to take up to two months.

Then the moon mapping corps will begin the careful, tedious job of analysing the pictures and using them to determine the contours of the potential landing sites and what type of material is there.

As with the Ranger photo, the Survey scientists will use a newly developed photometric technique to analyse the orbiter photos.

* * * *

PHOTOGRAPHS ARE scanned with an electronic instrument that determines the density of the film exposed by the spacecraft's cameras. "Light" and "dark" areas of the image are converted by mathematical formulas to elevation references.

The formulas were devised to a large extent by years of observations from earthbound instruments such as telescopes and spectrometers in addition to the information from the spacecraft.

The scope of the task in tackling the hundreds of lunar orbiters photos is indicated by the fact that it took 12,000 photometric measurments to compute the contours in the one Ranger section.

The astrogeologists are aiming to provide maps and geological information that will give the first U.S. moonwalkers a pretty good idea of what to expect when they emerge from the Apollo excursion module—an event planned by the end of this decade.

In return for their efforts in behalf of the lunarnaughts, the geologists hope to get important feedback from that historic flight and the ones following.

Survey experts have been giving NASA astronauts instruction in basic geology and have been working on instruments for making observations of the characteristics of the lunar surface and subsurface.

* * * *

THE FIRST moonwalkers will have neither the time nor the space needed to collect and return large amounts of lunar material, but the geologists hope they'll be able to bring back considerable information with cameras and equipment.

One gizmo devised by the Survey is an acoustical device capable of detecting underground chambers and tunnels — which many scientists believe may be beneath some sections of the lunar surface.

It worked so well in detecting natural tunnels in a Hawaiian lava flow that it's now being studied by the Defense Department for possible use in discovering the elaborate burrows of the Viet Cong.

Missile Facility Officially Opens

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

Atlantic Research Corporation officially opened its new multimillion-dollar Missile Systems Friday with dedication ceremonies at the four-building, 15-acre facility in Costa Mesa.

Main speaker for the occasion was Lt. Gen. W. Austin Davis, vice commander of the Air Force Systems Command, who addressed several hundred city and state representatives and top ranking military and government officials.

The division facility, on which ground was broken 10 months ago, includes manufacturing, engineering, administrative and executive buildings totaling 130,000 square feet.

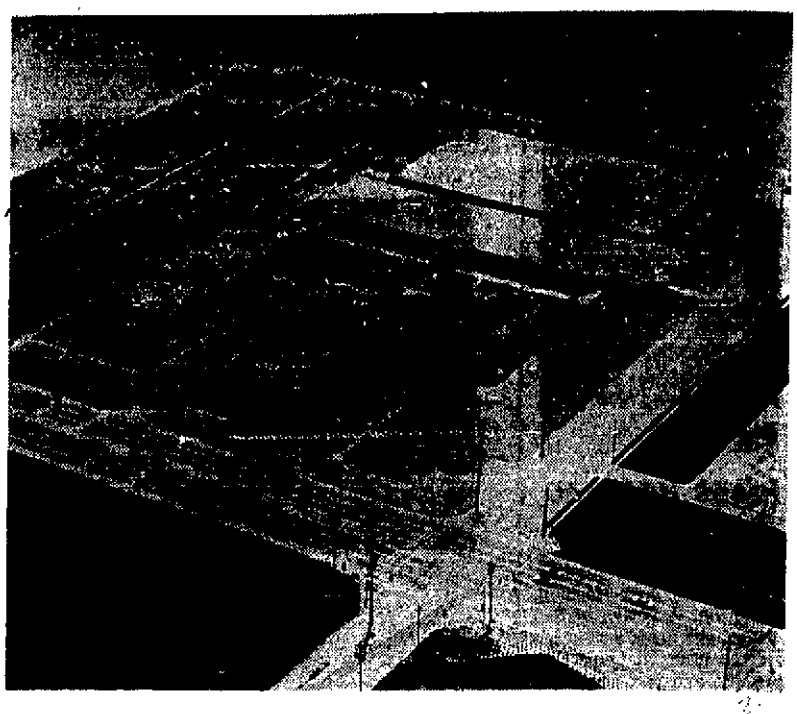

Another 15 acres may ultimately be utilized at the plant location, 3333 Harbor Blvd.

More than 800 employes work at the division, with several hundred more soon to be added. Major project at present is assembly, checkout and launch of the Athena booster for the Air Force.

Within the facility complex are laboratories for vibration testing, telemetry testing and calibration as well as an environmental laboratory and temperature and altitude simulators.

Legal 'Drunk'

MANILA (AP) — If there is any doubt, the Batangas Town Council has ruled, a drunk is anyone who "smells of liquor, is red or pale in the face, as the case may be, sways from one side to another as he walks and acts not in his usual manner." The penalty for these manifestations in public is five days in jail or $5 fine.

JAMES RESTON

Hanoi Blunders by Failure to Grab Compromise Offer

By JAMES RESTON
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — After almost every war, the historians think they can identify a point where both sides had more to gain by compromising than by fighting. It may be that this point has been reached in Viet Nam.

In World War I, the Allied powers were so convinced that the Kaiser was the ultimate enemy that they insisted on fighting on to a military victory, and thereby helped bring into existence two much more dangerous and formidable forces—the Nazis on the one hand and the Communists on the other.

In World War II, this same determination to achieve a military victory, pursued in the name of liberty, resulted in the loss of liberty for various countries in Eastern Europe and the Balkans — the very places whose freedom was the primary aim of both world wars.

* * * *

THIS IS ONE of the major lessons of war in the 20th century. No matter how hard the antagonists have tried to anticipate the consequences of war, the fighting inevitably has produced unexpected results beyond their control.

Washington has learned this lesson better than Hanoi. In fairness to President Johnson, he has tried to start the compromising process, but has been rebuffed so consistently that the fighting is again dominating the scene. The air war on North Viet Nam was more severe in the last week than in any other week of the conflict. The premier of South Viet Nam, Air Vice Marshal Ky, has started talking about either an invasion of North Viet Nam or a very long war, and while it is easy to repudiate him there is a certain tragic logic in his point that so long as the enemy has a jungle sanctuary in North Viet Nam, bombing will not bring the conflict to a military conclusion.

* * * *

THE TRAGEDY of this is that Hanoi now has a better chance of achieving its major objective by negotiation than it has by fighting, and does not seem to realize it. The major objective of both the North Vietnamese and the Chinese governments seems fairly clear. They want all American military power out of Viet Nam. No doubt they would like to establish a Communist regime in Saigon, but primarily they want to get rid of an air and naval force which could destroy every city in North Viet Nam and Communist China.

Hanoi has chosen to try to achieve explusion of U.S. troops by force of arms rather than by negotiations, and this must be the worst political miscalculation since the Bay of Pigs. The United States is obviously not going to lose the first test of arms in its history to North Viet Nam, of all places.

In this situation, North Viet Nam has no hope of driving the American expeditionary force out of the country, but it coluld undoubtedly negotiate us out. The President has been quite explicit about this.

"We seek neither territory nor bases, economic domination nor military alliance in Viet Nam" he said in his State of the Union message last January.

"We seek no bases or special position for the U.S.," Secretary of State Rusk told Congress on Aug. 3, 1965. Dozens of similar statements have been made on behalf of the Washington government ever since.

Hanoi obviously does not believe this. The officials there see the U.S. building an air and naval base at Kamranh Bay that is the most modern in Asia. They feel they were twice deceived by negotiation—once at the end of World War II when the U.S. helped restore French power in Viet Nam, and again at Geneva in 1954, when they thought the U.S. would keep its power out of Viet Nam.

The U.S. could be held to its no-bases promise, however, by international supervision of a compromise settlement.

* * * *

THIS IS undoubtedly a major blunder. All the doves in America, backed by political pressure for peace, cannot bring about such an American military withdrawal before negotiation. Hanoi misinterprets both the objectives and the influence of those of us who want a negotiated settlement in Viet Nam. If its main objective is the withdrawal of American power from that country, it can get it by negotiation, but it cannot compel withdrawal by force.

On the contrary, the longer the war goes on and the greater the American sacrifice in lives, the stronger the pressure will be here in the U.S. to justify the war by retaining precisely that American strategic presence at Kamranh Bay the Communists are seeking to avoid.

This is the tragedy of the war. Both sides are caught up in the dominion of fear—Washington in the fear of a Communist conquest of the peninsula and Hanoi and Peking in the fear of permanent U.S. bases that could dominate both North Viet Nam and China. The problem is to break this deadlock of suspicion, and this is much more likely to be achieved by talking than by fighting.

* * * *

IN RECENT days, a hopeful thing has happened in Viet Nam. The Hanoi government has listened to the appeals of the world to spare the captured American fliers. It apparently has concluded that it should not do what it clearly had the power to do, and that its own interests were best served by talking and reasoning about the problem.

The opportunity exists on the larger question of a negotiated settlement of the war. If Hanoi's objective really is to get rid of American power in Viet Nam, it undoubtedly can do so in an internationally supervised negotiation. It cannot do so by counting on the force of arms or the force of peace sentiment in the U.S.

POLICE SEEK BLIP IN SEAT OF PROWLER

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The seat of his pants is the best clue to the mysterious prowler of an East-side neighborhood in Pontiac.

The evidence was obtained by "Radar," a great dane owned by Alfred Cooley, 36, a resident of the neighborhood where buildings have been broken into 24 times in past weeks.

A neighbor girl saw the prowler and unleashed Radar. The dog chewed off the seat of the man's pants before he could vault a fence.

"Sooner or later we're going to get him," Cooley said.

Demos Snarled in Minnesota, New York

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief of Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The American political pot is simmering in the summer heat. A few primaries and conventions remain, notably in Minnesota and New York. In both states the Democrats have snarled themselves up in efforts to find gubernatorial candidates.

For most of the rest of the nation, it is a time for consolidation, organization and planning strategy to, hopefully, bring victory in November. Candidates attend state fairs, political picnics and make other public appearances but, on the whole, August finds them seizing a breathing space before the arduous and climactic weeks from Labor Day until the gathering at the polls.

This year offers only an off-year election, but a number of contests are certain to attract wide attention.

The campaigns in Minnesota and New York will be among those primary, convention and general election contests to be analyzed and reanalyzed in terms of the presidential elections two and six years hence.

THE MINNESOTA elections will, rightly or wrongly, be read in terms of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The Democrats up there dumped their governor, Karl Rolvaag, and nominated in convention Lt. Gov. A. M. Keith. Humphrey kept out of the contest, save to give both sides his advice, but it has been construed by some that the substitution of Keith for Rolvaag was not displeasing to him.

Rolvaag, however, did not take his dumping lying down. He announced he will force a primary and run against Keith for the nomination. That contest is in September, with no one yet in a position to predict the outcome.

Whoever wins in the Minnesota Democratic primary will still have his hands full in the general election when he faces the Republican aspirant, Harold Levander. Minnesota Republicans are gleefully predicting a glittering triumph.

Should this take place, national politicians will immediately place a black mark against the name of Hubert H. Humphrey who, as Minnesota's most distinguished Democrat, is expected to see that his state remains securely in Democratic hands. Whether Humphrey does or does not have anything directly to do with a Democratic defeat won't make any difference. It will count against him and there will be much headshaking over his presidential ambitions—if indeed he harbors such ambitions.

* * * *

IN NEW YORK, the campaign for Democratic nomination for the governorship has already become rough. Charges of fix and double-cross fill the air and five hopefuls are scurrying around the state trying to line up delegate support for the convention, which is close at hand.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, actively attempting to organize New York Democrats into some kind of a coherent whole in order to strengthen his ambitions, whatever they may be, has thus far remained aloof from the pre-convention struggle. Possibly he has more to lose than gain by throwing his strength to one man or another, and his best bet may be to remain on the sidelines while the rugged internecine battle is fought to a conclusion. And if the Democrat should lose in the general election to Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller, Kennedy will be right there to pick up the pieces.

Over on the West Coast, thousands of microscopes will study the California gubernatorial campaign. If Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown is re-elected, probably not much will change nationally, but should Ronald Reagan win, the Republican picture for 1968 or 1972 will alter. A Reagan victory will thrust him willy-nilly onto the national scene and current Republican presidential hopefuls will face an entirely new ball game.

With these and other important contests coming up, it is just as well that, for the moment, we are having a summer respite.

Congo Expels Belgian Consul

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) — The Congolese government has expelled the Belgian consul in Lubumbashi, the Belgian radio said Saturday night.

The radio, quoting a Congolese Foreign Ministry announcement, said the consul, identified as M. Marchal, had been declared persona non grata and ordered out within 24 hours.

Airline Strike End up to Vote Today

By DON HASTINGS

It appeared that President Lyndon B. Johnson had solved another national problem when he announced that a settlement had been reached in the 23-day strike against five major airlines.

Details of the agreement between negotiators for the airlines and the striking International Association of Machinists were not announced and union members vote today whether or not to accept the pact.

President Johnson, who had summoned the negotiators to Washington, said the settlement will not be inflationary and was within the general framework of wage increases recommended by the administration. Actually, the wage-hike guideline is 3.2 and the settlement calls for an estimated 4% increase. In announcing the settlement, Johnson said the guideline policy left room for bigger hikes in special circumstances.

P. L. Siemiller, president of the striking IAM, said union officials were sure the agreement would be ratified today.

Airline officials said planes will be back in the air four hours after ratification.

THE CRIME rate in the nation continues to outstrip the population growth, according to the annual report issued Wednesday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Serious crimes occurred five times every minute last year, the FBI said.

The crime rate increase was sharpest in the suburbs — 8% — and Western states — 10%.

While the increase fell off from the 11% gain of the previous year, the crime rate continued to outpace the population increase by almost six to one. Since 1960, the FBI said, serious crimes have increased 46%. Population has increased 8%.

Long Beach's crime rate, according to the FBI report, is increasing slightly faster than other cities of its size, but only half as fast as the average in the West.

IT ONLY took a month. It was one month to the day after the Senate confirmed Richard Helms as the new chief of the Central Intelligence Agency when some of the senators who approved of him began calling for his scalp.

Helms wrote the St. Louis Globe-Democrat saying how pleased he was with an editorial titled, "Brickbats for Fulbright." The editorial said the Senate had given Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) "his comeuppance" for trying to increase congressional control over CIA activities.

When the newspaper printed Helms' letter, senators arose to denounce him. Helms apologized to Sen. Fulbright, but Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) immediately called for Helms' resignation.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which Fulbright is chairman, and Morse a member, met with Helms in closed session Friday. Afterward, it appeared that tempers had cooled.

If you are a senator, you can criticize another senator. If you aren't, watch out, there are 100 of them!

STAYING LOW to evade sniper fire as they keep watch over a wounded buddy, two Marines sweat out Operation Hastings, one of the biggest battles of the war in South Viet Nam. The three were pinned for a half-day before being evacuated by a helicopter.

THE NATION

SHOTGUN-carrying guards spirited Richard Speck from Chicago's city jail infirmary to the Cook County Jail in secrecy so great the county jail warden didn't know about it until moments before the prisoner arrived.

The 1½-block transfer of the accused killer of eight nurses was made as city jail doctors decoyed reporters to a news conference and pleaded with them to guard against any chance of an assassination like that of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

THERE WAS no stopping the slump in the stock market.

The market Friday closed out the week by skidding to new lows for 1966, even as airlines rallied on the news that President Johnson had intervened personally to seek an end to the strike by the International Association of Machinists against five major lines.

THE WAR

OPERATION Hastings continued in Viet Nam. It was a case of pounding away at North Vietnamese forces pushing south and it was costing a heavy toll.

In one week, 136 Americans were killed. For the same week, the enemy lost an estimated 1,275 killed and 120 captured.

On the political front, South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Ca Ky called for an invasion of North Viet Nam. "Sooner or later," he said, "we, as free men, have to face the Chinese Communists. I think it is better to face them right now than in five or 10 years."

A vexing problem subsided during the week: Hanoi's intentions toward American fliers after being shot down over North Viet Nam. Ho Chi Min, North Viet Nam's premier, said there are no plans to try the Americans as war criminals.

THE WORLD

A ROUTINE flight ended up much more than that. Air Force Capt. Robert B. Hickman, 32, took off in a U2 "spy plane" from Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana Thursday. He was supposed to turn back after passing over Cuba, but he didn't.

Searchers found the charred wreckage in west central Bolivia, 140 miles south of the capital city of La Paz. In the wreckage was the shattered body of the pilot.

What happened? The only explanation so far was that Capt. Hickman lost consciousness due to lack of oxygen and the plane flew on automatic pilot until it ran out of fuel.

PRIME MINISTER Harold Wilson of Britain either carried his program to save the pound sterling to the White House in Washington or he fled a near-mutiny in his own nation when he came to the U.S. last week.

In London, the government announced a massive price and wage freeze — stiffer than World War II controls. Nobody liked it.

At least 6 million workers will lose raises now due them. A business spokesman said the new measures "do not seem to enlist the wholehearted cooperation of the people . . ."

Wilson asked President Johnson's support in the fight to prevent devaluation of the pound, which could affect the American dollar value. Johnson hedged and asked how Great Britain felt about the American position in Viet Nam.

THE WEST

FINAL TALLY of the vote by West Coast longshoremen on a new five-year contract with shippers may not be in until Thursday, but indications were that the dockers would approve the multi-million-dollar pact.

It was reported from San Francisco that the new contract had been approved by a 4-1 margin. In the Long Beach - Los Angeles harbor area, members of the International Longshore Workers Union Local 13 rejected the pact by a vote of 1,458 to 1,169.

Union spokesmen said the pact had been approved in San Diego and Port Hueneme and voting still was being conducted in Seattle and Portland.

The coastwide trend appeared to be giving the new contract approval by about 70% of the total.

Longshoremen will get a 90-cent hourly wage hike over the life of the agreement, starting with a 50-cent boost immediately. This will put the average rate at $3.88 per hour. In addition, the contract calls for an increase in pensions from $165 a month to $235, and a $1.9 million yearly increase in the maritime association's contribution to the mechanization and modernization (automation) fund.

12,000 Attorneys, Profs to Convene in Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Some 12,000 American lawyers, judges and professors gather here next week for discussions that will range from traffic courts to proposed laws for outer space.

The American Bar Association is revisiting this city on the St. Lawrence after 53 years. Many high-ranking Canadian officials, including Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, will address the 89th association convention and related legal groups. Great Britain will be represented by Sir Charles Ritchie Russell, Lord Justice of Appeal and Privy Councillor.

In the important area of criminal law, U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach will report on the work of the Crime Commission appointed by President Johnson July 26, 1965. Katzenbach heads the group which was charged with conducting "the first systematic, nationwide study of the entire spectrum of crime problems."

* * * *

RADIO-PRESS coverage of crime news will be a live topic. Katzenbach's proposed guidlines on this subject will be discussed by Fred M. Vinson Jr., assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division.

Legal services linked to war on poverty program will be outlined by E. Clinton Bamberger Jr., director of this work for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The convention begins Aug. 8. Related groups meeting ahead of the main event include the National Conference of State Trial Judges, the Conference of Chief Justices, the Commissioners of Uniform State Laws, and the National Association of Women Lawyers.

The women will be addressed by Canadian Secretary of State Judy Lamarsh and Genevieve Blatt, a member of the President's Crime Commission and Pennsylvania's secretary of internal affairs.

* * * *

THE WIDE-RANGING programs include a panel discussion on alcoholism and a three-day traffic court seminar, with announcement of cities receiving American Bar Association awards for outstanding traffic courts.

The association is divided into so-called "sections" under such headings as "International Law," "Family Law" and "Criminal Law" to deal with legal problems more specifically.

The House of Delegates, the association's 275-member policy-making body, may create a new section on "individual rights and responsibilities" in view of growing interest in this subject.

The House of Delegates is considering a proposal to replace the U.S. commissioner system with salaried U.S. magistrates. Association endorsement carries weight when legislation is before Congress.

A "federal magistrates act" has been introduced by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., whose subcommittee has held hearings on the subject. He will address the American Judicature Society.

U.S. commissioners set bail, conduct preliminary hearings, determine indigency and in some areas render binding decisions in petty offense cases, yet some 30% of them are not lawyers. They are paid on a fee basis, according to the number of cases they handle.

* * * *

THE SYSTEM has changed little in the past 70 years.

The House of Delegates is also considering means of stemming the flood of habeas corpus proceedings brought by state prisoners in federal courts. These actions are filed by inmates of state prisons who claim they were denied federal constitutional rights at their trials.

Orison S. Marden of Scarsdale, N.Y., president-elect of the association, will take office for a one-year term.

PAUL A. HELM . . . Retires Monday

AN EXPERT SPEAKS

Automation: a Police Weapon

Automation is rapidly becoming a formidable weapon in the battle against crime, Paul A. Helm, retiring superintendent of the Long Beach Police Department's Record Bureau, said today.

Helm, who retires Monday, pointed to the great help automation has been in the recovery of stolen cars and the arrest of car thieves.

"When I joined the department Aug. 1, 1944 as an identification officer, police officers in the field were lucky if they received a list of area stolen cars within 24 hours of the theft.

"Now via radio from the field he can check the station and learn within two minutes if a suspicious car has been stolen anywhere in the state."

This, he explained, is made possible by a high speed teletype which is connected to a computer in Sacramento.

* * * *

SIMILAR computers will be able by early 1967 to provide similar information on guns and outstanding warrants for arrest.

Other machines within the next few years will instantly provide law enforcement officers with other information of great value in reducing crime and arresting criminals, Helm asserted.

Helm, who was promoted to chief clerk Oct. 1, 1963 and superintendent July 1, 1963, was one of only 13 employes in the Record Bureau when he reported in 1944.

The bureau, which now includes the warrant and complaint details, now numbers 68 employes.

In 1944 there were 190,000 reports on file and 140,000 arrest reports. Now they number 711,000 and 224,000.

* * * *

HELM IS A member of the Southern California Association of Record Supervisors, International Association for Identification, California Division, and was president of the Southern California Association of Fingerprint Officers in 1955-56. He took graduate courses in police identification and records at both USC and California State College at Long Beach.

He holds teacher's credentials to teach his specialties and has instructed in the Long Beach Police Academy since its founding in 1954.

Helm, and his wife, Margaret, plan a leisurely trip to Honolulu and on their return, trailer trips throughout the country and Canada.

The couple has two children, a married daughter, Shirley Miller, and a son, Stanley, a United Airlines cargo representative.

SHOWS START THURSDAY

Downtown on Wednesday Circus Animals to Parade

A caravan of circus animals will parade along downtown streets Wednesday in a prelude to the Thursday opening of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus at the Long Beach Arena.

The 160 animals will be unloaded from the circus train at the Southern Pacific Railroad yards at Eighth Street and Pico Avenue in the Port of Long Beach.

At 11:45 a.m. the elephants, camels, horses and other lead stock will start in a line of march over the Ninth Street bridge, along Sixth Street to Pine Avenue, and then south to Pine and Broadway where the animals will make a brief stop at noon before proceeding to the Arena.

Wednesday will be "setting up" day. The circus will open its four-day run with a 2:45 p.m. matinee on Thursday. Evening performances are scheduled at 8 Thursday and Friday. Shows will be at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Children under 12 years old will be admitted at half price on opening day and at a 2:45 p.m. Friday matinee. Tickets are on sale at the Arena box office, all Mutual agencies and Wallich's Music City stores.

Former 452 Bomb Wing Vets to Meet

Sixtee years ago on Aug. 10, Long Beach's famed 452nd Bomb Wing was recalled to active duty for the Korean War, the first Air Force Reserve unit to enter combat in that conflict.

Next Saturday night former members of the organization will hold a reunion in the Noncommissioned Officers Club at the Space Systems Division, 5800 Arbor Vitae St., Inglewood, at 8:30 p.m.

Members of the unit were recalled on Aug. 10, 1950, and sent directly to George Air Force Base. After only 77 days of refresher training there, they were sent to Japan and into combat.

The unit was awarded the Korean Presidential Unit citation. After being returned to the United States at the close of hostilities, the bomb wing was deactivated. Later the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing was activated in its place and then transferred to March Air Force Base.

Col. Miller Gets Space Unit Post

Col. David V. Miller, a resident of Palos Verdes, has been named the new vice commander of the Space Systems division in El Segundo, effective Sept. 1.

Col. Miller, a veteran in Air Force command, research and development assignments, holds a master's degree in physics from the University of Wisconsin and is a graduate of the Air War College and the Harvard Advanced Management Program.

He has been the program director for the Air Force Titan III, Standard Space Launch Vehicle since July 1964. In this capacity he has directed development of the Titan IIIC, the nation's most powerful military space booster, which successfully orbited seven communication satellites and a graviet gradient satellite 18,200 nautical miles above the equator last June.

Col. Miller has more than 6,000 pilot hours, has served as a nuclear research officer, was assigned to the Pentagon as a special assistant for nuclear development and later as deputy director of research and technology.

NO 'WEAKER SEX?'

Lifeguards Wanted: They Must Be Males

By DON BRACKENBURY
From Our Los Angeles Bureau

This story is replete with sex, politics, conflict and crime.

It's about an announcement that Los Angeles County is hiring lifeguards for 10 of its swimming pools.

The county's Civil Service Commission said that examinations for the lifeguard positions will be given today starting at Will Rogers Park, 1335 E. 103rd St., Los Angeles.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn brought politics into the act by pointing out that three of the pools where guards are needed are Mona, Enterprise and Athens parks, all in the Willowbrook area and in his supervisorial district.

The sex? Well, the announcement specifies that applicants must be between 18 and 39 years of age—and must be male.

* * * *

"RIDICULOUS," snapped Greta Andersen, champion Long Beach distance swimmer and operator of a swim school at 3561 Farquhar Ave., Los Alamitos.

"A woman can do the job as well as a man can do, as far as lifeguarding is concerned," Mrs. Andersen contended.

Here comes the crime angle: Federal law prohibits job discrimination on the basis of sex.

A spokesman for the State Division of Fair Employment Practices pointed out that there are no state laws covering the problem, but that enforcement is the responsibility of the Equal Opportunities Commission in Washington.

* * * *

THE STATE OFFICIAL didn't want to call the county specification of "men only" for lifeguards discriminatory, but in answer to a specific question whether such policy is a violation of the federal act, he said:

"It could be, if, for example, a woman who was a qualified lifeguard—that is, passed all the tests—applied for the job, and they turned her down simply on the basis that she is a woman."

The county counsel's office said the county justifies its demand for male lifeguards on the basis that "the rigorous demands of the job are such that only the strength of the male physique can handle them."

How about that, Mrs. Andersen?

* * * *

"A LOT OF THESE men lifeguards are in terribly bad shape," the channel swimmer declared. "Their stomachs are hanging down over their bathing trunks."

Mrs. Andersen acknowledged that a woman wanting to serve as a lifeguard "must be as good a swimmer and as strong in the water as a man would be."

For a job as a lifeguard at a swimming pool, she believes a woman would do a better job.

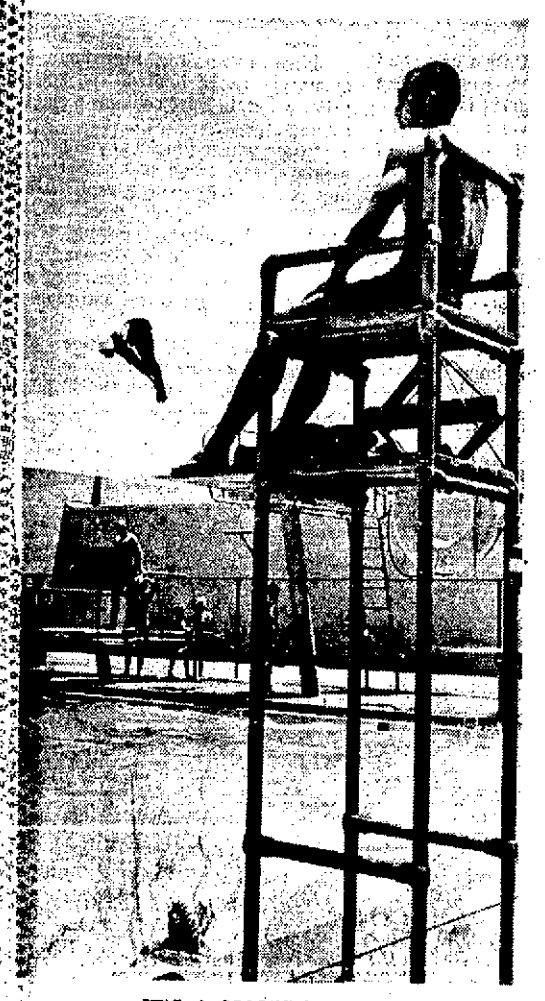

"I think a woman would be more sensitive to watching smaller children than a man would," she explained.

* * * *

MRS. ANDERSEN doesn't discriminate at her own swim school pool. She has a male lifeguard. She has hired women for the job, however.

She made it clear, however, she has no doubts about a woman's ability to meet the requirements of the county job.

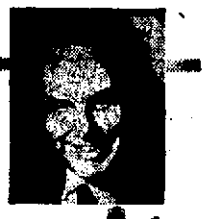

"I'll challenge Supervisor Hahn to a swimming race any day of the week," she said.

IT'S A MAN'S WORLD?

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

HAVE you been to one of those high-price-per-plate political dinners and wondered thereafter what was done with your money?

Political morals being relatively high in these parts, it probably went for legitimate campaign expenses. But in most cases, that has to be a presumption — there is little or no control over such funds except by the dinner beneficiary or his close associates, and little or no accounting to the public or to the people who pungled up $100 or so for a $4 dinner.

In the fascinating case of Connecticut's Sen. Tom Dodd, it has been alleged that he used political dinner funds for personal purposes. This raises the question as to whether such money should be treated as income for tax purposes. To those who have to pay taxes on all the money that comes their way, that seems like a fair question that should be applied to funds any politician uses for his personal benefit.

THE dinner money issue is only one angle of the Dodd case, which will surely cause a lot of politicos to take a second look at the way they handle such things as the expenditure of so-called campaign funds, expense accounts, gifts from self-seeking admirers, and so on.

Some may be shaking a little in their well-shined boots. It's hard to believe there are not others who have engaged in some of the practices that have come under public scrutiny and criticism in the Dodd affair. Unhappily for Dodd, he happened to have some disgruntled aides who lifted things from his office files and showed them to newspaper columnists.

Despite laws requiring reports on campaign expenditures, these accountings are often pretty loose and vague, and not easily challenged. There's no law, so far as I've heard, that requires a separate and specific accounting of those high priced dinner funds. The assumption is that they are lumped with other money and go into reportable campaign expenditures.

Seldom is an issue raised about such affairs, possibly because those who might be expected to raise it are also politicians who have some little matters of their own they'd rather not have subjected to public examination. If they get smart, they may expect reprisals.

So Dodd may be the whipping boy in a situation which has some cleansing effects in the nether world of politics. Brutal as Columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson may seem in their treatment of the white-haired Connecticut Senator (who came within a hair of being Lyndon Johnson's vice president choice), it's highly possible they've performed an important public service.

PEOPLE who write for journals or broadcast their words are happy, of course, at evidence of people reading or listening. Now the popular TV news team, Huntley and Brinkley, may be wondering about their audience in Baltimore.

They had barely left the air Thursday eve after a semi-documentary about how peacefully things were going race-wise in Baltimore, when a gang of white racists began raising the devil in the Maryland metropolis. Was it a coincidence, or did some of the Baltimore gang hear the broadcast and decide it was time to show Huntley and Brinkley a thing or two?

A LONG BEACH woman (Los Altos area) who is generous but cautious closely questioned a 12-year-old youth who called at her door trying to sell candy "for our club" at an excessive price. When the kid told her the club was sponsored by the YMCA, she telephoned the "Y" and was told it had no such club.

Apprised of this, the candy seller said he was talking about sponsorship by the San Pedro "Y". Well, she said, she'd just call the San Pedro "Y" to make sure.

"Oh don't do that, ma'am," he urged. "I just meant that our club is near the San Pedro YMCA."

He didn't make the sale.

"We had 50 calls from our I,P-T want ad when we rented our 3-bedroom home,' reports Gloria Evers, 14521 Ontario Dr., Westminster.

CREW COMPLETES TASK OF HAULING IN 275-FOOT NET AFTER RECEIVING AID FROM TWO TRACTORS

STINGRAY CAPTURED, SPEARED

RAY'S STINGER

Stingrays Lose Ground to Weekly Net Patrol

By BARBARA KNESIS

They never had a chance.

The two men in the rowboat quietly drop their 275-foot net to the ocean floor, entangling them in the great rope trap before they know what's happened. Wiggling and squirming, they are brought to the shore, pulled the last 50 yards by tractors.

Thus, the City of Seal Beach each Thursday rids itself of several hundred more stingrays — sandy-colored fish that inflict a stinging puncture wound on bathers who stir them from their serenity at the bottom of the sea.

AL LOPEZ, public works foreman who supervises the weekly stingray mop-up operation, says the city has been at war with the fish for about four years.

"They're attracted here by the warm water," he said, referring to the beach area near the rocky jetty at First Street.

Since the city started the operation, its stingray first-aid cases have "dropped drastically," according to lifeguard Mike MacArthur. He said in 1962 half the 1,432 first-aid cases were caused by stingrays. Last summer 413, or one-quarter of the cases treated, were stingray.

MacArthur said it looks like the number of cases will drop to one-eighth this summer.

In a typical dawn catch, several hundred stingrays, a half-dozen beer cans and numbers of assorted fish including an occasional harmless leopard shark are found in the net.

Jerry Wadley, curator of fish at California State College at Long Beach, came down one week armed with several small pails to collect fish for the college museum. Officials from Los Angeles County General Hospital also show up now and then to collect stingrays for venom samples used in research.

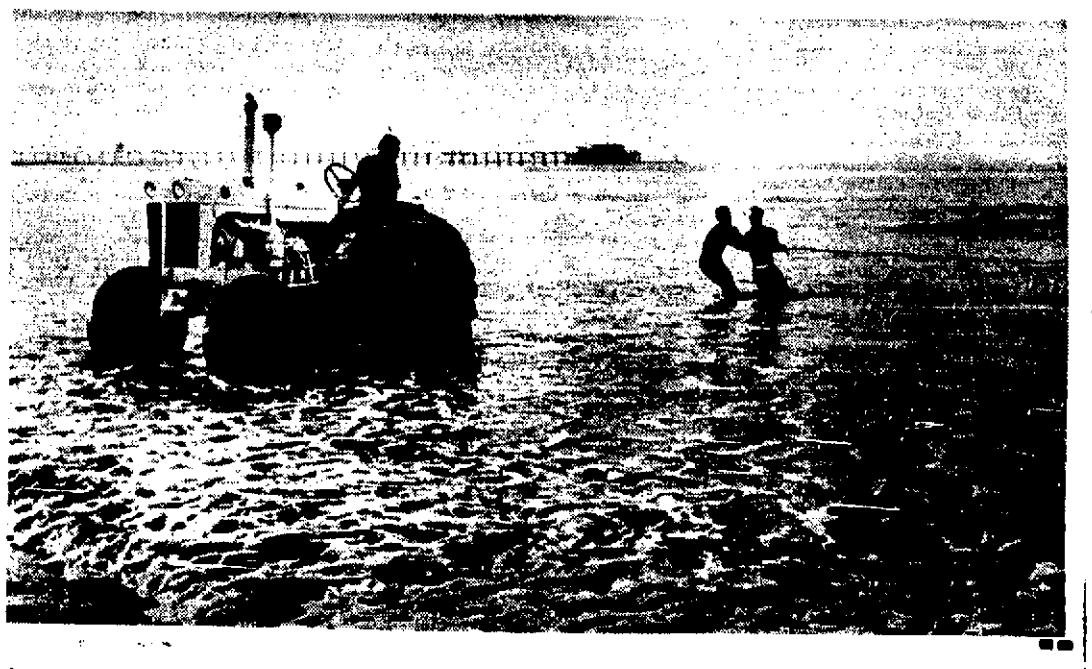

Fish unwanted by collectors are tossed back to sea. As for the stingrays, they go into the rear of a truck—the end of the trail at each weekly roundup.

END OF THE LINE

State Is a Most Generous Landlord

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The title of "most generous landlord of the year" must go to the free-wheeling State Highways Division.

It was clearly nominated for the honor by legislative auditor general William H. Merrifield. A report by Merrifield to Chairman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee tells of the good life of tenancy with the state as the landlord.

Uncle Sacramento has footed the bill for everything from wall-to-wall carpeting to swimpool covers. Its plunge into the rental business is on a massive scale.

SINCE 1960, at any one time the state has owned more than five thousand dwelling units. Some 435 of them—about 8%—are in Long Beach. They were acquired on the right of way of the future Artesia Freeway and other highways.

In a report to Assemblyman Thomas, Auditor Merrifield raised such a furor on the rental fringe benefits that the Assembly Transportation and Commerce Committee intends to query highway officials over rental policies at an August hearing.

The obvious issue: Is the state overly generous?

Merrifield alleges that a Long Beach tenant at 6720 Lime Ave. was permitted to deduct from the rent the cost of the same water closet twice.

He also says a Los Angeles family at 3401 Scadlock Lane, was allowed to deduct $1,650 from rent for plumbing, though auditors could find no evidence that efforts were made to obtain bids for the lowest price.

The same plumbing-plush tenant in Los Angeles was allowed to deduct half the cost of installing new carpeting. "There is no evidence that this carpeting had been installed," says Merrifield. He noted that almost an entire year's rent was offset by plumbing and carpeting allowances.

A swimming-good time also was had by a Sacramento tenant of the state.

This family successfully won a rent reduction from $225 to $185 a month on the grounds that "during the winter a swimpool is a handicap and these renters have agreed to take care of a pool."

Then the state got stuck with the pool bills, including $57.89 for cleaning and an additional outlay for a pool cover.

Another tenant of the state was permitted to deduct $75 from rent for drapes and rods. Someone else cashed in on a rent reduction for the cost of a chain saw rental and pest-control inspection fee. In another case, a tenant was allowed $389 for a new lawn because of the presence of bermuda.

Merrifield also cited cases in which cleaning allowances to a new tenant were not charged against a prior tenant. One involved a $37.10 cleaning bill in Bellflower at 10043 Beverly.

"We can find no valid reason why the state's prescribed procedures of disbursement for repairs should not be followed in the case of right of way rental property," says Merrifield.

HIGHWAY OFFICIALS are preparing an answer to these and other Merrifield findings. Their preliminary reaction is along the lines that in the long run the state saves money by allowing tenants to improve their property so that it doesn't become blighted.

This well could be the case. Or, there could be instances of waste.

But regardless, it serves the interest of the state that the California Assembly periodically questions the state bureaucrats. The auditing staff of Assemblyman Thomas and the upcoming Assembly investigation are safeguards for efficiency and economy.

STATE-OWNED PROPERTY on freeway rights of way is due to be demolished or moved within a few years.

Therefore, the state serves notice in lease agreements that improvements are to be limited. The small print in a state lease contains a clause saying:

"State will not make any improvements or repairs on said property of any nature whatsoever, except repairs to roof, main sewer lines, water service lines, and the following items only where considered necessary by state: Patch interior plaster, replace broken plumbing fixtures and replace water heaters."

It is obvious that legislative auditors are wondering whether the highway bureaucrats read the small print in their own contract.

Jobs Are an Answer to Crime

The sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much . . .

—ECCLESIASTES

A YOUNG MAN who has marched 25 miles with rifle and pack and then has to stand guard duty is not likely to commit a crime that night.

Crime in the United States has increased 46% in the last five years, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

All statistics about crime are subject to some suspicion. A high crime rate may in part indicate the competence of the police in recognizing and reporting crime.

But, considering all reasonable cynicism, crime is on the increase in the United States, and young people are the worst offenders.

In wartime, crime drops off rather sharply. The statistics are again hard to analyze because the military takes care of offenders in its own way. But the fact remains that troops are less likely to commit crimes than their counterparts in the same age groups.

Should we then draft all young people to reduce crime? That is not realistic.

But we should give them something to do, and preferably something very hard to do. Young men need to prove their manhood by undergoing hardship, stress and challenge. And there is plenty of work in town and country which needs young muscles. And brains.

IT IS SHAMEFUL to have purposeless young people loafing around and dreaming up trouble. Bureaucracy and the dole will never help them—but give them a chance to do necessary work and they will help themselves.

Work programs should be voluntary. But a high civilization should provide an outlet to achievement and opportunity to those who will take it.

Idleness is part of the crime problem.

People Get Tired of Kids

FRANK SINATRA did it again. He took a swing at a news photographer in New York. Frankie has been throwing haymakers at people, mostly newsmen, throughout his public life.

Ordinary citizens would be jailed for assault; but Sinatra, rich and famous, always seems to go free.

Sinatra is a talented actor and singer who has given pleasure to millions. The public has been good to him. He should feel some gratitude and conduct himself within the ordinary ways of society.

But some men are always kids. Drunk or sober, 50-year-old Frankie goes on acting like a 12-year-old in an alley fight.

State GOP Platform to Be 'New Tool'

CALIFORNIA Republicans within the next six days will attempt to build the most radical new tool in the history of California politics—a readable, usable platform.

Constructing the 1966 GOP state platform is the principal business of the party's state convention next Saturday in Sacramento. It gets done every convention. Its highlights are reported and then it's customarily filed because a file is a fitting place for such generally wordy, imprecise, platitudinous and long documents—Republican or Democratic.

BOB HOUSER

But the aim this year, according to Don Anderson, aide to State GOP Chairman Dr. Gaylord Parkinson, is to make the platform a genuine, usable campaign tool for every Republican candidate in the state.

To this end, the drafters will try to make it shorter and understandable. They intend to make it wieldy enough to be printed in brochure or pamphlet form so that it can be handed out to the public with reasonable conviction that it will be read. They want to hand it out house-to-house so that, instead of a mysterious compendium, it becomes an effective campaign tool.

ITS CONTENT is not expected to vary a great deal from the 1964 state platform. That instrument was not drafted by Goldwater partisans who built the controversial national GOP platform. Virtually the same group will be in important seats next weekend in Sacramento so the party does not fear any significant threat from an esoteric right-wing reservation of the party.

There are, however, a couple of hurdles which platformists must confront—the Rumford Act and the so-called CLEAN initiative, which goes on the November ballot as Proposition 16.

The Rumford Act, to all candidates apparently, has to be handled like sword swallowing, guarding at all times against a hiccup on its two sharp edges. Mindful of the overwhelming YES vote on Prop. 14 two years ago, giving property owners absolute discretion in sales and rentals, the candidate — and the platform — probably must play the 66% odds against Rumford's fair housing features. At the same time he—and the platform—must weigh the contentions of bigotry which attach.

SECOND potentially sticky point in GOP platform consideration is a stance on the CLEAN, anti-obscenity initiative. Easy as it is to declare against obscenity, respected figures in both parties, including the Los Angeles County district attorney, have reservations about any chance for life of the measure, even if passed.

The initiative declares state policy is to prohibit obscene matter and conduct. It redefines the words "obscene" and "knowingly" over which so many anti-pornography efforts have tripped. And it provides rules and procedure for prosecution and enforcement.

Embarrassment might be the least of the party's woes if it were to commit four-square to a proposition that its non-emotional leaders warn can't stand constitutional scrutiny.

Finally, the GOP convention will sponsor day-long campaign workshops concurrent with its platform sessions to ground party workers in how to avoid the petty frictions that have impeded elective progress in the past.

All the rest looks like consensus the GOP hasn't enjoyed in years.

California Visit Gets High Priority

(From Our National Bureau)

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's whirlwind trip to middlewestern points last weekend was only a warm-up for larger-scale presidential gallivantin' during the next three months.

Between now and the November elections, the Chief Executive is expected to selectively make trips to virtually every part of the country.

Although the trips mostly will be billed as non-political, they'll be worked out so that the magic of a presidential appearance will touch areas where it is deemed most needed to bolster Democratic fortunes.

High priority has been assigned to California, where Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown is facing a nip-and-tuck battle with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan. When this would be timed still is being studied, but mid-October appears to be a good bet.

Intra-party quarrels in some areas have given them low priority in presidential travel planning. For instance, a Minnesota trip by President Johnson might somehow be construed that the White House is injecting itself into the Democratic party feud between Gov. Karl Rolvaag and the governor's would-be successor, Lt. Gov. A. M. (Sandy) Keith.

PRESIDENT JOHNSON no longer refers to Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., by name.

When the Chief Executive speaks of Morse, Congress' most harsh and vocal critic of administration foreign policy, he simply calls him "Senator X."

ATTITUDES OF the poor on marriage and their spouses were revealed in a Health, Education and Welfare Department publication entitled "Low Income Life Styles." The study, doubtless expensive, is a summary of hundreds of recent research studies among the poverty-stricken.

It may come as a complete surprise, but typical attitudes of low-income wives are that their menfolk are "unpredictable, difficult to understand, inconsiderate and overwhelming."

Low-income husbands tend to think of their wives as "temperamental, emotional, demanding and irrational."

"Good," replied the vice president. "Pick one out that you liked and we'll go fishing there some time."

For Once, Uncle Sam Quit Acting Like 'Aunt Patsy' on Foreign Aid

Washington Star Service

WASHINGTON—This venerable old city has been having a lively time of it lately: Myrna Loy on stage, Harry Belafonte in recital, Shakespeare every other night, and a Harem of Eight Belly Dancers revolving at a local bistro. But the best show in town this week was played in the Senate on Tuesday afternoon.

That was the afternoon the Senate erupted — for once, praise God, for once—with an expression of anger and resentment against some of our allies who put profits first and friendship last. For one glorious moment (and that is about all it will amount to), Uncle Same stopped being Aunt Patsy. By a smashing vote of 56-33, the Senate turned upon West Germany the cold and level gaze of a nation whose easy-going patience had temporarily run out. It should have happened years ago.

THE DRAMA began quietly, back in March, when Senator Byrd of Virginia and Senator Pastore of Rhode Island learned that the West German government had given its official approval and financial support to the formation of a consortium to build a steel mill in Communist China. The two senators made remonstrances, issued statements, telephoned the State Department. Nothing happened.

Nothing happened, that is, except that American troops continued to stand guard in Europe; and over in Viet Nam, in defense of freedom, American men continued to die of munitions provided by the Red Chinese.

With the annual foreign aid appropriation bill coming up, Byrd prepared a one-paragraph amendment. In its final form, it declared the sense of Congress that the action of "any government" in approving and financing a steel plant in Communist China "is a grave blow to the common defense of the free world and to the safety of American troops in Viet Nam." A little before noon on Tuesday, Byrd called his amendment up.

Now, it was a part of the drama that under the rules of the Senate, Mr. Byrd is Mr. Nobody. He may be the son of a famous father, in the hundred-member body, he is no more than No. 99. It is almost unheard of for a rookie to challenge the leadership on a major point of policy.

Only a few members were on hand when Byrd began to speak. Looking at him from the gallery, one saw his father 25 years ago—the same hand in pocket, the same choppy gestures, the same stubborn sense of right and wrong. Byrd is no mellifluous Dirksen. He speaks like a chairman of the board, sputtering over second-quarter sales. His voice is as flat as a filing card.

But on Tuesday there was an edge to the voice. A few senators floated into the chamber, took seats, lobbed friendly questions. A small electric current began to flow; and Mike Mansfield, majority leader, sensed it. He stood pensively on the first step of the Senate well, examining the carpet, considering ways to cut the embarrassment off.

Arkansas' Senator Fulbright, chairman of Foreign Relations, sought to reason with Byrd. This was a foreign aid bill, not a foreign policy bill. He thought it a bad mistake to clutter it with irrelevant matters. The Byrd amendment was sure to offend some of America's friends. It would accomplish nothing that could not be better accomplished through quieter diplomacy.

Abruptly, the debate caught fire. California's Kuchel, his face flushed, angrily denounced the Byrd resolution. Louisiana's Russell Long put his shoulder to the administration's wheel. But the chamber was filling. Colorado's Peter Dominick, Delaware's John Williams, South Dakota's Mundt, South Carolina's Thurmond, all joined the action in Byrd's support, the Western and Southern and Northern accents pushing to be heard. New York's Javits bustled in. Nebraska's Hruska put a barb in Kuchel's side: Suppose West Germany were not financing a steel mill, but were financing actual arms shipments to the Viet Cong instead? What was the difference? Kuchel mumbled a poor reply.

Mansfield tried twice to prevent a vote, on a motion to table and a motion to postpone indefinitely. Each time the roll-call votes came crunching down on his head. Under the Constitution, the Senate has a duty to advise and consent, but ordinarily the Senate merely consents. On Tuesday it advised, emphatically, indignantly; and it bespoke the resentment of a heavily burdened nation.

L. A. C. SAYS

Good Reasons for Foreign Aid Review

MORE THAN one-third of the U. S. federal debt is represented by the $116 billion we have given in foreign aid the past 20 years. The interest we now pay in taxes on that part of the debt is about $4 billion a year, or about $600 a year for every man, woman and child in our population. The interest is more than the present annual foreign aid we are now putting out, although it does not show up for this purpose.

FROM A WELL documented statement by the Citizens Foreign Aid Committee a list of the 130 countries to which we have given aid is detailed. The figures show a total of over $9 billion we have given France, almost the same amount to Britain, and $5 billion to India. In return for these gifts over the years we now find each of these and most of the others denouncing our policies in Viet Nam.

The survey also shows how our gold supplies have been reduced to dangerous proportions by these countries demanding gold for dollars they hold and have accumulated during these years of our gifts. While most of the gifts have been in the form of loans, they are actual gifts because few optimists expect any repayment.

OF THE $12.3 billion loss of gold from our treasury, France has demanded and received $2.6 billion. We have not demanded that this money first be applied on the debt France owes us. We have paid it out and thereby weakened our own monetary safety. We have given Austria over one billion and then sent a half billion in gold to redeem our own dollars. While Britain owes us as loans a large portion of the $9 billion we have sent her we have also redeemed dollars in gold in the amount of $1.4 billion.

When you read the list of 130 countries to which we have sent over $116 billion you realize very few of them show any appreciation. They vote against us in the United Nations, condemn us for our Viet Nam efforts to stop aggression and many of them have a lucrative trade with the enemy, North Viet Nam and Red China.

THE REPORT quotes President Johnson at a White House reception on the third anniversary of the Organization of African Unity when he said: "My country has offered the African Development Bank technical funds to survey projects and possibilities and funds for capital projects . . . we have been devoting a large part of aid funds for African education. This proportion will increase . . . African continental development needs a modern communication system. We want to explore these and other ways to respond to African needs."

It raises the question as to how much further we can go in this aid to others. We have a problem here at home in finding ways to educate and help our Negro population. In many ways it is more a need than that of changing the conditions in Africa. But we do not have the resources to do both. There are sound reasons voiced in Congress for our greatly reducing or eliminating foreign aid. We have done much to help these 130 nations over the past 20 years. Now it seems reasonable that we should let them help themselves for a while and put our own economy in order.

Peace, It's Wonderful, in City Council

By GEORGE WEEKS
City Government Reporter

A STRANGE ATTITUDE of peace prevails in the City Council. Not in years have nine political individualists got along with such polite restraint, such mutual consideration. Near-unanimity has been the rule. Even the budget sessions, which often provoke raucous debates and split roll calls, went off with hardly any surface tension.

Councilman Emmet Sullivan, who enjoys a spot of disputation as well as the next man, has been reduced to digs at the press, whose attitudes and choice of subject matter he deplores.

To newcomers familiar with the verbal bloodletting in other legislative bodies the spectacle—or lack of it—is puzzling. To regular observers the era of good feeling has become slightly soporific. Has City Hall suddenly sworn off of internal controversy?

THE ANSWER is that it hasn't. The lull won't last, because it is against political human nature. No one knows what the next subject of councilmanic wrangling will be, but it will come before long — and about time, too. In a fairly diverse city, uniform harmony in the top policy making body is not exactly a reassuring symptom.

One reason for the current season of amiability has to do with the election of the mayor and vice mayor.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Some three months ago it became apparent that Mayor Wade would be re-elected by his colleagues and that Councilan Robert F. Crow would become the new vice mayor. The trail of animosities left by the intra-councilmanic election of 1963 then vanished.

Most of this aftermath surrounded the office of vice mayor. In 1963 new Councilman James A. Hayes won in what was generally considered a surprise and an upset. When Hayes decided a few months ago to run for the State Assembly instead of the council, the lingering frustration among older councilmen eased. Crow, who had aspired to the office three years earlier, was the new choice in an agreement off the record but nonetheless solid even before the official voting.

The Seventh District councilman has often been the center of storm disputes. Agile in rough-and-tumble debate, he is not a lawyer but has sometimes used the trial lawyer's tactic of oral indignation, especially when his cause looks like a loser.

More recently he has taken on a sort of conciliatory, senior statesman stance. According to reports, he was partly responsible for dissuading a couple of councilmen from trying to push through further pay raises for a few job categories on the last day of budget action. If the effort had been made, it would almost certainly have generated strong reaction by other councilmen who considered the issue closed.

Behind-the-scenes mediation by the mayor and by City Manager John R. Mansell also has contributed to the apparent show of unity. In six years the mayor has gained such tact and prestige that not one of his appointments to the council's standing committees or to four advisory bodies drew opposition. The whole list was confirmed without a dissenting vote.

STILL ANOTHER REASON for the harmony is a trend that has grown up almost unnoticed in recent years. Councilmen have become more and more inclined to accept the views of the councilman from the district when neighborhood issues are at stake. The effect has been to blur the concept of a system wherein all councilmen are elected by the whole city, though nominated by districts.

There have been exceptions to the mutual consent to keep hands off of another councilman's district. Others will arise in the future.

Still, the 1966-69 council looks like a serious-minded, relatively temperment-free assembly. New Councilmen Paul R. Deats and Thomas J. Clark Councilman Robert F. Crow would be smoothly. Gone are the times when an Andy Baird would regularly carry out his announced intention of "shaking 'em up again today."

THIS PROSPECT of down-to-business approach comes at a time when Long Beach is in midstride with developments such as oil production, shoreline improvements, urban renewal and the furthering of human relations without the familiar phenomenon of violence.

It may be just as well, for the moment at least, that the council sessions get the job accomplished without much in the way of color or histrionics. These qualities make for less dullness but not necessarily for more progress.

Help on the Freeway

EDITOR:

I'm writing in behalf of Mr. Jero Di Leva and myself (Al Koehler) of San Pedro in hopes you'll convey in print our heartfelt gratitude to two young men on a motorcycle (unnamed, from Long Beach) who stopped and assisted our wives and children under extreme circumstances when a tire blew out on a white, Falcon station wagon the other night on the Harbor Freeway near Rosecrans, while traveling in the inside fast lane.

The damaged tire and the spare both were serious problems which caused anxious moments and considerable time in finally clearing up this very serious situation, with all the danger involved in a heavily traveled freeway.

These two men (God bless them) gave completely of themselves in time, effort and most certainly under dangerous conditions. Since unfortunately their names weren't learned we're hoping this may be printed so these two fine men will know of our deep gratitude and that others will know about them.

Calls It "Sickening"

EDITOR:

Your news item concerning "Miss Selden" and her "judgment" of a 3-year-old child as "sub-normal" is about as sickening as anything I've read.

Every 3-year-old isn't toilet trained. She's getting what millions of kids in much richer homes never get. Miss Selden isn't washing the clothes for the child. She isn't giving the love and cuddling a little girl needs.

Would Use Missiles

EDITOR:

If our missiles are as good an attack weapon as Defense Secretary McNamara says, and I hope they are, why then do we continue to send our planes in to bomb?

A missile bombing would create panic to the enemy as well as get the job done. It would also eliminate the Viet Cong's ability to retaliate by the shooting down and the capture and putting of our pilots on display.

It would also have the end result of forcing Russia to put up or shut up on its ability to claim they have an anti-missile defensive weapon.

The Future of a Little Girl

EDITOR:

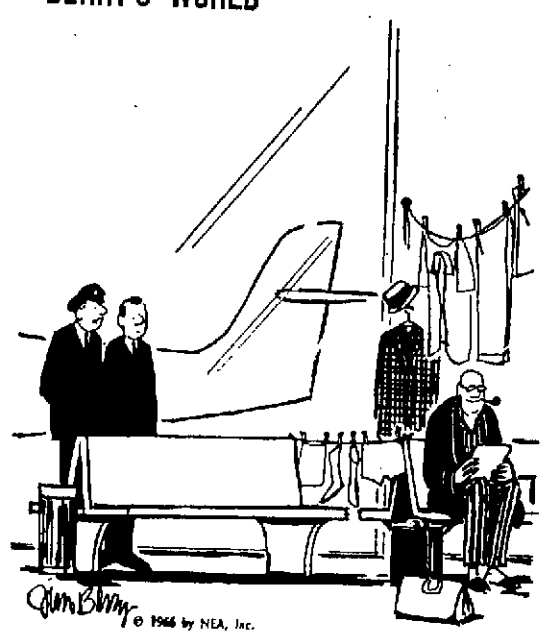

I was reading a story in your paper of a little girl who was to be separated from her foster parents, whose only crime was just being too old to raise her. The child's welfare office has checked and they have decided that when little Judy was 15 years old her parents would be in their seventies.

Now I would say to those people who decide who shall have the care of a minor child, what is the most important thing in a child's life? Love, with the proper discipline and with understanding.

When the child reaches her teens she will be able to think for herself. We all know that this is a difficult decision for the child's welfare supervisors to make. But I vote for the older couple who have proven their love for Judy. And, after all, you get the best tunes out of old violins.

REA Co-ops Profit From Juicy 'Tax Breaks'

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has an easy way to save several million dollars this year by abolishing the bargain-basement interest rate and tax-exempt status of Rural Electrification Administration co-ops. Some budget advisers are advising him to do it.

This, however, would be a blow to one of LBJ's old friends, ex-Congressman Clyde Ellis of Arkansas, who has built up the REA co-ops to a point where they rival private industry.

This was not what the Rural Electrification Law was intended for when passed by the New Deal in 1936. At that time vast areas of American farm land were without electricity. Today 98% of American farms are powered by electricity and the REA co-ops have developed to the point where they distribute power to wholesale buyers, factories, and even to competing public utilities.

Private companies pay 48% taxes, the REA co-ops pay nothing. Private utilities pay around 6% interest on their bonds; the REA co-ops pay 2%.

CONGRESS RECENTLY UPPED the interest rates for government loans to underdeveloped countries. But the same Congress has refused to up interest rates to REA co-ops. Meanwhile some local co-ops merely reinvest their 2% money at 6%. This gives them a neat profit of 4%.

The Colorado Supreme Court last February cracked down on one of the major REA co-ops, the Colorado-Ute Electric Association, organized to distribute wholesale power to Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. The court ruled that this combine was a long way from the Roosevelt 1936 proposal to supply power to remote farmers where private utilities had failed to penetrate.

However, Clyde Ellis once befriended Lyndon Johnson when he was running for the Senate in Texas, and Lyndon is a man who doesn't forget. When Federal Power Commission Chairman Joseph Swidler proposed that the FPC regulate REA co-ops if they operated across state boundaries, Clyde Ellis became so indignant that he exerted all his considerable power on Congress and the White House.

Congress then passed a special law exempting REA co-ops from FPC regulation, while LBJ refused to reappoint Swidler as FPC chairman. Swidler, the man who dared tangle with Clyde Ellis, is out.

The President has now nudged the REA with an order that it must loan no money beyond the fiscal year just ended. He could go further and remove REA's tax-exempt status and its 2% interest. If so he would save a sizeable chunk of money.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in history the Republican Conference of the Senate may be chaired by a lady—Sen.

DREW PEARSON

Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. The position will be open when Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts retires at the end of his current term.

Anticipating this, Mrs. Smith has told Sen. George Aiken that he should seek the job. She argued that eastern moderates should not relinquish power to Republican conservatives. Aiken replied: "If I took that job, I should have my head examined."

Meanwhile other Republican Senate positions are held by conservatives or far westerners. Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee is Burke Hickenlooper of Iowa, a Midwest conservative. The minority leader, Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, is another Midwest conservative. Sen. Tom Kuchel of California, the minority whip, is a moderate, but from the Far West. Secretary of Republican Senators is Milton Young of North Dakota, usually conservative.

The only eastern moderate among GOP Senate leaders is Saltonstall, who now retires.

Sen. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, an easterner but no moderate, is now eyeing his place as chairman of the Republican Conference Committee.

So if Aiken sticks to his present decision, Maggie Smith has decided to give Cotton a run for his money. She has seniority and it would be difficult for other senators to block her unless they want to raise the issue of sex.

Note—The recent Civil Rights Act specifically states that it is against the law to discriminate in job hiring because of sex.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

Every night that we are able to be home, and that is not many, he has his sweetheart here. You know who that is? It's the Air Force. The pilots come and they talk flying. And my husband is married to them.

TEEN COMMANDOS

Off Streets, On Jobs

By DON KIRKLAND

Ask Dwayne Larson if his anti-poverty "commandos" are worth their salt. Or just watch them at work.

What a kind of unexpected zeal, these 50 Long Beach-area teen-agers are spending their summer vacation under Larson's tutelage in the newest of the federal government's youth opportunity programs, designed to fill a two-fold void:

"We're not only getting these youngsters off the streets," boasts Larson, the program's 24-year-old Long Beach coordinator, "we're giving them jobs."

* * * *

JOBS ARE THE grist of the program and of some 21 others just like it throughout Los Angeles County. At each "commando" post, teen-age boys and girls muster daily for community work projects that may range from house painting to dishwashing. They receive $1.25 an hour for their efforts, provided through the Los Angeles Federation of Neighborhood Centers, an offshoot agency of the federal Office of Economic Opportunity. With funds to operate through Sept. 1, Larson's "commandos" hope to sweep across much of the Long Beach area with a vast community improvement program, designed primarily to help rehabilitate slums and provide aid to the needy, ill or elderly who cannot solve their problems alone.

Likening the program to the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps, Larson holds high hopes for it being re-funded in September. "It is up to us to prove that it can and does work, and we're well on our way to doing just that," he says.

Although there is no economic criterion for selecting the young corpsmen, the major "commando" recruiting drive goes on in low-income-area Teen Posts, also a project of the government's youth opportunity program. Once selected, the youngsters may work up to 30 hours a week, provided there are enough projects to go around.

That, in itself, is one of Larson's biggest headaches. With the help of 21-year-old Benny Scott, his assistant, Larson has begun appearing before local city councils and civic groups to solicit community projects. In Hawaiian Gardens, the City Council happily promised to provide the paint for a crew of teen-age workers who will stencil curbside house numbers at no cost throughout the community.

* * * *

IN LONG BEACH, the crews moved into a poverty neighborhood and painted a score of frame houses, then moved on to clearing a Boys' Club lot of debris and weeds.

Although the program has been in operation only since July 1, Larson already has opened an office at 1153 E. 10th St., and proposes to use it as a headquarters for finding deserving local projects.

As ideas pour in, Larson has begun to get some of his own. Among them, a "vest pocket park," in which vacant lots are cleared and transformed into temporary playgrounds in poverty neighborhoods.

"What we have done so far," says Scott, "is employ indigenous youngsters to work within indigenous neighborhoods. So far, it has been a great success."

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the administrative jobs, the program also provides for a crew of five "handymen" at each post, comprised of men whose special skills qualify them as instructors. Combined with a $300 monthly stipend for materials, Larson says the program provides an opportunity for heretofore unavailable community improvement.

Although each "commando" post selects its own projects—and thus must determine whether a need actually exists—Larson says there is little opportunity for abuse of the program.

"Right now, we need work—and lots of it," says Larson. "It's the way we're going to prove that these kids are worth every penny we put into the program."

ADMIRALS RAMAGE, ROEDER MOVE UP

1st Fleet Skipper Goes 'Front Office'

By BUCK LANIER
Naval Affairs Reporter

SAN DIEGO — An admiral who took the First Fleet from peacetime to wartime status with trim efficiency has moved up to the "front office."

Vice Adm. Lawson P. Ramage is new deputy commander of the Pacific Fleet after turning over his command to Vice Adm. Bernard F. Roeder in ceremonies aboard the attack carrier USS Kitty Hawk.

Only Wednesday Adm. Roeder was relieved as commander of the Pacific Amphibious Forces.

Adm. Ramage, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner in the submarine USS Parche during World War II, and Adm. Roeder, both were presented awards personally by the Pacific Fleet's boss, Adm. Roy L. Johnson.

Ramage received the Distinguished Service Medal and Roeder a gold star in lieu of his fifth Legion of Merit.

The fleet commander cited Adm. Ramage's "leadership, sound judgment and aggressive training requirements in getting First Fleet units ready for combat off Viet Nam."

Roeder wrote "impressive pages in amphibious warfare during his command . . . opening up many new concepts with his forces . . ." Adm. Johnson said.

There were 18 amphibious operations into the Viet Nam war zone during Adm. Roeder's 14-month term.

In his remarks, Adm. Ramage said:

"This was not a one-man show at all. I was lucky to be working with a great team of professional experts for the past two years. Our exercises were tough and arduous, and in many cases exasperating.

ADM. L. P. RAMAGE

"But all knew it was a case of getting it right in the First Fleet because there won't be a second chance if a blunder is made in the war zone."

Adm. Roeder said there will be "a continuing state of readiness in First Fleet."

Rear Adm. Evan P. Aurand, commander, Antisubmarine Group 1 on the USS Bennington; Rear Adm. Fillmore B. Gilkeson, commander, ASW Group 3 on the USS Yorktown; Rear Adm. Albert J. Carpenter, commandant of the 11th Coast Guard District; and Clint Furrer, chairman of the chamber of commerce's Armed Services Committee, were present from Long Beach.

ROOM CLERK FAILS TO GET HIS MAN

PENTICTION, Canada (UPI) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police received this message from Vancouver on their direct-dial teletype machine:

"Can you reserve a room with two doubles for this evening and tomorrow for Mr. Jones and family leaving here to arrive Penticton 6 p.m.?"

An immediate message was sent back to the Hotel Vancouver. It stated:

"Not sure they would like the rooms as all have bars. This Penticton RCMP."

The final message read: "Oops, sorry. Guess I dialed the wrong number."

Motorcyle, Auto Crashes Fatal for 3

Two motorcyclists and an Inglewood motorist died Saturday from injuries received in Southland traffic accidents.

Dead are:

Artis Hendricks, 22, of 991 Nevada St., Long Beach, who died in Daniel Freeman Hospital, Inglewood.

Tony Lopez, 20, of 9041 Passons Blvd., Downey, who died in Downey Community Hospital.

Nathan Mandel, 58, of 8468½ Byrd Ave., Inglewood, who died in General Hospital, Torrance.

Inglewood police said Hendricks lost control of his motorcycle Friday afternoon on Lincoln Boulevard near Sepulveda Boulevard and slammed into a guardrail.

Lopez was injured fatally Friday afternoon when his cycle struck the rear of a car driven by William Lancaster, 39, of 11716 Elmcroft St., Norwalk, who was not injured. The accident occurred on Florence Avenue near Chaney Avenue.

Mandel died an hour after his car went out of control on rain-slick Wilmington Boulevard south of 190th Street early Saturday and was struck broadside by a car driven by Winslow L. Reed, 20, of Los Angeles. Reed was uninjured.

L.A. Pair Held as Suspects in Compton Death

Two Los Angeles men remained in Compton city jail Saturday night as suspects in the murder of a 29-year old Compton man.

Police said the victim, Ralph Palacios, of 119-B W. Myrrh St., was stabbed to death shortly after 1 p.m. Saturday during a fight at a party in a neighborhood apartment.

Held for investigation of murder were Renaud Cage, 25, and Astor D. Whitfield, 26, arrested one block from the apartment.

USS Hancock Back From Viet Cruise

ALAMEDA (UPI) — The 27,000-ton aircraft carrier USS Hancock will return Monday to Alameda Naval Air Station after nine months in the South Pacific, mostly off Viet Nam. Highlights included bombing of the Haiphong supply depot in North Viet Nam, shooting down Russian-built MIG17 jets and photographing a Russian-built missile in flight.

Stars Hosts to Families of Navy Men

Wives and dependents of Long Beach Navy men fighting in Viet Nam will be honored today by the Friars Club, 9900 Santa Monica Blvd., in Beverly Hills.

The first of a series of star-studded brunches will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Hollywood stars helping inaugurate the unique Friars tribute for 125 dependents of the Long Beach destroyer tender USS Bryce Canyon will be George Jessel, Debbie Reynolds, Ben Blue, Phil Silvers, Eddie Fisher, Jackie Cooper and Glenn Ford.

The stars will sign autographs, mingle and eat with guests and present gifts gathered by the club.

The group will be taken to Beverly Hills in Navy buses.

A continuing series of brunches will honor Long Beach dependents weekly, a club spokesman said Saturday.

Clothing Worth $4,000 Stolen

Clothing worth $4,000 was taken in a burglary Saturday at Theo's Toggery, 2037 Pacific Ave., Long Beach police said.

Officer P. C. Beane said a milk carton was thrown through a plate glass front door to gain entry.

Two men were seen taking clothing from the store and placing it in a car parked in front about 5:30 a.m., police said.

French-Russ Tour Exchanges Growing

MOSCOW (AP) — The exchange of Soviet and French tourists is increasing as political relations between the two countries improve, Izvestia reported Saturday.

The Soviet government newspaper said 36,000 French tourists visited Russia in 1965, and more than 40,000 are expected this year. By comparison, the Soviet travel agency Intourist says 20,000 Americans visited this country last year. Izvestia said there was a 15% increase in Soviet tourists visiting France this year.

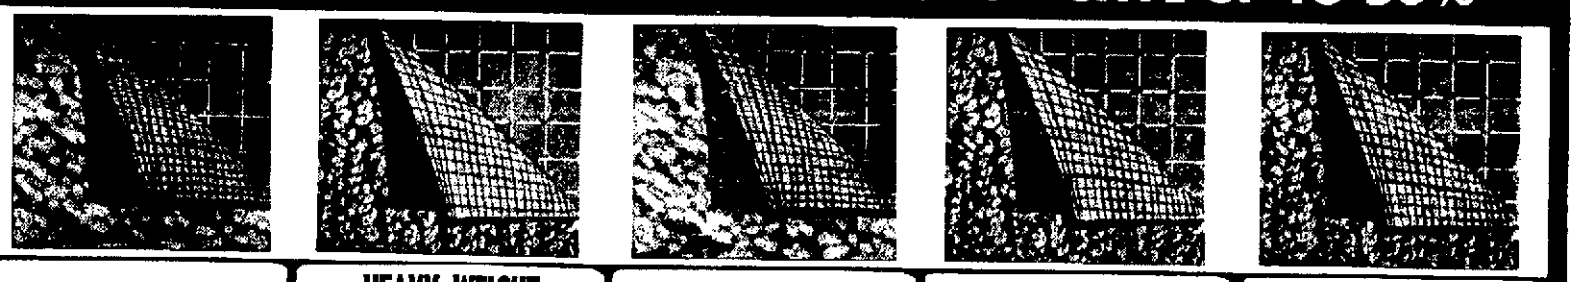

Bandits Get $2,400 in Anaheim Holdup

Two young bandits took $2,400 in cash and personal checks Saturday from the manager of an Anaheim drugstore.

Anaheim police said one of the men, who was armed with a .45-caliber automatic, approached the manager of the Thrifty Drug Store at 625 W. Orangewood Ave., and told him to hand over the money he was carrying in a briefcase.

'POOL VISTS SCHOOL

'Instant' Plunge

By HAL LOWE

An "instant swimming pool" is making a big splash with elementary school students in the Carson-Dominguez area.

The pool is used by the Youth Services Bureau of the Los Angeles City Schools for classes in elementary and intermediate swimming.

No elementary school in the area has a permanent swimming pool, so the portable pool is giving many children their first taste of aquatic life.

The youthful sea-hunters have found the 16x24-foot pool much to their liking. Two hundred and twenty-five are enrolled in 28 classes in the pool now at the Benito Street School. The junior-grade flippers also find the 30-inch depth of the pool just right, not only for learning basic elements of swimming and floating, but also in giving them confidence during those awkward moments when they forget to close their mouths while under water.

Joe Fisher, a teacher in the school district, is pool manager. He is assisted by a staff of four instructors, who spend four hours a day in the water with eight students at a time. The half-hour classes are held five days a week for two weeks.

The portable pool spends two weeks at each location. On Aug. 5 it will be taken to the Dolores School in Wilmington where a new group of 7-to-12-year-olds will start swimming.

The crew usually moves the pool on a Monday morning, then assembles and fills it with 7,400 gallons of water. By that time, word has gone around the neighborhood that a new swimming hole is open and students, even those not registered, start the line up for a dip.

$1 Million Asked to Develop Park

From Our Los Angeles Bureau

Formal application for $1 million in state funds to develop a swimming pool and other facilities in Victoria Park, 190th Street and Avalon Boulevard, will be filed within the next week, according to Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The funds sought are part of the $150 million bond issue approved by state voters in November, 1964.

Hahn said the state already has given tentative approval for use of the bond money for an Olympic-size swimming pool, bathhouse, four tennis courts, softball and baseball fields, rest rooms and general development of a 26-acre area.

Final plans for the swimming pool are scheduled to be submitted to county supervisors Aug. 23. Construction is expected to begin in mid-October. It is hoped the pool will be open by the summer of 1967.

An 18-hole golf course already is under construction on 177 acres of Victoria Park. It is being financed by a loan from the County Employes Retirement Board, to be repaid from greens fees.

Realtor Board to Hear Lazur

Members of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors, Inc., will meet for breakfast at 8 a.m. Wednesday in Bateman Hall, 11331 Ernestive Ave., Lynwood, to hear a discussion on "Business Opportunities" by John Lazur, chief deputy of the California Division of Real Estate in Los Angeles. Program chairman is Larry Pope.

4 Pounds of Twins Growing Up--2 Months, 5 Lbs. Each

By CHARLES SUTTON

When Mrs. Sylvester Fitterer of 6418 Keynote St. gave premature birth to twin girls May 26 at St. Mary's Hospital, her doctor told her to expect the worst.

One of the girls weighed only 2 pounds, 4 ounces, the other 1 pound, 12 ounces. The smaller twin was believed to be the smallest ever delivered at St. Mary's.

"If they're over two pounds, we can often save them," explained Miss Helen Olivia Driscoll, head of the premature nursery at St. Mary's. "But less than that, well, it's almost impossible."

Saturday, the almost impossible was an inescapable fact.

The twins, all dressed up for the occasion in pretty yellow dresses, and each weighing over 5 pounds, lay in their parents' arms, ready to be taken home for the first time. There they were to be met by the Fitterers' three other children, also girls: Christine, 6, Marie, 4, and Carolyn, 3.

Oh, yes, the twins' names: The smaller one, in whom the Fitterers had hope, is named, Patricia Hope. Her sister, for equally appropriate reasons, is named Celeste Faith.

Said Dad, smiling broadly, "So far, so good."

Apartment Burglary

A television set, clothing and diamond tie pin with a total value of $925 were taken Saturday in a burglary at the apartment of Joshua Norris at 866 California Ave., Long Beach police said.

Western Lines Logs First Half Profit Gain

Western Air Lines recorded substantial gains in revenue passenger miles and net profits in the first six months of 1966 over the comparable period last year, according to J. Judson Taylor, senior vice president and treasurer.

First-half profits this year were $6,102,000 or $1.42 a share, compared to $5,221,000 or $1.22 a share in the first half last year, the 1965 figures including $237,000 from sale of equipment.

June profits were $1,432,000 or 33 cents a share—a record for the month—compared to $1,028,000 or 24 cents a share for June of 1965. The former June record was $1,301,000, or 31 cents a share, in 1964.

Gain in revenue-passenger miles for the first six months of this year was 25.3% over the first half of 1965, Taylor said.

Analysts Puzzling Over Slide by Stock Averages

By JOHN J. ABELE
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Stock market analysts had a new ball game to work with this week. The numbers on the scoreboard were plain but, as often happens, there was disagreement over what the score was.

The reason for the uncertainty was the drop of the market's two most closely watched indicators—the Dow-Jones industrial and railroad averages—to new lows for the year.

Other leading market indicators such as the new composite index of the New York Stock Exchange, which measures price trends of all common stocks on the big board, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, dipped but did not set new lows. The Dow-Jones averages, however, still get most of the attention of the tape watchers.

The industrial average hit a 1966 low of 852.83 on Monday on a plunge of 16.32 points, the sharpest one-day slide since the assassination of President Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. It slipped a bit lower Tuesday, finishing at 852.17, almost 8 points below the earlier 1966 low of 864.14 on May 17.

* * * *

THE RAILROAD average missed a new low on Monday but hit one on Tuesday, when it dropped to 220.26. Its previous low for the year had been 220,54, also on May 17.

At the low, the industrial average was 14.4% below the year's high of 995.15 on Feb. 9 and the railroad average was 18.9% below the February high of 271.72.

To many market technicians, the simultaneous posting of new lows by the two averages represented a new bear market sign similar to that registered in May when they pierced their March lows.

The market's technical weakness, they said, is being augmented by fundamental factors, such as the slowdown in the pace of economic expansion, the unusually tight money situation and the accompanying flight of interest rates, the financial crisis in Britain that has stirred fears of devaluation, and the uncertain outlook for corporate profits next year.

Meanwhile, the dwindling herd of Wall Street bulls began running up their "buying opportunity" flags. The market's slide, they said, had amply discounted many of the gloomy factors confronting the economy.

* * * *

THE OPTIMISTS ALSO pointed to the string of favorable second-quarter reports upholding earlier projections that corporate earnings this year would be about 10% higher than in 1965.

Translated into terms of the Dow-Jones industrial averages, this means that aggregate share earnings of the 30 major corporations whose stocks are components of the average still are expected to total $60 this year, compared with $54 last year.

At this week's low of 852 on the Dow, the average was priced at slightly more than 14 times the expected 1966 profits. This week's low was 12 points higher than the 1965 low of 840, when the Dow-Jones industrials were priced at 15.5 times their 1965 learnings. At the bottom of the sharp price break in 1962, the industrials were priced at 14.7 times estimated earnings.

While price-earnings ratios are relatively low on the basis of expected 1966 results, the big queston confronting the market is the course of profits in 1967. Wall Street analysts are making tentative forecasts but the over-all picture is still hazy.

* * * *

THE MAJOR IMPONDERABLE is the war in Viet Nam. It is the principal factor putting a squeeze on the nation's economy and is in large part responsible for the inflationary pressures, spiraling interest rates and the possibility of an income tax increase next year.

"Viet Nam has become the dominating factor in American life today," Heinz H. Biel, a partner of Emanuel, Deetjen & Co., wrote in a market letter this week. "Policy decisions will have a vital bearing on our economy and, consequently, on our stock market. Sooner or later a determination will have to be made whether to quit or to fight a war to win."

Biel concluded: "Pending a clear-cut policy decision whether to terminate or escalate, a general stock market prognosis is impossible. Under such circumstances investors have no alternative but to continue a conservative course and maintain a sizable reserve position."

Highway Perils Cumberland Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Kentucky Highway Commissioner Henry Ward says he is confident that a tunnel will be built to save historic Cumberland Gap from the devastation of a road-widening project.

Ward gave his view after a conference with federal highway officials. He is seeking federal funds to help build the tunnel, rather than widen the highway now running through the gap, which was the route taken by Daniel Boone leading families west.

Sees No Peace

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France ended three days of talks with Hungarian Communist leaders Saturday expressing pessimism about chances for settlement of the Viet Nam conflict and the German problem.

FPC Gas-Rate Refunds Staggering to Producers

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Power Commission has removed any doubt about its determination to enforce a natural gas rate refund policy highly obnoxious to most independent producers.

It also was obnoxious to Commissioner Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., who found himself on the short end of votes that made the policy the order of the day. The Texan charged that consumers will benefit scarcely at all while the impact upon producers could be "staggering."

The policy — now twice reaffirmed — was established last June 1 in a Skelly Oil Co. case. It covers temporary FPC sales certificates issued to producers but without specific refund provisos.

* * * *

THE COMMISSION majority, backed by the Supreme Court, held that whenever a producer violates the FPC's in-line sales price for interstate gas in any field, he must refund the overcharge, whether or not his certificate had a refund clause. There are some exceptions involving royalties and state taxes.

This has now been nailed down by two new 4 to 1 votes, with O'Connor the lone dissenter. The cases involved producers in Texas districts Nos. 3 and 4, including H. L. Hawkins and H. L. Hawkins Jr.; Continental Oil Co.; Jonnell Gas, Inc., and Blanco Oil Co.

Basis of the policy is that the commission is bound by law to force refunds when a producer fails to prove they are unjust. "The overriding purpose of the natural gas act," the majority said, "is protection of the consuming public, as the courts emphasized time and time again."

* * * *

THE PRODUCERS argued among other things that the commission was ignoring companywide costs in cases where one particular producing property may be losing money and hence there was no money for refund.

Sales affected took place before and after Sept. 28, 1960, when the FPC put all producing areas under temporary price ceilings — what it called in-line prices.

The commission deferred ordering refunds, pending its Skelly decision. The Skelly case grew out of a 1954 legal test in which the District of Columbia Court of Appeals held that the FPC was on solid legal ground. The Supreme Court agreed. Even before this, however, the commisison had made a similar ruling in an Amerada Petroleum Corp. case.

* * * *

IN ONE of its newest orders, the commission warned all producers against trying to evade the policy. It said they had had ample time since February 1964 to know and understand it and thus should have taken steps to protect themselves when refunds were ordered.

O'Connor, obviously angry, blasted his colleagues for using the Skelly case as a precedent. He charged they had disregarded a previous Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co. case in which the 10th U.S. Circuit Court at Salt Lake City held that a producer had the right to know the conditions under which his gas would be sold, "so he might make an intelligent decision whether to accept a certificate."

O'Connor said the commission majority should now hold its fire until the Supreme Court reconciles the conflicting court edicts. He had dissented in part from the Skelly decision.

AS THINGS now stand O'Connor declared, the benefits to consumers will be small "but the impact upon the producer and upon his operations will, in many instances, be staggering." He added that it was clear the majority "had committed an error" in accepting the Skelly dictum as the controlling precedent.

The majority response was that the Sunray case had no legal bearing on its latest orders.

Queen Mother Nears 66, Wonders If It's a Spoof

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth the queen mother will be 66 on Thursday, but can't quite believe it.

"Have I really lived that long?" she asked recently.

She has the same trouble with other people. She never forgets the dates of their birthdays but never remembers their actual ages.

But then she's always been a bit hazy about time. Strict punctuality was never her strong point.

One thing is sure. A lot of people will be remembering her birthday. For this spry widow, affectionally called "the queen mum" by her people, is one of the most popular members of the British royal family.

* * * *

SHE WILL GET flowers from around the world because of her love of gardening. She will get presents from her children, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, and her six grandchildren. The Queen's husband, Prince Philip, and their daughter, Princess Anne, will leave their packages and cards behind before flying out to Jamaica for the Commonwealth Games.

Normally she enjoys excellent health apart from a bout of influenza every so often. She still tells people her emergency appendicitis operation last year "came as a tremendous surprise to me."

* * * *

IT FORCED postponement until last spring of a seven-week tour of Australia, New Zealand and Fiji.

The trip was typical of the busy life she leads at an age when others might think of retirement.

Since she was widowed in 1952 through the death of King George VI she has made official visits to 19 countries, going to some of them twice.

She is president, patron or has some other connection with 300 various organizations, including hospitals, charities and education foundations.

Whenever she is in London she usually has three or four public engagements a week.

She has lived since the death of her husband at Clarence House, a stone's throw from Buckingham Palace, and she also has a weekend country place up the Thames at Windsor.

* * * *

BUT THE PALACE she loves to go to get a bit of seclusion is her castle of Mey on the wild northeast coast of Scotland. There she can follow one of her favorite hobbies—fishing.

August calendar filled with colorful events

Visitors and residents in Southern California in August will be treated to outrigger canoe races, a zany boat parade, a mile-high burro derby, Spanish and Li'l Tokyo festivals, a beach sand sculpture contest and an old gold town celebration.

The All Year Club, which issues a calendar of colorful events in its work of building the area's billion-dollar tourist business, reported that some 32 events, day and night, will stretch over the 10 days of the Sports and Arts Festival at Santa Monica Aug. 19 to 28. Women as well as men will paddle in outrigger canoe races that will draw a team from Hawaii. Youngsters will compete in sand sculpture. There will be a six-mile walking race.

About 50 zany boats will sail in the Character Boat Parade at Newport Harbor Aug. 27. A typical Character Boat is Edgar Bergen's SS Poopalong: purple cabin, ivy growing up the antenna, elderly steam engine with a shrieking whistle.

* * * *

WEARY wranglers and their unruly burros will race 43 miles around the valley at Big Bear Lake during the Old Miners Days, Thursday through next Sunday, celebrating the time when a gold strike opened up this mile-high resort land.

Santa Barbara will hold its Old Spanish Days Fiesta during the full of the moon, Wednesday through Sunday. The historical parade brings out some of the most colorful costumes in the nation and there will be a second costumed parade for youngsters.

Japanese lanterns will light up the Li'l Tokyo section of downtown Los Angeles for the Nisei Week Festival Aug. 13 to 21. There will be judo tournaments, a Cha-No-You tea ceremony and a colorful Ondo parade of several hundred kimona-clad dancing girls.

* * * *

AN OLD-TIME Mining Celebration will be held Aug. 27 and 28 at Randsburg with a miner's hard rock drilling race and gold panning. Randsburg, where the Yellow Aster mine gave up $16 million in gold, looks like a movie set mining town.

The Farmer's Daughter contest at the Farmers Fair at Hemet Aug. 17 to 21 will be a beauty contest — and more. Five pretty girls will compete nightly in a different farm task such as milking, sewing, baking, tractor driving, and a surprise climax such as wall papering or dressing out a chicken.

Santa Paula will hold its annual Art Exhibit Aug. 10 to 14 for the 30th year. It is unique in that prize oils and water colors are bought by the Chamber of Commerce and school districts to be added to a growing permanent collection.

FORECAST FOR TODAY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stimulating conversation in evening opens mind to new vistas. Avoid depression. What is past—is gone. But future now offers many exciting possibilities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect easily accents personal philosophy, decision. If you maintain dignity, you get what is desired. Your observations, opinions are sought. Be ready—alert and bright.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You can conclude profitable agreement. Be sure, precious . . . also fair but firm. Fine for completion, rounding out rough edges. Refuse to be restricted. Examine new, exciting areas.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Money situation brighter than you might imagine. Persons work for you behind the scenes. Be confident and cheerful . . . then others volunteer needed information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): People want to know what you feel, think. Emphasize self-expression. Key is cooperation. Be willing to talk, but also to listen. Trust hunch. Follow through on pet project.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Some may stage certain events, conversations for your benefit. Know this . . . be perceptive. Don't grab at bait. If you wait and observe . . . then you avoid mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fine for review and adjustment. Applies especially to home, family, domestic affairs. Minor matters become apparent, need attention. Plug loopholes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Some may urge you to form quick conclusion. These persons are not fully informed. Know this and play waiting game. Examine facts. Don't jump to conclusions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel emphasized . . . but there are responsibilities at home base. Means you must achieve sense of balance. Don't leave until commitments are fulfilled. Think!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stress on personality, the way you react to minor crisis. Maintain aplomb, emphasize charm. Fine for new starts, contacts. Accent independence, originality.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Cycle moves up. You could receive news which strengthens legal position. Take your time. Check facts, apparent contradictions. You might make valuable discovery.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Many around you may appear supersensitive. Don't try to change everything overnight. Offer of sympathy to associate who recently suffered setback will be repaid.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have special talent for uncovering details which others overlook. You are a natural showman and can make most subjects exciting.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces. Special word to Libra: Be wary where romance enters picture.

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Full moon position emphasizes friendships, hopes, desires. You gain most through change, exchange of thoughts. Study written word. Put thoughts on paper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Stress on standing in community, ambition, willingness to invest in own abilities. Stand tall. You can now improve career potential. Look forward—not backward.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Full Moon stresses opportunity for travel, creative writing. Also good time for gain through special instruction, understanding, education. Highlight perceptiveness.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your capacity for getting along with neighbors, fellow workers is tested. Realize that promises are bonds of trust. Don't break them.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): If you can cooperate in face of opposition—you prove yourself. Many you count on may now appear eccentric. Don't compound error. Continue toward goal . . . get to source. Be specific.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Work with eye toward creative change, originality. Heed regulations. Find legal ways of speeding operations. Means discard methods which cause loss, delay. Guard health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Romance accented. So are creative endeavors and activities concerned with children. Your sales ability rates especially high. Breakthrough to real accomplishment possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Full Moon position emphasizes home, security, family affairs. Day to be lenient, with loved ones. Means don't force issues. Build on solid base. You'll be happier as result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Ideas are plentiful. Relatives chime in with good will, aid. But ultimately you must make choice. Key is being able to concentrate. Don't permit distractions to stroke.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Money, possessions, ability to get full value for efforts all stressed. Get rid of misconceptions. Make necessary changes. Then income opportunity is greatly enhanced.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Full Moon in your sign stresses personality, sales potential, ability to win friends. You may be a bit disappointed in associate . . . but feeling is temporary. You soon are reassured.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Show you are not afraid of truth. Then others tend to confide. You can learn valuable lessons if you take time to contemplate. Organize emotions. Be strong within!

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are a showman . . . have much to offer . . . you are creative and would excel in the performing arts.

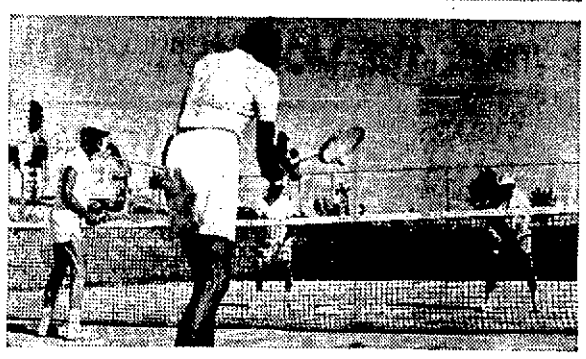

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Special word to Libra: Sense of humor could create good feeling between you and one who formerly opposed your view.

Services Set Tuesday for Teacher at Wilson

Services for a Wilson High School teacher who once played football with the New York Giants will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Mottell's Mortuary.

Gerald Dennerlein, 50, of 56 50th Place, teacher in the Long Beach Unified School District since 1949, died Friday.

He was graduated from Los Angeles city schools in 1931 and earned his B.A. at St. Mary's College in 1937. Then for three years he played left tackle for the Los Angeles Bulldogs and New York Giants.

Dennerlein earned his master's in history in 1940 and his doctorate in education in 1958 at USC.

Before coming to Long Beach he spent several years in elementary school administrative positions, including principal, at Elsinore, Azusa, Bakersfield and other Southern California cities.

Dennerlein taught at Poly High School 11 years before coming to Wilson, where he taught senior problems.

In 1957 the "How America Lives" series in Ladies Home Journal featured an article on the Dennerleins and their Peninsula home titled "There's More Fun Than Money in Teaching."

He was a member of the National Education Association and the Alamitos Bay Community Interest Association.

Dennerlein is survived by his widow, Roselten, three married daughters, Mrs. Darlene Clayton, Mrs. Carol Wood and Mrs. Katherine Kershner; his mother, Mrs. Hazel Whan; a brother, Don, and a sister, Mrs. Darlene Marosewski.

The family requests contributions be sent to the Heart Fund.

De-Cased the Joint

A burglar took six cases of soft drinks worth $16 from a storeroom at Charlie's Restaurant, 5705 Atlantic Ave., early Saturday, Long Beach police said.

Caustic Kills Infant Boy

A baby boy died Saturday after a 16-day illness caused by what Orange County coronor's deputies said was a "caustic substance."

The San Clemente infant, James Anthony Thomas, only 22 days old, succumbed at Children's Hospital at Orange.

An autopsy disclosed burns on his mouth, throat and stomach, the coroner's office said, adding that it was unable to determine the nature of the "caustic substance" and has ordered an examination.

San Clemente police said the child's mother, Antonia, 24, was placed under a physician's care after the child died. The illness of the infant caused the Marine Corps to return the father, James S. Thomas, from Viet Nam. The family home is at 1607 N. El Camino Real, San Clemente.

Police said they also are conducting an investigation.

Navy Man Wounded Near Arena

A Navy man was shot and seriously wounded Saturday by two men who, he said, tried to rob him on the beach at the rear of the Long Beach Arena.

Eligio R. Fchuique, 33, a radio man aboard the USS Long Beach, was in good condition on the hospital ship Haven after doctors treated him for bullet wounds in the right shoulder and upper left leg.

* * * *

FCHUIQUE, WHO lives at 25528 Doble Ave., Harbor City, told police he was shot when he ran from two men in their late 20's who had tried to rob him at 12:15 a.m.

He told officers he was able to reach Ocean Boulevard, half a block away, where he hailed a taxi cab which took him to the dispensary at Long Beach Naval Station.

A Navy ambulance took him from the dispensary to the Haven, where he underwent surgery.

Clothing Stolen

Clothing valued at $195 was taken Saturday from a car owned by Robert S. Colburn, 1056 W. 187th Place, Gardena, while parked in a lot at Artesia Boulevard and Orange Avenue, Long Beach police said.

Fuller Brush Man Robbed

A Fuller Brush Co. salesman was left without samples Saturday after a thief took three boxes of brushes and other supplies worth $300 from the trunk of his car.

The victim, Clayton R. Carson, 31, of 4117 E. 2nd St., told police his car was broken into while parked in front of his home.

TRADE IN SALE

A Bold Experiment in Merchandising Designed to Allow You to Replace Unwanted Furniture – Out of Style Pieces – Items You Are Tired of – at Absolutely Top Resale Value

It works this way. Select the item, or room or home full of items from one of the most complete selections of fine Mediterranean, Oriental and Contemporary furniture available. Tell us about your unwanted furniture. We will give at least the minimum allowance listed below for any usable piece on an item for item or equal value item on different item or lesser value old item on greater value new item basis. Example: An old extra dinette set can be traded in on a newer dinette or a new sectional or other furniture of equal value. In all fairness, several pieces cannot be grouped on a new one. Terms? Sure!
Use your allowance for all or part of down payment—up to 36 months on balance.

WE GUARANTEE AT LEAST THE MINIMUM AMOUNTS LISTED

TECHNICIANS

If routine bores you—consider becoming an
IBM Customer Engineer

Because here's a position that has as much variety as it does responsibility. You're at the center of a vital service performed by the fast-growing industry of electronic computers and associated equipment, you keep studying and developing throughout your career. There's no boredom in a job like that!

What is it like to join the IBM company as a Customer Engineer? You enter an IBM training program (with full pay). Later, you assume responsibility for your own territory, where you install and service data processing systems. You work with customers in business, industry, science, education or government. You get an in-depth view of one or more of these fields while representing IBM.

Interesting? Yes, and just as there are virtually no limits to what computers can do—your opportunities for a long-range professional career with IBM would be unlimited, too. Go as far as your abilities take you!

What do you need? A mathematical aptitude plus a good knowledge of basic electronics. A minimum of two years' technical education or recent electronics experience—military or civilian. A knack for meeting and getting along with people. If you qualify, you may find yourself in a fascinating job with lots of built-in educational benefits.

If you would like a position with unlimited variety, call for an appointment (Days—Evenings—Saturdays).

ENGINE LATHE OPERATOR
Make complete set-up and operate various types and sizes of engine lathes to machine parts to close tolerances. Improvise set-ups and lay out reference lines and center points as required. Perform turning, facing, drilling, boring, grooving, threading and machining angles and radii.

MILLING MACHINE OPERATOR
Set up and plan sequence of machine operations to obtain required finishes and tolerances to minimize the amount of machining. Will work from blue prints, design prints and sketches. Perform variable and non-repetitive tooling, holding tolerances on multiple and compound angles and contours.

MOLDED PLASTIC TOOLING BUILDER
Develope, layout and fabricate plastic tooling by the casting and laminating processes. Will work from tool masters, plaster, form dies, tool and engineering drawings and sketches as well as verbal instructions.

PATTERN MAKER—PLASTER
Fabrication of all types of plaster patterns. Will involve the transferring of trim and reference lines by taking casts from master plaster or wood patterns, for dies, compound angles and double curvatures. Will involve the mixing of plaster, plaster and saturated hemp application to prepared framework. Set up and fabricate wood and steel frames and forms for making plaster patterns and mockups.

TOOL AND DIE MAKER
Make holding fixtures, drill jigs and pierce and blank dies. Requires close tolerances and coordinated dimensions with master tools. Will work from tool design prints, engineering drawings and sketches.

TOOL MAKER
Will determine sequence of operations for fabrication of assembly jigs and fixtures. Coordination of tool holes and reference points in parallel plane or planes. Will supply information not on prints.

UTILITY MAN—TOOLING

Manager Trainee

If you want a soft 9 to 5 job . . .

DON'T ANSWER THIS AD

But if you are presently earning $5500-$8000 per year and feel stymied, take a look at a most unusual opportunity with McDonald's, the nation's largest carry-out restaurant chain.

You may think at first—"Who, me, work in a drive-in?"—but look at the facts! In just 12 years we have grown to be the nation's largest chain with 1965 sales over 170 million dollars.

Our continued expansion in Orange County has created openings for several mature men over 25, capable of becoming managers within 6 months to a year.

Manager's salary starts at $7800 per year. Training salaries range from $5000 to $7000 per year. Excellent fringe benefits include full insurance and profit-sharing.

A Message to Advertisers!

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE READ THE WANT ADS EVERY DAY!

Among the large audience there is bound to be somebody who wants the things you have to offer. That person is not going to spend time, effort, money or gasoline to find out details of your proposition UNLESS you have worded your message so that it interests him. A few more words may mean a lot more dollars in your pocket . . . remember that when you place your next advertisement.

The next time you call an ad taker to place a Want Ad in the Independent, Press-Telegram, stop and consider this. You are about to spend some money for an advertisement and you want to get the utmost in results. To accomplish this your ad should tell ALL the details about the things you are trying to accomplish. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that frequently prevent results . . .

DON'T OMIT THE ADDRESS!
Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance call.

DON'T OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER!

DON'T USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS!
Avoid them at all costs. They are difficult to answer. It is more convenient to phone.

DON'T LEAVE HOME ON DAYS OTHERS MIGHT ANSWER YOUR AD!

DON'T OMIT WORDS THAT WOULD TEND TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF RESPONSES.

DON'T CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED!
Surveys show that many people will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

DO GIVE YOUR AD SOME THOUGHT BEFORE CALLING!

DO RUN YOUR AD MORE THAN ONE DAY!
Not all of our readers are home every day. Just the person who wants what you are offering may not see your ad until the 9th or 10th time it runs.

THERE WILL NEVER BE A BETTER TIME TO BUY A HOME

You Will Pay a Lot More in Just a Few Months

It is estimated that increasing labor and materials costs are adding about $1,000 per year to the price of a $20,000 house. And costs are sure to increase faster in the near future. Thousands of families from other areas are coming to Southern California every month. They are looking for places to live and you have to compete with them in increasing numbers. And available land for building homes is shrinking fast. These things plus increasing interest rates point to one conclusion . . . buy that home now.

The longer you wait, the more you will pay.

And remember. A house is a good hedge against inflation. The house you own can only increase in value as other prices go up. You're protected.

In the pages of this Classified Section you will find the best in home values. Consult them now. And do something about it. Buy that home now and save money.

4-2 OVER WEST GERMANY

England Rules World of Soccer

WEMBLEY, England (UPI) — Geoff Hurst scored twice in overtime to complete a rare three-goal "hat trick" Saturday that gave England a 4-2 victory over West Germany for the 1966 World Cup soccer championship.

Hurst, who tallied England's first goal of the game early in regulation time, took a pass from Alan Ball at the 10-minute mark of a 30-minute extra session and scored on a 10-yarder that broke a 2-2 tie.

The English scoring star uncorked a left-footed kick in the waning seconds of overtime for the insurance tally.

* * * *

A PARTISAN crowd of 97,000, including Queen Elizabeth, applauded the English squad for a full half-hour after the game as England celebrated its first World Cup.

An estimated 400 million others watched the action live on television. The game was beamed to the United States on tape by the Early Bird satellite.

Germany scored first in the battle between defensive giants played on a field made soggy by 48 hours of rain.

Helmut Haller's scorching kick to the left corner caught English goalie Gordon Banks out of position in the 12th minute of play. Hurst tied it six minutes later and England went in front 2-1 on Martin Peters' goal with 13 minutes to go in the game.

With a minute left, Germany received a free kick from 10 yards outside the penalty area. Lothar Emmerich booted the ball toward the goal, where it was blocked by Roger Hunt and in the ensuing scramble, Wolfgang Weber kicked it home from point blank range to tie the score at 2-2 and send a title game into overtime for only the second time since 1930.

Ball started the English attack that produced the winning goal. He drove down the right sideline and passed to Hurst, who slammed in a shot from 10 yards out that hit the crossbar, bounced over the goal line and then caromed out.

West Germany protested mildly. Referee Gotteried Dienst of Switzerland conferred with linesman Tofik Bakhremov of Russia and the English goal was upheld.

* * * *

THE GERMANS went all out in an attempt to tie the game again, but the toil of going through qualifying rounds, which England was exempted from as host nation, and struggling past some of the greatest teams in the world was just too much for the visitors.

The victory was worth 22,000 pounds ($1,600) in special bonuses to the English team. Each German collected his normal international match pay of 23 pounds ($64.40).

English captain Bobby Moore received the Jules Rimet Cup from Queen Elizabeth, kissed it and passed the trophy on to his teammates.

The Germans were forgotten and the estimated 18,000 German fans in the stands were silent.

Moore, who stars for the West Ham squad, was selected most valuable player over Portugal's Eusebio, the tournament high scorer and pre-tournament favorite to win the award.

Luck o' Cards (Pitching, Too) Beats Dodgers

By GEORGE LEDERER
Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—With a little bit of luck, the Cardinals are moving right up.

Larry Jaster thought he was lucky to have shut out the Dodgers Friday night for the third time in a row.

Saturday, it was Al Jackson who attributed his six-hit, 3-1 victory over the Dodgers to a little luck.

The game attracted a sellout crowd of 47,770, largest to see a regular-season contest in St. Louis.

"I think my luck has changed," said the little lefthander, whose record with the Mets last season was 8-20. With the Cardinals, who have moved from seventh to fourth by winning six in a row and 12 of 13, Jackson has won 11 and lost 8.

Jackson suffered through nine defeats by the Dodgers before he registered his first victory against them last season, a three-hit, 1-0 decision over Claude Osteen. Now he's won three of his last four against the world champions and the loss was via an unearned run.

Dick Stuart drove in the run Saturday with a first-inning infield hit, the only earned Dodger run against Jackson in the last 33 innings.

Walter Alston concurred with the lucky label. Although the Dodgers were restricted to six hits, two by Stuart and two by Tommy Davis, he thought they "hit the ball hard. I thought We looked terrible at the plate Friday, but we hit some shots against Jackson. The trouble was they were caught."

Lou Johnson hit three line drives, but only one fell in, for a double in the third inning. Johnson was left at second. Willie Davis also hit the ball hard three times and had to settle for one hit in four chances.

The Dodgers, who remained 1½ games behind the league-leading Pirates, collected three of their hits in the first inning. W. Davis led off with a single, advanced as Jackson wild-pitched and scored on Stuart's two-out single off third baseman Charlie Smith's glove.

T. Davis' follow-up single was wasted as Jim Lefebvre fouled out. Lefebvre started for the first time since Sunday when he jammed his right shoulder.

Only two other Dodgers reached second base, Johnson in the third and T. Davis in the seventh. T. D. lined into the game-ending double play after Stuart singled again in the ninth.

Don Sutton (9-8) started for the Dodgers and took his first loss of the month. He allowed all eight Cardinal hits and left after Mike Shannon and Smith singled to start the sixth.

Joe Moeller and Phil Regan were perfect in relief, but the damage had been done early.

Sutton gave up two runs in the first inning and Lou Brock's 11th home run wrapped it up in the fifth. Brock had three for the second night in a row and has eight in last three games. He also stole his 41st base to go 10 up on Maury Wills.

Brock singled in the first inning and Tim McCarver followed with a tying triple. Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly made it 2-1. Cepeda's hitting streak ended at 13 games.

Jackson concentrated on his fast ball, as did Jaster the night before.

"No," said Jackson, "I wouldn't call the Dodgers a curve ball-hitting club. They've got some good fast ball hitters who can knock it out of the park, but the secret is in getting the ball in the right spots."

Although he didn't walk a man, Jackson thought his control was a bit off. "I might have thrown harder than in L.A., but I didn't make as many good pitches."

The Dodgers thought he made enough.

Rookie Steve Carlton (0-0) will be third lefthander to start against the Dodgers in the concluding game of the series this afternoon. He will be opposed by Claude Osteen (12-8).

DODGER OF DAY

Dick Stuart singled twice and drove in only run as Dodgers lost to Cardinals, 3-1.

CHANCE BACK ON BEAM WITH SEVEN-HITTER

Angels Nudge Tribe in 9th

SUNDAY, JULY 31, 1966 PAGE D-1

By ROSS NEWHAN

History illustrates that Dean Chance is always a winner after the All-Star game. Students of history were beginning to suspect that might mean the Pro Bowl.

However, Chance set them right Saturday night with a dazzling seven-hitter which included 10 strikeouts and which evolved into a 2-1 victory over Cleveland on Tom Satriano's ninth-inning single.

It washed out a five-hitter by Gary Bell and rewarded Chance (8-12) with his first victory in four starts since the All-Star recess.

Yet, the statistics show that Dean has allowed only three runs in his last 24 innings.

"This is the closest he's been to 1964," said catcher Bobby Rodgers.

That was the year Chance won the Cy Young Award. In the intervening 18 months he has been just plain sigh, and one of the reasons for poor start if that's what you can call 17 weeks this season deals with size.

"Tonight was the first time this year the mound has been up to its right level," offered Chance. "My fast ball was finally sinking — just as it did in '64."

One is left with a sinking feeling when Dean attempts to build a mountain out of a mound's hill as he did be-

DEAN CHANCE pitched seven-hitter, struck out 10 as Angels nipped Cleveland 2-1.

Bucs Squelched by Phillies, 4-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richie Allen hit a two-run homer as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 Saturday behind the five-hit pitching of Larry Jackson.

The victory snapped the Phillies' losing streak at five games.

Jackson, notching his 10th victory against nine losses, gave up only a run in the fourth when Manny Mota walked, advanced to second on Willie Stargell's line out and came across on Donn Clendenon's single.

Allen's homer, his 24th, scored John Briggs, who opened the fifth with a single, lifted the Phils to a 3-1 lead.

Philadelphia added a run in the sixth when Dick Groat doubled, went to third on a ground out and scored on John Callison's single.

Woody Fryman suffered his sixth defeat against eight victories. It is the second time this season that the Pirate rookie has lost three successive games after winning four straight.

He gave up the Phillies first run in the fourth inning by walking Bill White with the bases loaded.

Sky Gipsy Outduels Gelbart at Del Mar

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — Sky Gipsy II, a feisty gamester from the Auld Sod, dug in tenaciously in the stretch to narrowly defeat determined Harry Gelbart in the $16,200 Oceanside Handicap before 16,456 onlookers Saturday.

Providing jockey Donald Pierce with his third victory of the afternoon, the handsome Irish-bred colt tallied by a head in a quick 1:09⅖ for six furlongs. Two lengths back of runnerup Harry Gelbart was Embassy, with the filly Fleet Treat fourth in the band of eight 3-year-olds.

Couple O' Quid, the 2-1 favorite under jockey Don Ross, who had announced his retirement earlier in the day, was eased when he went lame on the far turn. Ri Tux top weighted at 122 pounds, was fifth.

Harry Gelbart, a well-backed 5-2 with Jerry Lambert in the boot, showed the way in the first few strides, but was soon engaged by Sky Gipsy who rushed up between horses under Pierce's guidance.

Sky Gipsy slowly edged ahead of his rival and then clung to that margin to the wire. Sky Gipsy II, who packed 113 pounds to 116 for Harry Gelbart, paid $8.40, $3.60 and $3.20. Harry Gelbart returned $3.60 and $2.80 and Embassy returned $4.20.

In an attractive supporting feature on the nine-race card. Mustard Plaster got up in the final strides to whip High Perch and Old Mose in a thrilling finish.

Mustard Plaster, all-time leading Washington-bred money-winner, charged from last place to capture the mile event over Del Mar's turf course.

Raul Caballero won two races on the card, accounting for the opener on Tassie for a $32..20 payoff and the fourth on Lonesome Boy for a $12 mutuel. The daily double paid $226.20.

With a total handle of $1,487,562 and a fine turnout, Del Mar enjoyed the best opening Saturday in its 27-year history.

Who Says Youth Is Just for Young

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . If you feel you're not getting enough exercise, Howard Barnes, 41, president of the Seniors Track Club (20 Bay Shore Walk), has a solution: join his group. Howard himself runs 78 miles a week—10 miles five days weekly and 14 miles twice a week (from his Belmont Shore residence to Roosevelt Jr. High in COMPTON). Membership is available to all gents over 40.

. . . Newest club member is Fred Grace of Los Angeles. Fred is 68 and runs about 85 miles per week! Grace has a pattern, too: He trots eight miles Monday and Thursday, 10 miles Tuesday and Friday, 12 miles Wednesday, and 15, 20 or 26 miles (the last the Olympic marathon distance) on Saturdays and Sundays. He runs in parks, playgrounds and on school grounds. You and I should be in such shape as Fred. He's 5-2, weighs 125 and can press 135 pounds. He's done 1,800 pushups in groups of 25, with a 30-second break between each 25. His next goal is 3,000 pushups . . . and at the age of 68 yet! Do you feel as inadequate as I now?

. . . Louisville's draft board might think it has trouble keeping track of Cassius Clay, but Long Beach's Ollie Brown must run him a close second. The former Poly High baseball star missed several exhibition games this spring in order to switch his National Guard assignment from Tacoma (last year's Giants' farm club) to Phoenix (the Giants' current PCL farm unit). Ollie said that if he made the Giant varsity he'd have to switch to the San Francisco board. He made the varsity and then switched boards again. Then Ollie was sent back down to Phoenix, necessitating another change. He was recalled two weeks ago by the Giants and Operation Switch was on again. I wonder when the poor kid finds time to play baseball?

. . . Bob McCallum of Lakewood Kiwanis reports that it pays to advertise. In a recent item here we reported that a young lady was having trouble securing decent Dodger seats, even at the $3.50 box seat rate. Bob contacted the damsel and satisfied her request, courtesy of Kiwanis.

FROM JOHN HERBOLD, the Poly High coach, Angel scout and subject of an interesting Time magazine article: "Merrill Smith, who operates Smith's Concessions at Blair Field, out of his own pocket bought 10 baseballs for each of the teams that utilizes the field. He really helped us (Long Beach Blues' Connie Mack team) finish the year—ballwise—although it came as a complete surprise. He just handed each team 10 new baseballs and took off, not pausing for thanks. Blair is a great field, but you sure lose a lot of balls there. I think Legion, Colt and Connie Mack all benefited from his generosity. I know that our club alone uses about 10 dozen balls a summer."

. . . Speaking of Blair Field, Chicago Cub captain Ron Santo still recalls the first time Leo Durocher met with the club there in spring training. He continually tells writers throughout the country that Leo's first remark, as printed in our newspapers, was this: "If you don't like the way I do things, that's where you should go." Leo then pointed to the door. The way the Cubs are progressing, maybe most of the Cubbies now wish they had accepted the offer.

. . . Bob Von Eps, former Poly catcher and now with the White Sox Appleton (Wisconsin) Foxes, was named most valuable player in the Mid-West League All Star game, yet ended up in the hospital the same night. While going for a pop foul, Bob landed on his side, suffered a kidney injury and was to be sidelined at least 10 days. P.S. Bob made the catch.

WALTER O'MALLEY'S response, when asked if he didn't agree that there were symptoms that pro football is outstripping baseball (i.e. the networks pay tremendous sums to football, while baseball almost had to beg to put across its package deal): "I would say those are observations of people who have become a little bit older, a little bit sicker, and a little bit tired of writing and asking questions about sports." When you question O'Malley don't expect him NOT to pull out all the stops.

. . . 'Twas a sad day this past week when the news flashed over the wires about Tony Lema's untimely death. This writer's introduction to Lema came during the now-famed Orange County Open when Tony acquired the internationally - known "champagne" tag. A happy-go-lucky sort, Tony was the consternation of many pro golfers. They couldn't understand why he didn't get upset like the rest of them. Tony's attitude should be a lesson to all of us.

. . . On the other hand, there's Arnold Palmer, a popular golfer who has been known to blow up on several occasions. Fellow linksters are always twitting Arnie about the time he spends tinkering and tooling his clubs. "If he had to charge himself for the time he spends working on his clubs," once said Doug Sanders, "he'd go bankrupt." Aussie Peter Thomson put it more bluntly: "He's always beating on his bloomin' clubs . . . it drives a man bloody crazy."

. . . An area auto racing source reveals that Graham Hill, winner of the Indianapolis "500," was only the THIRD choice driver for owner John Mecom. No. 1 was John Surtees, who cracked up last September in Canada. No. 2 was Walt Hansgen, who was killed at Le Mans. Mecom reluctantly settled for Hill, the veddy British fellow who romped home with the whole ball of wax.

Boswell Puts Brakes on Orioles, 7-0

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Dave Boswell allowed only one hit—Russ Snyder's leadoff single in the seventh inning — as the Minnesota Twins crushed the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles, 7-0, Saturday.

Boswell, a 21-year-old native of Baltimore, walked the game's leadoff batter, Luis Aparicio, then retired 18 in a row before Snyder started the seventh by rapping a single to right field.

Boswell then struck out Frank Robinson for the third time, got Brooks Robinson on a grounder as Snyder moved to second and ended the inning by fanning Boog Powell.

Boswell struck out 11 in all and took over the league lead from Washington's Pete Richert with a total of 149.

The victory for the young right - hander was his sixth straight and gave him a 10-5 mark over-all.

Earl Battey, Boswell's battery mate, hit a three - run homer in the fifth, and Harmon Killebrew hit his 22nd homer in the seventh after Tony Oliva singled.

Reds Thump Astros, 5-1; 5th in Row

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds backed up Sammy Ellis' six-hit pitching with home runs by Vada Pinson and Deron Johnson to beat the Houston Astros, 5-1, Saturday and run their winning streak to five games.

Ellis' victory, his seventh against 14 losses, extended Houston's losing string to seven.

Pinson's homer, his ninth of the season, came off loser Mike Cuellar in the fourth inning with Tommy Harper aboard.

Singles by Pete Rose and Tommy Helms preceded Johnson's three-run homer off Claude Raymond in the eighth inning. The homer was Johnson's 13th of the season, tops for the Reds, and gave him 11 runs batted in during his last four games.

ONLY ORIOLE HIT 'CLEAN'—BOSWELL

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Dave Boswell, 21-year-old Minnesota pitcher who manager Sam Mele says is the best young righthander in the American League, had no complaints Saturday after narrowly missing a no-hitter against league-leading Baltimore.

"It was a clean hit," Boswell said of Russ Snyder's single in the seventh inning. "It was a sinking fast ball, and he hit it good.

"Actually, it took the pressure off," added Boswell, who was born and reared in Baltimore.

"He's a good hitter, so I have no complaints about that. I just smiled to myself and thought how much I wanted to get the shutout."

It was the only hit Boswell allowed as the Twins won, 7-0.

Snyder said the pitch was "about belt-high and I got good wood on it."

Mele said Boswell defied tradition by talking in the dugout about having a no-hitter going.

"He was kidding on the bench about it," said Mele. "He's the best young righthander in the American League. When guys like Brooks Robinson and Al Kaline tell you he's got great stuff, you know he's good."

It was Boswell's first one-hitter in the major leagues.

Boswell had a mild complaint about an umpire's decision in the eighth when Dave Johnson was awarded first for being hit on the left arm with a pitch.

A's Rookie Odom Pitches, Bats Way Past Tigers, 2-1

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Johnny "Blue Moon" Odom, recalled from Mobile in the Southern League earlier this week, pitched two-hit ball for eight innings and batted in both runs in leading the Kansas City Athletics to a 2-1 win over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

The 21-year-old right hander gave up only two hits until the top of the ninth when he walked Jake Wood and was relieved by Joe Grzenda. Both those hits were off the bat of Orlando MacFarlane.

Odom struck out six and walked only three in recording his first major league victory since playing briefly with the A's in 1964. He pitched a one-hitter against Baltimore in 1964.

Mets Are Winners for July

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets were assured of their first winning month in their five-year history Saturday night when Dennis Ribant scattered nine hits, pitching a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The victory was the 17th of the month for the Mets, against 15 defeats. They have just one game left this month. Dick Ellsworth suffered his 17th defeat for Cubs, giving up all six runs before being knocked out in the fifth.

The Mets picked up a pair of unearned runs in the first and second innings and finished Ellsworth with three runs in the fifth.

Braves Club S.F. Twice--6-5, 15-2

ATLANTA (AP)—Gene Oliver slammed three homers Saturday night, driving in seven runs and powering Atlanta to a 15-2 whipping of San Francisco, the Braves' third straight conquest of the Giants.

Atlanta also won the afternoon half of the day-night doubleheader, 6-5, in the 11th inning when Denis Menke singled home the winning run. The losses dropped the Giants into third place, 1½ games behind National League-leading Pittsburgh.

The twin bill turnout of 75,343 pushed Atlanta's attendance past the million mark to 1,031,526.

Oliver hit a pair of two-run homers off starter and loser Bob Priddy, and the reserve catcher slapped a single and a three-run blast off reliever Ray Sadecki.

Oliver, who now has six homers for the season, became the first Brave to hit three in one game since Hank Aaron did it in 1959.

Woody Woodward drove in four runs with three doubles and a single for Atlanta, which backed up Denny Lemaster's eight-hit pitching with a 20-hit attack.

Menke's winning single in the opener was off Lindy McDaniel, third Giant reliever in the 11th. The hit scored Rico Carty, who was walked by losing pitcher Frank Linzy.

Willie Mays' 24th homer of the year and the 529th of his career—a solo shot in the third—had given the Giants a 3-0 lead, and Ollie Brown drove in a run with a triple and scored on Hal Lanier's single in the sixth.

The Braves tied the score 3-3 in the fifth on Mack Jones' two-run homer and pulled into a 5-5 deadlock in the seventh on three singles and Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly.

The Braves wasted no time going to work on the Giants in the second game. They had already scored another run when Oliver hit his first homer and had four runs in the third and fourth innings when they had seven other hits in addition to Oliver's second homer.

Chisox Shut Out Yanks, 6-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Lefthander Gary Peters pitched a three-hitter Saturday for his third shutout and his Chicago White Sox teammates scored in two-run clusters to beat the New York Yankees, 6-0.

It was the 14th shutout by White Sox pitchers and the 10th time the Yankees have been blanked.

Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle each singled and Clete Boyer doubled off Peters as he worked his seventh complete game for his seventh win, but no Yankee baserunner reached third and Peters faced only 29 batters throwing 75 pitches.

He gave up no walks and struck out three.

Bosox Stop Nat Streak

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Smith drove in three runs with a homer and double and George Scott belted a three-run homer as the Boston Red Sox whipped Washington 8-2 Saturday behind the six-hit pitching of Jose Santiago.

The victory snapped Boston's losing string at three and ended a four-game winning streak for the Senators.

Santiago did not permit a Washington runner past second base until the ninth in posting his 10th victory against seven losses. The Senators ended his shutout bid in the ninth on three singles and an infield out.

Nitehawks Lock Up Title Via 4-1 Win Over Anaheim

The Long Beach Nitehawks clinched the Western Softball Congress championships Saturday night as they defeated Anaheim, 4-1, at Pearson Park.

Cleo Goyette's home run in the sixth inning with John Hartsell aboard broke up a pitching duel between Don Sarno and Jack Randall.

Anaheim scored its lone run in the seventh when Mark Bailey reached first when a third strike got away from the catcher. Bailey advanced to second on an infield out, went to third on a run-down play and scored before time could be called.

The Hawks added two more runs in the eighth when Hartsell and Nick Hopkins crossed the plate.

Long Beach pounded out 11 hits off Randall and reliefer John Haagsma who entered the game in the ninth. Bob Osborn, Roger Hull, Hartsell and Bob Wills each collected two hits.

Anaheim could manage but four hits off Sarno.

The win gives the Hawks a 22-7 league record with one game to play Friday against Pomona at Park Ave. Field.

Casey's in Clover . . . and Silk Shorts, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — There stood Casey in a pair of white silk underpants decorated with the Mets' skyscraper emblem and the embroidered words, "Go, Go Mets."

"One of my birthday gifts," beamed Casey Stengel, a sprightly 76.

"How'd I look in the banner parade at Shea Stadium?"

It's back to the big city and one more brief baseball fling for the colorful, crease-faced character who won 10 pennants in 12 years as manager of the Yankees and then moved over to become a symbol of the game's losingest club.

He had to put on a Yankee uniform as manager of the American League Old-Timers in the exhibition preceding the Mets-Chicago Cubs game Saturday night—a show commemorating Casey's first year as All-Star manager in 1950—but closest to him was the Mets' symbol.

Casey left no doubt that the Mets also were closest to his affection despite his great success with the rich Yankees.

"Our club is moving now," he commented, referring to the Mets. "We had to start out with a bunch of old players, men who had made their mark with other clubs. Now we've got young men who are making a name for themselves as Mets.

"And the people love them — young people, old people, all kinds of people."

And the Yankees—why has their popularity faded?

"They fire their manager as soon as he wins a pennant," Stengel said. He himself was eased out of the Yankee organization and he was followed by Yogi Berra, fired after winning the American League pennant.

Casey, inducted earlier last week into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., observed a quiet birthday with his wife, Edna, in their penthouse suite overlooking Central Park.

"I tell people who come up here that this is my plantation," Stengel said, looking out over the mid-Manhattan park. "I tell them all those people down there work for me."

Among his gifts, Casey was proudest of his fancy shorts, made up by the man who designs the scanty costumes for the Playboy Bunnies, and a special baseball bat inscribed with the towns and dates of Casey's career, starting with Kankakee, Ill., in 1910.

"At Kankakee, we used to ride street cars between towns," he recalled.

Telegrams and messages flowed into the apartment. Flowers were delivered. The phone rang almost constantly.

Stengel reinjured his hip at the All-Star game in St. Louis because of a pair of new shoes but he can still manage to walk without a cane.

"After the game, a radio man came up to me and stuck a microphone under my nose," Casey said, "I thought he was going to ask me about the game and that 108-degree temperature which had people dying.

"He said, 'Casey, what do you think of tight money?'

"I've got three banks—two in Glendale and one in North Hollywood — but I didn't want to get my nose into the financial stuff, so I said: 'Son, it seems to be they're putting a lot of copper in our quarters these days. My suggestion is—buy copper.'"

UNSCRUPULOUS SKULKER OF SCRIMMAGE DENIES 'HUT-HUT'

Bill George Figures He at Least Has Ram Job

"It's a job and I'm just tickled to death I've got one. Everybody loses a step every year they play, but with what I know about defense I feel that I can contribute."
—Bill George of the Rams.

What's that? Bill George of the RAMS!

Not the notorious Bill George, the meanest midway monster of them all, that unscrupulous skulker of scrimmage, the heinous heathen of "hut-hut."

"That was a very odd thing," says George, indeed now a member of the Rams who can recall with pure objectivity but no little amusement his role in their bumblingest hour.

It was six years ago on the turf at Wrigley Field in Chicago. Bob Waterfield was then the Rams' coach, but that day it could have been the Marx Brothers.

Remarkably, they lost by only 34-27, but mention "hut-hut" to anybody involved and it seems much worse.

"The Rams were going on the first sound after they came out of the huddle," says George, then the Bears' middle linebacker, "and they weren't spending too much time in the huddle.

"Now, all our defenses were predicated on our getting in a huddle and going through the whole list of our defenses, and everybody hearing it. Well, the Rams were putting pressure on us coming in and out of their huddle so quick and going so quick on the line of scrimmage that we hardly had time to get in and out of our huddle.

"But, on the other hand, all our defenses were so set up that we could call any defense we had while standing on the line of scrimmage, and this is what happened.

"Now, they're going on the first sound and meantime I'm calling the defenses and they're going on MY sound, rather than on their quarterback's sound."

THE RAMS' quarterback was Bill Wade, who coincidentally, was to join the Bears two years later. His signal for the snap of the ball was a sharp "hut." The Rams, thrown into hopeless confusion, accused George of mimicking Wade's "hut-hut," effectively jamming their signals.

"It was nothing like a 'hut-hut,'" George says innocently. "One of our alerts I recall vividly was, 'Backs set.'

RICH ROBERTS

In other words, the backs come right out of the huddle and set down immediately, implying a quick count, and this is what we were trying to alert everybody for.

"I don't know how they interpreted it as 'hut-hut.' You could have said 'snake' and they would have gone.

"But the odd part was that, as many penalties as they got in that game, they never changed their cadence. They continued to go on the first sound. We were pretty successful with what we were doing, so we stayed with it."

Actually, George insists that defensive tackle Fred Williams was calling the defense for the Bears some of the time, "but I was the one who got all the blame for it."

The subject came up later when Wade joined the Bears.

"Yeah, he was bitter," George says, "but I said, 'Bill, if you were so bitter, why didn't you change your cadence? Why didn't you go on the third or fourth sound?' We couldn't change their game plan, but their game plan affected ours. Of course, we didn't have to adjust. They were the ones that should have adjusted."

YOU GET THE FEELING that George's departure from the Bears and owner-coach George Halas after 14 seasons puts no strain on the emotions.

"There's no question that I'll have a better shot here," he says. "If I hadn't come to the Rams I wouldn't have played this year. I would have quit.

"I wanted to play, but I wanted to play for a guy like George Allen. Personal reasons, mainly. I've known George for a number of years. I trust him. I have faith in him."

With the Bears, Bill says, "Coach Allen handled the entire defense. About the only thing coach Halas had to do with the defense was to come in occasionally to see if everything was running smoothly. Or if we lost, then we'd all catch hell."

"Of course, Clark Shaughnessy was originally the one who installed all the Bear defenses . . . the first man to start an all-out red dog, putting pressure on the quarterback, and oddly enough he's got the least amount of credit for it. This is before Allen came to the Bears and, in fact, a little bit of coach Shaughnessy's work is reflected in coach Allen, too."

At 35, George admits that "there's no doubt that I'm not quite as fast as I was, but speed is a great fallacy. It's great to have speed, but to have speed and not know what to do is utterly useless."

Nor does the pain and the pounding deter Bill's enthusiasm.

"I think I've had enough the past 14 years to hold me a while," he sighs, "but it never was easy to take. I never found it easy anywhere along the line to take a whack in the head."

WHEN HE DOES TIRE of whacks in the head, though, George has more comfortable ways of growing old.

"I have a selling job, and (Mike) Ditka, (Joe) Marconi and I have a miniature golf and driving range in Chicago. We have an ultra, ultra modern type of facility. I know it's cost us enough money, so it should be modern. It's doing very well.

"I also sell castings and gears. All I know about it is the castings are very hard and they're very expensive. I'm learning the business, actually. My name helps, of course, especially in a town like Chicago where they're so very much in back of the Bears."

However, George is no longer a Bear, and appears quite willing to accept it.

"That's all in the past," he says. "I'm with the Rams now. Maybe we can catch the Bears going on a quick count. And that's okay with me."

Keller, Coble Hurl Flyers to 19th District Legion Title

By GARY RAUSCH

Phil Keller and Mike Coble, a couple of all-round players, nearly did it all Saturday in pacing back-against-the-wall Flyers to the American Legion 19th District championship at Blair Field.

Keller hurled a four-hit, 1-0 shutout of Torrance in the vital first game and Coble stopped the Blues on six safeties in the nightcap, 3-2.

But their pitching was only half the story. Sharing the center field position and batting in the fifth and sixth spots, the ex-Wilson High duo scored all the Flyer runs and chipped in three singles and a double.

* * * *

THE VICTORIES hurl the Harbor League champions into Area playoffs against 23rd District titlist Magellan C. Mars at Blair Wednesday night (7:30).

Keller was in charge all the way in the opener. He struck out six, walked one and faced but 32 men, five over the minimum.

He had only two brief flings with danger. In the sixth he sandwiched two outs around an infield single then drilled opposing pitcher Bart Johnson on the first pitch. But Irl Davis tapped out meekly to end the threat.

* * * *

PINCH RUNNER Doug Jarvis replaced the singling Dan Graham to open the ninth. Johnson sacrificed Jarvis to second. With a 1-2 count on Davis, Jarvis took off for third but was gunned down by catcher Rob Sagehorn and Davis fanned on the next pitch.

The Flyers scored in the fourth. With one away, Coble, who had fanned with the bases loaded in the first, doubled inside the third base bag. A passed ball got him to third and stocky Larry DuRee plated him with a line shot through the hole at short.

Keller got the Flyers going in the second game, singling to left with one down in the second. Coble followed with a high chopper which Graham threw away, allowing Keller to score.

It was Keller starting things again in the fourth, walking and stealing second. Coble walked on four pitches and DuRee singled infield to load the bases. Davis plunked Pat Hopkins to force home Keller and Sagehorn rifled a long sacrifice fly to right, scoring Coble.

Coble, who hurled nine strong innings in Wednesday's 2-1 win over El Segundo, tired in the seventh and needed 43 pitches to get through the last three frames.

* * * *

TORRANCE loaded the bases on two singles and an infield error to begin the ninth. Coble blew over Davis on strikes but a force out at second ended the shutout.

Then Sagehorn's passed ball gave Torrance its second tally and Flyers coach Jack Graham "a near heart attack." Two pitches later Jarvis had walked and Gary Nesenson had been hit by a Coble fastball — loading the bases again.

Slick-fielding Bob Grich ended the rally, fielding a hot grounder and forcing Jarvis at third.

MILLER WINS 'EM BOTH

Salta Sweeps by La Mesa

Joe Miller, a standout all season, and Doug Stodgel, playing in only his second game, sparked Salta Pontiac's 3-1 and 9-3 doubleheader sweep of La Mesa Saturday in California Collegiate Baseball League action at Long Beach City College.

Miller threw only 102 pitches in notching his 10th win of the year, so he calmly went out and threw 50 more in five innings of the nightcap to rack up No. 11 and the league-leader's 19th against two losses.

Stodgel just joined the team last week but it didn't take him long to get warmed up. For the day, the second baseman went 5-for-5 with two runs batted in and another scored.

The CCBL's leading hitter, Rod Gasper, upper his .446 average with four singles, a double two runs scored, two RBI and a stolen base.

Barney Scholl put Salta ahead for keeps in the opener, singling to lead off the sixth, going to second on Mike Floyd's sacrifice, stealing third and romping home on an overthrow into left field.

Miller went out with a healthy lead in the second game thanks to a wild seven-run third. Successive singles by Gaspar (bunt), John McKee, Walt Weller, Floyd (bunt) and Rod O'Brien plus a wild pitch and passed ball netted four runs.

A walk to Dennis Parks, Stodgel's single, an error and Gaspar's second safety of the frame pumped home the final three runs.

GIRL'S AAU TITLE IN DOUBT

MILLBRAE, Calif. (AP) — Teen-ager Denise Paschal of San Francisco outpointed defending women's pentathlon champion Pat Winslow Saturday at the Women's National AAU Pentathlon meet in Millbrae but may be denied her title on a technicality.

Miss Paschal, 17, arrived at the meet more than an hour late because she was detained in a traffic accident. AAU referee Frank Geis ruled she could backtrack to compete in two events she had missed, the 80-meter hurdles and shot put.

His action was contested by the Millbrae Lions, Mrs. Winslow's track club, when it was announced that the San Francisco girl had 4,343 points to 4,256 for Mrs. Winslow.

The meet results have been referred to the National AAU for examination by a court of appeal.

Miss Paschall ran the hurdles in 11.6; put the shot 34-6¼, high jumped 5-2¼, long jumped 18-8 and ran the 200-meter dash in 26.5.

Mrs. Winslow, six times women's pentathlon champion, ran the hurdles in 12.3; had a 40-8½ shot put; high jumped 5-1¼, long jumped 16-10 and ran the 200 meters in 25.9.

Cherrie Sherrard of Oakland placed third in the competition with a point total of 4,229. Janet Svendsen of Millbrae came in fourth with 3,803. There were 12 contestants.

Rams Toil but Fans Get Stiff Necks

By AL LARSON

Would you believe tennis football?

More than 3,000 fans came away with stiff necks after watching two football games at Chapman College Saturday.

Continuous action was coach George Allen's modus operandi. He divided the Rams into two offensive and two defensive units, lined them up back-to-back on the opposing 40-yard lines and treated the overflow crowd to two games in one.

Quarterbacks Bill Munson and Roman Gabriel alternated with the offensive units. Munson led four scoring drives while Gabriel was at the helm for two others.

* * * *

MUNSON, WHO fired three touchdown passes, didn't waste time finding a crack in the second unit's defensive armor. He connected on a 40-yard pass to rookie fullback Henry Dyer of Grambling on his second play from scrimmage.

Dyer showed some swift when he raced 20 yards moments later for his second td.

Munson also completed a 14-yarder to tight end Marlin McKeever and a 32-yarder to halfback Jim Stiger for scores.

Gabriel than caught fire and tossed touchdown passes to Stiger (17 yards) and Tommy McDonald (13 yards).

During the 94-play scrimmage, Munson completed 15 passes in 31 attempts for 153 yards. Gabriel was on target 17 of 31 times for 125 yards. Munson had one intercepted.

Rookie halfback Mike Dennis of Mississippi was the day's leading rusher. He gained 47 yards on eight carries. Dyer and Ben Wilson each netted 32 yards.

McDonald, who finished second among NFL receivers last year, led the Ram pass catchers with seven, good for 58 yards and one score.

Allen said he was pleased with the unique scrimmage both from a fan's point of view and because no player was sitting idle.

"I was especially pleased with the running of rookie backs Mike Dennis and Henry Dyer," Allen said. "Dennis continues to show improvement every day while Dyer has a world of ability.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT our linebackers looked pretty good. We had a lot of good hitting. I was disappointed in one phase. I think our receivers dropped too many again."

Allen did single out tight end Billy Truax, who caught five passes. "He continues to impress me. He's one of those 110% players I'm always looking for."

Myron Pottios, newly acquired linebacker from Pittsburgh, and rookie defensive back Darrell Hoover of Arizona State led all tackles with six. End David Jones was credited with five.

Following the scrimmage, Bruce Gossett staged a field-goal kicking exhibition. Gossett made a 53-yard attempt, two-out-of-three from the 50 and hit all three tries from the 40.

Sikes also had a four-under-par 68 after taking a bogey 6 on the final hole when he wandered into the trees and three-putted.

Casper coupled 35-33 for his 68 over the 36-36—72 course. It is such a new layout that winter rules, improving the lie on the fairway, are being enforced.

The conditions were not too conducive for great shotmaking and there was a dropout of 14 players, the most for a PGA sponsored event this year.

Casper said that the greens were so hard that it was difficult to try to read them.

"It is a shame that no water has been put on these greens," he said.

* * * *

BILLY DROPPED an eight-foot putt on the 16th, a 25-footer on the 17th and canned his eagle by placing a No. 4 wood shot 17 feet from the hole and ramming in his putt on the 18th.

Sikes had a pair of 34s for his 68. He and Casper shared the lead with 207 while Chi Chi Rodriguez followed with a 73 for 211.

Defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia and three other pros were disqualified in the big dropout.

Crampton, who was among the top runners with a two-under-par 142; Bob Charles of New Zealand, Homero Blancas and Harold Kneece were ousted for failure to comply with the new PGA continuous putting rule.

The regulation was put into the books to help speed play and was in use in the U.S. Open, the Western Open and the National PGA. Simply, it requires a player to putt out, regardless of his distance from the hole.

Left-hander Charles was challenging for the lead with a 71-69—140 and Kneece was 146. Blancas was far off the pace with 160.

* * * *

"I JUST forgot completely about the rule," said Crampton.

Tournament supervisor Jack Tuthill put the blame strictly on the players.

"It is their responsibility to become familiar with the rules under which they play each week," he said.

The 14th player to leave was Dave Marr, the 1965 PGA champion who was ejected after he failed to sign his score card. Marr had a 225 for the three rounds, leaving him an also-ran in the field.

15,905 See Ronda Take AHRA Title

Gas Ronda of Covina, driving a factory powered Ford Mustang defeated Hayden Profitt of Garden Grove in a Corvair powered by a 396 hp Chevrolet engine for the title of top fuel stock eliminator Saturday night to highlight the opening days activities in the American Hot Rod Assn. nationals at Lions Drag Strip.

The biggest crowd in the strip's 12-year history, 15,905, caused a big traffic jam not only leading to the strip, but on it as well, with a record total of 723 cars running off during the program.

In the final run, Ronda blasted to a 9.25 et in the quarter-mile at a speed of 156.79 mph to overcome a two-car length advantage and to gain the victor's prize of $1,500. Proffitt lost at 9.38 and 148.51.

In winning this year's championship, Ronda repeated his victory of a year ago when he won the same title at Lions.

Racing continues all day today and next weekend when the big fuelers take over.

Pearson's Home Run Leads Chiefs, 1-0

ANGELS CLOSE IN ON 2ND PLACE

fore his 27th start and following his fifth complete game.

"Pitching is enough to drive you daffy," said Dean early Saturday afternoon. "You have to worry (1) if they'll score some runs for you, (2) if they'll catch the balls and (3) what you're going to throw the batter."

The third of the furrows on Chance's young brow has been a sore spot with the Angel catchers.

"I wish just once he'd let us call a complete game for him," said Rodgers. "He shakes us off more than Belinsky did. And Bo was pretty dumb when it came to knowing hitters."

It was ironic that third baseman Satriano struck the blow which made Chance a winner, for last Sunday in New York Chance blamed catcher Satriano for calling the pitch which helped make him a loser.

It is an involved story leading up to Tommy Tresh's homer, but Satriano, with common-sense says,

"If he didn't want to throw that pitch all he had to do was shake me off again."

This time Chance decided to shakeup the Indians. Receiving a psychological as well as physical lift from the mound and following Rodgers' strategy, he was in trouble only twice.

The first time, Ed Kirkpatrick, transplanted from right to left in lieu of Rich Reichardt's departure, misjudged Max Alvis' fly and Vic Davallillo, who had singled and stolen second, scored the initial run in the sixth.

The second time, with runners on first and third in the eighth, he fanned Rocky Colavito for his 10th whiff of the game, equalling his previous high this season.

Norm Siebern's single was the only hit off Bell until the sixth when consecutive singles by Jay Johnstone — his first in the majors — Jim Fregosi and Siebern squared the score.

Chance revealed that he pitched the entire game with a stomach ache. His teammates are beginning to complain aloud about the stomach ache they get from Chance's alibis.

ANGEL ANGLES: The firing of a scout is not exceptionally newsworthy. . . . In the release of Tufis Hashem, however, the Angels' hierarchy has acted ruthlessly and in a manner which should be noted publicly. . . . Hashem was the Angels' chief link to the vast talent lands south of the border. . . . His first discovery was Bo Belinsky and his latest was Minnie Rojas. . . . Hashem brought Rojas to Fred Haney's attention last winter and kept a fire under the negotiations which were handled by assistant GM Marvin Milkes. . . . When it was noted in print that Hashem had discovered Rojas, Milkes' jealously was aroused and the pair became embroiled in a press room argument recently which evolved into a shoving match. . . . A few days later Hashem was quietly fired. . . . Both Milkes and Hashem are exceptionally competent people, having spent their entire lives in baseball. . . . Neither displayed their wisdom in the press room argument. . . . However, the Angels' discretion in firing Hashem was even worse. . . . As a man and as a scout he is irreplaceable. . . . But he won't be out of work long. . . . Buzzie Bavasi will announce shortly that Tufie Hashem is scouting for the Dodgers.

Fred Newman (1-4) faces Steve Hargan (5-6) in this afternoon's series finale . . . New York opens four-game series Monday night . . . George Brunet was honored as Alpha Beta's Angel of the month. . . . Rich Reichardt departed on a 6 p.m. plane for his Stevens Point, Wisconsin home. . . . He is expected to enter Mayo Brothers clinic next week. . . . Cleveland has brought its fine young catcher, Duke Sims, off the disabled list. . . . He will be sent to Portland and then recalled when injured Jimmie Hall goes on the disabled list. . . . Sims was so excited when purchased by Cleveland that he lost his suitcase. . . . Diamond Jim's mis-placed valuables include two pair of alligator shoes, two alpaca sweaters and two cashmere shirts.

Jay Johnstone admitted that he was "awfully nervous" prior to his major league debut . . . "Of course, said Jay, "I was awfully nervous last night, too, after getting word I was joining the Angels." . . . In his Seattle adieu, Jay lashed a triple and single and departed with a .338 average. . . . He prefers center field, but will be permanently stationed in right. . . . Jay was signed by the Angels out of Edgewood High in Covina in June of 1963.

U.S. Girls Win Curtis Golf From British

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — The United States Curtis Cup team weathered a gathering British storm in the afternoon singles matches Saturday and won the international women's golfing trophy for a fourth straight time by a final score of 13-5.

Continued fine play by Barbara Fay Boddie, Phyllis (Tish) Preuss and Carol Sorenson Flenniken, who had a hand in nine of the points scored in the two-day matches, helped the Americans coast to victory after they entered Saturday play with a 7-2 advantage.

* * * *

IT BECAME 9-3 after the United States won two of the three Saturday morning Scotch foursomes. But in the afternoon, the British women finally found the answer to the woods and waters of the Cascades' closing holes and made a fight of it.

The Americans, however, won three of the six singles — the victories belonging to Mrs. Boddie, Miss Preuss and Mrs. Flenniken — and halved two while losing only one.

The clinching half-point came when Anne Quast Welts claimed a half in the No. 2 singles with Mrs. I. C. Robertson, who had rallied from three down by capturing the 15th, 16th and 18th holes.

Mrs. Flenniken had the day's best medal showing in a 2 and 1 victory over Ita Burke in the final singles.

Miss Preuss was 2-over in a 3 and 2 victory over Elizabeth Chadwick and Mrs. Boddie six over while disposing of Susan Armitage, 3 and 2.

* * * *

MRS. MICHAEL Bonallack accounted for the British singles triumph, clipping American women's champion Jean Asheley, 2 and 1.

The other halved match was between Pamela Tredinnick of Britain and Nancy Roth Syns.

For the first time since mid-June, a steady rain fell on the mountainous Cascades, but it didn't slow the American charge toward a fourth consecutive cup triumph.

Kathy Wins Supertest by 3 Shots

LONDON, Ont. (UPI)— Texan Kathy Whitworth won the $15,000 Supertest Ladies Open golf tournament Saturday by shooting a par 72 for a 54-hole total of 213, three strokes better than the runner-up Mickey Wright.

The victory was worth $2,250 to Miss Whitworth and increased her earnings this season to $18,652. She was the leading money winner on the LPGA tour with $28,658 last year and is threatening to better that total this season.

South Carolina Awaits Title Ruling

Commissioner Jim Weaver said he and the Atlantic Coast Conference executive committee will decide Monday whether Clemson and North Carolina State should be declared football co-champions for 1965.

Weaver ordered South Carolina to surrender its title for giving illegal financial assistance to two varsity players.

South Carolina, which had been the co-holder with Duke of the championship on 4-2 league records, goes to the bottom of the list at 0-6. North Carolina State and Clemson now advance to the top with 5-2 marks if they are given a win instead of a loss. Duke, which beat South Carolina, would remain at 4-2 but fall to third.

Packers 15-Point Picks to Whip All-Stars Friday

CHICAGO (AP)—The champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, pegged 15-point favorites, meet the last pack of big gold prospectors from the college ranks in the 33rd annual All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The Packers themselves have a heavy investment among the opposing 47 pro football-bound lads, who profited handsomely in the battle of dollars now apparently ended with the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The fast and brawny All-Star array, seeking the first collegiate victory over the NFL champs since the Packers were upended 20-17 in 1963, includes two explosive Packer rookies, Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. They reportedly cost Green Bay $575,000 and $325,000, respectively, to sign.

* * * *

PERFORMING against the Packers also will be such well-heeled rookies as linebacker Frank Emmanuel of Tennessee ($350,000 from the Miami Dolphins) and halfback Mike Garrett of Southern California ($325,000 from the Kansas City Chiefs).

Despite the liberal wealth of the collegiate squad, new All-Star head coach John Sauer regards this as one of the most cooperative, hardest-working units assembled for the mid-summer classic.

One observer at the Northwestern University campus, where the All-Stars have been drilling since July 14, commented:

"These boys came to play and if they lose it won't be from lack of effort."

Sauer moved up from an assistant post to the top All-Star job when Otto Graham, after directing the collegians eight years, became head coach of the Washington Redskins.

Friday night's game, which finds the NFL champs holding a 21-9-2 edge in the series, will be telecast nationally.

The contest, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will pack about 65,000 in arc-lighted Soldier Field where last year the Cleveland Browns held off the rallying All-Stars for a 24-16 victory.

The All-Stars showed some rough spots in bowing to the Chicago Bears, 34-20, in a game-type scrimmage Thursday at the Bears' St. Joseph College camp at Rensselaer, Ind.

* * * *

BUT THE tune-up also indicated the All-Stars may have the best running attack in several years, hubbed around big but fast ball carriers.

The quarterback assignment, probably uncertain until kickoff time, will go to one of a trio including Steve Sloan of Alabama, Bill Anderson of Tulsa and Gary Lane of Missouri.

Graebner, Roche in Net Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, and Tony Roche of Australia gained the final round Saturday in the men's singles of the Eastern Grass Court tennis championships.

Graebner, seeded No. 5, upset top-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, 11-9, while Roche, seeded No. 2, beat his touring teammate, fourth-seeded Owen Davidson, 4-6, 12-10, 6-2, 7-5.

Graebner, winner of the Pennsylvania grass court crown last week, was bothered by Richey only in the final set. The Ohio star practically had his own way on the courts during the first two sets.

Richey showed spurts of brilliance, but he could not overcome Graebner's repeated use of half volleys which would catch the Texan out of position.

In the other semi-final match—in progress at the same time on the adjoining court—both Roche and Davidson played superb tennis.

* * * *

UNSEEDED Rosemary Casals of San Francisco registered her third straight upset when she defeated fifth-seeded Karen Krantzcke of Australia, 6-2, 6-4, to reach the finals of the women's singles.

Miss Casal previously beat top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, the 1966 Wimbledon champion.

Donna Fale of New York gained the other finals berth by surprising sixth-seeded Carol Hanks Aucamp of St. Louis, 6-3, 6-2.

PRO GRID FRONT

Giant Drill Highlighted by Gogolak

Cleveland Browns' offensive unit scored the first three times it had the ball in the final scrimmage with the defense at their Hiram College training camp Saturday.

Rookie fullback Charley Harraway scored once on a 20-yard run. Frank Ryan tossed a two-yard scoring pass to Leroy Kelly, and Jim Ninowski hit Walter Roberts with a 15-yard scoring pass. Rookie quarterback Archie Roberts saw action briefly and moved the offense to three first downs before Ryan took over.

Pete Gogolak did the kicking for both sides as the New York Giants' offense team defeated the defensive squad, 7-6, in a 90-minute controlled scrimmage that lured 12,000 spectators to Fairfield University training camp in Connecticut.

Gogolak kicked a pair of field goals for the defense early in the game and then came back to add the extra point for the offense late in the fray when they scored on a 70-yard march directed by quarterback Bob Timberlake.

Timberlake, whose play drew praise from coach Allie Sherman, connected on a 23-yard pass to Freeman White and for 24 yards to Bob Lacey in the drive. Steve Thurlow blasted over from the three for the score. Gogolak's field goals were 45 and 49 yards.

Joe Namath and Mike Taliaferro each threw two touchdowns in the New Jets' first full-scale training camp scrimmage at Peekskill, N.Y.

Namath connected on 11 of 17 passes for 202 yards. He threw a 64-yard bomb to veteran flanker Don Maynard for one td and hit tight end Dee Mackey on a four-yard scoring toss. Taliaferro's passes to Pete Lammons and Baker Turney covered 20 and 50 yards.

Two former Philadelphia Eagles — Ralph Heck and Bob Richards — have been named co-captains of the Atlanta Falcons for their Monday night pre-season game against the Eagles.

Cookie Gilchrist arrived in Denver five days late and managed to save himself an additional $100 fine by a scant 36 minutes. The Denver Bronco fullback has been fined $500.

The Chicago Bears' "fat men's club" which numbers 10 overweight players, was denied a Sunday respite while owner-coach George Hales gave the rest of his players the day off.

The fat 10 must stay in camp for a sweating out today under the supervision of Hales. The overweight players were not named, but Halas stressed that the $50-per-day fine for extra poundage will be upped to $200 per day Monday.

Top Cleveland Question: Who Will Replace Jim Brown?

By AL LARSON

The burning question in professional football today is "Who will replace Jim Brown in the Cleveland Browns' backfield?"

Coach Blanton Collier who ultimately must decide the issue is very forthright when he answers the question. "No one will really replace Jim Brown because players such as Jim just don't come along every day. He was the greatest runner in the history of the game and his records will stand for a long time.

"However, I do expect men on our roster now to make places for themselves. I am confident that we will come up with an effective running attack to go along with Frank Ryan's passing."

Collier also pointed out that in the Browns' running system, he prefers to refer to his two ball carriers as running backs as distinguished from most clubs who designate one ball carrier as the halfback and the other as the fullback.

* * * *

AS A MATTER of record, Cleveland's bread-and-butter running plays for the past three seasons have been their No. 18 and 19 end sweeps in which speed is more important than power running.

Cleveland's ball carrying hopes for 1966 are placed in Ernie Green, Leroy Kelly and Charley Scales of last year's team, plus rookies Charley Harraway, Gary Lane and Randy Schultz. Anticipating Brown's retirement in 1967, the Browns selected these three newcomers in the past two drafts. They appear to be exceptionally talented running prospects.

Green, who has shared the Browns' running duties with Brown the past three seasons, has a lifetime ball carrying average of 4.7 yards per carry, a respectable mark in the NFL. Collier is hopeful that Green, given the opportunity to be the bell - wether of the Cleveland running attack, will respond to the challenge.

Kelly, starting his third season with the Browns, will be handed the first crack at Brown's position. He and Walt Roberts have teamed up to give the defending Eastern Division champions one of the most exciting punt and kickoff return duos in the NFL. He was the league punt return leader in 1965 with 17 runbacks for 265 yards and an average of 15.6.

Harraway is a 6-2, 230-pound fullback from San Jose State who was the Browns' 18th draft choice last year. He scored 14 touchdowns last fall to tie Heisman Award winner Mike Garrett of USC for West Coast scoring laurels. Big and strong, he appears to have the necessary speed and power.

Lane, drafted as a "red shirt" in 1964, has requested to be used as a runner even though he was a quarterback at Missouri where he led his team to the Big Eight title and a victory over Florida in the 1966 Sugar Bowl affair.

* * * *

IN THE MISSOURI system, Lane ran as often as he passed and he compiled a 5.4-yard rushing average. Currently he is with the College All-Stars prepping for Friday night's meeting with Green Bay.

Lane, along with the Rams' two All-Star players, Bill Guy Anderson and Tom Mack, will fly to Los Angeles Saturday morning. All three will suit up for Saturday night's Coliseum battle between the Rams and Browns.

Schultz, 5-10 and tipping the scales at 210, comes from Iowa State Teachers College where he set school and conference records in just about every rushing department. He has been the Little all-America fullback for the past two years.

HE'S IRREPLACEABLE

When Jim Brown gave up football for films recently, he left Cleveland Browns with a unique problem this season: Who's going to play fullback?

Area Youngsters Skate to Third

Curt Craton of Artesia and Karen Chute of Orange recently won a third place finish in the California state and Southwest Pacific Region roller skating championships in Bakersfield.

The pair are thus eligible for the nationals to be held in Fort Worth, Texas, this week. Curt is an 11-year-old student at the SoCal Military Academy in Long Beach.

FOOTBALL ALREADY!!!

Falcons, Eagles Kick Off Pros' Practice Games

United Press International

The spanking new Atlanta Falcons undergo their baptism of fire in the professional football ranks Monday when they join the Philadelphia Eagles in kicking off the first week of the exhibition season which features the annual College All-Star Game.

Atlanta, the 15th and latest franchise in the National Football League, hosts the Eagles at its new stadium while the American League begins interquad play the following night at Houston where the Oilers meet the Oakland Raiders.

The big event of the week occurs Friday night when the College All-Stars oppose the NFL champions, the Green Bay Packers, in the 33rd annual Chicago Tribune Charities Game at Chicago's Soldiers' Field.

The other NFL action pits neighboring rivals Baltimore and Washington at the Redskins' D.C. Stadium Wednesday night. On Saturday, St. Louis hosts Atlanta, Chicago plays Philadelphia at Memphis, Tenn., Minnesota meets Detroit at New Orleans, New York takes on Pittsburgh at Ithaca, N.Y., and the Rams entertain Cleveland.

THE REMAINDER of the week's AFL schedule is comprised of two games Saturday night, with Denver hosting Kansas City and Miami taking its professional bow against San Diego.

Dennis Claridge, the former Nebraska star plucked from Green Bay in the expansion pool, will open at quarterback for the Falcons, whose two outstanding rookie signal-callers are unavailable. Randy Johnson of Texas A&I, the most valuable player in the Coaches' All-American Game, is sidelined with a cracked rib while Steve Sloan of Alabama is practicing for the All-Star game.

Tommy Nobis, the Texas linebacker who was showered with money to sign with Atlanta, also is in the All-Star camp and will not see action Monday. Philadelphia will present two new faces on defense in Aaron Martin at halfback and Arnold Wells at linebacker, replacing the departed Irv Cross and Maxie Baughan, respectively.

Johnny Unitas, the perennial all-pro quarterback, will receive his first game test since undergoing knee surgery last December as the Colts strive to extend their pre-season win streak to eight. Otto Graham makes his pro coaching debut with Washington, which hasn't defeated Baltimore in this annual meeting since 1958.

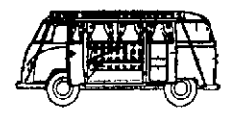

Fullback Jim Grabowski and halfback Donny Anderson, who set the Packers back more than $1 million for their services, will attempt to render Green Bay's pride as flat as its pocketbook when they open for the All-Star against the Packers, who are making their sixth appearance in the charity game. They have won three times and lost twice in previous games.

Two of the AFL's four new coaches, John Rauch of Oakland and Wally Lemm of Houston, will meet in the first AFL game.

Spartans Win Big

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — The touring San Jose, Calif., State College basketball team easily defeated Auckland 92-45 Saturday night. San Jose led 40-23 at halftime.

'Big Daddy' Leads Race Invasion

By DAVE DANIEL

When talk turns to drag racing, drag racing turns to Don Garlits.

Garlits, known as "Big Daddy" by drag race fans everywhere, heads the list of Eastern invaders in Saturday and Sunday's American Hot Rod Assn.'s national championships at Lions Drag Strip.

It's easy to see why Garlits has won fame and the hearts of fans across the nation. A pioneer in drag racing, he designs, builds and drives the sleek rail jobs which have made him the biggest name in the sport.

The 33-year-old veteran, now in his 11th year as a professional, was the first to break the speed barriers considered by some to be unobtainable. He first cracked the 170 mph mark, the 180 mph mark and on July 12, 1964, became the first to reach the vaunted 200 mph plateau. His goal now is the 220 mph hurdle and he has already pushed his "Wynn's Charger" dragster A fueler to 219.

Garlits, a native of Birmingham, Mich., has won just about every major drag racing title there is, including championships in the AHRA and the rival National Hot Rod Assn.

He also holds the British land speed record of 197 mph which he recorded in 1964 at the British Drag Festival when he lead a team of U.S. dragsters on tour.

An owner of two cars, the Wynn's Charger and the Garlits Chassis Special, Garlits put on one of the most fantastic performances recorded at the 1965 U.S. Fuel and Gas Championships in Bakersfield.

He routed all competition on the first day in the 'Charger, then switched cars and in the Special, swept the field again.

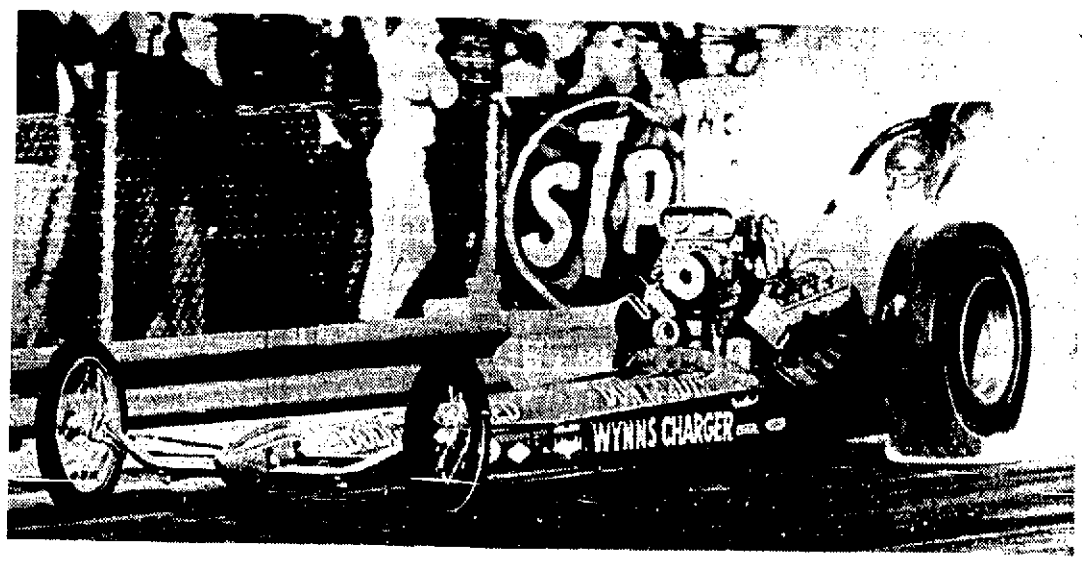

By virtue of the two victories, he had the distinction of racing himself for the top fuel eliminator title. Marvin Schwartz piloted the Special for Garlits, but Big Daddy put his own machine on the trailer with a 205 mph blast in the 'Charger.

The rail job is powered by Dodge—a 426-hemi engine set close to the rear axle and inclined downward at a seven-degree angle for the lowest possible center of gravity.

With a 175-inch wheelbase, Garlits feels that it "should help us gain lower elapsed times and higher speeds. The machine is certainly easier to handle."

Garlits will put his national title on the line against such comers as Long Beach's Tom McEwen, president of the United Drag Racers Assn.

McEwen and Garlits have met six times in their careers and have split the decisions, each with three wins.

BIG DADDY SET FOR LIONS

Don Garlits, known as "Big Daddy" in drag racing circles, will be at Lions Drag Strip this weekend to defend his American Hot Rod Assn. national championship. Garlits was the first driver ever to break the 200 mph barrier.

BEATS FOUL CLAIM

Tronado Takes Arlington

Combined News Services

Tronado survived a foul claim and won the $54,000 Arlington Handicap before 27,559 at Arlington Park Saturday.

Hadevar, the 6-5 favorite, finished second, a length behind the 6-year-old Argentine horse in the one-mile race run in a comparatively slow 1:35 4-5.

Walter Blum, who rode Hedevar, contended Tronado had carried Hedevar wide on the stretch turn. After a 20-minute delay, the stewards let the original finish stand.

In his last race at Arlington Park, Hedevar had won the Equipoise mile June 18 in 1:33 1-5, matching the world record at the time.

Tronado paid $7. $3.40 and $3. Hedevar returned $2.80 and $2.40. Time Tested paid $3.

Assagai, the only 3-year-old in the field, rallied in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $59,700 Tidal Handicap by half a length for his second successive stakes victory.

The son of Warfare, ridden by Larry Adams, raced fourth in the early stages of the 1⅛-mile race over the turf course but closed strongly to catch pace-making Canal in the last sixteenth.

Assagai was timed in 1:49 and paid $10.80, $5.80 and $4.60. Canal, who went to the front at the start but tired in the stretch, returned $5.60 and $4.20 while Moontrip paid $3.80.

Open Fire, owned and bred by track president Donald P. Ross, matched the track record for 1¼ miles and won the $122,970 Delaware Handicap on the closing day at Delaware Park.

The 5-year-old mare scored by five lengths and finshed in 2:00 2-5 equalling the mark set by Royal Vale in 1953. The winner carried only 110 pounds, including jockey Frank Lovato, and returned $10.60, $5.60 and $4.40.

Treachery paid $9.60 and $6.20, while Discipline was $3.60 to show.

Like A Charm pulled away in the stretch at Monmouth Park to win the $107,415 Sorority Stakes by four lengths and keep her record perfect.

Jorge Velasquez rode Like A Charm who was timed in 1:12 3/5 for the six furlongs and paid $11.80, $5.40 and $2.40. Just Kidding paid $8.60 and $3.00 and Rhubarb, the 3-5 favorite, paid $2.20.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

New Belmont Pier, So What's Wrong?

Just the other day there appeared in Malcolm Epley's column a charge by Robert Halsted, address not given, that the new Belmont Pier is "a magnificent farce." Halsted continued to say the engineer who designed this "monstrosity" should receive the prize of the year for inconceivable stupidity. He then continued this way:

"Guy Atkinson, the contractor, has done excellent work, but he only followed the loused-up plans. Interview the fishermen and they will tell you."

Well, Mr. Halsted, whoever you are and wherever you live, we have been interviewing fishermen since that brief paragraph appeared and have discovered that down to every man we have talked to you are 100% wrong. Most of them would like to know what you are beefing about. Are you a designer of piers or a contractor? Why, they want to know, did you call this pier a monstrosity?

First of all, we called on our co-worker, Lew Allison, who handles this column when I am out of town or on vacation. Lew, incidentally, has fished from almost every pier in Southern California and I respect his view on all kinds of fishing. Lew says, first of all, that your letter was published without any effort to pin down your viewpoints or to ask anybody else's opinion.

LEW CONTINUES BY SAYING: "To my mind the pier is a beautiful piece of architecture. It covers more ocean than the old pier, it is lower and, consequently, will be easier to fish from. Its dining facilities, bait and tackle center and its comfort stations are better than those of any pier in California, bar none. Take a look at it and compare it with the new Hermosa Beach Pier, for instance. (And this writer might add, compare it with the new structure just put into operation in the Mission Bay section of San Diego.)

"To its other advantages add modern lighting and a landscaped mall at the head of the pier," says Lew, "it has vastly improved boat docks. The only potential disadvantage I can see is that its beautiful surroundings and delightful promenade present the danger it is going to be crowded with sightseers as well as fishermen.

"I probably have not caught as many fish on Belmont Pier as Jim Willett and some of the other oldtimers, but I'll bet I have caught more than that chronic-sounding critic, who, I believe, has rocks in his head."

Another man who fishes constantly on the old Belmont Pier and who declined to be quoted by name, said: "Gosh, I have been fishing here for years and can hardly wait for the opening of the new one. It will be much easier to land a fish there."

ART AND JUNE ASCOLESI, who, in the name of Mickey's Belmont, Inc., hold the master lease on the old as well as the new pier, were startled when they heard about Halsted's letter. June said, in a letter to this columnist:

"How can a pier specifically designed for the fishermen, possibly be called a farce? The new Belmont Pier was designed for pleasure and convenience as shown below.

"1. It is three feet lower than the existing Belmont Pier, making it far easier to catch and land fish.

"2. It extends approximately 100 feet farther out into the ocean than the existing pier, providing additional fishing space and better fishing.

"3. It has a wing spread of 360 feet located at the far end, providing additional fishing area in a prime location.

"4. The live bait tank is located at the far end of the pier. This will be an aid in keeping the live anchovies used for bait both healthier and stronger. The finest method of receiving live bait will be installed. The anchovies will be raised from the live bait boat into the live bait tanks by an automatic water brail. The fish will remain in salt water at all times. This will prevent their being bruised and crushed in a net. The live bait will remain as healthy and strong as they are when netted at sea. The live bait tanks on the pier are much larger than the present tanks, providing ample room for the anchovies to swim and school freely.

"5. THERE ARE SIX, handy fish-cleaning sinks located on the new Belmont Pier for the convenience of the fishermen.

"6. Fifty-three benches are provided for the fishermen's comfort.

"7. The new pier will be well lighted (both above and below) making it a safer area for the public.

"8. All material used in the construction of the new pier and its facilities is the most up-to-date weather-resistant material obtainable. As a consequence, the pier should remain in good, safe condition for many years to come.

"9. Both the tackle stand and the snack bar are designed for speedy service so that the customer may be taken care of rapidly and return to his fishing.

"10. Comfort stations are located both in the center and at the end of the pier for the convenience of the customers.

"11. The landing floats have been designed to load passengers safely on the fishing vessels. In addition to this, a hoist will be installed to pick up the passenger's fish from the deck of the boat and place it on the pier.

"All the above-mentioned items should most certainly provide the right setting and facilities for enjoyable fishing. The free-flowing lines of the pier, plus the attractive plaza with its shrubs and trees, will most certainly be an asset to the beautiful shoreline of Long Beach."

ANYTHING GOES

Competitors will be using their feet as much as their hands tonight during International Karate Championships at Municipal Auditorium. Capacity crowd is expected for 12-match and 5-demonstration program with highlight of day-long eliminations being Grand Championship match.

World's Best Karate Stars Clash in Long Beach Today

By GARY RAUSCH

Ah, so.

Karate, that most ancient and most honorable art of oriental self-defense, will be on display today as Long Beach hosts the third annual International Championships.

Over 600 competitors from Japan, Okinawa, Korea, China, Europe, Boston, Chicago, Salt Lake City, Dallas, San Francisco and even Pasadena start a day-long ordeal of punching, kicking, striking and just plain mayhem.

Eliminations begin at 9:30 a.m. and by 4 p.m., there will be only 18 survivors going into finals, starting at 7. Tickets are priced at $3.50, $3, $2.50, $2 and $1.50.

A turnaway crowd viewed last year's proceedings and officials have already tabbed today's extravaganza a sellout. Even while the committee busily readys SRO signs, a new Grand Champion is lurking in the wings.

Only one of their numbers will leave Municipal Auditorium with the title Grand Champion. The rest will have their share of assorted bumps and bruises.

Mike Stone, possibly the most famous of all American Karate experts, has retired at the ripe old age of 24, giving someone else a shot as kingpin of Karate.

Only last year, Stone came off the sands of Waikiki, a month-old Army discharge in his back pocket, to shred a select field to ribbons in retaining his title.

Upon retirement, the handsome 195-pounder could claim virtually every Karate title—not just once but twice and some three or more times.

A total of 12 matches will be contested, three (light, middle and heavyweight) in each of the white, brown and black belt divsions, leading to semifinals and the final match of the evening — the Grand Championship.

Sandwiched among the division crowns will be demonstrations of the various styles of Karate by a select group of oriental experts.

Only 7 of the 18 champions and runnersup from last year's meeting are entered. And only Buddha knows how many of them will survive a day of pell-mell assault.

Jr. Amateur Golf Tourney Set Tuesday

One of the nation's outstanding golf events, the 19th Jr. Amateur Championship, will lure 150 of the country's finest players to California Country Club in the city of Whittier beginning Tuesday.

Competition is limited to boys under the age of 18 years who will play 18 holes of stroke play Tuesday and Wednesday. The top 64 shooters then enter match play Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Defending champion Jim Masserio of Pittsburgh will be back to try again as will 1965 runnerup, Lloyd Liebler of Portsmouth, Va., and one of the semifinalists, Gary Bennett of Florence, S.C.

Long Beach will be represented by Recreation Park's Paul Mattson, who led the qualifying at California C.C. two weeks ago with a three over-par 75.

* * * *

L.B. AREA teenagers in the competition include Gary Sanders and Bob Sader of Los Coyotes C.C., Buena Park, and Dave Penso of Palos Verdes G.C.

California C.C. is a 6,756-yard layout whose fairways are lined with deep rough, and whose greens are flanked by yawning traps.

There will be no charge for galleryites. California C.C. may be reached by taking Rose Hills Road east of the San Gabriel Freeway. Then turn north on Workman Mill Road and follow it to the course.

BOYS HOCKEY HAS OPENINGS

Ice hockey for boys ages 6 to 14 is available at the Olympic Ice Arena, 23770 Western Ave., in Harbor City.

Parents whose sons wish to join the Bay Harbor Minor Hockey Assn. may inquire during weeky practice sessions at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Instruction for beginning skaters will be provided.

Start good from gate, won easily. Mutuel pool $46,987.

TASSIE broke in stride, had to be taken well in and on the far turn while waiting for racing room along the rail, found an opening entering the stretch, drove to the front and drew off without further need of urging to win as the rider pleased. DEFIER closed a big gap in the final quarter while losing ground. ACE STOCK lacked early speed.

Scratched—Riot Tide.

4038—SECOND RACE. 6 furlongs. 3-year-olds and up. Purse $3400. Claiming price $3000.

LUCKY MEL JR. moved up soon after the break to share the lead with RICH INTENT, shook that one off while entering the stretch and outraced NUEVO VIENTO through the final sixteenth. Latter was slow to reach his best stride then finished with a late flurry. DECADRON raced through the stretch with good speed.

No scratches.

DAILY DOUBLE — 1-TASSIE & 4-LUCKY MEL JR. — PAID $236.20

d—Disqualified & placed 4th.

TANN TANN broke slowly, rushed up alongside to share the early lead with ROYAL FRENCH, veered in abruptly in the upper stretch while pulling away when the rider turned to look back, then after getting a clear lead midway in the drive was able to barely last over GRAND SLAM MIKE. Latter saved ground, moved closer on the final turn, came between horses for his best bid and nipped BROKEN BUBBLE. Latter was permitted to lag back early, rallied when roused and finished with good speed while along the outside. ROYAL FRENCH was impeded while along the rail in the upper stretch. The stewards posted the inquiry sign and ruled that TANN TANN shut off ROYAL FRENCH early in the drive and disqualified him to fourth.

No scratches.

WOODEN SOLDIER, steadied at the break, went to the lead on his own volition around the turn, drew off without need of urging in the stretch to win with complete authority. ELTIEMPO broke alertly, shared the early lead, dropped back then outgamed MEOLAH UNO at the wire. Latter found his best stride when straightened for the drive, finishing with good speed between horses.

EVADE lacked early speed, found room between horses along the inside in the stretch to outfinish DIZZY BABE to the end. Latter had to be under light early restraint while waiting for room, saved as much ground as possible and offered a mild bid.

No scratches.

a-Coupled—Fleet Treat & Xtrasensory.

SKY GIPSY II was unhurried at the break, found room between the leaders going to the far turn to share the lead with HARRY GELBART then under a skillful ride saved ground while forging slightly ahead in the upper stretch to win gamely. HARRY GELBART broke with the leaders, raced for the early lead along the outside, clung to the winner gamely but was not quite good enough. EMBASSY had no early speed then saved as much ground as possible during his belated bid. FLEET TREAT lost ground while in a mild late rally. RI TUX could not get the lead on the stretch turn and, tiring, XTRASENSORY broke poorly. THE BAGEL KING was done early. COUPLE O' QUID went wrong on the turn.

No scratches.

MUSTARD PLASTER, outrun early, used a path along the outside, circled the field on the stretch turn then outfinished the leaders through the final sixteenth to win gamely. HIGH PERCH, a late early speed on the far turn, continued his rally through the stretch and narrowly missed. OLD MOSE saved ground on the first turn, remained along the inside, made his bid on the final turn, and remained at his task to the end.

Latin Soccer Games Open at Wrigley

The Latin International Soccer Games open at remodeled Wrigley Field in Los Angeles today when Guadalajara, Mex., meets Emelec, champion of Ecuador, at 3.

The second game will be played in the Coliseum Wednesday night between Guadalajara and Cartago of Costa Rica.

Next Sunday the play returns to Wrigley Field when Cartago meets Emelec.

The games mark the first Southland matches among top professional teams from Central and South America.

Wrigley Field, once the home of the Angels, has been converted into a soccer stadium recently. The pitcher mound has been removed and The Continental League will play its 1965-67 schedule at Wrigley.

A preliminary game at 1 today will match radio announcers from Baja California against radio and TV personalities of Los Angeles.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, another soccer field will be available to Southland teams when the season opens in October. A stadium is included in the plans of the European Sports and Shopping Center in Torrance, now under construction.

The complex also includes an Olympic-size swimming pool, tennis courts and volleyball courts. It is located on the West side of the Harbor Freeway near the San Diego Freeway.

A REAL BRAVE BATBOY

Bookies Call Clay Defense a Laugher

LONDON (AP) — Cassius Clay takes on Britain's Brian London Saturday in a world heavyweight title fight, which the bookies virtually have written off as a one-man fight.

Clay, fighting his second British heavyweight within three months, is the 1-10 favorite. That means you must bet $10 to win one. London, a tough 32-year-old veteran, is 5-1.

Clay, criticized for his draft board difficulties and Black Muslim affiliations in the United States, picked up a guaranteed $280,000 plus ancillary TV rights for his London title defense May 21 against Henry Cooper, British champion.

* * * *

THE CHAMPION stopped Cooper with a badly cut eye in the sixth round.

For his defense against London, Clay is reportedly getting a guaranteed $252,000 along with TV percentages.

London is expected to get about $112,000 from the fight in Earl's Court Stadium, where Billy Graham held his recent London Crusade.

The fight will be carried live on home television to the United States via the Early Bird Satellite starting at 2 p.m. PDT., and negotiations are going on for it to be piped into Europe over the Eurovision network.

"There's no doubt about it—I'm the world's most publicized human being," Clay told newsmen.

If he succeeds against London, the champion moves on to fight Karl Mildenberger of Germany, the European champion, at Frankfort Sept. 10.

"I could do a fight a month, but I'm getting old you know," said the 24-year-old Clay.

London, giving away eight years, is positively breezy by comparison.

Clay says he remembers London fighting "when I was a little boy."

This was at Indianapolis in May, 1959, when Floyd Patterson knocked London out in the 11th round of their title fight.

"Clay's in for a shock," said London.

The Briton has been training at his home town of Blackpool, a lively coastal resort with a Coney Island atmosphere.

* * * *

LONDON'S three British sparring partners aren't as powerful as Clay; but the Briton has impressed with his condition and confidence.

Boxing observers point out that London always fights best as underdog.

In a celebrated fight against former world champion Ingemar Johansson in Stockholm in April, 1963, London knocked the big Swede out, but the bell, ending the last round, cut into the count.

Under present rules London would have won. As it was he lost on points.

London, who has been fighting for 11 years, has a pro record of 35 wins and 12 losses. Clay is undefeated in 24 fights.

London's best recent performances were in knocking out California's Roger Rischer in one round last year, and stopping Amos Johnson of Medina, Ohio, in seven rounds last month.

Coaches Named for Stokes Game

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI)—Alex Hannum, the new coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, will handle the Western squad in the annual Maurice Stokes Benefit game featuring National Basketball Assn. stars, it was announced by chairman Jack Twyman.

The seventh annual game, scheduled for Tuesday night, Aug. 16, at Kutsher' Country Club, already has lined up Red Auerbach, retired coach of the world champion Boston Celtics, to pilot the Eastern squad.

ROSE BOWL TRACK MEET SLATED TODAY

An impressive list of record-breaking stars will feature the first Rose Bowl Invitational Track & Field Meet slated for this afternoon. Christening of the new "red carpet" running track promises to be amid a setting of colorful ceremonies, pageantry, excitement and outstanding performances.

John Pennel, who set a world's record of 17-6¼ in the pole vault at the Coliseum International Games, leads the long parade of luminaries taking part in the RBI sponsored by the Pasadena Junior Chamber. Also participating will be his roommate, Bob Seagren, whose global standard of 17-5½ was broken Saturday. Paul Wilson, who took second to Pennel with a 17-0¼ effort, will compete as will PAA's Dick Railsback, who cleared 16-8 in the Coliseum along with Seagren.

Art Walker, the triple jump star who set a mark at the Coliseum with a 54-11 leap to raise the American standard for the second time in two weeks, will compete in his pet event, hoping to reach the hallowed land of 55 feet plus.

Don Shy, 110 meter hurdle victor in L.A. will be at the post for the 120 yard high hurdles. Willie Davenport of the Cleveland Striders could set the stage for a lot of drama with an all-out effort, making up for his disappointment last weekend when he was disqualified for two false starts. The season's best marks of the two standouts for the season are: Davenport: 13.3 and Shy: 13.4.

DOUBLEHEADER

Chargers Test K.C., Raiders Vs. Boston

Statistical leaders in the AFL will abound when the San Diego Chargers meet the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders take on the Boston Patriots in the big Anaheim Stadium doubleheader Saturday night, Aug. 20.

First grid game at Anaheim Stadium, the contest also is the first doubleheader in AFL annals. Boston and Oakland will kick off at 6 p.m. with the Chargers and Chiefs taking the field at approximately 8:30.

San Diego's Lance Alworth, rated by many experts as the finest pass catcher in football, led the league in most pass receiving statistics. He gained 1602 yards, averaging 23.2 yards per catch, both records. He scored 14 touchdowns to tie another standard.

San Diego halfback Paul Lowe collected 1121 yards on the ground to set a league record.

And still another Charger — Quarterback John Hadl — led in several passing statistics. His aerials picked up 2798 yards.

Gino Capelletti of the Boston Patriots led the AFL in scoring with 132 points. He caught nine scoring aerials, kicked 17 out of 27 field goals and did the place kicking for Mike Holovak's club.

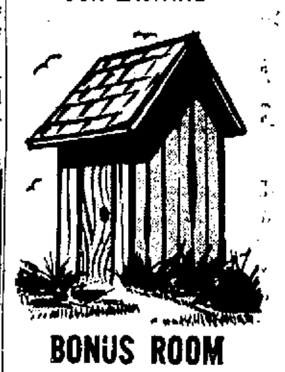

The San Diego Chargers and Kansas City Chiefs were one-two in scoring in the league.

Tickets are on sale at Anaheim Stadium, 633-2000, and Mutual ticket agencies, MA 7-1248.

Cole's U.S. Debut Set

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Bobby Cole, the South African teenage protege of Gary Player will make his U.S. golfing debut at the Aug. 18-21 Insurance City Open golf tournament, it was announced Saturday.

'CHEESECAKE' CHANGES

Costumes Get Scantier

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Costumes are scantier.

Actresses such as Elizabeth Taylor, Carroll Baker, Stella Stevens and Mamie Van Doren—seminude or in transluscent negligees — get men's-magazine portrayal in living color.

Emphasis has shifted from legs to bosoms.

These are findings in a study of Hollywood cheesecake, or, more specifically, what changes have been wrought in this art form over the years.

* * * *

THE EARLIEST cheesecake photo is said to be one of the silent screen's vampire, Theda Bara, in low-cut gown as the original celluloid Cleopatra in 1917.

Other landmarks in the annals of cheesecake include:

Betty Grable, back to camera in a white bathing suit, smiling over her shoulder in a pose treasured by troops from Normandy to Guadalcanal a generation ago.

Rita Hayworth in a black lace nightgown sitting on her knees in bed, leaning forward, with her body sideways — another fighting men's favorite.

Marilyn Monroe in her famous 1952 calendar pose, lying nude on her side, seen from above, her red-gold hair streaming out behind.

SEMINUDE posing, says Mario Casilli, representative of a leading men's magazine Playboy is "pretty much the accepted thing compared to, say, five years ago. The public is becoming more sophisticated and aware of sex. The bathing suit is going to be no longer something that will interest anyone."

A veteran studio publicist claims current fashions make his job tougher. "The general public has beat the hell out of Hollywood when it comes to cheesecake. Skirts up to here. Dresses cut so low you can see practically everything."

Adventure Film

"A High Wind To Jamaica," Richard Hughes' novel made into a film starring Anthony Quinn, will be shown at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The film is one of the Summer Adventure Series events for children and their parents.

Actors' Circle on Air Tonight

Two members of the Actors Circle Theater will discuss "Long Beach and the Arts" on KJLH-FM (102.3) at 9 tonight.

They are James De Priest, managing director and Ronald M. Thronson, stage and publicity director. Barbara Ambruster will moderate.

THE DANCE WEEK

Nothing to Get Excited About

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Last week was a disappointing one for lovers of the ethnic dance.

Monday morning, word of the Romanian Folk Ballet's tour cancellation started the week off gloomily. That night, in Greek Theater, Jose Greco's company opened its six-day run sloppily, with little hope for improvement.

In Royce Hall at UCLA, Friday night, yet another internationally known troupe, Javier de Leon's "Fiesta Mexicana," let us down. Its program, despite bright moments, was overlong, poorly lit, musically mixed, and unexciting.

Happiest of all were sprinklings of mariachi music throughout the evening, a group of Jaliscan songs, and a suite of songs and dances of Vera Cruz, ending in a boisterous Zapateado.

* * * *

UNFORTUNATELY, there was much, much more, beginning with a scene of Mayan and Aztec dances that seemed to go on forever, while five loud primitive drums (not always together, by the way) pounded out one-two-three-four under a single wood flute. Only authenticity could achieve such monotony.

After intermission there was another long scene, a wedding, which offered dances from Tehuantepec and Oaxaca. With these pretty costumes and these pleasant young people involved on the stage, this might have been charming, if half as long.

The following "Chiapanecas," featuring the show's star, Princess Teo Xochitl, was yet another lengthy, uninventive item.

THROUGHOUT, the dancing, always undemanding yet of mixed success in the execution, followed a pattern of walk, turn, spin, pose. Such patterns make a choreographer's life easy, but put most audiences to sleep.

To assure against anyone's napping, the company's eight instrumentalists managed (through careful planning, no doubt) to be utterly out of tune with each other from start to finish.

The one thoroughly successful part of the evening was the costuming, which seemed to reflect a history of styles in Mexico's culture. What a shame more, and better, lighting was not used to show off those costumes, as well as the good-looking dancers wearing them.

'SWIMMING IN HOT WATER'

Pleasant Innocence at Community Playhouse

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Staff Writer

"Pleasantly innocent" might be the best phrase to describe Community Playhouse's latest, "Swimming in Hot Water," a musical with book and lyrics by Long Beach teacher Marc D. Ross.

A good-sized cast, youthful and exuberant, premiered the show Friday night on CP's downstairs stage before an appreciative full-house audience. It will continue weekends through August.

There was something pleasantly pawky about the show, chock-full of now-vanished innocence which once endeared Andy Hardy to a full generation of youthful movie-goers.

Brought back briefly, fleetingly, to the modern stage was that once-confident belief that goodness always triumphs, and stuffy villians can be vanquished with ease. The kind of story that all-but-disappeared after the treachery of Pearl Harbor.

* * * *

"SWIMMING" about in the overheated waters of an exclusive girls' school was Prof. Bradford Smith, just appointed aquatics coach at the institution founded by his grandmother.

Immediately upon arrival, Smith (Randy Keene) is seized upon by a bevy of seven young beautifuls who are starved for masculine attention. Even the nearby presence of a boys' school hasn't lessened their ardor. "They're just children," one of the girls sniffs.

Included within the seven are all the types Andy Hardy once knew so well: Patricia, the snobbish (Jo Gannaway); Marty the athlete (Lora Andrich); Shortstuff the all-around girl (Gail Chadwick); Lulubelle the daughter of the Old South (Susanna Tomecko); Cathy, Valerie, LaVerne and JoAnne, sweet kids all (Risa Berk, Judith Gudowski, Terry Greene, Carolyn Wood).

Then there were the boys, portrayed by Lee Vail, Jeff Scott, Bob Smith, Bill Griffith, John Turner, David Ockrassa.

* * * *

AND THE FEMALE facstuffy ogress (Jo Scott); the stuffy ogres (Jo Scott); the wise and understanding Dean Kramer (Marguerite Murray); Lucille, who would like to have known the professor better (Lillian Hyka); Betty, who does (Julie Bridgette), and Nellie the foil (Sheriah Ivie).

Smith immediately is conned into judging the school's annual beauty paggeant, a scholastic IBC so to speak. Somehow it never occurs to him—there's the Andy Hardy influence again—that he can get into trouble over whatever decision he makes.

After a real hair-pulling brouhaha between two of the girls Dean Kramer cancels the contest. How the girls rewin the educator's permission to hold their competition and how "Judge" Smith triumphantly makes the right decision is the rest of the show.

* * * *

ONE OF THE delights is a show-within-a-show when the girls individually sing, dance, elocute, during the "beauty pageant." Real talent then is on display.

Several pleasurable musical production numbers are included along with solos by the principals. Perhaps the funniest—and most professional—was the boys' musical introduction of "Women" to their youngest companion.

Other highlights were the girls' "Tonight, Tonight" and Smith's "She's the Sort of a Girl."

* * * *

THE MUSIC was written by Aminadav Aloni of Hollywood.

Directing was John Williams, assisted by Martha Knowles. Dance routines were choreographed by Joan Elms. Buddy Tobie was technical director and Robin Royce designed the sets. Kevin Murphy handled light and sound, with Cami Doherty providing piano accompaniment for the routines.

Leonard Amiable Insulter

By EARL WILSON

MIAMI BEACH—Fat Jack E. Leonard, who is consistently the greatest deflater of American egos, performed some character assassinations recently at the Hotel Diplomat that were in their way as artistic as the pantomime of Red Skelton and Marcel Marceau.

Brian Kelly of "Flipper" TV fame was at the ringside and an easy target.

"Go like this: — Jack's hands described the rolling dips of a porpoise — "so they'll recognize you . . . Don't take offense, Kelly. You make a mint, even if you do have to live in a swamp."

Celebrated artist Dong Kingman was there sketching busily in his notebook.

"Now I know," Jack E. exploded, "you're the guy that draws all those dirty pictures in the subways."

JACK E. lives in a plush penthouse at the Parc Vendome on W. 57th St. in New York. He has done around 50 TV shows in the last year. He is constantly being told that he should do his own TV series.

"I've made so many pilots, I have my own air force," he said to his Diplomat audience. He explained in an aside: "That's a trade joke—and I'd like to trade it for a better one."

Though he's billed as "the Angry Young Man," he isn't really angry, nor is he so young. He's 55, and he's really good-humored . . . generally. The one thing that annoys him is a columnist crediting one of his jokes to another comedian.

"I love everybody," he says. "I can't run and I can't fight. That's why I love everybody."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Phil Foster said at Rosoff's he's golfing every day as part of his diet: "My doctor told me to live on greens as much as possible."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Romance is like a game of chess — one false move and you're mated."

250,000 BIRD'S EYE VIEWS IN FILM LIBRARY

ON A CLEAR DAY . . . Long Beach From 18,000 Feet. Note Boxed Naples Area

LONG BEACH, CALIF., SUNDAY, JULY 31, 1966

When you step from your home and notice a high-flying plane above, maybe you had better smile you may be on camera!

That plane may be one from Pacific Air Industries, a Long Beach aerial photography and photogrammetric mapping firm headquartered at 725 E. Third St., which since 1949 has provided, on film, complete details of the entire Southland area.

Started in 1949, Pacific Air Industries has grown today to a 50-employe organization utilizing the most modern equipment with offices in Bakersfield and Fortuna.

Don Lewis, president, and Ed Jacklin, vice president, who did most of the aerial photographic work in the early days, supervise the vast operations. Clay Amend is general manager and David Morales is in charge of the film library.

Pacific today has the largest collection of aerial photographs in Southern California and possibly in the West. The firm recently acquired the Fairchild Film Library from Aero Service Corp., Los Angeles. This library, combined with those of Pacific Air, brings the total collection to more than 25,000 negatives.

Some of the films acquired in buying out other concerns, date back to 1929, permitting an interesting comparison of land uses in this area through the years.

The photographs in the collection are of various scales, ranging from 600 feet to the inch to 8,000 feet to the inch.

Real estate developers are the most regular customers of Pacific Air Industries photo library, but in the course of a day Morales may hear from a bank which wants to select the best location for a new building, an engineering geologist looking for certain terrain features, or a lawyer who wants to help a jury see the situation better, from the air.

Chief Planner Everett Golden of Albert C. Martin & Associates, recently called for a photograph showing the general area around the site of a proposed new school. "It gave us a good idea of the relationship of the project to the entire surrounding community it would serve. And it indicated just where thoroughfares, commercial and residential areas were located."

Attorneys are using aerial photographs increasingly in the courtroom to settle real estate suits. John P. Pollock told of winning cases where aerial photographs yielded indisputable evidence.

"We had a case recently where the buyer of a tract house claimed he didn't know the lot was on fill, for example. Aerial photographs showing the building pads impressed the jury that the evidences of cut and fill were obvious."

Archiac Building Codes Need Updating

By KEN CHILCOTE
Business Editor

With the home construction industry somewhat in the doldrums under present market conditions, this might be the opportune time for builders to move toward unification of building codes. And, updating of the codes should be foremost.

Technical know-how has given the United States great progress in recent years. But in home building much has been lacking.

An engineer who helps perfect a missile capable of soaring to the moon can fly from the launch site to his home city in a faster-than-sound aircraft perfection; speed over a freeway expanse of elaborate concrete engineering marvels in a motor car that with fingertip touch becomes a gliding palace on wheels, and reach home in minutes.

Then he will enter an archaic home!

* * * *

THE COSTLY HOME was called "modern" by the builder-seller and, while it may look modern, that home was built under methods used early in the century.

Local, state, county and some national restrictions cover the building industry in a maze of regulations that do much to stifle modernization. No industry supplying the basic needs of the public is so ensnarled in official red tape as our huge residential building industry!

"If the aviation industry were faced with similar restrictive practices we would still be flying in fabric-covered biplanes. If the automobile industry were faced with 5,000 divergent codes like housing is, we would be driving cars with beam axles, wood-spoke wheels and mechanical brakes," says J. A. Reidelbach Jr., executive vice president of the Home Manufacturers Association.

* * * *

TRADITION HAS a definite place in American housing, Georgian, Colonial and Cape Cod architectural forms are part of our heritage worthy of perpetuation. Greek columns, Tudor and Gothic arches, Spanish tile and Roman brick, when properly applied, are esthetic delights that should always be on the scene.

But heritage and tradition do not stop with the ornamentation of today's home. Obsolete, antiquated building codes force us to build from the structual point of view, in the same way we built 50 years ago.

For example, buried in the floors and walls are fasteners, hangers, braces, pipes and wires that were chosen decades ago with little if any technical justification. Magnitude of their obsolence varies from location to location.

* * * *

BASIC INTENT of building codes is fine. They are to insure house occupants from fire hazard or the collapse of the building, and to exclude from any home unsafe or unhealthy conditions.

When the codes call for the same type of plumbing, lighting and gas installations used yesteryear, they stifle industry. Yet to get acceptance of new products is a costly venture. Perhaps a manufacturing firm could come up with a new lighting system in the home involving more plastics, remote controls, etc. Under the current system of codes it would mean going from door to door to building departments in cities, towns and hamlets to try and persuade officials to accept the new techniques.

"This enormous expenditure in time, money and effort certainly does not encourage companies to invest their dollars in research and development and, when they do, the end result is that the consumer—the home buyer—has to pay a higher cost than he should," says Reidelbach.

"It has been estimated that the cost of housing would be reduced 10% almost immediately if there were a single, unified national building standard and later on, savings would range upwards of 20% as new methods, products and systems reached the marketplace."

* * * *

ATTEMPTS TO UNIFY building codes have been made since the early '20s and all have met defeat.

"Sometimes," says the HMA official, "it is pressure from a manufacturer or group of manufacturers that enjoy a favored position under existing codes. Some times it is pressure from a particular labor union.

"Then, too, there is a natural and understandable tendency of local officials to favor the most conservative practices of a conventional system under which they obtained their experience. Whatever the reason, they're usually special interest rather than public interest."

A move is under way for the federal government to step in with a code for states and cities to adopt. It should get strong backing from the home building industry and the home-buying public.

THE AERONUTRONIC DIVISION of Ford Motor Co.'s Philco Electronics Group in Newport Beach has been awarded a contract of more than one million dollars for component development on the U.S. Army's Pershing tactical missile weapon system.

The contract for $1,173,706 was granted by The Martin Co., prime systems contractor for the Pershing weapons system, for work by Aeronutronic's Re-entry and Space Systems area.

TWO ANAHEIM FIRMS—Electrac, Inc., and North American Aviation's Autonetics Division—have been awarded government contracts for research and improvements.

Electrac received three contracts from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration totalling more than $462,000. The funds have been allocated for increased manufacture of demodulator systems and design and fabrication of an S-band receiver, demodulator and demultiplexers.

Autonetics received a $3.4 million contract from the U.S. Air Force for the overhaul and repair of the guidance systems of the Hound Dog air-to-ground missile.

Autonetics Division also has received a $1.9 million contract from the Sperry Gyroscope Division of Sperry Rand Corp. (N.Y.) for development of a forward-looking radar for the Navy's A-7 advanced light attack aircraft.

The work will be done by Autonetics' Electro Sensor Systems Division, 3370 Miraloma Ave., Anaheim.

Autonetics is the producer of the country's leading airborne radar and fire control systems. It has built more than 2,000 radars for the F-104 and F-105 aircraft.

PIKE CORP. OF AMERICA reported earnings for the first half of this year rose 63% to record levels on slightly lower revenues than a year ago.

Thomas P. Pike, chairman and president said that contributing to the increase in profits is the heavy demand for offshore drilling that has enabled its major division, Western Offshore Drilling and Exploration Co., to keep its fleet of drilling barges and platform rigs constantly at work for major oil producers throughout the world.

Pike Corporation's net income for the six months ended June 30, 1966, was $1,449,262 or $1.84 a share compared with $888,557 or $1.13 a share for the same period last year.

Gross revenues for the six months were $28,385,049 compared with $29,269,610 for the same period a year earlier.

"We anticipate a continued high level of offshore drilling activity and gains in earnings and revenues from all divisions throughout the rest of the year," Pike said.

Pike Corporation is a major offshore drilling contractor and is also engaged in offshore mineral exploration, aerospace and geomarine research, and distribution of industrial equipment, oil field supplies, and tubing.

KAISER CEMENT & GYPSUM CORP. will construct a multi-million dollar cement manufacturing plant at Scholle, N. M., 55 miles southeast of Alburque.

Peter S. Hass, president, said the plant will make it possible for the company to market cement in New Mexico for the first time.

He said the plant will have a rated annual capacity of 1,700,000 barrels of cement and will serve the entire New Mexico market.

The ultra-modern dry process cement plant will be located on a 1,880 acre deposit of excellent cement grade limestone ore purchased by Kaiser Cement in 1956, Hass said.

The property is located near the geographical center of the state and is bisected by the main line of the Santa Fe railroad and by U.S. Highway 60, a main east-west artery. These factors and the coincidence of fuel and power lines on the property make the site ideal for manufacturing and marketing cement, Hass said.

The Scholle plant will be Kaiser Cement's second manufacturing facility in New Mexico. The other is a gypsum board manufacturing plant owned by Kaiser Gypsum Co., Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary, at Rosario, near Santa Fe.

STANDARD BRANDS PAINT CO., based in Torrance, with an enviable record of sales and earnings gains over the past 27 years, showed 12% increase in net sales the first nine months of this year and net earnings were up 17%.

Sid Greenberg, president, announced the company has made initial entry into the San Francisco Bay area by opening a store in San Jose with another to be opened in Hayward shortly.

The company purchased 11 acres adjacent to its headquarters, warehousing and manufacturing complex in Torrance and will build a 250,000 square foot addition for warehousing and for increased manufacturing.

Some Adjustments Are Seasonal

The dip in this week's Index is not as severe as it might seem.

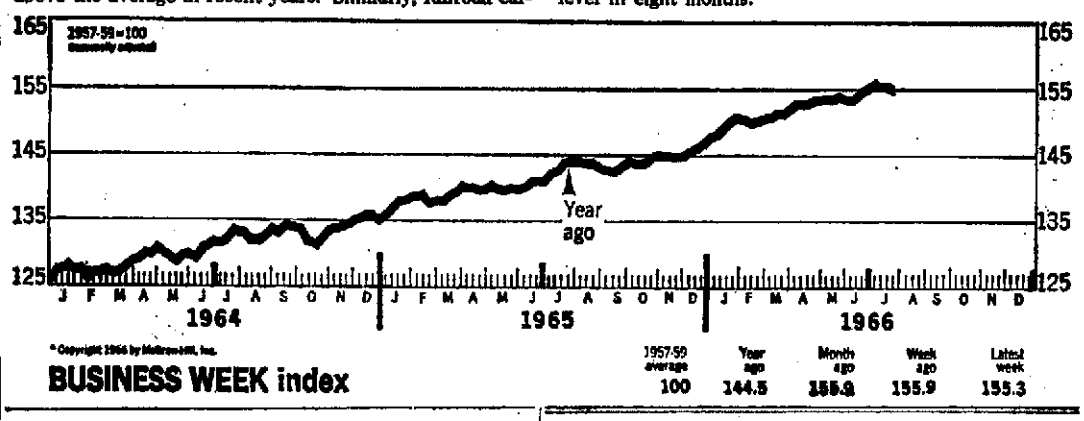

Most of the cause lies with four components that make up 30% of the final figure; auto production, steel output, crude oil refining and paperboard production all dropped on the basis of seasonal adjustments, and the Index dropped with them.

Electric power, on the other hand, continued to soar with the warm weather earlier in July. And many components are marking time due to factors that have nothing to do with the basic state of the economy.

Oil refiners, for instance, are working off high inventories—demand for petroleum products is running well above the average in recent years. Similarly, railroad carloadings are still held down by the annual coal miners' "holiday."

IF THERE IS A GENUINE trouble spot in the current Index, it is in the monthly construction figures. Overall, total construction is still 4.9% ahead of a year ago. Nonresidential construction is 21.5% ahead, and the nonbuilding figure is up 14.8%.

But construction levels nonetheless are dropping, especially in comparison to activity earlier this year. Residential building is now 9% below a year ago; in May, the figure was only 2.6% below its year-ago level. And total construction for the month of June was at the lowest level in eight months.

New Offices for Dean Witter Co.

Dean Witter & Co. will more than double the size of its Long Beach office late this year with a move to new quarters at 245 Locust Street, it was announced by John B. Wells, Jr., manager.

The investment banking and brokerage firm will occupy the 5,000 square foot ground floor of a two-level building to be constructed across the street from its present quarters at 201 East Broadway.

Slated to be completed this fall, the new quarters will provide office space for 21 account executives. The present office now consists of nine account representatives.

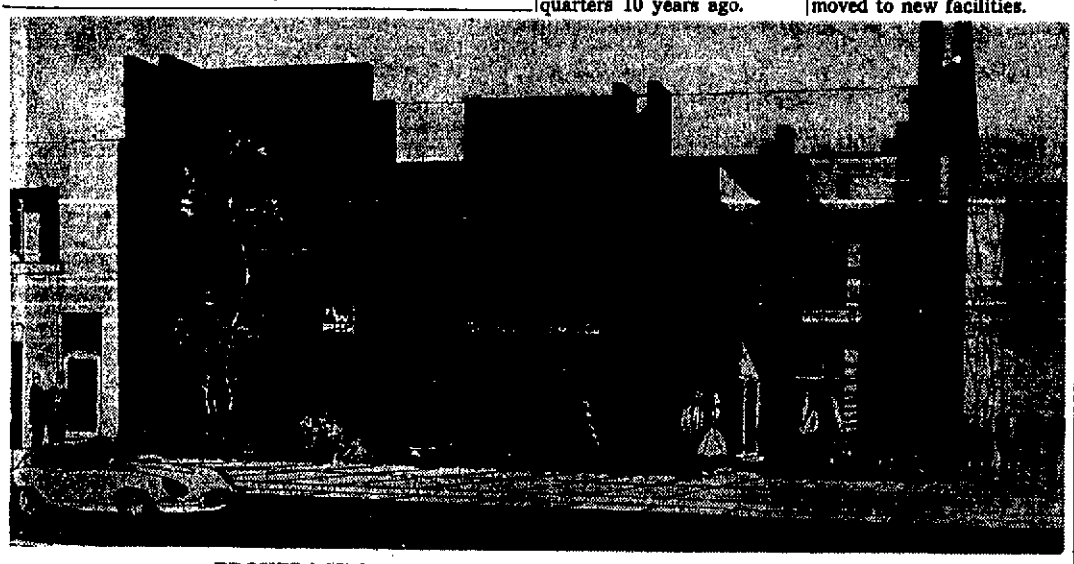

* * * *

DEAN WITTER has had a Long Beach office since 1933 and moved into its present quarters 10 years ago.

"Our move to larger offices reflects the dynamic changes taking place in Long Beach," Wells said. "We see a long-term trend of prosperity and advancement for the downtown area and Dean Witter wants to participate in this future by expanding its services and facilities," he said.

Planned and built by the O.K. Earl Corp., the new facility will be leased to Dean Witter by David Schneider, head of a wholesale jewelry manufacturing firm.

The Long Beach move is the fifth Dean Witter & Co. expansion in the Los Angeles area during the past 12 months. The firm's 54th office was opened in Newport Beach, offices in Encino and San Marino were expanded, and the Santa Monica office moved to new facilities.

Althouse Ends Long Career With Edison

Arthur W. Althouse, prominent San Gabriel Valley resident and former president of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, announced his retirement as president of Associated Southern Investment Co., subsidiary of Southern California Edison Company.

Althouse will be climaxing a business career with the Edison Co. spanning nearly 47 years.

He has headed the electric utility's subsidiary—based at the 10-story Edison Building in Long Beach which he helped plan—the past seven years.

He began his long association with Edison in 1919, and his first assignment was as a power bookkeeper at Porterville. Successive steps led to his appointment as Alhambra district manager in 1932, manager of Edison's metropolitan division in 1952 and manager of the right of way and land department in 1955. He was elected president of Associated Southern in October of 1959.

GREAT VIEW FROM HOMES . . . Offered in Yorba Linda

Fairview Homes Provide Panoramic View of Area

Luxury, single family homes, with panoramic view of the rolling hills of Yorba Linda, and green fairways of the Yorba Linda Country Club, are now being offered at Fairview, located in the 1,000-home new community of Fairmont at Imperial Highway and Orangethorpe Avenue, James McCarthy, McCarthy-Sant, builders-developers, announced.

"Homebuyers are finding the appeal of custom, three, four and five-bedroom homes on extra-large lots, many with private, spacious balconies, an unbeatable combination," McCarthy states.

* * * *

FAIRVIEW IS aptly named, for homeowners also enjoy other dramatic views, some of which extend from nearby beaches to the Santa Ana River and even as far as Mt. Baldy, including the night view of Orange County's lights.

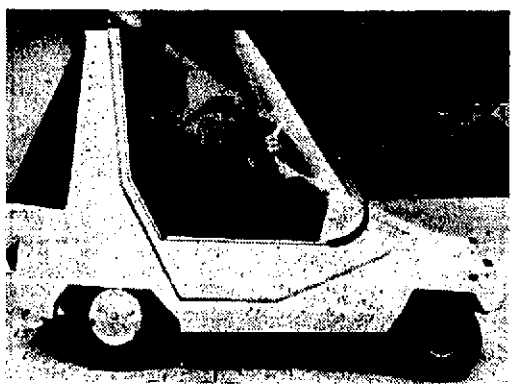

"Our emphasis on quality workmanship and materials, plus the inclusion of luxury features, such as the private balconies, combine to give families a relaxed, resort-style way of life," says McCarthy.

* * * *

AN ADDED attraction to Fairview buyers is the recent 100% trade-in plan, whereby buyers may receive the full FHA appraised value of their present home, with no deductions whatever, enabling new home owners to take immediate possession of their new Fairview home.

Financing at Fairview includes FHA and VA loans up to $30,000 at 5¾% interest rate.

Visitors may reach Fairview by taking Imperial Highway southeast to Yorba Linda Blvd., proceeding east 1½ miles to the models. Or they may take the Santa Ana or the Newport Freeway to the Riverside Freeway, proceed on the Riverside Freeway to the Imperial Highway-Yorba Linda turnoff, then left (north) 2½ miles to Yorba Linda Blvd., then turn right (east) for 1½ miles to Fairview.

SHOPPERS' 'FLEA' . . . From Germany

One-Passenger Flea Has Shopper Appeal

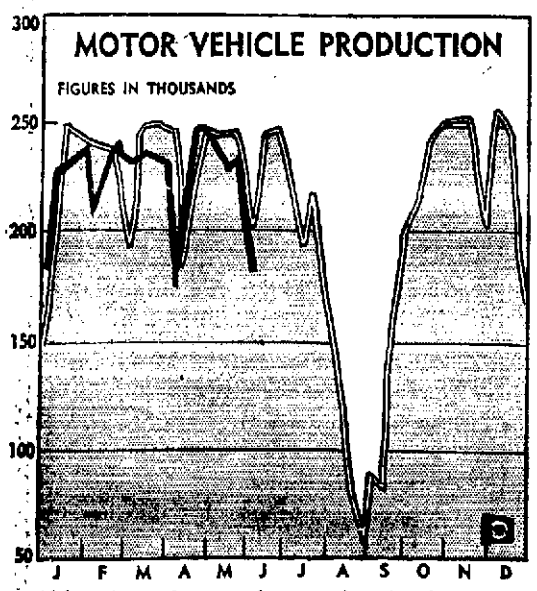

MUNICH, Germany — Introduction in the press of a miniature automobile, specially designed for city shoppers plagued by the lack of parking space, has already brought in 100 orders for the first models scheduled to roll off the assembly lines.

The designer is Munich's Anusch Samy, who also owns a fleet of small car taxis operating in the city. The new shoppers' "Flea" measures seven feet front to rear, is four feet tall and seats one person—the driver.

* * * *

THE REST of the interior is designed for loaded shopping bags. Maximum speed: 50 m.p.h. Maneuverability is a key feature of the model. It can be turned around in a space less than 20 feet wide. Dents and scratches don't necessitate a trip to the body shop: Made of plastic, the body permits owners to saw out the damage and patch in new pieces of the material at home.

A special safety feature is the driver's seat, which is constructed along the same lines as those in racing cars. Planned price on the German market: $750. For slightly more, it will also be available with fully automatic transmission.

Although an element of uncertainty has been introduced into the auto industry by the safety controversy, production for the first part of this year held close to the 1965 pattern. Newschart, based on U.S. Commerce Department statistics, shows monthly output record for last year with dark line indicating current production to June.

AVOID DANGER TRAPS IN RESIDENCE

When Remodeling Home, Build Safety Into It

Remodeling your home? Plan for safety as well as for comfort.

When mapping out a home improvement project, it takes only a little extra time and effort to include elements of design that will make the house safer as well as more livable, according to a home improvement financing specialist.

"Many of the accidents that happen in a home stem from poorly planned stairways, closets, doors and windows," says William R. Hobson, executive vice president of Peoples National Fund, Inc., largest nationwide company specializing exclusively in home improvement financing.

Based on PNF's experience in financing remodeling projects throughout the country, Hobson offers the following suggestions on planning for safety.

* * * *

TO MAKE stairways safer, provide a handrail on both sides that can be easily gripped. It should be about 2-feet and 8-inches high so that it can be reached by small children and at the same time give good support to adults. Also, a stairway should be 3-feet and 4-inches wide at the minimum so that furniture can be moved from one level to another. Headroom of less than 6-feet and 8-inches over any point of the stairs can be hazardous.

Short flights of stairs with intermediate landings are generally safer than a long, straight flight. Each landing should be at least as long as the stairway is wide.

Since stirways receive little natural light, artificial lighting should be put in easy reach at the top and bottom of the stairs.

Carefully plan closets. Don't treat them just as shells to put things out of sight. For example, install storage bins for shoes and other items. This will reduce the clutter and confusion that set the stage for falls.

* * * *

PROPERLY spaced shelves allow orderly placement of articles. This is safer than stacking boxes which can topple.

In planning a child's closet install the clothes rod at the right height for use now, with provisions for raising it as the youngster grows taller.

A movable step stool in the closet makes reaching an upper level simpler and safer than standing on a chair or other makeshift ladder. Also, be sure to have an easy-to-reach light in the closet to save dangerous groping in the dark.

Regarding room doors, remember that they should swing into rooms, not into hallways where they can cause accidents. Doors throughout the house should be at least 2-feet and 8-inches wide to allow easy passage through the openings when carrying things.

In areas where full-width hinged doors can cause problems, consider substituting sliding or folding doors.

For rooms without exterior doors, install a window that is large and low enough to provide an easy exit in case of fire. Glass doors or windows that come to the floor can be dangerous unless they have safetty glass, particularly for children at play.

Since casement or awning sash windows project from the building when open, care must be taken when they are on the same level and directly adjacent to a walkway, porch or driveway. It's a good idea to use intervening plantings to route traffic away from the hazard.

Francly, the French Are Doing Nicely

PARIS (UPI)—Of the 8 million French families paying income tax, 600 declared net annual incomes above 500,000 francs ($100,000) in 1965.

About 20% of those reporting earned between 4,000 and 6,500 francs ($800 and $1,300), 27% from 6,500 to 10,000 francs ($1,300 to $2,000) and 24% from 10,000 to 15,000 francs ($2,000 to $3,000).

Robison Incorporates

HAWTHORNE — Incorporation of the Robison Company and change of name to Robison Electronics Inc. was announced by John Robison, president of the seven-year-old firm, one of the nation's largest manufacturer's of plastic encapsulating shells and transistor/relay insulators. Plant and headquarters are at 3636 W. 139th St.

BRILLIANTLY LIT PAVILIONS . . . Identify Major Stores

Unique Lighting System Used in South Coast Plaza Center

Over three years ago when South Coast Plaza was in its initial stages, the unique blend of open lighting and custom fixtures was one of the first items planned, according to a spokesman for the Segerstrom family.

Lighting is important, not only as illumination, but as an architectural function for identification and creating a mood.

Surveys taken over the years by various developers have identified a major complaint of shopping center patrons; the difficulty of being able to identify major entrances to a complex.

* * * *

SOUTH COAST PLAZA brings to Orange County a modern application of an ancient lighting technique that can still be seen in Italy. Every main entrance will be highlighted by large, brightly-lit, vaulted pavilions. A skylight at the peak captures daylight as well as acting, at night, as a reflector for circular clusters of lights. This creates an overall feeling of unity for the entire mall. Pavilion entries are featured at the May Co., Sears, Roebuck and Co., plus double pavilions at the main entrance to each sideof the central mall. The theme is further carried out throughout the Plaza area, but double lights mounted on poles.

The balance between light and space was created to project an air of openness. Inside the two-story Mall, each level is rimmed by 14 floor-to-ceiling columns. The sharp line of vertical thrust has been modified by custom light fixtures designed by Victor Gruen Associates. These are cast in bronzed metal and follow a contemporary theme. Hammered glass enclosures cover the bulbs to soften the light pattern. A cluster of these 3½ foot cylinders ring each column slightly above the second level.

* * * *

A FURTHER feeling of expansiveness throughout the Mall is enhanced by large, transparent 8'x10' skylights.

Specialty shops, though individual in their Bazaar-type arrangement, have been coordinated with the overall theme through the use of lighting. This provides a feeling of size scaled to the average human so that people will not feel dominated by the huge structure.

South Coast Plaza, located in Costa Mesa at the Bristol Street offramp of the San Diego Freeway, will be the largest regional shopping center under one roof, containing over 1,000,000 square feet. The enclosed two-level connecting Mall will house 70 specialty shops featuring fashion in depth. This convenient shopping Mall will feature interior landscaping, colorful fountains, shopper rest areas and complete, climate-controlled, year-round air conditioning.

Miles of Clips for Paperwork

WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI) —One firm here couldn't care less about the huge amount of paper work which most companies deplore.

It's the Scovill Manufacturing Co., the nation's largest producer of paper clips. Scovill cheerfully reports sales of its paper slips will be more than 10% higher than in 1965. And that was 24,000 "miles" of clips.

Home Trade-In Boosted by Tight Money

Home trade-ins as a sales technique in the tight money market will be studied by real estate brokers, salesmen and homebuilders during a series of five one-day educational conferences sponsored by the California Real Estate Association, it was announced by Ira Gribin of Encino, chairman of the CREA Education Committee.

He said the Home Trade-In Conference is scheduled for Aug. 8 at the Coronado Hotel, Coronado; Aug. 9 at Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim; Aug. 10 at Pickwick Park, Burbank; Aug. 11 at Sacramento Inn, Sacramento; and Aug. 12 at the St. Claire Hotel in San Jose.

* * * *

JEROME BLANK, Realtor of Albany, conference chairman, said that he and four other Realtors with heavy experience in trade-ins will address the group.

"Trading is one of the bright spots in the tight money market," Blank remarked. "People want to buy and they are well able to, so the demand and capability are there. It's only the squeeze on sources of financing that gets in their way. That's why the Realtor who can work out a home trade-in is earning the gratitude of his clients and finds business better than ever, in spite of tight money."

Mal Sherman of Baltimore, one of the East's leading trade-in brokers, will address the conference on "Advertising and Merchandising the Trade-In Program." He has been especially successful in telling the public about home trade-in plans, Blank said.

"Why Have a Trade-In Plan?" will be the subject of a talk by Bernard Gerton, Realtor of San Lorenzo. He will cover the guaranteed trade, the direct trade and the equity loan.

* * * *

BLANK'S TOPIC will be "Financing Home Trade-Ins in a Tight Money Market." He will discuss sources of funds available for trade-ins and explain the financing of a typical trade-in transaction.

"Negotiating the Trade" will be covered by Phil Yaeger, Realtor of Covina, as he explains trade-in procedure, using a series of specially prepared new forms to guide those in attendance through a typical trade-in.

David Stone, Realtor of San Jose, one of the nation's leading authorities on trade-ins, will speak on "Putting the Trade-In Plan Into Action," explaining the importance of generating enthusiasm in the salesman for the home trade-in plan.

Downey Parade Set for Dec. 4

Downey's traditional Christmas Parade will take place at 2:30 p.m. on Dec. 4 — a Sunday — according to Kenneth T. Theodore, parade committee chairman.

Needed for the gala event is a float to transport Santa Claus, and individuals or organizations interested in providing same are invited to contact Theodore through the Downey Junior Chamber of Commerce at earliest convenience.

Other members of the Christmas Parade Committee in addition to Theodore, who represents the Downey Jaycees, are Brownie Brown, vice chairman, representing Downey Lions Club, and Mrs. Alta Duke, treasurer, representing Downey Parks and Recreation Department.

Venezuela Industry Has 16,800 Firms

CARACAS (UPI) — Venezuela, now in its greatest industrial development, has about 16,800 industrial firms.

Of these, some 15,000 are small industrial establishments, 1,600 of middle size and about 200 big industrial enterprises. An estimated 363,000 workers are employed in Venezuelan manufacturing industry.

Advertising Role in Red Intrigue Is Speech Topic

Thursday's noon luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club of Long Beach at the Reef Restaurant will feature a talk by a U.S. Army Reserve intelligence-security officer on the use of advertising in Communist intrigue.

Max B. Schwartz, sales manager for the Marketing Division of Pacific Telephone Co., and Director of Training for Army Intelligence and Security at the Army Reserve School, Fort MacArthur, has as his topic "The Bright Red Thread." The meeting will be open to the public.

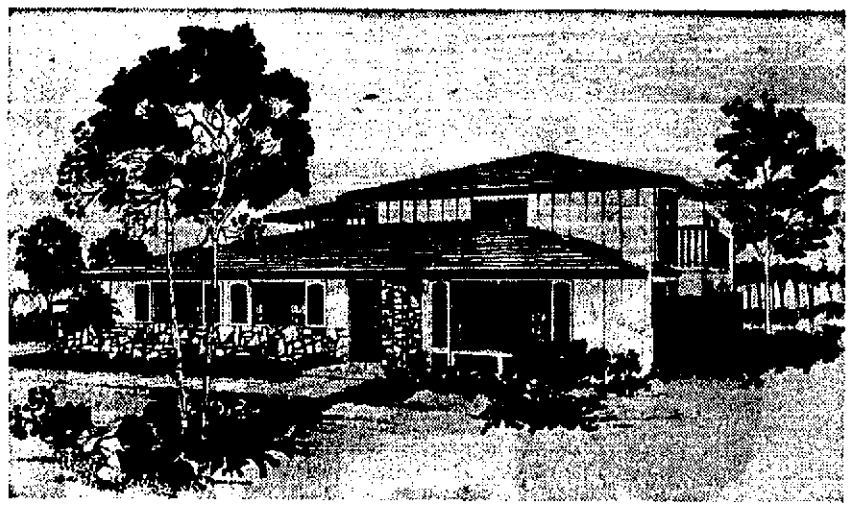

Success Story Spun by Synthetic Fibers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yarn spun from synthetic fibers is spinning a success story of its own in the 1960s, according to a study of government figures made by a factoring and financing firm.

The survey shows that output of man-made spun yarns nearly doubled—with a 94% increase of 114,296,000 pounds—from 1960 to 1965, says Meinhard-Commercial Corp., a subsidiary of C.I.T. Financial Corp. During the same period, the company says, woolen spun yarn rose 12%, combed cotton 14% and carded cotton 6%.

STARTED IN WILMINGTON

Der Wienerschnitzel in Torrance Offices

Franchise organizations are proving a boon to sellers of undeveloped land whose prospects for a sale have grown bleak in recent months—if prerequisites of population density and high traffic count are present.

One franchising group, Der Wienerschintzel International, has xepanded in six years from a glamorized hot stand in Wilmington to 51 franchised locations and is contracting leases not only throughout California, but has expanded into regional markets of Houston, El Paso, Phoenix and Denver.

Formerly headquartered in Long Beach, Der Wienerschnitzel International this month moved its administrative operation into a new building at 1113 W. Carson St., Torrance.

* * * *

THE NEW offices comprise 4,000 square feet of space, floor-planned by interior designer Geri Coffin to meet the demands of the specialized operation. Facilities for a full-time design engineer, special desk space and phones for supervisors, and a large work area for cost-control equipment had to be provided, in addition to executive and general offices. Furnishings were also by Miss Coffin.

The highly successful franchising organization, whose management team averages under 3 0years o fage, has set a goal of at least one new opening each week. The present 36 Los Angeles-Long Beach area franchises will be expanded to 100, company officials say, and 2,000 is the ultimate goal nationally.

* * * *

YOUTHFUL enterprise is expected to make innovations—and thirthyish President John N. Galardi has come up with a lease arrangement that has great appeal to land owners and real estate brokers.

Ded Wienerschnitzel considers only sites where the owner will build to suit, and the parent company—not the franchisee—assumes responsibilty for a 20-year lease. This assurance of financial stability is in addition to the fact that during its history no franchisee of the company has failed or has even been willing to offer his franchise on the resale market.

* * * *

REAL ESTATE brokers are happily cooperative because of the insistence by the firm's real estate director, J. Kirk Robison, a former San Bernardino realtor, that the entire real estate commission goes to the broker.

Locations must have high density of population around the site and a traffic count of at least 15,000 cars per day. Proximity to major shopping centers ,high schools and colleges contributes to the success of the operation.

Unlike some food-purveying franchisors, Der Wienerschnitzel does not shy away from other drive-ins.

The limited menu of 4 "main entrees" of Chili Dogs, Kraut Dogs, Mustard Dogs and Polish Dogs—all but the last priced at 15 cents—makes Der Wienerschcnitzel a unique operation that thrives very well even next door to another food drive-in, experienec has proved.

JAMES FURGERSON

F and M Opens in Lakewood

James Furgerson, an 11-year employe of Farmers and Merchants Banks, heads the company's new Lakewood facility as vice-president and manager. The bank will be open Monday for its first full day.

Appointed to assist Furgerson with the administration of the 5,000-square foot branch office is Lucien M. Biggs, formerly a branch manager at the Centinella Valley Bank and an assistant at the Pacific State Bank in Hawthorne and the downtown Los Angeles office.

* * * *

SINCE JOINING F and M as an operations trainee in 1955, Furgerson, a graduate of Long Beach City College and Amarillo College, has held the posts of assistant vice-president of the F and M bank in Garden Grove and loan officer at the downtown Long Beach branch.

In addition to full-day schedules, Monday through Friday, the new bank, located in the Lakewood Shopping Center, will be open for business from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays on a trial basis "to see whether the public and the customers need that service," said G. A. Walker, president of the downtown Long Beach office.

Realty Board to Hear Trio

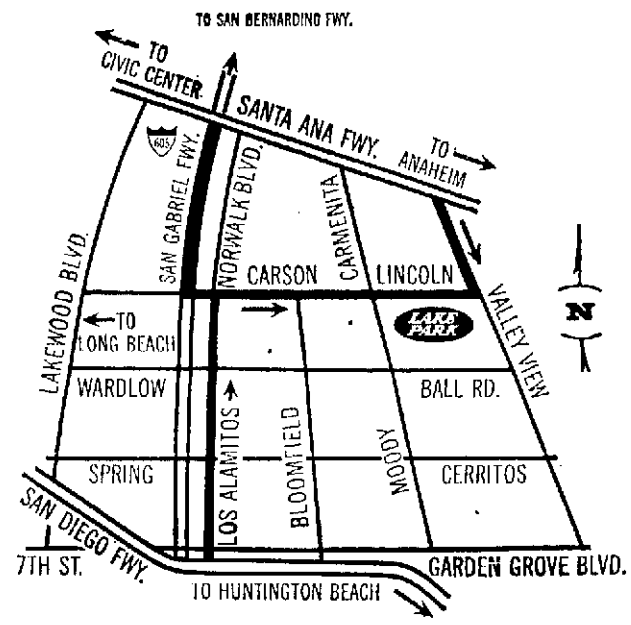

Tuesday's 7:15 a.m. breakfast meeting of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors at Crown Cafeteria will feature entertainment by The Modern Jazz Trio, category winners in the 1964 and 1965 Southwestern Youth Music Festivals, according to Marguerite Waters, August program chairman. Winners of the board's annual essay contest will receive their awards.

Fresca Gives Boost to Coca-Cola Sales

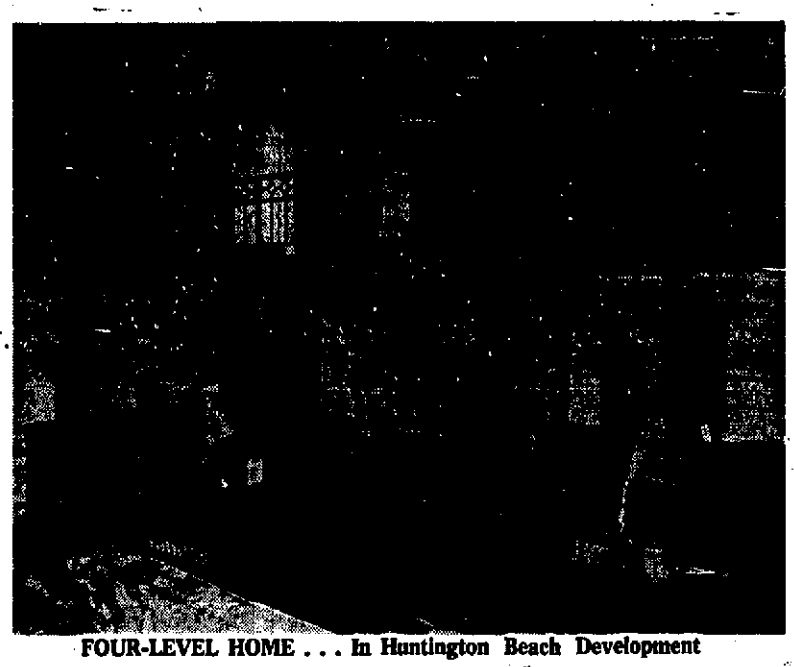

Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Los Angeles raised its quarterly dividend to 35 cents from 30 cents per share, the fifth increase in the past four years.

The second quarter dividend is payable Aug. 25 on shares of record Aug. 9, A. D. MacDonald, president, reported.

Net income for the three months ended June 30 rose to a new high of $751,456 or $1.12 per share from $511,058 or 79 cents per share for the like period a year ago.

For the first six months, net income was a record $1,204,369 or $1.53 a share, up 32% from $773,812 or $1.19 per share in 1965. Per share figures are based on 671,196 shares outstanding in 1966 versus 650,196 shares in 1965.

The strong sales gain, said MacDonald, reflects the early success of Fresca, the company's newest product introduced in early May.

Low-Interest Home Program Offered at Grant Projects

A $1 million commitment is available for low interest loans on home resales at Robert H. Grant and Co., it was announced today by Richard Owen, executive vice president.

Grant's commitment allows loan interest rates of 5¾%, substantially below the current market, Owen said. The $1 million is set aside for financing present homes of those buying a new house under the firm's 72-hour trade-in program at three developments: Stardust Park, Fairway Park and Huntington Crest.

Under the trade-in plan, a price is agreed upon in advance by the homeowner based on the highest actual FHA inspection and appraisal.

According to Owen, proceeds from the sales belong entirely to the seller and any amount over and above the down payment on a new Grant home is returned in cash other than normal selling costs.

* * * *

AVAILABILITY of funds, committed prior to the tightening money market for refinancing, saves the homeowner additional dollars as well as easing the sale of his present home, says Owen.

Over 70% of new buyers have traded in their homes under this program which is applicable at Stardust Park, a $52 million, 1,600-home community at La Palma; Fairway Park, $40 million, 1,000-home project in Cypress; and the newest community, Huntington Crest, located in Huntington Beach.

Huntington Crest features one- and two-story and a quad-level design available in three, four or five bedrooms and priced from $31,950 to $36,950 with 5¾% FHA, VA or CAL-VET financing.

Huntington Crest may be reached from the San Diego Freeway, Beach Blvd. off-ramp south to Yorktown and left to the project.

Former Professor Heads U.S. Education Project

DR. RICHARD SCHUTZ
In U.S. Agency Post

A native Long Beacher, Dr. Richard Schutz of 5140 Walton St., is the director of a new educational research and development laboratory being established by the U.S. Office of Education in Los Angels.

The 37-year-old former professor of educational psychology at Arizona State University (Tempe) heads the Southwest Regional Laboratory for Educational Research and Development, which has a grant of $902,725 from the federal agency for its first half-year of operation.

It will study problems of education in Southern California, Arizona and southern Nevada, with special emphasis on problem-solving and communications skills for preschool and primary grade children. Another assignment is to produce teaching aids and develop instructional methods to be tested in schools.

Dr. Schutz attended Long Beach Poly High School, UCLA and Columbia University and served with the Strategic Air Command during the Korean War. His professional honors include membership in Phi Beta Kappa and American Psychological Association.

CONSUMERS Worries Mount With Income

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Despite continuing and widespread income gains, the American consumer is not as optimistic about general business conditions as he was six months ago, according to the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan.

Worry over inflation, falling stock prices and auto sales, higher interest rates and the prospect of tax increases caused the SRC Index of Consumer Sentiment to drop from 102.6 to 95.8 during the six-month period, says the SRC. Base year for the index is 1956.

Landmark's Three-Car Garage Has Big Appeal to Home Buyer

INTERIOR VIEW OF LANDMARK HOME

According to the sales manager, R. C. Morrison, the feature really appreciated at the East Lakewood Landmark homesite is the spacious three car garage.

Area homeseekers are invited to visit the model area in the city of La Palma. Located at the intersection of Moody Street and La Palma Avenue, this newest Landmark Homes community will eventually comprise some 360 homes. All homes are two story. Features include underground utilities, carpeting, fencing, landscaping, sprinklers, walk-in closets and the usual long list of Landmark Homes exclusives.

* * * *

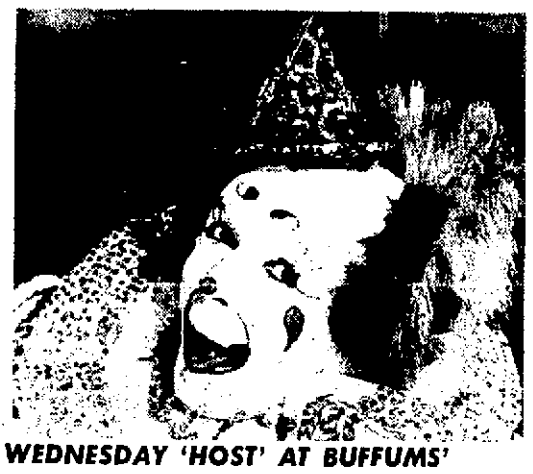

A GENERAL PLAN for developing La Palma as the community of the "Ideal American City" has been approved by city councilmen. The development of residential, commercial and industrial land is expected by 1975. The master plan calls for 490 acres of low-density residential housing, 88 acres in "town house" construction and 69 acres in high density apartments.

La Palma is considered prime residential property, located between the famed facilities of Disneyland and Knotts Berry Farm, in the heart of a rapidly developing commercial area.

* * * *

OTHER FEATURES include: Magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces, preparation for air conditioning, custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices at the homesite begin at just $28,500 with an excellent 5% down plan offered. All terms are completely flexible. For information phone 826-0640.

Sparkling Addition to Belmont Shore

ULTRA-MODERN OFFICE STRUCTURE . . . . . Belmont Savings Moves Headquarters

Belmont Savings and Loan Association is operating from the newly-completed main office, 5200 East Second St. in Long Beach. To avoid any interruption of service, all office operations were transferred to the new building during the weekend.

William J. Crawford, president of the $125-million dollar Association reported that the new 12,000 square foot building includes the most modern computerized equipment and facilities for customer service.

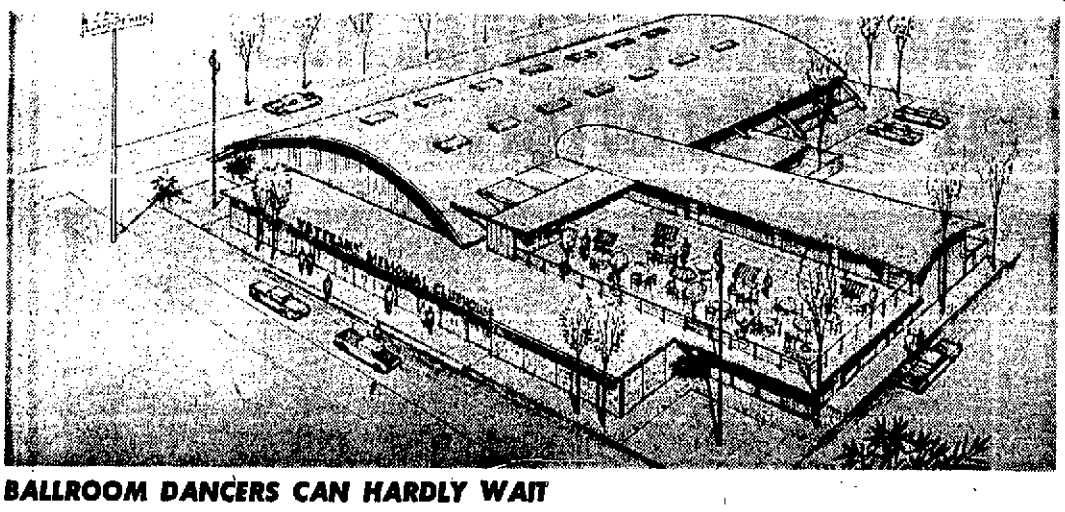

Among the new customer service facilities is a drive-in TV Auto Teller. Account holders can talk directly to and view the teller on closed circuit TV, and complete all savings transactions from their cars. "Our TV Auto Teller now provides three extra hours of service each day as well as drive-in convenience," Crawford said. "It's available from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday."

A SPECIAL FEATURE of the new building is the Belmont Room, a community room which will be available to local civic and club groups for meetings. Arrangements for the use of the Belmont Room, which has a capacity of 75 people, may be made by contacting the office management at Belmont Savings.

An unusual architectural feature is a giant free-standing, poured-in-place concrete and steel vault which also contains safe deposit boxes for customer use.

Belmont Savings old offices at Nieto and Second streets are being demolished, after which the ground will be converted into a parking lot for the use of the new building.

BALLROOM DANCERS CAN HARDLY WAIT

Biggest ballroom west of the Mississippi River (100x200 feet) is among features of upcoming Veterans Memorial Clubhouse to be built on 2½-acre lot near Spring Street and Atlantic Avenue, and "dispossessed" patrons of razed Cinderella Ballroom have been promised thrice-weekly use of facilities when completed about next March 15. Architect for $185,000 clubhouse is Harry W. Ganstrom, AIA; builder is Melvin S. Jensen Construction Co., Inglewood. Besides ballroom, clubhouse will contain banquet hall or meeting room and outdoor dining terrace.

Kaiser Cement to Build Plant in Seattle Area

OAKLAND (AP) — Kaiser Cement & Gypsum Corp. has reported first-phase construction of a new cement manufacturing plant at Seattle, Wash., will start before the first of the year.

A $3.5-million complex of cement storage silos will be erected on a Duwamish Waterway plant site acquired last year on long term lease from the Seattle Port Commission, said President Peter S. Hass.

He said the silo complex will be the first unit in a multimillion-dollar cement manufacturing facility at Seattle to replace the Bellingham, Wash., plant, which is being sold to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The new silos will be supplied by ship and barge until the new Seattle plant is in operation.

Bids Called on North Long Beach Units

By KEN CHILCOTE

R & B Development Co., Los Angeles, is calling for bids from various trades and material firms on the 318-unit apartment complex planned at 6465 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach.

The development, which will cost an estimate $3,-300,000, will also include a recreation building, tennis pro shop and tennis courts and two swimming pools.

Part of the project will be three stories, containing 270,000 square feet, some of two levels will contain 170,000 square feet; a two-story and basement area of 11,000 square feet and a one-story area of 2,000 square feet.

* * * *

ANOTHER MAJOR construction project in this area upon which bids have been called is the Los Alamitos High School, to be built at Los Alamitos Blvd. and Cerritos Ave.

Estimated cost of the school will be $3,360,000. It will be made up of 10 buildings, all one-story, containing 180,000 square feet. Bids will be accepted Aug. 8 by the Anaheim Union High School District. Completion of the school is planned within 400 days of the awarding of the contract.

given utmost importance in the $2,500,000 Stonewood Village apartment building to be erected on Lakewood Blvd. at Ceila Ave., Downey, by Hal Weisman and Roy Norris, Los Angeles, the owners.

There will be 150 units in the big complex but car parking for 225 cars will be provided in a separate parking structure which will contain 40,000 square feet of both above and below ground parking. The 150 units will be in three-story and partial basement construction containing 125,000 square feet. The project also contains recreation rooms and tennis courts.

* * * *

AMONG OTHER pending construction projects in the area are:

IRVINE — Bids will be taken Aug. 8 on construction of University Park Elementary School on Matthews Street. It will be a 37,187 square foot structure with the cost estimated at $713,000.

NORWALK — The Norwalk-LaMirada Unified School District board will receive bids Tuesday on construction of 21 additional classrooms and some service structures at the William N. Neff High School, 14800 Alondra Blvd., with the cost estimated at $900,000.

NORWALK — Key Management Inc., Downey, has called for bids from various trades on construction of a 152-unit apartment complex and two swim pools at Studebaker Road and Imperial Highway. Estimated cost of the two-story 235,000 square foot project is $1,500,000.

ORANGE — Peter Kiatt Sons Co., Arcadia, was awarded a $9,281,790 contract by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California for construction of the Robert B. Diemer filteration plant, warehouse and shop building at 3972 Valley View Ave., north of Yorba Linda.

MOUNTAIN VALLEY — Griffith Co., Costa Mesa, had the low bid of $87,487 for the improvement of Warner Avenue and Shard Street to Brookhurst Avenue, a city project.

LOS ALAMITOS — The Orange County Board of Supervisors will open bids Aug. 15 on a bridge on Los Alamitos Boulevard over Coyote Creek. Estimated cost is $50,000.

LA HABRA—Leon Shanahan Co., Santa Ana, is awaiting city approval on a subdivision of 21 lots on five acres between Beach Boulevard and Glencliff Street, north of Cliffield Street.

EL TORO — The county has called for bids at an estimated cost of $25,000 to install traffic signals and lighting at the El Toro Road and Paseo Da Valencia intersection.

Board to Meet

The next regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Los Altos Association will be held at the Association office, 2001 Palo Verde Ave. at 7:30 p.m. Monday. Stephen J. Harney, president, will preside.

New Flag Flying Over Port of L.B.

The Port of Long Beach has a new flag.

The flag was hoisted in front of the Harbor Department Administration Building by the president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

Designer of the flag, Charles Beeson, vice-president and art director for Curtis and Associates, selected a color scheme of gold, blue and white.

The gold represents the sunny skies, and white curving strip signifies the breaking white caps on a rolling sea, and the blue duplicates the color of the offshore waters, Beeson said.

A replica of a globe in the upper corner near the staff recognizes the city's claim to the title of "The International City."

R. W. CARITHERS
In Leisure World Post

Carithers to Leisure World Post

New president of Leisure World Foundation, effective Monday, is Robert W. Carithers, who succeeds Kenneth E. BeLieu in the position.

Announcement was made by William G. Simon, chairman of LWF's board of trustees, who said BeLieu will continue as a member of the foundation's board. BeLieu, former undersecretary of the Navy, recently was elected director of Babcock Electronics Corp., Costa Mesa.

Carithers, former national hospital consultant and economist for Leisure World Foundation, joined the organization in December of 1964 and has served in such capacities as senior vice president, finance and director of medical administration.

In his new position he will lead a staff that sponsors and operates Rossmoor Leisure World communities located in Seal Beach, Laguna Hills and Walnut Creek in California; Wheat, Md.; Cranbury, N. J. and a sixth being planned for central Illinois.

At the completion of the communities, a total Leisure World population of 175,000 —52 years of age and over— is expected.

Lone Ranger Again Premier Home Host

The Lone Ranger, popular hero of radio, greets visitors personally every Sunday at the Premier Homes Development in Stanton. He and Tonto, have autographed pictures and silver bullets for the youngsters.

Of great interest to buyers is the distinctive styling of the Villa Roma model. Picturesque design taken from the best of early Mediterranean architecture give this popular three bedroom, two bath home outstanding quality and lasting beauty. Used brick facing and graceful arch entry accent the Mediterranean influence.

* * * *

FOR ADDED individuality, new home-owners may convert the finish Premium room either into extra bedrooms and bath, or recreation room with wet bar. Located in the heart of Orange County, close to schools and shopping centers, Premier Homes have already established an amazing sales pace.

Prices range from $24,500 to $27,900, with excellent financing still available. The Lone Ranger invites his friends to meet him and Tonto on Sunday, and to inspect the five furnished models, on Chapman Avenue east of Beach Boulevard in Stanton.

From the Garden Grove or San Diego Freeways, take the Beach Blvd. turnoff north to Chapman, right to the furnished models.

Apartment Assn. Meets Monday

BELLFLOWER — Norman Moore, air conditioning consultant, will be speaker at the Los Cerritos Valley Apartment Owners Association meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in offices of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, 10140 Alondra Blvd.

Officers of the association are Francis Humphries, president; Robert Porter, first vice president; Walter Poindexter, second vice president; Lawrence Poulin, sergeant-at-arms, and Ruth Jackman, secretary-treasurer.

Ample Mortgage Funds Available

Charles A. Wellman, president of Equitable Savings and Loan Association, says his organization has a "substantial supply of funds" available for making prime home loans in both the Long Beach and San Fernando Valley areas.

In a letter to all savings account holders, he said the recent acquisition of $120 million of selected assets of Van Nuys Savings and Loan Association has proved to be a very beneficial move for account holders of Equitable Savings.

* * * *

"THE ASSETS acquired represent $100 million of selected mortgage loans on properties which we inspected prior to purchase and which we felt would be beneficial to our total investment portfolio," Wellman said. "None of these mortgage loans were delinquent.

"Ownership of these loans by Equitable accomplishes several commendable results.

"All savings account holders now enjoy a greater geographic diversification of investment. The loans are now disbursed over a much larger area, resulting in a more widespread coverage of Southern California's total economy.

SPACIOUS LIVING ROOMS FEATURED IN MANOR TOWN HOUSES

Manor Town House Dwellers Have Fun Facilities at Home

"Residents of The Manor Town Houses are not faced with jammed freeway traffic or overwhelming crowds of people when they wish to enjoy their favorite recreational pursuits," says Hal Parham, sales director of the Norwalk condominium. "The families and their friends are able to enjoy a year 'round schedule of recreational facilities located within the community."

The extensive athletic facilities are especially designed for all age groups and interests. They include Olympic-sized heated swimming pool, wading pool, football field, Little League baseball field, basketball and tennis courts, enclosed and fully equipped playgrounds, picnic areas and a $150,000 Town Hall and Community Clubhouse which has a number of hobby rooms, including a library.

* * * *

EACH OF THE facilities is jointly owned by the residents and maintained for them by professionals under a low monthly maintenance fee. The fee is levied by the community's elected board of governors.

The Manor Town Houses feature three, four and five-bedroom floor plans, all with two baths.

Fully furnished model homes and recreational facilities can be seen on Bloomfield Avenue, just south of Imperial Highway, one mile north of the Santa Ana Freeway. The model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. until dark.

Young Families Like Tanglewood

Young families with children are choosing Tanglewood Townhomes because of its variety of recreation facilities, and they show a decided preference for the four-bedroom "Waverly" model, according to Cecil Bishop, sales manager for the Cypress community.

The two-story "Waverly" floor plan features a master bedroom suite with separate dressing room, plus three other bedrooms and 2½ baths. In addition to a full size living and dining area, each of which features separate sliding glass patio doors, there is also a large family room with a ceramic counter-top bar serving to divide it from the kitchen.

* * * *

KITCHENS in all Tanglewood Townhomes include built-in automatic ranges and ovens, as well as automatic dishwashers. Also featured is the very latest in "Total-home" central air conditioning, which heats in winter and cools in summer.

Prices start at $17,950. Both one and two-story models are offered in a choice of six different floor plans and 27 exterior stylings. Financing programs include: VA no down payment, FHA, Cal-Vet and conventional.

* * * *

TANGLEWOOD offers its residents an active recreation program centered around its three swimming pools and two community clubhouses.

Tanglewood is reached from the Long Beach area by taking Spring Street east to Bloomfield. From the San Diego freeway, take the Los Alamitos turnoff north to Wardlow, then right. From the Santa Ana freeway, take the Valley View turnoff; travel south to Lincoln; then right to Moody; then left to Ball and right to models.

GRAND OPENING—UNIT II

Like that first cup of coffee. All Influential Homes in Orange have an automatic coffee timer which will have that important first cup ready as soon as you are. A little thing, true. But a sample of the way we do things.

You'll notice a lot more little things: A special place to store the boat or camper. A built-in toaster, can-opener, bathscale. Garages in the rear on many homes (that means more playing room for your own important little things!). A wall around the whole community. Modern materials which require little upkeep. A kitchen designed to save you steps with vegetable bins, pan drawers, pantries. There are plenty of big things too. Exciting, new floor-plans. Concrete driveways leading to a roomy, two-car garage with a laundry tray and plenty of room for a workshop.

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

REFRIGERATED AIR CONDITIONING INCLUDED IN THE PRICE. Super-sized closets in the right places, and lots of them. A large washer-dryer area near the kitchen. Decorative block wall fencing enclosing back and side yards. Underground Utilities. We've thought of other important things. Like location. In one of the nicest parts of Orange, you'll enjoy the short commuting time to job centers. There are a lot of reasons you should seriously consider an Influential Home for your next one. Some big. Some little. All important.

BE AN EARLY BIRD! First comers get the pick of lot locations, first choice of plans and exteriors that suit you and your family best! Remember, there are only a limited number of New Executive Series homes, so come out today. Take advantage of our low interest rates and low opening prices. Be protected should rising costs necessitate an increase in prices later.

Spacious rooms, elegant baths and dressing areas/Glamour kitchens with all built-ins, luminous ceiling, and decorative ceramic tile counter and bar tops/100% continuous filament Nylon carpeting.

La Paz Home Buyers Start Move-Ins Soon

DESIGNED FOR CALIFORNIA LIVING . . . La Paz Home

Families will begin moving into La Paz Homes, Mission Viejo Aug. 22, reports the sales manager, James Manley.

Each of the five model La Paz Homes was designed to provide all the amenities found in much more expensive homes and with appeal to a wide range of discriminating buyers.

The four-bedroom, two-bath, San Angelo is characteristic of this regard for comfortable family living.

The San Angelo is informal in character and has a separate utility "mud-room" opening to the garage in the bedroom wing. Thus, the laundry facilities are close to where the children remove their dirty clothes.

* * * *

THE KITCHEN FLOWS off to one side of the family room and forms a projection on the rear with large corner counter-to-ceiling windows opening to the view. This affords the mother complete visual control over the yard for supervision of the younger children.

The fireplace in the family room is eight feet wide, extends from the floor to the ceiling, and has a raised hearth. Next to the family room is a bedroom that has been designed so that it can function as a den and has sliding glass doors to the rear yard.

The master bedroom has a wardrobe storage space 10 feet high and 16 feet wide. Its bathroom allows access from the rear yard for use as a dressing room.

* * * *

THE FIVE La Paz Homes offer a choice of 15 exterior designs, including the three-bedroom San Juan, the four-bedroom San Angelo, the two-story, four-bedroom San Lucas, the two-story, three-bedroom San Martine, and the national award-winning four-bedroom, split-level San Lorenzo.

The model homes are on Chrisanta Drive, Mission Viejo and are priced from $20,950 to $27,500. Mission Viejo is 12 miles southeast of Santa Ana and may be reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway, taking the off ramp at La Paz Road.

Glen Mar Executive Series Is Appealing

"To accommodate home buyers at the site of our new Glen Mar Executive Series of homes, we have opened a second sales office on the building site of the unit," said Ron Walker, sales manager of the Macco Leadership Homes community, located in Huntington Beach.

The new sales office is located on Magnolia between Garfield and Adams, in one of the model homes. The main Glen Mar sales office is on Brookhurst near Adams in Huntington Beach.

* * * *

THE NEW EXECUTIVE Series homes are creating a great interest among home-seekers, according to Walker. "These large homes designed for family living offer up to five bedrooms with 2,060 square feet for only $23,950. With Macco's Rising Executive Plan, a new Executive Series home may be purchased with a low down payment and long-term financing. Another feature, which appeals to home buyers, is the location near beach and recreational areas and the easy access to freeways."

Attractive shake shingle roofs are featured on the new homes. Among the custom features included in the purchase price of the Glen Mar homes are carpeting, landscaped front lawn with sprinklers, side and rear fencing, award-winning kitchen complete with dishwasher, fireplace and decorator wallpaper. Glen Mar homes are priced from $19,950 for a three bedroom, two-bath home.

Gabbert to Douglas Key Position in L.B.

Appointment of Tom Gabbert as vice president-financial management of the Douglas Aircraft Division, Long Beach, was announced by Jesse L. Jones, vice president-general manager of the division.

Gabbert succeeds Harold E. Showalter, recently appointed vice president-controller of the Douglas Aircraft Co.

A 25-year veteran of the company, Gabbert has been vice president-director financial management of the Douglas Missile & Space Systems Division, Huntington Beach.

* * * *

JOINING DOUGLAS in 1939, he became a supervisor in the reimbursement department at the former Long Beach Division. After two years service with the Armed Forces during World War II, Gabbert returned to Long Beach, where he became supervisor in accounting.

In 1951 Gabbert transferred to the Douglas facility in Tulsa as controller. He was named controller at the former El Segundo Division in 1958 and, when the Missile & Space Systems Division was formed in 1961, he was appointed controller of that organization.

John L. Sigrist, who had been vice president and deputy director of financial management, succeeds Gabbert in the Huntington Beach plant.

Bellflower Eastridge Offers Owner Chance for Better Home

TRI-LEVEL AMONG MODELS . . . In Bellflower Eastridge

At a recent seminar of homebuilders, the sales director of Ray Watt's Bellflower Eastridge, John Joyce commented, "presently nearly 40% of California's population is in the greater Los Angeles area.

"By the turn of the century nearly 40 million persons are expected to reside in this state. For these reasons, home appreciation is certain. But the time to buy is now, before home prices go even higher."

"Bellflower Eastridge has eliminated many of the obstacles to home buying in the Los Angeles area. With our exclusive trade-in program, a homebuyer can move-up to a luxury Bellfower Eastridge home with no cash—a trade-in of the present home is sufficient. Long-term, low-cost financing is another advantage being offered. This results in an unusual cash savings to the homebuyer in interest charges," noted Joyce.

* * * *

THE TRI-LEVEL Bellflower Eastridge homes are priced from only $35,000 with a variety of award-winning floor plans available. Included in the low purchase is a Balanced Power kitchen with built-in O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, automatic dishwasher, food waste disposer, and wall-to-wall 100% continuous filament nylon carpeting.

Six furnished models are on Hacienda Avenue and Grand Avenue, just two blocks north and east of the main intersection of Woodruff and Artesia boulevards.

Port Publication Receives Award

For attaining a high degree of excellence in the preparation of the Port of Long Beach's annual report, "Harbor Highlights," Harbor Department officials have been given the Gold Letterhead Award.

Thomas E. Jeffry, representing the S. D. Warren Paper Co., donor of the award, made the presentation to William A. Harrington, who was president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners during the time the report was published.

* * * *

APPROXIMATELY 50,000 copies of the four-color booklet are in the process of being distributed to port customers and prospects, according to Alvin K. Maddy, acting as editor and publisher of the booklet for the department.

John Curtis and Associates of Long Beach provided the artwork and preparation for the award-winning report.

Only four other awards for such publications have been made during the past two years, reports the donors.

Health License Deadline Here

Another tax deadline has arrived — almost — as the seventh month of the year comes to a close.

Public Health license renewals were to be made by Aug. 1, according to Harold J. Ostly, Los Angeles County tax collector.

Renewal notices were mailed in recent weeks and remittances postmarked later than Monday — tomorrow — are subject to a 25% delinquent penalty.

Those requiring Public Health licenses include owners or operators of boarding and apartment houses of five or more units and operators of food handling, processing or preparation businesses, such as restaurants and food markets.

Silverado Days Entries Sought

More business and industry participants are being sought for Buena Park's ninth annual Silvarado Days parade on Oct. 15, chairman Wayne Sheppard reported Saturday. Applications for float entries may be obtained from the Buena Park Chamber of Commerce.

Sheppard, who heads the committee for the second straight year, said the 1966 parade theme will be "Silverado Days: A Salute to the Past, a Promise for the Future."

American Honda Sales Rise 37%

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — American Honda Motor Co. for the first time released the results of its annual U.S. sales and reported a 37% increase over Fiscal 1965.

For the year ended June 30, 1966, American Honda, wholly-owned subsidiary of Honda Motor Co. Ltd. of Japan, reported unaudited sales of $106 million compared to sales of $77.2 million the previous fiscal year.

American Honda is the distribution organization for Honda motorcycles, which it imports from Japan. There are more than 1,700 Honda dealers in the United States.

The company predicted its sales would exceed $133 million during the 1966-67 fiscal year.

Rowen Heads Rand Corp.

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Henry S. Rowen, who recently resigned as Assistant Director of the Bureau of the Budget, has been named president of Rand Corporation.

Rowen succeeds Franklin R. Collbohm, who held the top job in the non-profit, research-and-development firm since its founding in 1948. Collbohm will continue to serve as special consultant to Rand.

Following his association with Rand as an economist from 1950 to 1961, Rowen was Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs until 1965.

Courts Building Progressing

From Our Los Angeles Bureau

Construction of the $4.4 million Torrance - South Bay County Building is more than 60% complete, and the structure will be ready for occupancy in mid-march, Supervisor Burton W. Chace said after touring the five-story building in the Torrance Civic Center.

"Not only will it be a beautiful structure, it will be one of the most functional facilities of its kind," he said.

* * * *

THE BUILDING will house 11 Superior Courts and four Municipal Courts. Space also is provided for offices of the county clerk, marshal, Municipal Court clerk, juvenile traffic, district attorney and sheriff, as well as the law library.

The five-acre site, which was provided by the City of Torrance, offers parking for 244 cars plus sheriff's buses.

Under terms of the original contract, four floors will be completed by March. The fifth floor will be completed while the building is occupied.

Four-plex Apartments Proving Popular

With the public showing of the new Franciscan multiple apartments three weeks ago, the latest Bayport Financial Corp.'s development has met with instant success, it was announced by Richard Brown, president.

"The wonderful reception to our new multiple apartments," Brown stated, "has been proven out with 65% of apartments now sold out. "Easy to rent is the answer most owners of Franciscan four-plexes have given when questioned about their income property, according to Bill Gordan, sales manager for Bayport.

Gordon said his staff has contacted many buyers of the more than 75 Franciscan Balanced Power fourplexes sold in Garden Grove and Westminster the past three years, and the great majority have reported they have had no trouble in renting the three income units in their buildings.

"In fact, many Franciscan buyers now are considering the purchase of a new four-plex in our Anaheim project," he noted.

* * * *

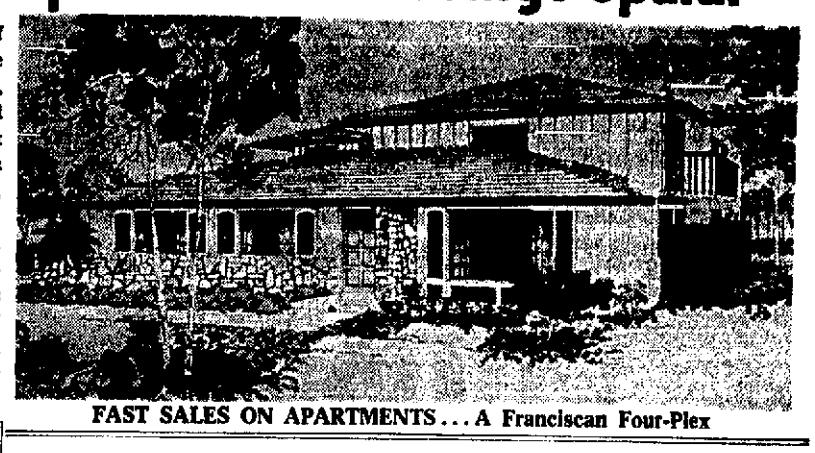

SALES TO DATE at the Anaheim Franciscan, on Lincoln between Euclid and Brookhurst, have been brisk, the sales manager said. The project is located near many large industrial plants and businesses, creating an excellent rental potential from employes seeking a residence near their place of work.

They contain a spacious three-bedroom two-bath owners suite, a pair of two-bedroom apartments (one with two baths, the other with one), and a one-bedroom unit.

The three-bedroom residence is described by Gordon as being as spacious and luxurious as a medium to higher priced single family dwelling.

* * * *

"A FRANCISCAN owner has everything he wants in a home, plus three additional apartments that can provide him with a lifetime income. The monthly rent from the three units will more than defray the loan payments," Gordon pointed out.

La Paz Homes

This is the San Martine. It is one of the La Paz Homes in Mission Viejo. There's a 16' high entryway leading to 1½ story double Spanish doors. Here is a large three bedroom, 2½ bath home that was designed for the family with children. The living room and formal dining room are zoned so that they are completely separated from the informal area which includes the family room. Both the living room and the family room have fireplaces. The architect-designed fireplace in the family room, with its Spanish influence and raised hearth, compliments the informal tone of this part of the home. Over-sized 4' wide stairs lead from the living room to the second level. There, you'll find a large 18' bedroom, a second bedroom, bath, and the master bedroom suite—with double door entry, separate dressing area, bath, and an outside balcony. The kitchen with floor to ceiling glass has a counter extension which forms a pass-through to the patio.

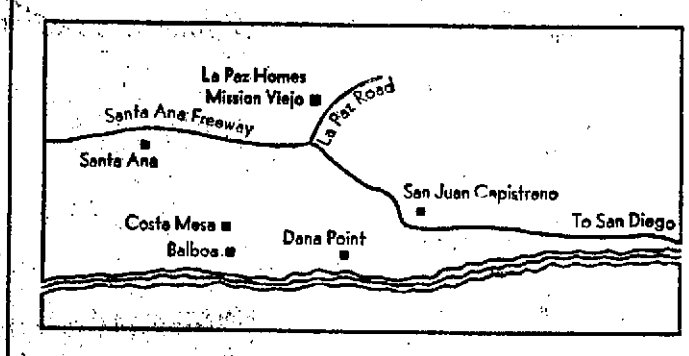

La Paz Homes are part of the first phase in the creative new community of Mission Viejo. This famous part of the historic O'Neill ranch reflects the beauty and grace of early days. The feeling and character of this peaceful land will be retained through proper respect of the rolling hills and mature trees. La Paz Homes have been designed with generous use of traditional elements such as wrought iron window grilles and railings and heavy rough sawn beams and trim on both interior and exterior.

All public buildings of Mission Viejo with their red Spanish tile roofs, are a delightful blend of traditional Spanish and Contemporary architecture. You'll notice this first in the Mission Viejo Post Office as you turn left into the La Paz Model Home area. The "mission bell" lamp posts are reminiscent of the El Camino Real. There are parks and riding trails and wide tree-lined avenues. Under construction are the high school, the shopping plaza, the Lutheran Church and the Mission Viejo Country Club, with a challenging 18-hole course designed by Robert Trent Jones. The Country Club will be available to the families of La Paz Homes.

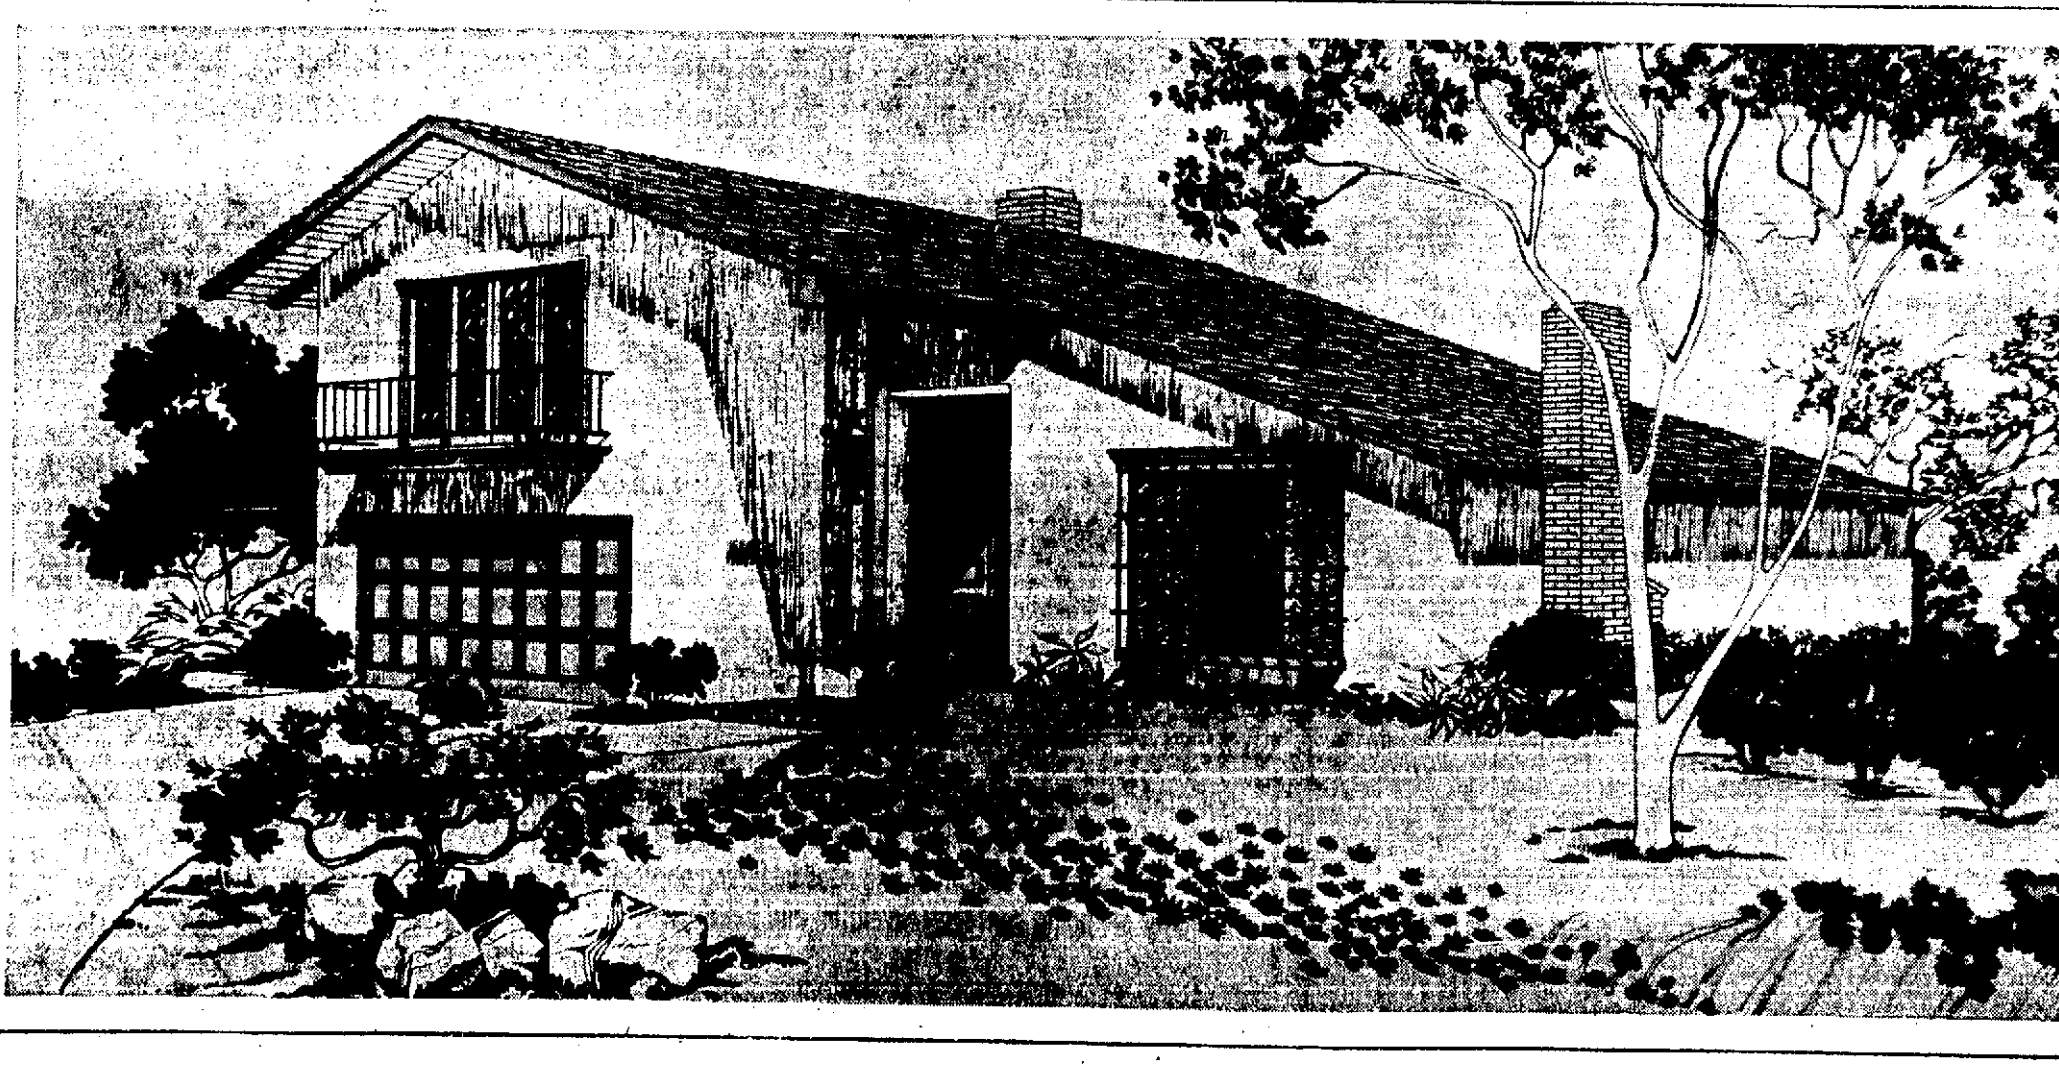

This is elegance you can afford. The price of San Martine is $27,500. This is the highest priced home of the six La Paz Homes in this series! Other models, designed with the same care and thought to fit every family need start from $20,950. Low 5¾% FHA financing is available.

Come to La Paz Homes in Mission Viejo today. Take the Santa Ana Freeway South to La Paz Road turn-off. Cross the bridge and enter Mission Viejo, California.

IT'S THEIR HERITAGE

The debutante is...

Beautiful: ...and the mirror proves young debs ARE lovely in the persons of Marsha Erb (left) and Susan Holmquist.

It was a night of gracious elegance in the manner of early California dons when Assistance League of Long Beach and its Las Hermanas auxiliary presented 18 debutantes Saturday at their seventh annual Presentation Ball.

The evening began with a party for the debs, their escorts and young men of the stag line in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Concurrently, league and auxiliary members and their guests gathered in the Embassy Room.

Then the men's floor committee directed guests through the corridor to the International Ballroom, glamorized with brilliant red drapes. In keeping with the theme, "Our California Heritage," the ballroom was transformed into a breathtaking early California mission with living pepper trees and blooming azaleas in a traditional courtyard setting.

An authentic Spanish fountain was centered in an archway where a covey of white doves hovered. Pillars, artfully decorated to resemble adobe brick, were entwined with bright red geraniums.

GUESTS WERE greeted by Mrs. Homer Grant, league president, and Mr. Grant, Mrs. David Eagleson, ball chairman, and Mr. Eagleson. Others in the receiving line were Messrs. and Mmes. Gene Bishop, Reginald Barden, Eugene Kirkpatrick, Earl Burns Miller, Richard Walker, Karl Ward, William Wilson, Wendell Wilson, Edwin Wilcox, Brewster Gray and Dr. and Mrs. Mark Kuffel.

Attired in formal white ball gowns, the debutantes—escorted by their fathers—were presented at 8:30 p.m. Dr. Earl Wallace was master of ceremonies; Marvin Cloyd announced the presentees.

Following the ceremony, dinner and dancing to the music of Joe Moshay's orchestra concluded the event.

Those presented, all daughters or granddaughters of members, were: Donna Jean Barden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Barden, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Barden.

N.Y. DOG WALKERS ARE CAT'S MEOW

Meanwhile, back in the jungle...

(Garment jungle, that is)

After reporting the fall-winter fashion collections in New York City recently, Mary Ellis Carlton was grounded several days by the airline strike. While waiting out a plane reservation, she collected some interesting sidelights on the world's biggest city—on its boutique shops, night spots, cloud-nudging penthouses and that roaring giant, the garment jungle. Here is her second in a series of articles on how New York lives.

By Mary Ellis Carlton
Director, Women's News

WALKING THE DOG
...a favorite pastime in Manhattan

Some of the best-fed, most pampered, best-groomed New Yorkers are the four-legged variety.

In hand-knitted sweaters and jeweled collars, they strut in the most fashionable neighborhoods — their hair well-coiffed and often be-ribboned.

They're the poodle pup-ulation!

"A lot of 'em live better'n most of us New Yorkers," complained a cab driver as he swerved to miss an aristocratic female who pranced nonchalantly across the street with her nose in the air.

The canine charmer couldn't care less about all those honking contraptions with screeching wheels.

But the cute-looking girl straining at the other end of the leash was plenty concerned.

"Man . . . that was a close one!" barked the cab driver. "Her career would have ended then and there if anything had happened to that dog."

"What career?" I inquired.

(You can pick up worlds of interesting information from Manhattan cab drivers . . . all 30,000 of them! They're often described as "the oracles of New York.")

"She's a professional dog-walker," he explained. "Didn't you see that blazer jacket with the shield on it? She's one of Jim Buck's girls. He calls his company 'Jim Buck's Dogs—Fitness First.'"

MR. BUCK, it seems, collects ever-so-many bucks for the services of his corps of chic, pretty dog walkers . . . most of them college coeds.

"Boy, they're the cat's meow," said a cliff-dwelling bachelor who owns an intelligent, well-mannered Doberman pinscher named George.

He explained that, like thousands of other Manhattan dog owners who work all day, he wouldn't be able to keep his dog in town without the dog-walking service.

The girls take their canine charges on two-hour hikes each morning and each afternoon. Doormen at the various apartment buildings usually have

WILD WAVES

The arty set goes its swingin' way

By Iola Masterson
Society Editor

LONG BEACH Museum Association members pursue culture, sure. But they do it in such a swinging, un-long-hair-like ways they have a ball as they go about keeping up with current exhibits.

Louise (Mrs. Cliff) Millspaugh has taken over the gallery tour chairmanship from Sylvia (Mrs. Bill) Reid. Sylvia pioneered those fun excursions the past five years. Louise's first venture was this week's trip to the LA County Museum of Art to see the American Painting exhibition. All reservations for the charter bus tour into Angelsville were snapped up. As a result part of the overflow crowd was taken up by Virginia Benedict in her nine-passenger Greenbrier station wagon and the John Watkins filled their car to the brim with others.

As is customary, the gang zoomed up to a popular restaurant, this time General Lee's in Chinatown, for pre-exhibit cocktails and dinner. The restaurant blew a fuse just after they arrived so they chatted and sipped by candlelight for 20 minutes while electricity was restored and the food show could go on.

A few in the big crowd to see the exhibit on loan from the Metropolitan Museum and featuring two centuries of American art were Irvine and Norris Bernstein and guests, Shirley and Larry Kavanau, who missed the bus connection from Petroleum Club and hastened along in own car to join gang at Lee's. Also Emily Cottrell, Roger and Emily Coleman, Vera Goodrich, Lois McKibben.

Incidentally, membership in the association offers many privileges other than the art tours and is open to the public. Application forms are available at the desk of the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

LIFE-LONG friends having a high old time on a tour of the Caribbean and now home to tell about some ring-a-ding experiences are Shirley Holmes, 3665 Pine Ave., and Enid Cloper of Sunset Beach, both school teachers. Shirley is at Whaley Jr. High, Compton, and Enid at Pacifica High in Garden Grove. They flew to Miami and cruised on the Bahama Star to Nassau, The Bahamas.

The two didn't stop there. They were in St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, Kingston and Ocho Rios in Jamaica and Haiti. In Ocho Rios they took the famous river raft ride and were caught in a wild storm with lightning and thunder booming all around them. Enid had planned to visit with relatives in Miami before returning so they didn't travel home together.

Haven't managed to reach Enid or her mother but Shirley's mother told me her trip home was difficult due to the airlines' strike. She was, of course, passenger on standby and came home, of all things, via San Diego with frequent stops in such places as Shrevesport, Tampa, etc., ets., etc., on a hedge-hopping flight like olden days.

SPARKLING champagne and midnight buffet supper given by Lloyd and Evelyn Whaley topped the evening with a crescendo flourish Tuesday following summer's second Starlight Serenade concert in Recreation Park. Honored guests were night's conductor Harry Farbman of University of Indiana and Delcina Stevenson, featured soloist.

Evelyn's alma mater is U of I so she found particular pleasure in having the brilliant conductor from Indiana in her home.

Hit of the night was Evelyn's 80-year-old aunt, Melania Steffan of San Diego. She is a lady of Austrain descent with great wit and charm. Other linguists present, like Judy Maypes, there with husband, Frank, Dr. Alex and Luba Kadvany, chairman of the concert, chattered with her in native tongues.

Others present in the crowd of 100 included Joe and Frieda Bishop, Leo and Virginia Benzini, Harry and Ellen Landis, Dave and Jane Smitheran (Lloyd's daughter and son-in-law), Ralph Duckwall, IU alum and now instructing at Cal State, Long Beach, Duane and Lucy Kuster, Father Donald Behm, Dr. Ed and Eva Harvey, Bill and Ethel Grant, and Harvey Waggoner.

Don't go way yet. Add Carl and Betty Dahlin, John Kocher, new manager, and his wife, Noble and Dixie Millie, John and Sue McDonald and Akira Endo, new director of LB Symphony, and wife, Susie.

LIVING IT up like millionaires on vacation in Ocho Rios, Jamaica (this seems to be my week for having stories on Caribbean travel), were Jess and Evelyn Grundy, "Chic" and Loraine Cicoletti, John and Betty Parkhurst and Jerry and Betty Mills. And how they managed to live like millionaires is a pretty fabulous story.

NO TICKEE, NO ART EXHIBIT, FOR LB ART MUSEUM ASSOCIATION GANG

It was the Mills who had heard how to do it. The four rented an estate complete with beautifully furnished mansion AND five servants—and the whole bit cost them $375 (for all eight) for a full two weeks. The estate, named Cottonwood, is a four and a half acre property right on the beach. Lushly wooded with tropical fruit trees, flowers and bushes it took them two days before one of the group roamed down the beach a little way and discovered there was a huge, modern hotel adjoining the property!

It seems there are many of these estates in Ocho Rios owned by wealthy New York area people which are leased out during the summer—the "off season," they tell me, in the Caribbean. Easterners go there in winter months.

They made arrangements to lease Cottonwood through Lord Ronald Graham, who has offices in that resort city and who handles a number of such estates. The five servants who manned the mansion were trained in the English manner. Meal service was formal with vacationers ringing the little silver bell as they were ready for each course. Weather was divine, sort of like Hawaii with trade winds et al.

Due to the airlines strike this gang had to get back by catching flights where and when they could.

IT'S DEFINITE and the date's been set. Joyce Dixon Sr. and John Sarver will be married Nov. 5 at Wayfarers Chapel with just members of their families present. A reception will follow at the home of Betty Arntzen. They are tearing down John's house on Appian Way and will rebuild a two story plus third floor sundeck to overlook Marina and Alamitos Bay which they hope will be completed before Christmas.

A "COME dressed to represent the place you're going on vacation" party was a fun-for-all affair at Tom and Beth Newton's lovely penthouse on E. Ocean the other night. It was a cocktails-potluck supper.

Oscar and Trudi Ullery, who are going fishing in the Sierras, wore fishermen's hipboots, old fishing hats, etc. Beth and Tom, who will go to Hawaii, had it easy in muu muu for her, aloha shirt for him. Ed and Virginia Alford wore Mexican straw hats to represent their proposed jaunt to South of. Judge Ken and Kay Sutherland will go to Europe but she cheated by wearing a muu muu.

Also present, but not costumed, were Gladee and Al Jewett and Ted Sten and Marge Demler.

ARE YOU a Sigma Nu alum?. Well, then, old buddy, you're invited to the alumni's annual pool party Aug. 20 and may bring your wife or date. Are you asking if you have a choice? No, old buddy, not if you're legally married and reasonably happy, you Sigma Nu you.

It's going to be a "juice" party and informal steak fry at the home of Pete and Dolores Lingle, 4250 Pacific Ave. Any alum new to the area or those who haven't participated before are urged to go and get acquainted. Make reservations with Bob or Sue Driscoll, 5530 Lonna Linda Dr., the Lingles or Gene or Thelma Dreckman.

There'll be a big volleyball match with Neil Philips, officiating. Those who want can come prepared to swim in the pool. It's a bring your own steak, potables, affair but they'd like some idea of how many to expect so give 'em a call.

LONG BEACH Yacht Club's annual Sweetheart cruise to Avalon was just that—a sweetheart of a trip. Most of the 100 present went over on their own boats or with friends on theirs. "Bud" and Debbie Weinheimer did the honors as chairmen and if they have taken a few days of pure rest they deserved it because dinner dance at the Country Club was indeed a smashing success.

Among pre-party cocktail parties was one given by Jonah and Helen Jones at exclusive Tuna Club at Avalon. Helen and Jonah's boat guests aboard their lovely cruiser, Nada III, were Clare and Helen Hamman.

Other well known yachters on cruise were Don and Dee Horton, Frank Rupert, Norm and Bea Scott, Lee and Bernie Perry, Johnny and Aggie Miller, John and Norma McIntire, Dick and Vera Brookins, Frank and Margaret Mansuy, plus, plus, plus.

Christian Women's Clubs plan joint session Aug. 9

Dale Evans, actress, singer, author and popular speaker, will be special guest when 600 members of Christian Women's Clubs of Long Beach and Palos Verdes join for a luncheon Aug. 9 at Ports O' Call Village, San Pedro.

Miss Evans has co-starred with her husband, Roy Rogers, in more than 35 films. She has written numerous books including "Angel Unawares." President of Hollywood Christian Group, she was honored with the title of "Churchwoman of the Year" in 1965.

Mrs. L. Kent Lueb of Long Beach and Mrs. Leslie Cox of Palos Verdes are co-chairmen of the luncheon. Mmes. Richard Dickinson, Long Beach, and Lois Leonard, Palos Verdes, are special features chairmen.

Others from Long Beach assisting are Mmes. Allen Ward, D. J. Peninger, Boyd Needham, William Coon Jr., Minnetta Plesscher and Robert E. Boze.

Ports O'Call shops also will present a style show of hostess gowns, resort and casual wear modeled by club members. Musical entertainment will be given by five members of a Hawaiian family.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Unchaperoned meetings bad idea

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My dad says it's "indecent" to have boys over during the day, that I have no self-respect, that I'll lose my reputation and should "hide my head in shame."

Dan is in the Air Force and works nights. He is stationed about 90 miles from here and I get to see him only on Saturday and Sunday nights. On Sundays he usually stays over with a cousin and comes out to see me on Mondays during the day.

Last Monday Dad came home and caught us. I was embarrassed and so was Dan. Dad made it very plain he didn't approve!

Don't you think it is more fitting to have a boy come to the house than go running around?

M.A.

DEAR M.A.:

I must admit it is in bad taste to have your boy friend over, when you are alone in the house. And, it might lead to temptations neither of you could resist.

It's much better to take a walk, go for a ride or just out for a snack.

I go along with your dad even though he put it a little stronger and blunter than I do.

M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I was going steady with a boy my mother didn't like. When we broke up she said I couldn't go steady any more till high school. That's at least a year away.

I didn't argue with her but I can't even have company without Mother listening to our conversation and watching every move I make. When I leave the house I get the same lecture every time: Don't talk to boys; don't get in anyone's car; don't smoke; don't get into trouble.

I've never done any of these things, but she always thinks the worst and I'm getting mad.

Don't you think she's overdoing it a bit?

DISTRUSTED

DEAR DISTRUSTED:

Your mother is doing now what she should have done when you started "going steady." Let's see, high school is a year away, so that makes you about 12 or 13 and you have already gone steady. You got an early start!

I think she's on the right track now except for the "don't talk to boys." Boys and girls should talk, and they will. No one can (or should) stop that, but right now that should be all.

She might be overdoing it a wee bit now but you've had too much freedom in the past.

M.M.

MRS. LONNIE GIBSON

OES to honor Mrs. Gibson

Mrs. A. E. Lonnie Gibson, deputy grand matron of 81st District, Grand Chapter, State of California, Order of Eastern Star, will be honored at an 8 p.m. reception Friday in Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

Given by Mrs. Gibson's chapter, Long Beach 173, with Mrs. Gene Harris as general chairman, the event will attract members and guests from each of the chapters within 81st District: Long Beach, Palos Verdes, Service, Searchlight, Catalina Island, Belmont Shore and Paramount. Mabel Jorstad and Earl Marshall will preside.

Among dignitaries will be Mrs. Grace M. Hoffman of Seachlight Chapter, grand matron in 1958; and Dalora K. Burnham of All States Chapter, grand patron in 1961.

MRS. RICHARD E. PARKS

Miss Parks now is Mrs. Franz

At home at 4105 Maybank Ave., Lakewood, awaits the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Parks (she is the former Nancy Ann Franz) upon their return from a honeymoon along the Northern California coast.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Parks, Lakewood, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Frantz, Torrance, exchanged vows Saturday in St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

The bride wore a gown of silk organza over satin styled with a bouffant train. Her attendants were Linda L. Payne, maid of honor; and Ima Hutchins, bridesmaid.

Larry Parks stood as best man, while Dmonic Pinterpe, Bill Franz and Ricky Franz ushered the 175 guests to their places.

A reception followed in Eagles Hall.

Oates-Hibbard

Hawaii was destination of a wedding trip made by former Long Beach residents, Terre-le Gay Hibbard and Jimmie Lee Oates. They exchanged vows Saturday in Holy Innocents Catholic Church.

Mrs. Joe D. Rhoads was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Beverly Baker, Linda Dyer, Julie Oates, Linda Short and Linda Welty.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Oates, Los Angeles, asked Stephen Diotte to be his best man. Ushering the more than 200 guests to their places were Steven Frieberger, Chris Clapper, Thomas Joyce, Robert McMackin and Leon Lawler.

Katey Rice was flower girl and Michael Oates was ring bearer.

Both are graduates of Polytechnic High School. He is serving a tour of duty in the U.S. Marine Corps and is stationed at Cherry Point, N.C.

Wallace-Smith

A gown of silk organza trimmed in re-embroidered Alencon lace was worn by Charlotte Ann Smith as she recited vows Saturday in First Lutheran Church with Richard A. Wallace.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Roy C. Smith, 2266 Seabright Ave., and the late Mr. Smith. The bridegroom is son of Mrs. Arthur P. Wallace, St. Louis, Mo., and the late Mr. Wallace.

PRECEDING the bride to the altar were Sheryl Thomason, maid of honor; Mrs. Charles Vuitel and Dorothea Schroeder, bridesmaids. Perry Rathke, best man; Charles Vuitel, Robert Simkowski, Clemens Luecker and Donald Pevehouse, ushers, completed the entourage.

Mrs. Wallace is a graduate of Concordia Teachers' College in Seward, Neb. Her husband, a member of Delta Chi, attended University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

Life under Big Top family tradition

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Behind the scenes, what is the circus performer like?

Does he enjoy his gypsy existence?

How does he raise and educate his children?

Would he like to settle down to a 9-to-5 job and live in a vine-covered cottage?

Not on your life!

At least this is the opinion of several troupers who will appear Thursday through Sunday at Long Beach Arena in the 96th season performance of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

ONE FAMILY which literally has show business in its blood is the Stephensons, a bareback-riding troupe composed of Mrs. Stephenson, daughters, Florence and Diana, and sons, Frankie and Bill.

The Irish-born family, which also is billed with its bareback-riding dogs, has performed under the big top for three generations.

The Stephensons transport their 27 dogs in a ton and a half air-conditioned truck converted into a portable kennel.

When on the road, son Frankie drives the kennel truck and Bill drives a cab hitched to a trailer stabling three horses and a two-bedroom mobile home.

As for costumes, Ringling Brothers furnishes wardrobes for performers at a cost of over $250,000 each season.

Do circus people make friends in the towns they appear?

"I'm afraid not," Florence Stephenson said.

"CLOSEST CONTACT we have with townspeople is when one of us checks into a motel with swimming pool.

"Then all of us go there—to the consternation of the motel owner who finds his pool overrun with circus performers trying to outdo each other with aquatic tricks."

Proof that the family is pursuing its chosen work is that even World War II didn't prevent performances.

"We were in Ireland for the duration and formed a small show," Mrs. Stephenson said. "Due to gas rationing, we used horses to pull our wagons and equipment from town to town."

Asked how she managed her children's education, Mrs. Stephenson said, "It was awkward."

"Circus children usually obtain their first few years of schooling by living with their grandparents," Florence said.

"By the time I was eight, I knew I wanted to be a performer, so I joined my parents and began practicing.

"IN ENGLAND, circuses sometimes are in residence in one city for three months. Whenever this happened, Mother would go to the schools and hire teachers to tutor us in accelerated courses."

WOULD SHE like to see her grandchildren make their living in the circus?

"I'm sure my 7-year-old granddaughter, Patricia, will be a trapeze artist.

"Whenever she visits us and disappears, we know where to look. She's climbing about the flying rigging."

ONE OF THE most astonishing acts in the spectacular array of clowns, animal trainers, barkers and dancing girls is the stilt-walking performance of Barry and Sheila Sloan.

The English couple travels with its 2½-year-old son, King Dean Henry Barnum Yelding Sloan.

"King's name started as a joke," Sloan said.

"We have circus friends who took on show business titles such as Lord and Sir. After five years' marriage, our son was born and we decided to do them one better. Only thing is, the name stuck and he was christened King."

Grandson of a former world champion stilt-walker, King had a pair of stilts made by his grandfather before he was born.

"King walks on them now," said Sloan. "I was an old man of four before I learned to master them."

ALTHOUGH SLOAN is a second-generation performer, his petite wife, educated to be a teacher, is a newcomer to the circus.

"We met when Sheila was a teenager. Each afternoon after school she'd come to the circus to practice on the tight rope," he said.

How did her family take to her joining the circus?

"After many long talks, my father finally said if I was that determined to join the circus, then I should be allowed to because I'd do it to the best of my ability," said Mrs. Sloan.

She admits learning to walk on stilts one and a half times her height took a great amount of patience, practice and courage.

During the training period, she had several falls, one of which broke two ribs.

AS FOR SLOAN, he says he feels as much at home walking on spindle-thin pegs 15 feet in the air as he does walking on ground.

MR. AND MRS. PULVER GARNER

Mr., Mrs. Garner mark golden year

Mr. and Mrs. Pulver Garner celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday at a reception in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, 2825 Monogram Ave.

The couple cut the first slice of a tiered wedding cake. Coffee, punch and cake were served to 150 friends and relatives.

The Garners were married July 30, 1916, in Estancia, N.M. They came to San Pedro in 1925 and in 1945 moved to Long Beach where they reside at 3448 Lime Ave. In April, as part of their 50th year celebration, they visited family and friends in New Mexico.

Mr. Garner is a past elder of Uptown Church of Christ where he and Mrs. Garner have been members for 26 years. They have two grandchildren.

Miss Champlin to marry Richard Horner in fall

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Champlin, Long Beach, have announced the betrothal and early fall wedding plans of their daughter, Kay Maureen, to Richard James Horner.

The prospective bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Horner, Los Angeles. He is a member of the summer graduating class at California State Polytechnic College at Pomona.

Miss Champlin is an alumna of Millikan High School and University of Iowa and affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega. She is a teacher in Walnut City School District.

Janice Bingham now Mrs. James Proctor

A reception at Petroleum Club followed Saturday nuptials in First Baptist Church which united Janice K. Bingham and James S. Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Proctor, Rossmoor.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Bingham, 6110 Belen St., wore a gown of silk organza and Alencon lace over taffeta. A crown of matching lace held her veil of illusion.

Honor attendants were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Bingham.

Judy Bronston, Denise Enos, Pam Burcombe and Cheryl Stewart were bridesmaids. Van Cessna, Johan Fordell, Joe Kelly and Doug Martin seated the 350 guests.

The bride attended Long Beach City College; her husband attends California State College at Long Beach.

The couple will return Aug. 15 from a honeymoon at San Francisco and Lake Tahoe to establish residence in Los Alamitos.

MRS. JAMES S. PROCTOR

IN DRAWING SHOW: 'RECLINING NUDE' BY ROBERT BROWN

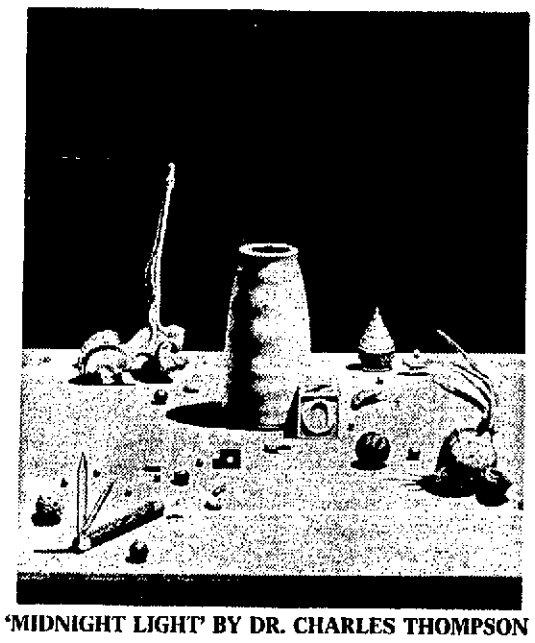

Budget cut poses problem for museum's ASC series

Next Sunday, Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., will open an exhibit, one in a series it organizes, "Arts of Southern California-XIX: Drawing."

The 35 drawings by 25 Southland artists are in several media—oil crayon, ink and wash, chalk, charcoal, pencil and gesso wash.

First in the series, "Arts of Southern California-I: Architecture," was organized in 1957 by the then museum director, Jerome Allan Donson. His purpose was "to show the vigor and importance of the creative medium in Southern California."

The purpose was served not only locally where each of the 19 exhibitions has first been shown, but throughout the United States and in Canada, for the shows circulate to museums and galleries for two years under auspices of the Western Association of Art Museums.

'MIDNIGHT LIGHT' BY DR. CHARLES THOMPSON

BECAUSE the touring shows spread information about Southern California, the Long Beach Museum has been granted $10,000 annually by the County of Los Angeles to produce two traveling shows a year.

During Donson's administration, subsequently through Frederick Black's and now in Jason Wong's, the exhibits have included many facets of art, including prints, ceramics, architecture, films, prehistoric and indigenous Indian art of the region, interior design, collage painting and sculpture.

The $10,000 a year pays the salary of a museum staff member who handles the office and mechanical tasks of organizing the exhibits, and covers such expenses as catalogs, photography, promotion, printing, etc.

LAST YEAR, the museum requested an increase to $15,000 annually. This was refused. The request was made again this year and Wong has just been informed that the previous $10,000 allotment has been cut to $7,500 for 1966-67. County supervisors have cut the budget for exploitation 25% across the board.

This also reduces the allotment to Pasadena Art Museum—but that situation is a bit different.

In 1962, Pasadena asked the county for $25,000 a year to produce its once-every-three-years "California Design" exhibit. The request was granted and $25,000 was budgeted in 1963-64, 1964-65 and 1965-66. This would represent an expenditure of $75,000 a show for an exhibit that does not circulate. "California Design" was produced, with county funds, in 1965.

BEFORE the county money was received, the Pasadena museum has produced a design show a year, having its eighth in 1962.

With the 25% decrease in the 1966-67 allotment, Pasadena will receive $18,750 this year for its Design Show—but the next exhibit won't be produced until 1968. The money pays for a curator of design and an assistant, as well as related costs of the exhibition.

Now, Long Beach director Wong is pondering this problem—how to produce two quality traveling exhibits a year that will continue to reflect credit on Long Beach and Southern California, on $7,500 a year?—ELISE EMERY.

I,P-T photographers in art show

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Three Independent, Press-Telegram photographers have pictures in "Photographic Exhibition 1966" which opens Wednesday in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park.

Chief photographer Roger Coar has two abstractions in color. Tom Shaw has one and Curt Johnson three black and white photographs on display.

The 221 prints in the exhibit were chosen from more than 400 submitted to illustrate the theme "Southern California—its past, its present, its ever-changing scene." The show will become an annual event.

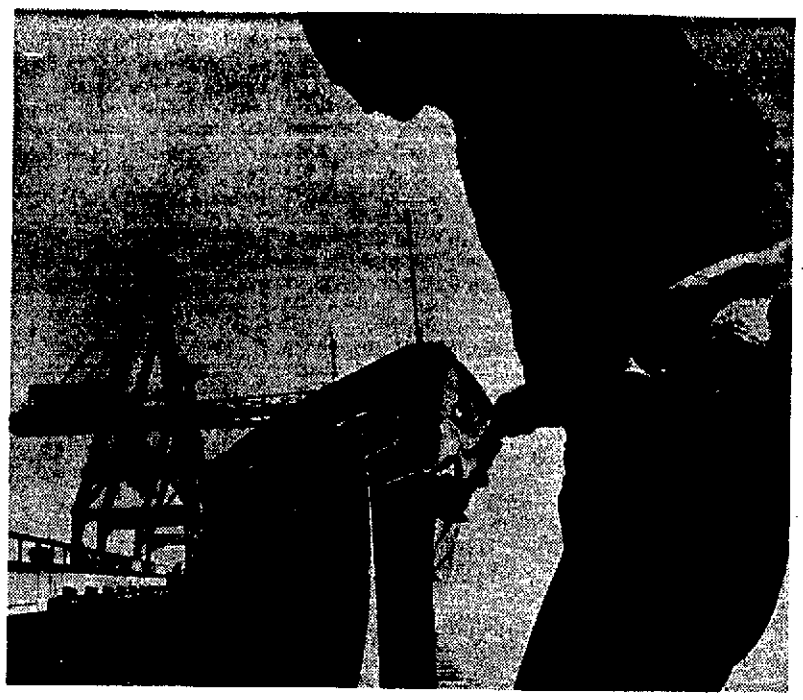

Judges were Howard Kelly, president of Professional Photographers of Southern California; M. M. Phegley, past president of the Photographic Society of America; and Oren A. Smith, advertising designer.

The show will remain through Oct. 30, then many of the prints will be placed in the museum's permanent archives for future reference. One photograph, for instance, shows the old Pacific Electric Venice Short Line on its way—and "the big red cars" no longer are a part of Los Angeles life.

The museum is open daily except Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

Opening Tuesday and remaining through Oct. 30, is another exhibit of more than 50 sizes, shapes and patterns of early day barbed wire based on the collection of J. S. James of Maywond.

Invented just after the Civil War, barbed wire was called "the fence that tamed the West." Dozens of patents were issued, covering small differences in design. Before the present day version was standardized, the essential idea, the barb, was incorporated in many ways.

'Photography Exhibition 1966'

This photograph by Curt Johnson, I,P-T photographer, is in exhibit which opens Wednesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park. It has a line by Tennyson for a title: "O young mariner, launch your vessel."

AUGUST is Treasure Hunt Month in Long Beach Art Association Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Each year this summer sale attracts more viewers and buyers and this year the offering of original paintings, sculpture and other art objects will completely fill the gallery, says gallery director Deen Rickert. Most items will be priced under $50.

Gallery visitors are invited to sign the guest book, thus becoming eligible for a free oil painting, framed and ready to hang. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

"TOO LITTLE attention has been given to artists whose high professional standards have been overshadowed in recent years by flamboyant movements," believes Curt Opliger, art coordinator of Los Angeles Municipal Art Department. "As a result, people have few opportunities to visit a major collection of important current work of this nature.

"It is with this in mind that the department has prepared 'The Persistent Academy' exhibit made up of work by artists discriminately selected by museums, galleries, critics and fellow artists for their contributions to conservatism in painting."

The work of 50 Southern California artists may be seen at Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery, 4800 Hollywood Blvd. from Wednesday through Sept. 4. There is no admission charge; hours are 1 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays; 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, closed Mondays.

MORE THAN 500 entries are expected to compete for prizes totaling $1,150 in the outdoor art exhibit at Catalina Island's art festival at Avalon Sept. 17 and 18.

In addition to the regular competition, the Catalina Art Association, which sponsors the show, has invited outstanding American artists to exhibit in a separate category. Special prizes also will be awarded for paintings by children.

Artists who wish to participate may write for information to P.O. Box 235, Avalon.

AN EXHIBITION of 73 paintings by Belgian surrealist Rene Magritte go on view Tuesday at Pasadena Art Museum, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., and will continue through Sept. 4.

Organized by the Museum of Modern Art, the show covers 40 years of the artist's development illustrating his contribution to 20th century art.

In the catalog, James Thrall Soby writes, "Perhaps more consistently than any other painter of his generation, Magritte has sought what Guillaume Apollinaire called art's greatest potential—surprise. Magritte tells jokes and invents puns in a quiet voice. Many of us listen with avid attention and our number is growing."

The show was seen at Brandeis University and the Art Institute of Chicago; after its Pasadena run it will go to UC, Berkeley.

LOS ANGELES County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has announced a new policy for its Lytton Gallery. Admission will be charged, 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children under 18 and for full-time university and art school students.

Bus to go to bowl despite Romania

When the Romanian Folk Ballet Wednesday canceled its scheduled eight performances at Hollywood Bowl, it created a huge problem for impresario Sol Hurok, under whose auspices the company was touring the United States, and for Hollywood Bowl Association.

It created a lesser problem, but a vexing one, for Long Beach Auxiliary to Southern California Symphony Association.

The ballet company, which was a rousing success at The Music Center in March, was scheduled at the Bowl Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and next Sunday through Aug. 10. It was a major attraction of the Bowl season. Reason for the cancellation, the company announced, was "strong public opinion in Romania against the U.S. war in Viet Nam."

THE LONG Beach auxiliary had sold more than 150 tickets for a chartered bus to Bowl, including box supper and a choice seat, for Saturday night.

"We will, of course, refund to those requesting it," said Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, 2015 Pine Ave., ticket chairman.

"We are telephoning everyone whose name we have and explaining that, as a group, we won't be pushed into doing something we hadn't planned by Communist retaliation for Viet Nam.

"The trip was planned to be a fun-filled evening and many of our patrons want to go anyway to enjoy the Pops concert which will be substituted for the ballet. There is a growing feeling of resentment against the Romanians."

THE BOWL Association has announced that the substitute program for Tuesday, Aug. 9, will star Dorothy Kirstin and Richard Verreau in an all-Puccini program with excerpts from "Madam Butterfly," "La Boheme" and "Tosca." James K. Guthrie will be guest conductor.

The regularly programmed concerts by Van Cliburn, pianist, Tuesday, and Leontyne Price, soprano, Thursday, are unaffected. Both will perform with Kiril Kondrashin who will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Other substitute programs for the ballet company will be announced shortly.

Ray Kerciue develops 'phase of pure art'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Ray Kerciu's one-man show of spanking-fresh paintings at Gallery Carnot, 142 Main Street, Seal Beach, will continue through Aug. 14. The collection consists of an even dozen larger canvases and groups of smaller works to be hung in series.

Kerciu was the art faculty member at "Ole Miss" who was jailed because of an exhibit of his paintings which reflected the goin's on during the period when James Meredith attended the university.

IN HIS PRESENT development, Kerciu has moved into a phase of pure art. Gone are the words in paintings, the referential passages. This show sings with glorious high acrylic color, extraordinary craftsmanship. His painting now is a synthesis of "Pop" and "Op" becoming something more . . . perhaps "Op Nouveau!" Linear flow and fine penline texturing (in the smaller works) give a heightened, dynamic excitement.

The smaller works are virtually peep-show boxes. Masked shapes open to show fantastic, fine texturing, dots, lines, colors together like purple with scarlet, vermillion with yellow, a hundred surprises to intrigue and delight.

LIKE OTHER very contemporary painting, Kerciu's larger works grow and bloom during protracted viewing. The forms glow, change, pulsate. They are optimistically powerful statements, a mastery of the most exacting elements. They are one answer to the question: "After Op and Pop, Whot?"

Gallery Carnot is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

L.B. Barbershoppers to sing out in Grove

It will be "Family Night With the Barbershoppers" Wednesday for the Concerts in the Grove audience in Soroptimist House patio at California State College, Long Beach.

Beginning at 8 p.m., the Pops program in the Associated Students special events committee's summer series will spotlight a 30-voice chorus, four quartets, soprano Patricia Hugen and tenor Clarence Treat.

Oldest chapter on the West Coast, Long Beach Barbershoppers have become one of the largest and strongest groups in the United States. Under direction of Les Woodson, the chorus will sing old-time favorites.

Four Southland quartets—the Song Shoremen, Mickey Mouse Four, The Chordsmen and The Farwesterners—will sing.

SOLOISTS will be Miss Hugen and Treat. A winner in Long Beach Symphony's Young Artists Competition, she studied at USC and has sung in opera and oratorios throughout the state. He has toured with the New Christy Minstrels and currently is a member of the Roger Wagner Chorale.

Concerts in the Grove will continue each Wednesday through Aug. 31. A free picnic area opens at 5:30 p.m. each evening before performance. Tickets, at $1 and $1.50, are available at the box office.

Old Vienna is theme of musicale

The garden of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters' home, 1485 La Perla Ave., will be the setting Friday evening for Das Dritte Sommerabendfest der Camerata Gruppe — which translates from the German as the summer festival of Camerata dei Musici.

The musicale will feature melodies of old Vienna and will be preceded by wine and cheese tasting. Tickets will be available at the door.

This evening of music and fun is the only annual fund-raising event of the Camerata, a chamber music group which presents unusual music programs during the year.

Comedy at Greek

Victor Borge will bring his "Comedy in Music" to Greek Theater the week of Aug. 15. Parisienne dance star Claire Sombert and Michel Bruel of the Ballet de Marseille will share the billing.

The Borge show will follow comedienne Carol Burnett and Jackie Vernon, deadpan comic, who open Monday for a week's engagement.

The nine Goodtime Singers will complete the bill.

'Sound of Music' is billed

Metropolitan Opera star Patrice Munsel and baritone John Tyers play top roles in "The Sound of Music" which opens a two-week run Tuesday night at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim. David Tihmar directs.

CASTING for "Call Me Madam," which opens Aug. 16, has undergone another switch. Ethel Merman originally was set for the title role, but withdrew when the East Coast revival of "Annie Get Your Gun," in which she starred, was continued indefinitely.

Miss Merman was replaced by Kay Starr, who now has bowed out because of illness. Rose Marie, in Valley Music Theater's "Bye Bye Birdie," now has been signed for the role.

IT HAPPENS EVERY SPRING . . . (fall, too) . . . the fashion show ritual for nation's store buyers who swarm Seventh Avenue to bring latest fashions to Main Street, U. S. A. This scene is Pauline Trigere's showroom.

. . . the roar of the garment jungle

the dogs ready and waiting at appointed hours.

Average income for the girls, I was told, is $75 a week.

The fee charged a canine owner depends on location of his apartment and services required. One dog-lover who lives on fashionable Sutton Place pays $50 a week for his dog's daily romps in the park.

But it's the evening hours that all Manhattan dogs come out at the same time.

After offices and stores close . . . after the city's two or three million commuters are swallowed up in subway tunnels and commuter trains . . . the on-islanders walk their dogs.

A FEW YEARS back, poodles were the most popular pooches promenading on Fifth Avenue.

Now, according to J. J. Osborn, an inspector for the Humane Society of New York, the schnauzer is king of the canine set.

Also popular with Manhattan Islanders are dachshunds, Yorkshire terriers and pekingese.

"New Yorkers are great pet lovers," Osborn went on to say. It reminded me of the many pet cats I'd seen perched in apartment windows, gnashing their teeth at pigeons they can never catch.

He told me about a call he'd had the day before. It took him to a woman's apartment in the Washington Heights area. In her five-room apartment . . . "and a beautiful apartment it was!" . . . she had 47 cats, four dogs, one parrot and two parakeets.

"Her apartment had no animal odor whatever," he went on to say. "And she had some of the most beautiful animals you ever saw. Her food bill for the animals each week is $37 to $40!"

Why did she call the Humane Society? To report a hungry, stray animal in the alley. She apologized that she couldn't "keep the poor little thing."

IN ADDITION to all those cats and dogs, there are 320 horses living in the man-made cordillera of buildings, bridges and tunnels called New York.

During the city's recent hot spell, the Humane Society ran a mobile water truck just to make sure horses didn't go thirsty.

The equine city dwellers pull vegetable carts and Central Park's hansom cabs, populate riding stables and canter through Central Park.

Speaking of Central Park . . . the female gender, it seems, has invaded another male domain.

Two pretty young women have joined the ranks of cabbies who navigate the horse-drawn hansom cabs through the wooded wonders of Central Park.

In their coachman garb (complete with the high silk hats), the female cabbies are giving the old-timers a lot of competition in the carriage trade.

And then . . . there's the roar of the garment jungle!

There aren't many animals down on Seventh Avenue, the 18-block area referred to in the trade as the Garment Jungle. But there's plenty of roar!

Active as a hornet's nest, this congested segment of New York has been described as the world's most productive 0.1 of a square mile.

It houses a $3 billion industry—fashion.

In fact, next time you go to your favorite department store or boutique shop to buy a button or your new fall costume . . . say a silent word of prayer for store buyers, who pad around New York by the thousands like so many worker ants on a hill.

As the summer thermometer reaches fever pitch (it was 104 the day I was there), the asphalt streets soften, heels sink almost out of sight. Pushcarts, trucks and man-pushed racks of clothes fight and snarl with city traffic.

And about those buyers, who come from small stores and large, hamlets and big cities . . . all concentrating on selections of fall-winter clothes for the women back home:

Before they find what they think you—the object of their frenetic activity—want in the way of new togs, they must trudge up and down steaming, screaming Seventh Avenue. Also, dozens of shows must be seen.

THE FASHION shows themselves frequently are an exercise in rigid sitting. Rows of chairs of the bridge set variety are set three and four deep—one chair smack against the other.

Penned in, the buyers must watch like hawks while the fast-stepping models parade up and down the showroom.

A typical show lasts one hour and 100 or more new dresses, suits, costumes are shown by some designers. That's better than a new offering a minute.

For their seasonal safaris to the garment jungle, buyers—who keep women along Main Street, U.S.A., fashionable—dress conservatively, in general.

The fishnet stockings, mini-skirts, little girl shoes and other trappings drummed in by fashion seers are in the minority. Mostly they're seen on staffers from the fashion magazines.

And here's big news: American women, according to comments by some buyers, are getting larger. Stores are clamoring for more sizes 17 and 20!

But whether size 6 or 20, it's no exaggeration to say that nearly every woman in America is influenced by the pulsations and roar of Seventh Avenue.

Just be glad you don't have to fight the jungle to buy your fine feathers!

NEXT: How some of the garment industry's most famous designers live when they're away from the rag race.

Biggest single industry in N.Y., the 300,000-worker garment trade, is divided into 13,000 little companies concentrated in 18 wild blocks known as the garment jungle.

Style show geared to the sewing set

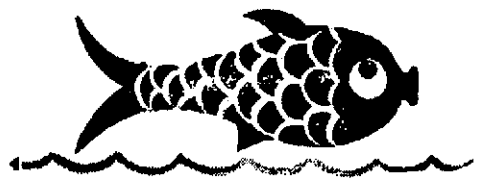

"Sew to a fashion beat." That's the word from Buffums' who will present a zippy, swinging fashion show for chic, young moderns who want to sew with a flair as modern as Fifth Avenue. Show, co-sponsored by Seventeen Magazine and McCall's patterns, will take place Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in Buffums' fourth-floor fashion fabrics department.

Fashion stylist Michael-Ann Norton from McCall's will commentate. Many clothes to be modeled are from patterns featured in Seventeen's July issue.

Such things as the pant suit from Paris, the sweater dress, the zingy T-shirt dress and all the rest of the newest "in" look will be shown.

All you need is a needle and a thread. The show's co-sponsors will provide you with the ideas to turn you into one of fall's most fashionable swingers.

East wins club lead with ace

Today's hand was played in the days before anyone had thought of a four no-trump convention to ask for aces.

Therefore, South made no effort to reach a grand slam in spite of knowing that all he would need from dummy would be two aces plus the king of trumps.

To say South was disappointed by the dummy is an understatement. He glared as if it were a poisonous snake.

East won the club lead with the ace and returned the suit. South wanted to be in dummy immediately so he discarded his ace of diamonds and let dummy win.

Then he led a trump and finessed his queen. West produced the king and returned a third club for South to ruff. South played out his ace of trumps. West showed out and South was down two.

The hand is shown for two reasons. The first is to point out the folly of North's immediate trump raise.

We generally approve of raising partner's first bid suit with three trumps and no other logical bid. But here North held such a minimum opening that it behooved him to discourage his partner by a two no-trump call rather than to encourage him by an immediate raise.

SECONDLY, the hand shows the classic safety play situation. Playing at six, South could not afford to lose a trump trick.

His best play for all the tricks was the one he adopted. It would win for him against king-small or king and two small in the East hand.

Had the contract been five South would have made six. His best play to avoid two losers would be to lay down his ace. That would drop the singleton king whereupon he would go to dummy and finesse against East's jack.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Spoonbread his specialty, y'all

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

If there's humor about, he'll find it; and both his wit and his laughter are infectious. Robt. S. Lumsden, today's Chef of the Week, comes from Virginia and succeeded "Chef" Ray Ferlan, last February, as manager Western Union Telegraph Co., Long Beach.

Influenced by his early invironment, a farm in Rocky Mount, Va., Lumsden majored in agriculture and economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

He worked for the State of Virginia as an agricultural extension agent for six months. Then the Army intervened, and he was stationed in Germany from 1952 to 1958.

Returning to the United States, he again enrolled at V.P.I. for his master's requirement in business. All he lacks for that is his thesis. Economics dictated that he go to work.

LUMSDEN is a firm believer in the speed of sound, so in 1960 he joined Western Union and was sent on a four-months management training program.

After hitches in New York, Charlotte, N.C., and Roanoke, Va., he was sent to Los Angeles as traffic supervisor and became senior supervisor there prior to his appointment to Long Beach.

He and his wife, Karen, have a son born at 10:30 New Year's Eve. Incometaxwise, Lumsden believes that to be "planned parenthood."

A member of Long Beach Rotary Club, Lumsden also anticipates activity in civic work as soon as he's a bit better established.

He golfs "only for exercise," loves to fish and camp. He's a handy-man-to-have-around-the-house; and if he had his druthers, a steak would be on the menu of every meal. Southern Spoonbread would, too, of course!

SOUTHERN SPOONBREAD

1 cup white corn meal
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. baking powder
2 cups boiling water
2 cups sour milk
2 tblsp. melted butter
4 eggs (beaten separately)

Scald corn meal with boiling water and cool. Mix milk, soda, salt and baking powder together and blend with meal and water mixture. Add melted butter and mix well. Blend in beaten egg yolks, then add beaten egg whites. Bake in greased casserole at 375 degrees 40 minutes.

DEAR ABBY

Son orders her to 'shop' for a father

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with a 13-year-old son. This lad has delivered me an ultimatum. He is to have a "father" of his own by the next Fathers and Sons dinner at the "Y." I have tried to assure him that I've been looking, but haven't found one yet. He threatened to get his own, and believe me, Abby, if you could see some of the playmates he brings home, you would understand my concern.

ABBY

When I say I have been looking I am not joking. I have joined the church choir, Parents Without Partners, Girl Scouts (leader), and have even volunteered to chaperone teen dances hoping to find an eligible male my age.

I have even gone to some of the better bars and lounges, thinking I might meet a nice, lonesome guy who wants a ready-made family. No dice. There IS one young man, however. He's my age. He doesn't drink and doesn't date. (He's shy). I think I can wrangle a date with him. Should I go after him (subtly) or should I be honest and tell him what I have in mind for him? —"LOOKING"

DEAR LOOKING: If you TELL him what you have "in mind," you are out of yours. Now you deliver your son an ultimatum. Tell him you are not about to sit across the breakfast table for the rest of your life with a hastily grabbed off character just so HE can go to the next Fathers and Sons dinner at the "Y."

DEAR ABBY: A good-looking woman, who doesn't have such a hot reputation, lives near me. Last week I saw one of my friends in the market, and she said, "I saw Milton (that's my husband) driving down the street with Bobbie (that's the woman with the not-so-hot reputation) the other day." I laughed it off.

When Milton got home that night I asked him how come he was riding around with Bobbi in his car. He said she was walking toward home, so he gave her a ride. When I asked him why he didn't tell me about it, he said he forgot. Do you think he could really forget? Or should I check with Bobbi to see what her story is?—SMELLING A RAT.

DEAR SMELLING: Don't check with Bobbi. If your husband has behaved himself in the past, believe him. If he hasn't, believe him anyway. A man who is playing games with a woman of not-so-hot reputation is not about to parade her around in broad daylight.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DESIGNER PATTERN

Sleveless styles suited to summer

A939
SIZES 10-18

It's the newest suit approach—younger, softer and sleeveless, or with short sleeves. Definitely the crisp way to approach mid-summer and the changing seasons.

Printed Pattern A939 reflects the fine cut and line characteristic of the Larry Aldrich collections.

The brief, paneled front jacket has today's favored collar—widened to stand charmingly away from the neck. The slender skirt is eased by gathers below the waist. Choose linen, shantung, wool knit or tweed. Pattern includes ¾ sleeve version, too.

Printed Pattern A939 is available in Misses' Sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 10 top requires 2 yards 35-inch fabric; skirt requires 1¾ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send one dollar for Printed Pattern A939 to Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y.

AZTEC AND OLD SPANISH

The Land of Manana globetrotters' mecca

By Mary Neiswender

Ten thousand years before Christ, pre-historic Mexicans were hunting mammoths in the Valley of Mexico—this was 10,000 B.C.

Almost 2,000 years after Christ, Mexicans are hunting tourists in every valley and town in Mexico—this in 1966.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

WITHIN THE SHADOWS of the Latin American Tower—tallest structure in Latin America—is the soul of Mexico—Mexico City.

And you can find tourists—Americans, Europeans, Asiatics—tourists from every corner of the globe traipsing through the country.

But tourists are there for good reason.

Modern Mexico is a blend of three of the most dynamic cultures the world has known and has become a mecca for all travelers, whether they be scholars, archeologists, artists or playboys.

And the routine traveler is just now discovering this.

* * * *

THE COUNTRY below the border is a land more diverse than any in the world.

Its vital youth is in its tall new towers and smart resorts.

Its magnificent age is in its archeological sites from 20 centuries in the past.

And Mexico City is the soul of the country.

The crossroads of the nation since Aztec days, the city is fast becoming the hub of the hemisphere. It boasts not only the finest hotels, hundreds of international restaurants and nightclubs, a world famous university, modern museums and galleries, sophisticated roof-top cafes, smart shops and handsome boulevards, but everything for the sportsman from baseball to bullfights.

The opera, the theatre, the symphony and the world famous Ballet Forklorico are also part of the Mexico City fare.

* * * *

FOR THE tourist there's no time to sit in the hotel room reading James Bond when within easy reach is Chapultepec Castle displaying the relics of Archduke Maximilian, the grand ornate Cathedral of Mexico—the largest church on the continent—the colorful floating gardens of Xochimilco—and the temples, pyramids and courts of the huge Aztec ritual center at Teotihuacan.

The pyramids are one of the country's 11,000 reminders of its ancient Indian civilization which stretches as far away as the jungles of Yucatan.

Avenues—by land and air—lead in every direction out of the city to tourist delight.

There's Cuernavaca, the mountain resort favored since the days of Cortes.

There's the colonial silvercraft center of Taxco and the tiled city of Puebla and Oaxaca, a Colonial capital still proudly Spanish but also sheltering ancient temples and tombs of the Zapotec Indian civilization.

Then there's sophisticated Acapulco—the gay Gulf port of Veracruz and the secluded Burton-Taylor town of Puerto Vallarta.

It's all Mexico.

* * * *

AND IT'S available to Southland tourists via car as well as by air.

Super highways lead from Texas into the Mexican capital.

And super airlines—including Mexicana, Mexico's proudest and oldest in the Hemisphere—lead from almost every major airport. Flights from International Airport in Los Angeles fly out almost 10 times a day to the city at a rate—$186 round trip—available to all.

Hotels range from $8 up for double occupancy.

Food is delightful and delightfully inexpensive.

Mexican wares are "bargainable" but always well worth the price.

The people are what every tourist seeks—kind, helpful and justly proud of their country.

Mexico City is built upon the ruins of the beautiful templed city of Tenochtitlan—the Aztec capital—then the world's largest city.

The Spaniards overlaid in the 16th and 17th centuries their own graceful Old World heritage.

Out of the Indian and Spanish cultures has sprung Modern Mexico.

You missed the Aztecs and the old Spanish—don't miss the modern Mexico.

NEW ORLEANS' ISLE OF PLEASURE

French Quarter booms with coarse and sensuous delights

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Drawing by Clyde Winslow

NEW ORLEANS — Coming back to this Paris of America is like having a recurring dream of riding a rocket into the heart of a glittering star and on through an Old World kaleidoscope of course and sensuous pleasures.

First, streaking high over southwestern America in one of Delta Air Lines' sleek DC-8s, and then:

Narrow streets, their necks winking knowingly. Shapely artists of the undress. The raucous voices of carnival barkers. The lullaby of Dixieland jazz. Disconcerting discotheque. Artists with their easels and colors. Sazeracs in atmospheric courtyards. Pralines and antiques. Gourmet palaces. Steamboat whistles drifting in from the eerie rim of night.

The French Quarter — when a visitor thinks of New Orleans he's really thinking of that tiny nine-block-square world around the Vieux Carre—never had it so good as now. It has exploded in tourism. Visitors who are coming back for more of that gay, carnival-soaked — and a sometimes bit naughty—atmosphere.

New Orleans is reaping its biggest visitor harvest. It is estimated the tourist crop will bring at least $175 million to this hustling, bustling, burgeoning metropolis before year's end.

* * * *

MANY are lured here by the haute cuisine, which is the city's tradition. Stuffing at Brennan's, Galatoire's, Antoine's, the Royal Orleans Hotel and a half-dozen other notable emporiums attest that the blend of culinary art practiced in these imposing or lackluster restaurants is no fable.

This is the city that gave jambalaya, which is a Creole dish—and you must taste it to believe it—to the world, along with shrimp remoulade and seafood gumbo. Antoine's claims to have originated oysters Rockefeller and pompano en papillote, by no means a dubious distinction. Dunbar's is noted for its Creole dishes served Creole style. And what style!

Brennan's (no shirt sleeves, please, but never fear; coats are furnished), offers an adventure with its "Typical New Orleans Breakfast" beginning with grilled grapefruit, then eggs Hussarde, hot French bread, bananas Foster, and steaming cafe au lait. The tab: $4.25.

Expensive? Perhaps, but not prohibitive. Gormandizing is one of the prizes of visiting the Quarter. Budgeted travelers will find other food, maybe less esteemed but delicious, that somehow seems native — poor boy sandwiches, weiner schnitzels, even chitlins and black-eyed peas. And oysters on the half-shell, fresh from nearby banks at numerous oyster bars, just like in Sydney.

Wherever and whatever they eat, visitors should insist—and most do—on savoring Creole coffee, "black as night, strong as love and hot as hell," with the flavor of chicory.

* * * *

NO ONE goes to New Orleans without a stroll down Bourbon Street. Jazz, born in the shadows of the Vieux Carre, drifts down the narrow street in frenzied blasts as if trying to drown the voices of barkers of the strip parlors.

Figures count here. One stripper is advertised at 42-21-38, and they tell me that's not bad. Maybe not naughty, either, because one barker acclaims to all that his show is "recommended by the P-TA, the Ladies Home Journal, and has the Good Housekeeping seal of approval."

Of course you may take in all these delights with a drink in hand. Test a mint julip at the Court of Two Sisters, whose pleasantly-picturesque patio is paved with stones carried as ballast on some of the first ships sailing into the mouth of the Mississippi and up to this French colony in the early 1700s. Or purr to the pleasures of a Sazerac or Ramoz gin fizz, both the inventions of thinking New Orleans bartenders.

* * * *

AT CANAL Street, which separates the old New Orleans from the new, Old Man River is 125 miles from its outlet into the Gulf of Mexico. Indians called it the misi sipi, meaning "Great Water," and great it is, to New Orleanians. Here it is 2,200 feet wide. Its general cargo port is now second only to New York in dollar volume of its foreign commerce, and completed within the last year on the river's banks is the 33-story International Trade Mart, a $40 million complex devoted to the bustling waterborne trade.

The Trade Mart is a sample of New Orleans' changing skyline. Under construction is the 45-story Plaza Tower, whose developers are now talking of building a 75-story convention hotel.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTION has started on a six-story hotel in the Quarter after a mild controversy over design. City planners insist new or redone exteriors must conform to the Quarter's inimitable architecture.

The hotel will be a valuable asset. While many good ones—like the comfortively new Royal Orleans and the Monteleone — are available, rooms remain at a premium, especially during the tourist season and Mardi Gras. It is recommended that visitors reserve accommodations well in advance of their visit to get what they want, at the price they wish to pay.

Motels are numerous in the Quarter, too, among them the clean-and-modern Provincial Motel, only two blacks from Bourbon Street at 1024 Chartres. This one is completely modern and clean, with car parking space, pool, dining room and bar, and the management is friendly and courteous. Single rooms here bring $12-14, doubles $14-16.

* * * *

GETTING to New Orleans is easy, swift and economical. Delta Air Lines has two flights daily: one nonstop leaving Los Angeles International Airport at 1:50 p.m., and a direct flight with one stop at 4:20 p.m. The round-trip fares: first class, $248.70; day coach, $203.20; and a 30-day "Discover America" excursion fare, $152.30; plus tax.

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

MEXICO — Here's my checklist for driving in Mexico: Basket-weave seat rests let air get all around you and keep you from sticking to the seat.

A chap stick: That dry air cracks your lips.

Sandals are better than shoes for driving. Buy Mexican huaraches. Anywhere from the border down.

A knife with a blade (for peeling fruit); a bottle opener; a corkscrew; a screwdriver blade. (Nearly all hotel bathrooms need something tightened.)

A pen-size flashlight: Don't wander around strange rooms in the dark. Mexican hotel rooms are booby-trapped. The handle of the door is placed so that it pinches your thumb. The bathroom is one step up, or one step down.

Two Thermos-type bottles: Fill one with purified water in the morning. The other with coffee.

* * * *

"Do we need special car insurance for driving in Mexico?"

YOU DO. I buy mine by mail from Dan Sanborn, McAllen, Texas. Tell him which way you're going. He'll route you and send you a package of excellent tips for Mexico driving.

* * * *

"Please send whatever information you have on campers, camp sites, etc. in Europe."

A GOOD starter is Wilson's Motor Caravan Centre, 36-38 Acre Lane, London, S.W. 2. They sell or rent campers and trailers. And they have a deal where you can buy and use them. They guarantee to buy them back, discounted according to mileage. Ask for a booklet.

British Travel, 680 Fifth Ave., will send you free "Caravan and Camping Sites and Farmhouse Accommodations." The New York offices of all national tourist offices will send you lists of camp grounds for their countries.

* * * *

"Can you tell us how the weather will be in Europe in September?"

PROBABLY, the best of the year—an average 70 degrees. But Spain and Italy don't really start cooling off until mid-September.

* * * *

'How much will it cost to ship a car home from Europe?"

IT COST me somewhere around $250 two years ago. London to San Francisco.

March AFB rodeo slated

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Bucking broncos will upstage B-52 bombers when March Air Force Base holds its first annual rodeo Sept. 24-25.

The announcement that a rodeo will be held at this Strategic Air Command base was made by Lt. Gen. W. K. Martin, commander of 15th Air Force.

The rodeo will be March AFB's "Salute to California Fiesta Days."

A committee headed by Col. R. J. Wright, vice commander of March's 22nd Bomb Wing, is making arrangements for the two-day program to be conducted under the auspices of the Rodeo Cowboy Association.

Expected to compete for national title points are top veterans on the professional rodeo circuit. The slate will include saddle, bronc, bareback and bull riding as well as calf roping, bulldogging and team tying events.

Andy Jauregui of Newhall, a leading figure on the rodeo circuit, will furnish the livestock.

There also will be a gymkhana for boys and girls on the first day of the rodeo. It will include such events as barrel racing, pole bending and barnyard jumping.

Tickets to the rodeo, available just inside the base's east gate access from Perris Blvd., are expected to go on sale Monday.

Airline opens L.A. offices

Philippine Air Lines has opened new ticket offices at 515 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, under the direction of Ramon Barreto, district sales manager for Southern California. A striking feature of the offices is the decor, which employs native Philippine material throughout.

Uninhibited Aruba

Houses are painted purple, orange and dozens of other uninhibited colors on the Caribbean island of Aruba. Many also are trimmed with "hex" designs.

Signs for Vegas

Marguerite Piazza, a Roman delight herself, has been signed to headline the lounge at Caesars Palace, the new $20 million Las Vegas hotel scheduled for a gala opening Aug. 5.

Miss Piazza's appearance, set for this fall, will include the wide variety of ballads and Italian folk songs with operatic overtones that have made her an outstanding personality and performer in television, the, theatre, opera and nightclubs.

Big Summer Cruise

Come cruise the sparkling Mediterranean for a month—aboard Cunard's Caronia (now more luxurious than ever).

Your holiday begins on Friday, August 26th, when you sail away for 31 luxury-filled days of resort life at sea.

The dazzling, historic Mediterranean will open its heart to you. Each port city can be an entry to many fabled places beyond. Journey through countrysides carved from solid scenery to Florence, Rome, Taormina, Madrid, Granada—cities of greatness, grandeur and just plain fun! From the Straits of Gibraltar to the shores of the Adriatic you'll explore, tour, shop and see more of the nooks and crannies of the Mediterranean than shore-bound vacationers ever get to know. (Optional shore excursions are expertly arranged by American Express.)

And all the while, you'll call the Caronia home. And what a home! Thirty-five thousand tons of British luxury and elegance. The new Lido Deck sports a country-club-sized pool. Every beautifully decorated, air-conditioned stateroom has private facilities and ship-to-shore telephone. Every meal is a gastronomical adventure. And at every turn, there will be impeccable Cunard service to pamper you. All for as little as $895*.

*Minimum rate subject to space availability.

Steven Stregers take trip

MRS. STEVEN MICHAEL STREGER

Honeymooning in Northern California after their Friday marriage in First Baptist Church of Lakewood are Mr. and Mrs. Steven Michael Streger (Linda Kay Lovejoy).

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Lovejoy, 4551 Pepperwood Ave., the bride wore an empire gown of silk organza over taffeta with re-embroidered Alencon lace bodice.

Mrs. Raymond Ellstrom was matron of honor for her sister. Brideamaids were Mmes. Gary Lovejoy, Dennis Dahl, Richard McIntosh and Richard Pardee.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Streger, 3507 Kallin St., was attended by Gary Robertson as best man and Gary Lovejoy, Dennis Dahl, Richard McIntosh and John Allen, ushers.

A reception in the church hall followed the vow exchange. The newlyweds will reside in Lakewood.

MRS. STREGER was graduated from Lakewood High School, Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach.

Daughter of a long-time Long Beach school principal, she is a teacher at Clara Barton Elementary School. Her husband is a graduate of Millikan High, LBCC, where he affiliated with Vidar, and UCLA School of Business.

Crestline honeymoon for couple

Marriage of Linda Lee Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Davis, 2201 Vuelta Grande, to Martin Bradford Ostler of Los Angeles took place Saturday afternoon in Los Altos United Church.

The bride wore a sheath gown of peau de soie styled with a bodice of Chantilly lace. She was preceded to the altar by her sister, Mrs. Ronald Beinessner, matron of honor, and Kathy and Karen Davis, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Darl Ostler of Oregon and Mrs. Evelyn Ostler of Los Angeles, was attended by George Ross as best man. The 100 wedding guests were seated by Ronald Beingessner and Alan Lathrop.

After a church reception, they departed on a honeymoon to Crestline. They will reside in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ostler is a graduate of Millikan High School. Her husband graduated from Los Angeles City College.

KORK-EASE

An Ideal SANDAL of Imported Water Buffalo

Made entirely by hand of genuine Water Buffalo. Water Buffalo is an extremely durable and good looking leather imported from India. It comes in a natural color, tawny tan, which reminds one of a sandal hand crafted for royalty. The wedges and platforms are made of hand shaped genuine cork, pre-shaped to fit the arch. This is covered with matching color leather.

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801 for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Kindly give the origin of DENNIS. —J. D., Torrance.

DENNIS of Ireland, a widely used American given-name, is also an Irish clan-name. The early Gaelic form was O'Donnghusa, meaning "Descendants of the brown-haired, superlative one." This clan was native to Ulster and Cork, and in the Middle Ages was noted for holding positions both as laymen and prelates in the church. The Dennis shield has three gold fleurs-de-lis and three red rings on a chevron across a red background.

MISS RULE: Kindly give data on SIRAGUSA.—S.S., C.S., Long Beach.

SIRAGUSA represents an Italian family whose ancestor came from the Sicilian city of Syracuse, called Siragusa in medieval Italy. This place was named by Phoenician settlers at the dawn of history, and was given the root-name "Serach," describing the locality as "place with a bad odor," referring to a nearby swamp. No armorial shield is recorded for the Siragusa family.

MISS RULE: May we have the source of MARTIN.—J.L., Artesia, R.W., Lakewood.

MARTIN may be English, French or Spanish in background. In all countries this surname traces to an ancestor baptized Martin from the Latin "Martinus" meaning "warlike." The Martin armorial shield from Cornwall, England, granted in 1400, is silver, crossed by three red stripes. The Spanish Martin shield is red, emblazoned with a silver castle tower.

MISS RULE: Please explain SCHUG. — P.H., Long Beach.

SCHUG is a dialectical German surname derived from Schuck, which in turn was of "Schuh" meaning "shoe." The figurative meaning of Schug is "shoe-maker."

MISS RULE: Kindly explain JAKYMIW and YACHIMOWICZ.—M.J., F.K., Long Beach.

JAKYMIW, of Polish background, means From the farmstead of Joachim," the ancestor's home location. YACHIMOWICZ of Poland describes "From the place of the son of Joachim." The Biblical "Joachim" deciphers

Next Week

The title of the feature article in next week's Southland Magazine is "Who Would Believe the Sea Horse?" It's a question that is explored by writer Chuck Cheatham who has been enchanted by the little creatures most of his life. The sea horse is the subject of one of the strangest facts of life on earth. Read about it next Sunday.

An exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglas TEX-COTE.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

THE CIRCUS IS COMIN'

with lions 'n tigers 'n four super-spectacles

RINGLING BROS., Barnum & Bailey Circus opens its four-day midsummer run in Long Beach Arena Thursday with a 2:45 p.m. matinee. During the engagement performances will be given twice daily: 2:45 and 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30, 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Traditionally, four splendorous super-spectacles are included in the 2½-hour performance. This again is true for the 96th annual consecutive edition. They have been produced with attention to originality, costuming and regal processionals that are participated in by a cast of more than 400 people and hundreds of domestic and wild animals.

The 1966 edition of The Greatest Show On Earth has as its principal super spectacle and imaginative production number, "Prince Charming," which is a story-book fantasy featuring the entire cast in glittering costumes, with fantastic floats, enroute to the Royal Palace Gardens where Prince Charming and his Princess welcome and pay honor to the Maharajah on his visit to their "never-never land."

"This Is New — Pussycat" is the feature elephant production number that is a modern "swingeroo" version of what can be accomplished with 144,000 pounds of lumbering pachyderms when turned loose to modern swing. It's a genuine Go-Go, with beautiful circus girls dressed as pussy-cats riding the elephants. Trainers of the huge rock-and-rolling beasts are dressed as tomcats. The number reaches a climax with one curvaceous damsel a-go-go-going down the hippodrome track atop an elephant and garbed as a Pink Panther.

THIS YEAR'S aerial ballet spectacle carries the title of "Clown Surprise," in which the entire chorus of 50 gorgeously costumed ballerinas appear as circus clowns. The famous North Stars and Starlets present daring and incomparable feats aloft in a display of acrobatic pulchritude that features, high over the center ring, a newcomer to America, Miss Mara, in challenging trapeze feats that defy gravity.

"Grand Finale" is the fourth and final spectacular of the talent-filled performance, crammed with breathtaking thrills, glamour, beauty and awesome sights. It brings out the entire circus cast in a rousing finish that is actually a musical salute from memory lane, honoring the bands and ballads of yesteryear and featuring many tunes from previous circus productions. The entire musical score for the show is prepared and executed by the world famous Merle Evans and his Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus band.

One of the most sensational of the newcomers to this year's performance is Adolph Althoff and his bareback riding tiger direct from the 300 year old Circus Althoff in Germany. A tiger named King performs all the standard riding tricks on the back of a horse named Tiger, and these two natural enemies give a performance that can only be believed by seeing. Four sensational European teeterboard acts are featured in one display that has the Eight Halasis in the center ring, in ring number two the Vrady Troupe performs acrobatic miracles, and in ring three the Six Forays toss human beings into the air as though they were tennis balls.

The Bruski Duo, agile unicycle artists on the high single wheel cycles, perform juggling feats while aloft. In all three rings and on the hippodrome track performers from all over the world perform a variety of equilibristic acts, including the Six Ivans, Miss Lillian, the Amazing Fudi, Jana & Mirek, Miss Helena, the Alberts, and others, most of them newly-arrived, first-time-in-America acts.

FOR THE kiddies of all ages, dogs dominate the three rings in another display called Canine Capers and Dog Days. Nagana's Poodles, Mogyorosi's Dogs, and Stephenson's Canines, flip-flap, twist, turn and tumble through doggy antics in a dog-gone good display that keeps up a lively pace. Three superb troupes of spirited liberty horses in difficult drills occupy all rings with Edmund Meschke, Alicia & Roman Lesniewicz, and Ellort Nidohr, accomplished European horsemen and horsewomen, directing them through intricate maneuvers. Starring in the center ring is Swedish horsewoman Madame Rhodin and her famous Lipizzaner horse, "Baby."

In the center ring, a sensational new riding act features the Riding Saxons, and has the famous Russian

WILD WEEKEND AT BIG BEAR

The Donkey Racers

Frisky burros are not anxious to have packs strapped on them as entrants ready for run.

By Helen Gilbert

MOVE over Calaveras County and your famous jumping frog. For the Old West at its wildest, nothing compares today with the wild burro races at Big Bear Lake.

It's a weekend of family fun, Thursday through next Sunday, with opportunity for parents and children to relive a colorful part of our western heritage as residents and visitors join in celebrating Old Miners' Days.

This year the three-day burro derby will follow an entirely new route through areas more particularly associated with early gold miners. Beginning at a drive-in theater facing Metcalf Bay off the south side of the lake, the route goes east following State Highway 30 to Big Bear City, then west along the north side of the lake, following Highway 18 to Fawnskin and the first night-stop. Much of this is unsettled country with ample room for visitors to park and watch the runners.

THE SCENE before the race is one of wild confusion as 60 to 80 unruly, untrained burros struggle to regain freedom. They kick, bite and buck with fierce determination. Some simply lie down in the road while others take off in opposite directions in clouds of dust. When packracks finally are cinched, wranglers struggle to hold the lead-rope and keep up with the running, bucking burrows, cheered on by the "hoots and hollers" of the crowd.

Wranglers do not ride the burros but try to push their charges over the course—some 40 racing miles distant—using only a halter rope. An unusual aspect of the race is that wranglers draw lots to decide which burro they will receive for that day, "punching" a different animal each day.

The second day, wranglers will begin the hot, steep climb up Del Mar Road to Holcomb Valley, with a noon stop at the Forest Service campground. Continuing the length of the valley, the route winds east over Gold Mountain, past Doble mine and ghost town, circling the east end of Baldwin Lake, to Shay's ranch. Some contestants may be forced by heat and exhaustion to drop out in the rough terrain and the 7,000 feet elevation. Perhaps only half the number who start, will make it to Shay's for the second night-stop.

WHILE WAITING for the burros, visitors will be rewarded by time spent exploring the area, rich in legend and history. Ghost towns of Holcomb Valley are best reached by a graded road that branches off Highway 18 on the north side of Big Bear Lake, following Polique Canyon. The road circles Dalamar Mountain and enters the valley near the Forest Service campground. Holcomb is an area of Jeffrey pine forests and quiet meadows. Here Old Hangman's tree, a crumbling arrastre, the remains of old dugouts and cabins are lonely reminders of Belleville, once a thriving mining town. The past becomes reality for parents and children alike when they stand on the ground where history was lived.

The old log cabin in the stand of giant Ponderosas on the Shay ranch was built in 1870 by Elias J. "Lucky" Baldwin, who developed the Doble mine. It later was owned by Will Shay who ran cattle in the valley. The Doble mine may be reached by a short side trip of two miles off Highway 18 on the north side of Baldwin Lake.

The second day of the derby can be a real fun day for parents and children who are busy getting acquainted with

A Threat to the Magic Formula for Plunging Into Business

So You Want to Be Your Own Boss...

Here are some tips from experts for those considering entering a franchised business.

- Study carefully what nature of business suits you best. Those who are mechanically inclined might do best in a service business. Two up-and-coming franchise operations are auto detailing (cleaning) and auto accessories.
- Consider your investment as though buying stocks. Do you want a solid business with a smaller, safe return or would you rather prefer to buy into a new trend (such as recreation) with the possibility of making a quick, large capital gain.
- Study the trends in public taste. Talk to people about their preferences.
- Don't fall in love with a particular line of business until you have thoroughly investigated it. There is little room for sentiment in choosing a business.
- Watch out for franchisors who employ exaggerated appeals. The get-rich-quick boys often do —at someone else's expense.
- Search carefully for any record of failure within a company. Be wary of franchisors whose real business is selling franchises only. Franchising should be a joint venture all the way, with profits equitably divided.
- See the company's franchisees in operation. Talk with the franchisee. Review actual case histories. Check the company with the International Franchise Assn.

Editor, Southland Magazine

IT HAS BEEN CALLED "The last chance for the small-businessman."

It has been called "The guaranteed way to independence."

Too, it is often called "The little man's weapon against big business."

Those are the praises for franchising, the licensing system of commerce that has swept across the country in recent years and has brought back the era of the "mom and pop" stores.

The praise for franchising is lofty, indeed, for it is being said that this system that can make anyone with a few thousand dollars part of a multimillion-dollar operation is growing so fast that it eventually will become the basic pattern of American business.

With automation carving through industry, making old skills obsolete, the lure of getting a little business for one's self is becoming stronger and more and more families are withdrawing their life's savings, remortgaging homes and plunging hard-earned money into franchise operations.

But amid all the unbridled enthusiasm for franchising there is a warning; there are dark clouds coming into view.

Fast-buck men have invaded the field and pose a distinct threat to the rock-solid reputation that franchising has built.

One of those sounding a warning is Aaron Rothenberg, a franchise management consultant who also teaches franchising at UCLA.

Says Rothenberg: "I would say that of the new franchise operations starting out today, maybe as high as 85% will fail because of the current boom."

Rothenberg is referring to new franchising companies, not new stores opening within the framework of established companies.

"A lot of people are starting franchise systems that are not proven, and not sound," he says, adding a warning to anyone considering entering franchising to stay away from a company that does not have a history of success.

Rothenberg explained that the proliferation of franchise operations has been brought on by salesmen breaking away from established franchising companies—both successful and unsuccessful companies —to set up their own organizations. Too often they are not equipped with the experience, with the necessary knowledge.

"I'm worried that a lot of nice old people, and a lot not so old, are going to invest their life's savings in a scheme that is destined from the start to fail."

The failure rate in franchising is startlingly low. Though figures vary, it is estimated widely that the rate of failure of a franchised operation has been only one-sixth that of a truly independent small business. The most authoritative source on the subject says the rate of failure for franchising is 8%.

Rothenberg points out that there is no policing agency for the business of franchising and "too many fast promotion people are jumping in." Rothenberg offers some guidelines to those considering investing in a franchise. Among these is a cardinal rule: check the franchising company with the Better Business Bureau.

Other avenues of investigation should be pursued, including a careful study of the company's program by someone experienced in franchise operations and careful scrutiny of the contract by an attorney.

An official of the National Better Business Bureau recently said, "I'm afraid that as franchising becomes more and more popular there will be more and more swindles on its coattails." He noted that one company recently was organized to sell waffle shop franchises but dissolved after collecting $25,000 in fees and before opening any shops. The investors lost their money.

Other companies are interested only in extracting large franchise fees, caring little whether the business fails. Others will cancel the contract with a successful franchisee, repossessing the store on a falsified or trumped-up charge. For this reason the investor should have the contract carefully studied by an attorney, to be assured of adequate protection.

Though the franchising system is by no means new—Rexall started it all in 1902 and auto makers and gasoline companies have made huge use of it for many years—it was not until the end of World War II that franchising reached into general merchandising.

When the servicemen returned they searched for a new start rather than going back to mundane jobs. They longed, after months and years of taking orders, to be their own bosses.

Franchising was the answer for many.

Franchising combines the two essential elements in successful merchandising: the shopkeeper works long and vigorously (because it's his money and potential profit that's invested) and the manufacturer is afforded a chain of high-efficiency outlets.

Today there are more than 1,200 franchising companies. "In a few years," says Rothenberg, "we will look back on the franchising situation of today and we'll hardly recognize it. The future (of franchising) is enormous. Soon there will be franchised stores and services in fields that aren't even considered as fields for franchising now."

An example of this is the recent entry of franchising into medicine. A national firm currently is setting up "Medicenters" adjacent to hospitals. Patients will receive care at these Medicenters during the time between intensive hospitalization and their return home. The hospitals, in effect, will "farm out" patient care at less cost to the patient because medicenters won't be required to maintain expensive emergency equipment. It is claimed by the franchiser that this method will make possible a significant reduction in hospital bills.

Franchising also may soon reach into another aspect of medicine — to establish nursing schools to meet the added demands brought on by Medicare.

The more common franchising operations are in small restaurants (hamburger and doughnut shops, root beer stands) and auto accessory stores, though the industry is expanding rapidly into new fields. A fast-growing facet of franchising is bookkeeping-accounting. In recent years franchised motel operations have spread across the nation.

Government figures say that franchise operations gross $60 billion annually, a full 10% of the gross national product. The bulk of this is accounted for by auto dealers and gasoline stations, the two largest factions in franchising. General Motors is the world's largest franchiser.

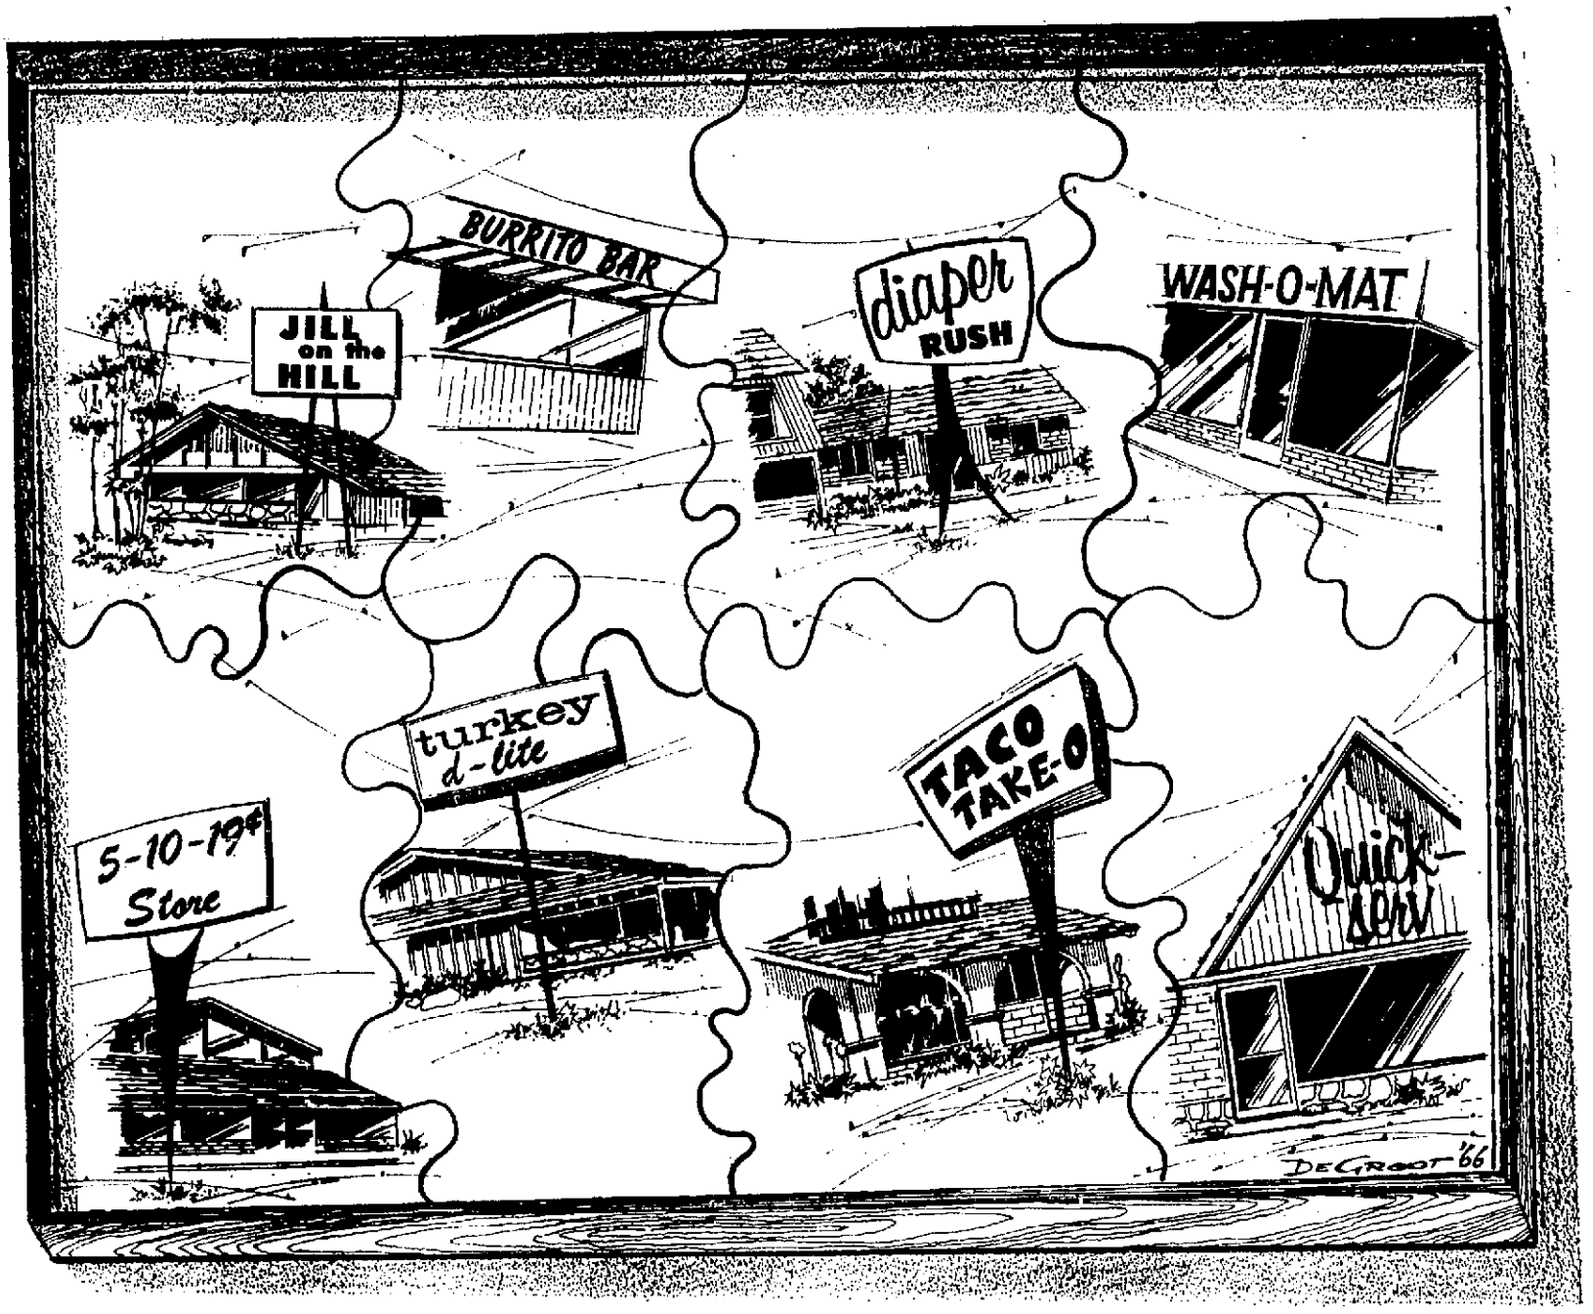

Essentially, franchising is a licensing of an individual by a large company. Usually a franchise fee is charged—anywhere from $1,000 to $12,000 for small businesses—and for his money the franchisee gets the use of large-purchase pricing from the distributor and varying degrees of supervision.

The individual joins an organization that offers the efficiencies and economics of big business. This boosts him over the hurdle that has led to high mortality rates among small businesses. The International Franchise Association points out that "well over 90% of theese new (franchise) businesses flourish, an amazing figure when compared with the 13% of all new business starts which succeed." Records show that only 5% of small businesses are still operating after 10 years.

They call it MIT, which stands for Motor Inn Tech, a school for teaching motel franchisees how to run business. Lone coed looks scornful as classmates struggle with bedclothes.

The IFA proudly points out that franchising is growing at a faster rate than any other segment of our private enterprise system. From some 200 franchising firms in the country in 1945, the industry grew to a total of 1,100 franchising companies in 1961. Though the rate of new franchising companies has slowed, the chains have grown larger. Currently more than 30,000 new franchise stores-restaurants are opened each year, making the current total about 350,000 individual operations.

In return for the guidance by the parent company, the individual pays a percentage of his profits to the franchiser, usually from 2 to 8% of the gross.

Since the franchising company has such a large potential of profit it usually sets down strict rules for the independent operator. "Like any chain," says Rothenberg, "a weak link can do irrepairable harm. If one store in a chain of eating establishments serves below-par food in an effort to cut corners and boost profits, the other stores in the chain will suffer."

For this reason, Rothenberg advises the man who cannot take orders, the man who has a fiery ambition to be the boss, to be most careful about the variety of franchise operation he invests in.

"Generally speaking, the better operations are the ones that maintain the tightest control, so when the company's representative begins telling the independent operator how to run his business the hard-headed type man is likely to become unhappy and say 'I bought this store to go into business for myself, to be my own boss.' The result often is dissatisfaction on both sides.

"There is nothing magic about the success of franchising. It's simply a blending of the things that big business can offer the individual and the things the individual can offer big business. And the big thing that the individual must be willing to offer is time. He'd better be willing to work a lot of 12 and 16-hour days."

Marcel Trehan is 43 years old. He lives in Long Beach and works for a large corporation in Los Angeles as a middle-level executive. Trehan has mortgaged his house to make a deposit on a Taco Bell handout restaurant.

Though Trehan got in early in the startling success of Taco Bells, he still is on the waiting list. At the current rate of openings he may not get his location for another 15 months. He doesn't know where his place of business will be, for the company, which has more than 40 outlets in Southern California, has full control over sites.

Trehan paid only $7,400 for his franchise. The current price is $16,000. For that sum the franchisee buys the right to use the name and the business methods of the parent organization, which also provides close supervision to assure success. Taco Bell, with headquarters in Palos Verdes and Torrance, is a Southern California operation that has gained a nationwide reputation as one of the better franchising groups. The rate of failure is infinitesimal.

When Trehan went shopping for a franchise he had a wide choice, for he is not a restaurant man. "I chose the company that had the most thorough training and supervising setup," he says. Though he intends to hire a manager to run the store until retirement from his present employer in six years, Trehan knows that he will still have to spend long hours keeping books and overseeing.

But Trehan has been assured by the Taco Bell company that his schooling by it will prepare him for his new role of independent businessman. And he has the added assurance that a company representative

The Angry Hornet That Chases Criminals

By Andy Park

Working in unison, ground units are assisted by helicopter surveillance in police experiment in Lakewood that has national importance.

Photos by Sheriff's Department

THE WHIRR-FLAP buzz of the helicopter overhead hardly drew an inquisitive eye, for the townspeople of Lakewood knew without looking that it was just a couple of patrolmen on their beat.

But then the wail of an airborne siren shrieked out and an angry little hornet with SHERIFF emblazoned on the side was flashing a red light, emitting a mournful sound that sent motorists to the curb, their heads peering cautiously up through car windows.

They were watching a police operation that is being studied carefully by law enforcement agencies all across the nation, a police operation that, combined with other ultra-modern methods, is leading a good many law enforcement officials to conclude that the odds in the war against crime are finally beginning to swing in favor of the police.

One such policeman is Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy Sgt. Claude Cooper, who was in the wailing helicopter above the streets of Lakewood, directing a chase that marked a milestone in police activity.

DELIBERATELY, carefully, Cooper was keeping a bright orange sports car in sight. Just as deliberately he spat terse phrases into a thin, reedlike microphone curved around his jaw in front of his lips.

"Northbound on Lakewood," Cooper said. "132-A, he's turning west on Silva. That's 'S-Sam, I-Ida, L-Lincoln, V-Victor, A-Adam . . . Silva,' . . . now he's turning south onto Graywood."

What was happening . . . what made Cooper feel "the odds are in our favor . . ." was the first time in American history that a regularly scheduled law enforcement helicopter patrol was in the process of making a felony arrest.

As the chase continued word was flashed to Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess who immediately turned on a monitor radio in his downtown office to follow the chase.

THOSE WHO SAW him as he inclined an ear toward the radio speaker said he reminded them of photos of U. S. Presidents watching launches from Cape Kennedy, so intense was he.

Pitchess would not agree with what Claude Cooper called "the odds." Pitchess, who argued at tradition-bound oldtimers, and pushed for a pilot program for this first around-the-clock police helicopter patrol, says sternly: "Law enforcement is not some kind of 'game' or 'contest.' The criminal is not smarter, or luckier, or better informed than the policeman. He is just riding the crest of a population explosion coupled with the public's failure to utilize the available tools to stop him in his tracks. Project Sky Knight is an attempt to turn that tide back to where it should be . . . in favor of the public."

Project Sky Knight is a 12-month experimental program of cooperation between the City of Lakewood, Pitchess' Sheriff's Department, the Hughes Tool Company's aircraft division, and the federal government to see if Pitchess was right in his contention that utilization of "available tools" would stop the criminal in his tracks.

THE ANGRY WAIL over Lakewood that day last month was the first test.

A 26-year-old man who later said "I just wanted to steal a car," had walked onto a used car lot, stepped into a fast sports car with the keys in the ignition, and sped off.

Two men stood stunned as the car thief gunned the hot little car. Reacting, they jumped into their own car and started to follow him.

Looking through his rear view mirror at the pursuing civilian car, the man just fed more gas to the powerful engine and started turning corners.

In the pursuing vehicle, the man on the passenger side looked up out of the windshield and noticed the helicopter on its regular patrol over Lakewood.

"Lemme out at that phone booth," he said to the driver. "I'm calling the sheriff. You stay on his tail."

When the call was relayed to Sgt. Claude Cooper with the description and direction of the stolen car, he pushed the stick forward and to the left in his 'chopper and settled slowly over the main thoroughfare of Clark Avenue. Within seconds he had spotted the fleeing orange car being followed by a blue sports sedan. Cooper mashed on the communications button on the control stick and started Project Sky Knight into full gear.

ON THE GROUND, Deputy Robert Ewen heard Cooper's directions.

South on Clark to Del Amo, the chase progressed. West to Lakewood then north to Silva and west to Graywood. As the thief turned east on Arbor, frantically trying to shake his pursuers he first heard the wail that would be his downfall—Cooper turned on the red light and siren overhead.

Knowing no solution but more speed, the car careened around a corner to Whitewood and—now in the City of Long Beach—the little vehicle jumped across Harvey

The Neighbors Howl and Holler, but...

VIP Doesn't Give a Hoot!

By Pat McDonnell

LIFE USED to be rather quiet in Newport Beach.

Sure, there was an occasional boat explosion, a murder or two and the springtime and summertime teenage eruptions.

But things have really been popping in recent months because Virgil Partch is moving back to town, a move that should be accomplished within a matter of days and one that might ignite again the fires of neighborhood indignation.

But don't bother Partch, the famed cartoonist whose hook-nosed characters have become a national giggle, for he couldn't care less about his neighbor's wrath.

What did VIP do?

He hired an architect who designed a home that projects 26 feet further than neighboring ocean-bluff estates.

The ostentatious tri-level structure, called the Partch Hilton by many, obliterates one-half the view of coastline from Long Beach to Laguna for more than 20 homes in the Corona del Mar section of Newport.

Since foundations were laid, a resounding ruckus has been reverberating in municipal—or is it county or state?—planning meetings.

IN DEFENSE of her controversial home, Mrs. Partch states:

"We'd owned the Corona del Mar lot for years. In fact, we had it listed (for sale) for one year before we decided to build. If neighbors were so concerned over protecting their view, why didn't they buy the last vacant lot on the ocean front?

"During our nine years in Capistrano, there was a vacant lot next to us. We knew people some day would build on it and we would lose our view. We waited until it happened. Then we moved."

Her rebuttal to threats of civil rebellion, neighbors' uprisings and/or overt destruction of the Partch home?

"What would the neighbors have done if we'd built a shack on the lot and really lowered property values?

"People accuse us of being inconsiderate. They complain a family of three doesn't need such a large home.

"I really don't see that it's anyone's business how large a home we have. We're people who make a concentrated use of our home. We live in it and work in it 24 hours a day.

(VIP's studio will fill one level of the house.)

"As for neighbors, we don't care whether we make friends with them or not. We go out rarely—entertain less. We've built a home to suit our needs."

AS FOR ARTIST Partch, his future studio-home has become a monumental pain in the neck as hysteria mounts over the structure.

Not only does he refuse to discuss the ultra-modern dream home, but has made only two visits in the 10 months of construction, first estimated to take no longer than six months.

Costs, too, have risen from the initial sum of $70,000 to a total well in excess of $100,000.

"There were little things like having to put in an elevator instead of a stairway," explained Mrs. Partch.

"Then there was the constant harrassment at city council meetings, delays in construction when objectors managed to put through a variance on condition the roof overhang be cut from 3½ feet to 2½ feet.

"The construction crew forever was being told to halt work," said Mrs. Partch.

"Building inspectors prowled around at all hours looking for loopholes. Then there was a hassle over whether or not the top level was legal, since the area isn't zoned for home with more than two levels. That argument was solved when it was proven the third level is 50% open."

CARTOONIST Partch merely sighs whenever the house is brought up by friends who accuse him of building a monument to himself.

The future master of the Partch Hilton yawns and mumbles to his wife:

"Go ahead with your plans, dear. Tell me when you're through and I'll move in."

After hearing neighbors bellow in unison that they'll get VIP, the cartoonist has vowed to wear a flak jacket at all times once the move is accomplished.

"That is, if the neighbors don't burn it down first," he said.

"The only thing that can happen now is for the state to decide to build a freeway through it."

Asked if she designed the home, Mrs. Partch said:

"I thought I did.

"It's the first time we've hired an architect and I'm satisfied.

"I'VE LEARNED that any owner has a mental picture of his dream house. The architect also has his idea. The incredible problem is to get both conceptions across to the sub-contractors.

"When the neighbors, city council and professional complainers get into the act—the going really gets rough.

"You might say the architect comes up with design features that are impractical, non-functional and expensive—but always good to look at.

"One of his brainstorms was what Virgil and I call the 'Leg Breaker Feature.'

"For beauty's sake, he wanted a two-foot space between walkway and driveway to remain uncovered and unfenced. The visual aspects were terrific. But a tipsy guest was liable to fall just about one story. You know, not steep enough to kill, but enough to maim or break a limb."

No matter how elegant the design of the house, nor how impressive its furnishings or unequalled view, chances are future guests will go away most impressed by an insignificant $3.50 engraved sign at the front door which reads:

Cpl. Virgil Franklin Partch III (Ret.).

A Conversation Piece

Displaying a Hobby

Flower-like pattern results from Mrs. Yvonne Shaver's method for showing spoon collection.

By Helen L. Gillum

DISPLAYING small treasures garnered through the years sometimes can be a problem. This especially is true when storage space is limited, as in an apartment, or when the home decor undergoes a change, demanding a new look in furnishings, too. Ingenuity and planning, however, can bring new and interesting methods of "showing off" a hobby or collection.

Such was the case with Mrs. Raymond J. Shaver of Seal Beach, who collects souvenir spoons.

"When we moved into our new home several years ago, we changed from maple furnishings to Danish Modern," she says. "Reluctantly, I took my spoons off their maple racks and prepared to put them away."

Since their new home has a fireplace, Mrs. Shaver also desired something out-of-the-ordinary to fill the space over it. So she came up with an idea that not only displays about fifty of her 112 spoons in a unique manner, but adds beauty to the wall over the fireplace as well.

"I FIRST purchased two pieces of brown decorator cork," she says. "I experimented with placing spoons on them in various designs, until I arrived at a flower-type arrangement that pleased me. Then with a large darning needle and brown thread, I literally 'sewed' some spoons to one of the pieces of cork. To give the exhibit a balanced look, I cut the other piece of cork in two pieces and 'sewed' the smaller spoons in fan-like designs on them."

Friends who see the arrangement the first time comment on the attractive "flowers" over the fireplace. Then they realize the flowers actually are spoons, making them conversation pieces, too.

While none of Mrs. Shaver's spoons is old enough to be classed as an antique (her oldest dates to 1917, which her father purchased in Paris, France, before she was born), her method of showing them can be an inspiration to those who do possess small heirloom items, such as coin silver spoons. And with the new tarnish-retardant polishes for silver now available, one need not worry too much if the items are on open display instead of behind protective glass.

Exhibits easily can be created to blend with individual home decor whether it be modern, Victorian or traditional.

Mrs. Shaver sums it up this way, "I like to have my spoons in a prominent spot where I am constantly reminded of good friends who gave them to me . . or of interesting places where I purchased some of them."

Williamsburg in Santa Ana

By Ellen Krec

WILLIAMSBURG WEST! A Colonial home in the center of Santa Ana is owned by the Frank Joseph Galinas family. Mr. Galinas is manager of the Chamber of Commerce in Santa Ana and Mrs. Galinas is an artist of note and art dealer—and together they share the joys of restoring an old 15-room home to its original state.

So authentic is this home that it has been used as background for several historical films.

The exterior is white clapboard and red brick with black shutters. A portico on one side boasts a gargoyle lavabo that has served neighborhood animals as a drinking fountain for many years. The living room entrance is through French doors beside the fountain. A brick veranda lines the other side of the home and leads through a black door, with an American federal eagle "flying" above the fanlight, into the foyer.

The family's ultimate goal in decorating this house is a complete return to Williamsburg.

Pride of the family is 14-year-old Jeanine, an accomplished artist, busy at the moment illustrating a book. Jeanine is as enthusiastic as her parents about the joys and challenges of the past.

THE PATINA of magnificent hardwood floors sets the tone of the semi-formal living room. Two lounge chairs in cabbage rose toile with a matching ottoman face each other in front of the red-and-white brick fireplace.

A baby grand piano fits comfortably in one end of the room and two rose velvet Victorian chairs are perfect companions to the toile-covered sofa.

All the furniture has been acquired in out-of-the-ordinary places. The Galinases will tell you they find great satisfaction in haunting junk shops, Good Will and Salvation Army stores. One lovely sofa came from the back of a truck. Mrs. Galinas saw it, recognized its value and immediately purchased it.

This home is proof positive that one can do great things with little money, lots of energy, good taste and knowledge. Practically everything in it has been purchased and restored with all these qualities.

A favorite occupation is to find something just right for the home, then to buy it reasonably. The woods have been rubbed or refinished and most of the furniture recovered in a coordinating color and authentic fabric.

Living room accessories have been accumulated the same way. The fine Victorian lusters in deep cranberry stand on the fireplace mantel. An old English silver tea service with a pineapple top is an heirloom, as are the mirrors. The tea service rests on a cedar lowboy that was a gift from Galinas to his wife, and while it is not particularly old, it is a fine reproduction of a John Townsend chest.

The living room walls are completely covered with draperies giving the illusion of windows. Paintings are hung from these draperies for a greater effect. A tall white silk upholstered grandfather's chair also is an important addition to the living room.

in history. Mrs. Galinas' grandparents were acquaintances of Abraham Lincoln and they have a few pieces of Lincoln memorabilia left them as their share of that era of history.

While the home is a potential museum, the Galinases are not interested in living in a museum atmosphere. They like people and gracious—but never stuffy—living.

Possibly the only contemporary note in this house-of-the past is the paintings. They are in all media—watercolors, sketches, oils. They include scenes, marines and abstracts. All are originals by Mrs. Galinas or a close friend of the family and a well known artist, Donald Nicholson.

Like Alice going through the looking glass, you pass through more French doors to the foyer where the gold-and-white wallpaper, hung by Mrs. Galinas, takes a pink glow from the small Chippendale love seat. This was one of the more recent acquisitions along with the pair of French chairs, and all are upholstered in the deep pink velvet to blend with Oriental rugs.

THE FOYER is large enough to hold a double dresser, mahogany with carved fans. This is another 18th Century reproduction left to Mrs. Galinas by her mother.

Other than the slightly curved staircase that adds an elegant note (and also provides a flat new "rack" for school books) the foyer contains an elevator. It works! "And believe me," says Mrs. Galinas, "this is certainly appreciated on cleaning days when I just stack the equipment and push the button!"

It is very unobtrusive, but when you have 14 rooms and numerous baths, it almost becomes a necessity.

More French doors open into the dining room to expose the rosewood Jacobean chest with its rose paterae and marble top. A handsome black cherry sideboard came from the governor's mansion in Boston. The imported French wallpaper also was hung by Mrs. Galinas. It is a hand print, typically 18th Century with an Oriental theme. A hooked rug makes a perfect setting for the Duncan Phyfe table. Galinas is pround to tell you his wife purchased the 12 Chippendale chairs, in perfect condition, from the Salvation Army for $120!

TWO HEPPLEWHITE commodes flank the windows overlooking the gardens. The color scheme for this room was set by the wallpaper which is in the same shades of pink, soft blues and sharp greens as the hooked rug. This gives a rather opulent effect and the look of the 18th Century. A silver bowl from the early 1800s rests on a loose-footed base. All the accessories have a story, too. A Canadian silver casserole holder with a Dresden insert was found at a church bazaar for 75 cents. An early 1800s silver bowl now used to hold sugar originally was used for Mrs. Galinas' christening. Unusual pressed glass made from triple molds add color. Two of the pieces were brought to California on the first Overland Stage from the East.

All of the chandeliers — there is one in each room — are rare silver with crystal. This requires much polishing, but the effect is one of grandeur.

The final French doors allow a perfect view straight through to the small contemporary and 18th Century den. This room, with its beige grasspaper walls, makes a fine gallery for paintings. Paintings move readily, since Mrs. Galinas has been known to exchange some of her fine work for something she needs or wants to make this home historically valuable.

THE KITCHEN is well on its way to becoming Early American with the exception of the last word in equipment, a concession any woman would insist upon. No pumps or open-hearth cooking here. The wall paper is a Gloucester print and the balance of the walls brick veneer. A fine wrought iron dining table seems quite at home.

Five upstairs rooms are just beginning to take shape. The signs of progress, authenticity and accumulation all are there. This is time consuming and the steps are slow.

Most of the furniture in Jeanine's bedroom-bath is rock maple; some pieces were gifts from grandparents and some very credible colonial chairs came in kits to be assembled. These are copied from pieces still in an Eastern museum.

GALINAS IS A history buff and his den-office is mostly American Federal since his main interest is in the Revolutionary War. The colors of the Flag are appropriately used in this room and the look is as patriotic as the Herbert Hoover toby jug.

There is a pink-checked sewing room that is both useful and cheerful. The baths are all large enough to hold lounge chairs and all have Victorian decor. Pre-Victorian prints from "The Lady's Friend" decorate one of the baths.

The master bed-sitting-room is capacious and comfortable. An antique library table now being put to use as a desk is a proud part of this room. A family heirloom is a pegged Chippendale rocker. A curved courting chair takes its color from the roses in the draperies. This room has a tiled fireplace and an air of a French country house. Red roses and white tile coordinate the master bath with the bedroom and the bathroom has its own small but elegant chandelier.

For A Real Ducky Dinner

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

FOR A REAL "ducky" dinner, serve Barbecued Duckling Quarters. And to add a real gourmet twist, accompany it with Sweet Cherry Relish. A perfect complement is a handsome canned Bartlett pear and strawberry salad, heated French bread, a green vegetable or corn on the cob and an iced beverage.

Frozen ducklings are available in the freezer cases of most supermarkets. Plan to let the ducklings defrost overnight in the refrigerator, then they're ready to fix in a jiffy.

Duckling and Pears in a Red Wine Sauce are equally delicious. That recipe is included, also.

BARBECUED DUCKLING QUARTERS WITH SWEET CHERRY RELISH

- 1 frozen duckling (4½ to 5 pounds), defrosted and quartered
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup liquid reserved from Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish, see recipe below

Wash, drain and dry duckling quarters; sprinkle salt evenly over cut surfaces. Arrange quarters on grill over low glowing coals, cut side down. Brown lightly; turn and cook until skin is crisp and brown. Turn again and continue cooking until meat on breast and leg is fork tender, about 1 to 1½ hours total time. Baste frequently during last 30 minutes of cooking with liquid reserved from Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish. Yield: 4 pieces, 2 to 4 servings.

SWEET CHERRY BARBECUE RELISH

- 1 can (1-lb.) light or dark sweet cherries, pits removed
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup white wine
- 1 (1-inch) stick cinnamon
- 3 whole cloves
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ½ cup sliced stuffed green olives

Drain cherries, reserving liquid. Combine cherry liquid, lemon juice, wine, cinnamon, cloves, celery and green olives. Return to mixture and refrigerate to blend flavors.

Use part of liquid to baste duckling as it barbecues. Heat remaining liquid and cherry-olive mixture in saucepan over low heat. When duckling is cooked, remove to serving platter and garnish with hot Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish.

SWEET AND SOUR CHERRY BROILED DUCKLING

- 1 can (1 lb.) light or dark sweet cherries
- 1 can (11 oz.) mandarin orange segments
- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 frozen duckling (4½-5 lbs.), defrosted
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon water

Drain cherries, reserving syrup. Drain orange segments. Combine vinegar, brown sugar, soy sauce and salt with cherry liquid. Return cherries and mandarin orange segments to liquid.

Wash and drain duckling; pat dry. Cut duckling into quarters. Place in large bowl and pour cherry-orange mixture over. Marinate 3 hours. Place duckling, cut side up, on broiler rack 8 inches from broiler. Broil 25-30 minutes, turn and continue broiling until duckling is brown and crisp (about 20 minutes). While duckling is cooking, remove cherries and oranges from marinade with slotted spoon. Thicken marinade with cornstarch and water mixed together. Cook over low heat until sauce is thickened and clear. Add cherries and orange segments and heat through. Remove duckling to serving platter, serve with sweet and sour cherry sauce as accompaniment.

DUCKLING AND PEARS IN RED WINE SAUCE

- 1 can (1 lb., 13-oz.) Bartlett pear halves
- ½ cup red or rose wine
- 1 lemon thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- Dash garlic powder
- 1 frozen duckling (4½-5 lbs.), defrosted
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon water

Drain canned pears, reserving liquid. Combine pear liquid, wine, lemon, onion, allspice, and garlic powder.

Wash and drain duckling; pat dry. Quarter duckling. Place quarters in large bowl with pear halves. Pour wine mixture over pears and duckling and marinate 3 hours. Place duckling on broiler rack 8 inches from broiler, cut side up. Broil 25-30 minutes, turn and broil until brown and crisp (about 20 minutes).

Place marinade in saucepan over low heat. Combine cornstarch with 1 tablespoon water. Stir into marinade and cook, stirring, until sauce is thick and clear. Add pear halves and simmer to heat through. Serve pear halves and sauce with broiled duckling.

Recipe of the Week

Tasty orange blossom muffins with a spicy topping result from a $5-prize-winning recipe submitted this week by Mrs. Willlam J. Morgan, of 401 S. Deming St., Santa Ana. Her recipe:

Muffins

- 1 slightly beaten egg
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ cup orange juice
- 2 tblsp salad oil or melted shortening
- 2 cups biscuit mix
- ½ cup orange marmalade
- ½ cup chopped pecans or slivered almonds

Combine egg, sugar, orange juice and salad oil; add biscuit mix; beat vigorously for 30 seconds. Stir in marmalade and pecans. Grease muffin pans or line with paper bake cups; fill ⅔ full. Sprinkle with spicy topping.

Topping

- ¼ cup sugar
- 1½ tblsp. flour
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tsp. butter

Combine sugar, flour and spices; cut in butter until crumbly. Bake muffins in hot oven (400 degrees) for 20-25 minutes or until done. Makes 12 muffins.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipe along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

As a reader of Southland, you can get an answer, by mail, to any question of fact by writing to Southland Magazine Information Bureau, 635 F St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20004. Please inclose return postage or self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Q. Why does "to lead the life of Riley" mean to lead an easy life? C.I.

A. The phrase has been traced back to a comic song hit introduced by Pat Rooney in 1883, "Is That Mr. Riley?" Mr. Riley was the owner of a hotel and therefore presumably able to lead an easy and pleasurable life. The song had numerous parodies.

Q. By whom was Memorial Day originated? S.D.

A. General John A. Logan, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Memorial Day was first observed officially on May 30, 1868. Originally the holiday was held to honor the dead of the Civil War only, but subsequently the honor was extended to those of other U.S. wars.

Q. In connection with solar energy, what is the "solar belt"? D.T.

A. The "solar belt" extends beyond the tropics to about the 40th degree of latitude, north and south, and comprises the area of the earth's surface within which solar energy will be most ef-

A Mixed Bag

PHILIP RAHV, professor of English at Brandeis University, a founding editor of Partisan Review and author of a number of studies of American literature, has come up with a new, mixed bag of goodies. In "Modern Occasions," published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $6.95, he has collected works of 21 authors heretofore unpublished in English. The collection reflects current trends in fiction, poetry, drama and criticism.

Rahv says in the foreword that this collection, while containing some experimental writing, is not experimental in the meaning this word acquired in the first 30 years or so of this century—experimentation with verbal and structural forms. There is some experimental writing, as he points out, but it is mostly confined to adapting the latest colloquial speech to literary purposes. Rahv adds in an apologetic tone that though he is disposed to encourage sweeping experimentation, none was forthcoming.

What we do find, however, are some of the more immediate and spontaneous modes of expression. Like a box of strawberries at the supermarket, the best is on the top. The opening piece, "The Elbow," a novella by Thalia Selz, is superb. It's an easy-flowing story of a young, free-loving woman living in a Chicago Greenwich Village-type neighborhood who is majoring in film at a progressive school. It is funny, pathetic and wise—a keenly carved slice of life.

A POEM by Robert Lowell, with classical themes, follows. Other poems contained in the book are by A. R. Ammons, Steven Katz, Jane Cooper and Harold Schimmel.

In the field of criticism are pieces by Hans Magnus Enzensberger, writing on the Avant-Garde; Robert Brustein on new American playwrights; Maurice Cranston on the later thought of Jean Paul Sartre, and Stephen Donadio on some younger poets in America.

Enzensberger's piece on the Avant-Garde is scholarly but suffers from heavy Germanic writing. Buried under the badinage, however, are some gems of truth, and Enzensberger, despite the heavy going, offers a definitive look at Avant-Garde as a concept of the arts.

Robert Brustein's criticism of current American playwrights is excellent. The gist of Brustein's thought is that although each of the several playwrights he dissects shows talent and potential along one or more lines, all have shortcomings and have not developed into mature artists of first rank. Edward Albee seems to be the outstanding member of the current crop.

CRANSTON POINTS out the strengths and weaknesses of Jean Paul Sartre and Sartre's inconsistencies in defining the Existentialist movement. Sartre can be forgiven this, however, since to this date no one has been able to define Existentialism in clear, succinct and brief terms.

Donadio gives us brief, illuminating sketches of modern American poets along with criticism of their works and a look at new poetry trends.

Rahv also gives us plays by Peter Spielberg and Jascha Kessler.

Several other stories and excerpts from longer works round out the selections. The stories show the experimentation, as Rahv calls it, in American fiction. It is the type of writing one encounters in Esquire, Playboy and a number of other periodicals.

The writer seems to be writing for himself alone —spewing out words as if he were lying on an analyst's couch. To hell with the reader and with comprehension. Words are piled atop words and they seem to bear no logical relationship to one another in carrying out a train of thought. These catharses are interspersed with occasional lucid passages and spiced with colloquial shock words. One takes this not to be so much experimentation but a slavish emulation of Henry Miller.

With the exception of the opening story by Thalia Selz and the fine story by Paul West at the end, the best feature of the collection is the selection of critical essays. The criticisms are a first-rate description and analysis of trends in contemporary letters.

Harsh Life in Quebec Recalled

A SEASON IN THE LIFE OF EMMANUEL, by Marie-Claire Blaise. Farrar, Straus, $4.50.

There is a second French literature, written closer to home than the one we know, yet a million miles away from even the most knowledgable of American connoisseurs of good writing. True, French Canada has produced no Balzacs, nor even Zolas, but it has its gems nevertheless. Creator of some of these is Marie-Claire Blais, a mere slip of a girl as fine writers go, but a polished craftsman and a maker of tales that, once read, defy forgetting.

"A Season in the Life of Emmanuel" is a simple annal of the poor, of a Quebec family's struggle to survive. The mother has borne 16 children, the father is an unlettered farmer, a resenter of the lettered. Most memorable of the brood is Jean-Le Maigre, tormented by tuberculosis, but precocious, who reads the precious little he can find and hungers for more, uncowed by the father's "We don't want books in this house!"

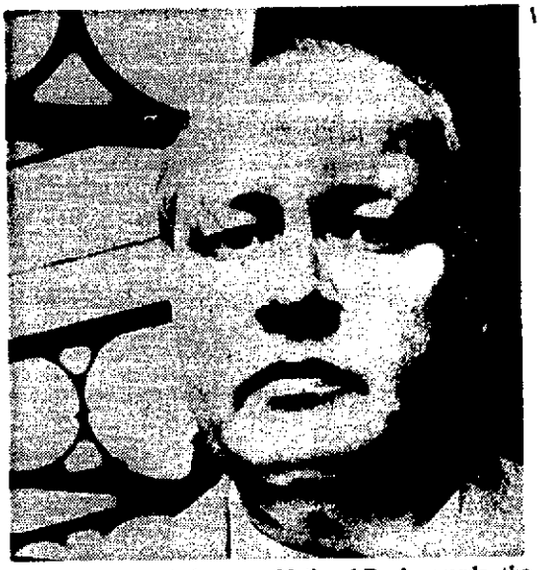

A sister, Heloise, has been dismissed from a convent, as a self-appointed saint, and the brothel claims her. Ruling over them all is Grand-mere Antoinette, sharp of tongue, unsparing of the cane but dispensing lumps of sugar to the children. This is the bleak, bigoted world of peasant Quebec as witnessed by the boy Emmanuel in his first years of life.—Nat Honig

Books in Brief

THE SONG OF HIAWATHA, by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Introduction by Mina Lewiton, illustrated by Howard Simon. Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.95.

EVANGELINE, by Longfellow. Introduction by Mina Lewiton, illustrated by Howard Simon. Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.95.

These magnificently illustrated editions of two long poems that are a basic part of our heritage are especially aimed at introducing young readers to the beauty and excitement of the Longfellow works. They will delight older readers, too.

The Pulitzer Prize, two National Book awards, the coveted Bollingen award, the Levinson award, Tietjens prize and a couple of Guggenheim fellowships have been won by poet Theodore Roethke (above). "The Collected Poems of Theodore Roethke," Doubleday, $5.95, contains some of the finest lyric poetry of this generation.

Israeli Activist as Seen by Greats

By Morry Rabin

MEYER WEISGAL AT SEVENTY. Edited by Edward Victor. Weidenfeld and Nicolson. 25 S.

THE LATE Dr. Chaim Weizmann, eminent British scientist who was the first president of the State of Israel, is revered by world Judaism as the architect of that statehood. His disciple, Meyer Weisgal, is the activist who, by extraordinary talent as editor and writer, theatrical impresario, propagandist, fund-raiser and patron of science, has propelled Weizmann's great visions to fulfillment.

Less than a third of the Weisgal story is biography; the rest is testimonial by Nobel laureates in science, literature, heads of government who have worked with the Polish-born, American immigrant who conceived and now heads the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovoth, Israel.

In only one decade, under Weisgal's dynamic promotion, the $100-million complex with its faculty of 460 and staff of 760 has become, according to President Lyndon B. Johnson, one of the 10 leading scientific institutions in the world and "has helped make Israel one of the foremost scientific resources of the world."

Some of the tributes which illuminate his personality are by Louis Lipsky; Maurice Samuel, writer and lecturer Pierre Van Paassen, author and foreign correspondent; Cass Canfield, chairman of Harper & Row, and Ritchie Calder, professor of International relations at Edinburgh University.

The Nobel laureates are Dr. I.I. Rabi and Niels Bohr, physics; Sir Robert Robinson, chemistry, and Dr. Ernest B. Chain, medicine and physiology. And from Israel, Abba Eban, foreign minister; and David Ben-Gurion and Moshe Starett, former prime ministers.

'New Japan' Dissected in Stories

DEATH IN MIDSUMMER AND OTHER STORIES, by Yukio Mishima. New Directions, $5.50.

These are the first of Yukio Mishima's short stories Americans are privileged to read. Mishima's novels have made his name a byword around the world for masterly craftsmanship. In Japan the short story is a major and always burgeoning art, whereas it is a dying one with us, and Mishima is one of its finest practitioners.

Nine of his stories have been translated here. The best of them are the title tale, "Death in Midsummer," of a triple tragedy at a beach, and "Patriotism," in which a young army officer and his wife expiate disgrace in a violent but traditional way. The dead weight of the past still falls heavily upon Mishima's modern Japanese, sophisticated though they consider themselves.

The bizarre ending is a specialty of Mishima and few writers, Oriental or Western, are his equal at it. A further facet of this Japanese giant's talent is in the modern "No" play sandwiched among the stories.—N. H.

ANGRY HORNET THAT CHASES CRIMINALS

Way, smashed through a line of bushes on the campus of Long Beach City College and rammed into a tree on the college grounds. The force of the impact threw the thief out the open door of the car.

THE DAZED man was just picking himself up when several sheriff's cars pulled up. As he looked up he saw two airborne deputies hovering over, ready and waiting. Claude Cooper couldn't resist a slight smile.

"Score one," Cooper muttered as he turned the 'copter back to regular patrol.

Day and night, every day of the week, Project Sky Knight hovers over Lakewood, poking its blunt plastic nose into the public's business. Three shifts of deputy-pilots from the Sheriff's Aero Detail man the angry hornet. A wino ducks into an alley behind a building, a man stoops to look into a parked car, a young girl returns home late at night from work . . . Sky Knight watches and buzzes overhead.

The experiment will continue for a year, funded by the City of Lakewood, the Sheriff's Department, Hughes Tool Co. and an agency of the National Crime Commission. Every move the 'copters make will be recorded and funneled into the office of a dispassionate professor at Long Beach State College. There the data will be evaluated.

Pitchess hopes the program will prove effective. He hopes the crime rate will be cut, money saved, and—most important—the odds changed in favor of the people against the criminal.

ONLY THE objective evaluation at the end of the experimental year will tell the full story. Only then will it be known for sure if the buzz above is worth the savings in life, limb and property.

Companion experiments are also being tried—like the silent revolving beacon on top of the liquor store which illuminates an insistant call for help when a would-be robber pulls a gun on the lone store clerk. And like the sunburst beam that illuminates a football field-size area when Sky Knight spotlights a crime in the dark.

The results aren't in yet, but one comment is on the record. It's the confused words of a would-be car thief suspect when he looked up at Sky Knight overhead:

"That's not fair," the man muttered.

"This is not a game or contest," Pitchess has said.

Q. Please give some personal information on jockey Alex Maese, who won the 1966 George Woolf Memorial Award. V.K.

A. Alex Maese is 37 years old, 5 ft. 5 in. tall, and weighs 112 pounds. He is of Mexican descent; on his mother's side he is a third-generation Californian. Maese is married, has five children, and lives at San Marino, Calif. In high school (Anaheim, Calif.) he played football, basketball, and softball, and ran on the school's relay team; he remains an all-around sports fan. He became an apprentice jockey when he was 24, and is now a director of the Jockeys' Guild. The Woolf Award—a bronze miniature of the statue of a noted jockey who was killed in a riding accident at Santa Anita track 20 years ago—is awarded by vote of turf writers and sports editors; the winners are chosen on the basis of character and other personal qualities as well as their track records.

Q. How did Texas and Massachusetts rank in 1965 in the list of states getting big military contracts?—K.N.

A. In fiscal 1965, Texas ranked third (up from fourth place in 1964), geting 6.2% of the prime military contracts, $1,447 million in money value. Massachusetts and Connecticut tied with 5.1% of the contracts; Connecticut ranked fourth and Massachusetts fifth in money value, with contracts worth $1,180 million and $1,179 million respectively. Massachusetts was up from seventh place in fiscal 1964. California and New York remained at the head of the list in 1965: California, 22.1%, $5,154 million; New York, 9.6%, $2,229 million.

Gals Suffer Scaly Skin

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

STANFORD UNIVERSITY researchers, who have been conducting an extensive study of psoriasis, have come up with findings such as these:

Slightly more women than men suffer from the scaly skin disease.

It occurs more commonly in white than Negro populations.

Most patients get worse in the winter. They fare better in the summer when there is more exposure to the sun.

Thirty percent of a series of 1,500 patients had relatives with psoriasis.

Thirty-nine percent of the patients studied disclosed that their psoriasis appeared at times of worry, and 37.2% said their condition worsened when they were under stress.

More than half said psoriasis preceded arthritis, and 24.5% had arthritis of various joints besides psoriasis.

LONG-TERM use of birth-control pills has not resulted in any adverse effect in subsequent pregnancies, a large-scale study discloses.

This has been reported to the International Study Group for Steroid Hormones by Dr. Edris Rice-Wray, director of the Physiology of Reproduction Study Center in San Luis Potosi, Mexico.

A study of 6,770 women who took the pills shows that those who later decided to bear children suffered no ill effects during pregnancy. Offsprings were normal.

INTERNATIONAL port cities are expected to start showing more and more victims of tropical parasites, predicts a New York City physician.

Dr. Manfred Simon of Montefiore Hospital says New York City already is starting to look like the tropics. Responsible, he says, are population shifts from areas such as Puerto Rico and the South.

There is a rising occurrence of tropical parasites in nontropical places, he says in a report in Modern Medicine.

THE USE of asbestos in brake linings may represent a new urban hazard, one researcher says.

Another investigator believes that more chest tumors attributable to asbestos exposure will turn up in the future.

Dr. Harriet L. Hardy, Boston, assistant medical director of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, puts it this way:

"Evidence is impressive that asbestos exposure, often delayed in effect, will in the future be responsible for an important amount of pulmonary disease, especially chest tumors."

She says new evidence points to an association between asbestos and abdominal tumors.

Her report is in American Journal of the Medical Sciences.

WATERLOGGING of the lungs, a condition that sometimes occurs at high altitudes, is not expected to be a hazard to athletes competing in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

Mexico City has an elevation of 7,500 feet, and the condition, technically called pulmonary edema, is not seen at less than 9,000 feet, says a Stanford University physician.

TWO CASES of aplastic anemia, often a fatal disease, have been linked with exposure to insecticides, Australian researchers report.

One patient was a 39-year-old woman who had washed her dog once a week over a two-year period with a preparation containing benzene hexachloride.

The other patient had used a garden spray containing DDT and lindane.

The report is in Medical Journal of Australia.

COIN ROUNDUP

Legal Gold

By Maurice Gould

MY MAILBAG DURING the past few months has been bulging with inquiries about U.S. gold coins: Whether they can be legally held in collections? Whether the coins can be purchased in foreign countries? Is it permissible to hoard them for investment? And so on.

Actually, there are no restrictions upon dealings in genuine and lawfully issued gold coins situated within the U.S. The coins must have been made prior to April 5, 1933, and located within the U.S. prior to July 20, 1962.

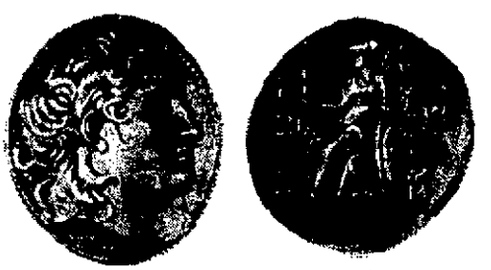

Also, coins made prior to 1933 or ruled to be rare and held outside the U.S. on July 20, 1962, by a person subject to the jurisdiction of the U.S., but imported prior to Jan. 1, 1963, or received under a special authorization from the Treasury Department, may be legally held.

Gold which the office of domestic gold and silver operations of the Treasury Department determines to be of exceptional numismatic value may be imported after receiving a license and authorization from Washington.

One fact little known to both collectors and public alike is that the holding of mutilated coins within the U.S. since 1933, and outside the U.S. since 1961, has been prohibited. Any solder on the coin or the drilling of a hole in it constitutes mutilation.

I would think that many millions of people would be involved in this ruling, as what family does not have an old gold piece or piece of jewelry which was made from mutilated coins? But to the best of my knowledge, this ruling has never been strictly enforced.

Gold certificates issued before Jan. 30, 1934, may be held by collectors. There are a great number of gold certificates outstanding and no doubt many of these will now find their way into the hands of paper money collectors.

This is early Greek silver coin from 323-281 B.C. Obverse is head of Alexander the Great.

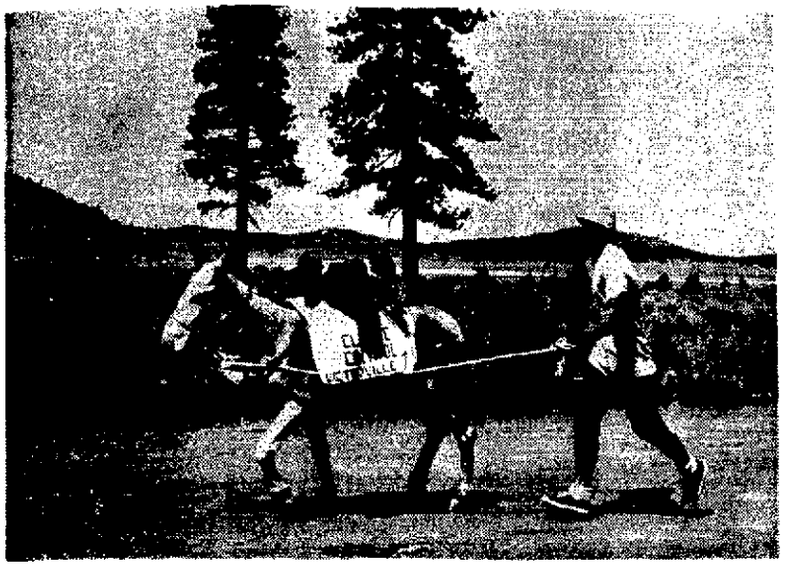

IT IS ALMOST unbelievable, but coins produced more than 2,000 years ago are considered among the finest examples of artistic work produced since minting began. The workmanship of the Greek artists, for example, is legendary and their beautiful silver coinage is eagerly sought after by collectors.

The Greek gods and goddesses were pictured on the beautiful coinage, among the most famous being Zeus, who ruled over gods and men. Animals were frequently used and the Athenian owl is a symbol known to all numismatists.

Even in this early period of recorded history, the Greek victory at the famous battle of Marathon was the occasion for the issuing of a commemorative coin with Athene on the obverse and an owl on the reverse. History is permanently recorded for coin collectors in this manner.

amiable "outriders" and officials. Tension mounts as the first contestants are seen skirting the east end of Baldwin Lake. Every one is anxious to get a close-up and officials have a hard time preventing them from spooking the burros as weary, bedraggled wranglers head down the home stretch.

THE THIRD day of the race is a tough sprint of seven miles from Shay's Ranch to the Elk's Club at Big Bear Lake, where larger crowds are on hand for the finish.

Thousands of wild burros still roam isolated sections of California and Nevada, east of Death Valley Monument and along the Colorado River. Burros that participate in the races are rounded up and corraled for two weeks prior to the race, and every effort is made to see that they are not subjected to any cruelty. Ronald J. Robinson, new president of Old Miner's Association, assures that the same precautions will be taken as in the past. Animals will be inspected before the race and a detail of Humane Society officers will ride the course with contestants. Judging from past years, however, the wranglers, who have been stomped, kicked and bitten severely, need more protection than the burros.

THOUGH THE races may seem unnecessarily rigorous for men and animals, they still reflect the hardships that early-day prospectors and their pack-burros endured. Burros are tough creatures that have carried heavy burdens for centures. The pack-burro toted the miner's grubstake and equipment and was punched ahead to break the trail. Often they were used to drag heavy stones or crude arrastres that crushed the ore.

Several access routes to Big Bear Lake are open to the motorist, but the most direct from coastal cities is State Route 38 east of Redlands. This takes the motorist through Camp Angeles and one of the most beautiful conifer forests in the Southland, then east to Barton Flats recreational area. Beginning at South Fork camp, the Big Bear Loop penetrates the Big Meadow country where the Division of Beaches and Parks is now negotiating for land along Heart Bar and Coon Creeks for a new state park.

The highway encircles Sugarloaf Peak giving the motorist splendid views of San Gorgonio Wilderness; then descends, through pinyon pine forests, to Bear Valley in the vicinity of Baldwin Lake.

A carnival spirit prevails during Old Miner's celebrations. Tree climbing and log splitting contests, the old-time costumes worn by local residents, as well as the burro races, all take one back to the days of the gold miners and of the cattlemen who followed them into Bear Valley.

MISS RULE: Please explain SHELLEY.—BB., T.M., Long Beach.

SHELLEY of England commemorates an ancestor from the town of Shelley in Suffolk. In 972 A.D., this place was called "Scelfleah," deciphered as "Town on the meadow by the ledge or cliff." The Shelley armorial shield is black, crossed by a gold stripe placed between three gold whelk shells. Notable ancestors include Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822, famous English poet.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy of JARNAGIN, JOURNIGAN. — R.J., Long Beach, I.M., Paramount.

JARNAGIN and JOURNIGAN are Irish clan names based on the thousand-year-old Gaelic root word "Gearnagain," meaning "young spearman." There is no shield recorded for Jarnagin or Journigan.

MISS RULE: Kindly explain JAENICKE and JENYK. — C.H., J.P., Long Beach.

JAENICKE and JENYK are German-Slavic formations of the baptismal name Johann or John, meaning "God is gracious." Both Jaenicke (formerly Janicke) and Jenyk indicate "Young John." The Janicke shield from Prussia has one eagle wing on a gold background for the left half and a half fleur-de-lis on a red background for the right portion.

Breeder-owners Everett and Barbara Fopma of Bellflower, show their champion German Shepherd, Ray O'Bee's Starke. She is judging in Anaheim today.

Shepherds Are Dependable

By Eleanor Avery Price

THE GERMAN Shepherd Dog Club of Orange County presents a puppy match next Sunday at La Palma Park, Anaheim. Mrs. Barbara Fopma of Bellflower, will start judging the two to four-month puppies at 10 a.m., but other entries, including obedience, will be taken until noon. Mrs. Fopma is pictured today showing her fine new champion, Ray O'Bee's Starke.

Words of warning from Mrs. Fopma: "If you are playing with a ball the size of a tennis ball or smaller, DON'T. Starke had a ball catch in his throat. Only quick thinking saved him.

"Never fight a dog by trying to retrieve a ball out of his throat by way of his mouth. The dog may accidentally chew your hands. After he has passed out, you still have a couple minutes to work to remove the ball. Work from the OUTSIDE. Locate the ball just under his chin. Use your hands to push the ball up towards his mouth. While he is struggling and gasping, throat muscles are tight. When he is relaxed, throat muscles relax, too.

"After the ball is out, revive him by applying artificial respiration on the chest, over the heart."

From Judy Dale of Sherman Oaks, another German Shepherd fancier, comes word that the Sentry Dog Branch at the training center of Lackland Air Force Base has revised its standards for German Shepherds back to the original specifications. Dogs must be from 1 to 3-years-old, be a minimum of 23 inches, and weigh not less than 60 pounds. Females must be spayed at least 60 days prior to shipment.

The training center wants only German Shepherd dogs (no other breed) of highest caliber. They must be aggressive, not gunshy, healthy enough to start training at 5 a.m. and continue until noon, then work again in the field several hours at night.

Build a Low-Cost 'Board

By Steve Ellingson

SURFING MAY not be one of the oldest sports in the world, but it's just about the newest craze in America today. After building up momentum in Hawaii and on the Pacific Coast for the past six seasons, surfing invaded the Atlantic Coast in 1964. And now with the advent of "boat wake surfing" it has spread to all inland areas where there are lakes and rivers. No question about it, it's here to stay.

The reasons, of course, are obvious. Besides being lots of fun, it's an ideal activity for those who love the out-of-doors, who desire a healthy, tanned skin and need more exercise.

One of the reasons that surfing isn't even more popular today is that surf boards are expensive to buy. But—when you build them yourself, they are within the reach of practically all families. The board shown here with television's Pamela Rogers is designed to be used either on the ocean or behind your boat on a lake or river.

It's a project that any amateur can undertake with confidence when he uses the full size pattern. A list of needed materials along with lots of illustrations showing the various stages of construction are included. The directions are easy to understand.

Also included with every pattern are a series of pictures and instructions showing how to "wake surf" behind a boat.

To obtain the full size surf board pattern number 351, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys.

One way to cut cost of surfboarding is to build your own 'board — with plans from Southland.

will spend several days each month scrutinizing his procedures. Too, the parent company operates a commissary so that foodstuffs are supplied regularly and uniformly. For these services Taco Bell takes 8% of the gross.

Says Rothenberg: "The whole key to success in running a franchise business is training and the proper use of that knowledge.

"Through franchising a man can invest his money wisely, make a good living during his working years and retire to take a large captial gain. Formerly all he could get when he retired was a gold watch."

Rothenberg, whose franchise consulting firm has set up operations in such diversified fields as asphalt road surfacing, home remodeling, portable hot dog stands, computerized bookkeeping service and jet-powered surfboard rentals, says enthusiastically:

"Our whole economy is changing and franchising is the motivating force. Every time a franchise is sold it has an important effect on that area's economy.

"Franchising will give the U. S. economy more strength than ever. European countries are scrambling right now to get in on the system. Europeans can see clearly the advantages to the individual when a big company offers its knowledge to a small investor so both of them can make a larger profit."

So, too, do Americans clearly see these advantages.

clown bareback rider, Kochmanskis, performing thrilling leaps and somersaults as the horse trots its measured pace about the ring. Display number ten has the Los Belios on acrobatic bars, the Four Titos performing unbelievable feats of acrobatic skill, and the Five Tokajis performing with acrobatic dexterity.

Peerless performers all are the Adams & Jeski Troupe, the Three Mecners and the Lillian Keler Trio, in a series of hair-raising hand-vaulting, tumbling, and daring adagio tricks. One of the few holdovers from last year are two of the wild animal trainers, Charley Baumann with his Royal Bengal and Siberian tigers, and Adela Smeja with her ferocious jungle-bred lions in the big cage. Konyots Chimpanzees present their own version of a Western Chimpanzee Rodeo, and in all three rings, the Ferkos Duo, Los Tonitos and the Balaz offer a triple display of wire wizardry.

The Flying Gaonas and the Flying Waynes occupy the air space over all three rings with daring flying trapeze acts that include every trick known to trapezists the world over.

Many new European clowns have also been added to Ringling Bros. Circus clown alley and it boasts such famous names as Kochmanski, Lou Jacobs, Otto Griebling, Bobby Kay, Gene Lewis, Prince Paul, and many others.

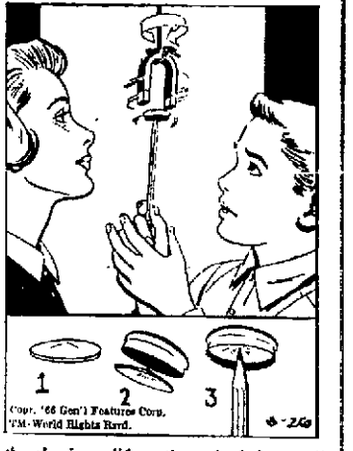

"Pussycats on Parade" is one of new features in this year's edition of Ringling Bros. Circus.

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: An induction motor.

NEEDED: An aluminum lid from a jar or salt-shaker, a strong horseshoe magnet, a length of string and a sharp-pointed pencil.

DO THIS: Suspend the magnet by the string. Twist it several dozen times and have someone hold it so that it will not unwind. Balance the aluminum lid on the end of the pencil, hold it under the magnet and release the magnet so that it unwinds rapidly. The aluminum lid underneath will turn.

HERE'S WHY: This is the principle of the induction electric motor which is used to operate many of our appliances. Aluminum is not a magnetic metal, but as the magnet turns above it, electrical currents are induced in it which causes it to become a magnet. It then turns because of the magnetic field principle — "like magnetic poles repel and unlike magnetic poles attract." A piece of cardboard prepared and placed in the lid as shown in the drawings will keep the lid balanced on the pencil point. If a thin card or piece of glass is held between the magnet and the lid, the lid will turn as before, showing that any air current set up by the turning magnet has little or no effect on the turning of the lid.

Popular Tree Perchers

By Joe Littlefield

EPIPHYLLUMS ARE epiphytic (tree perching) plants growing from Mexico to Brazil. They are popular potted plants for shaded gardens protected from frosts and may be used for porch decoration. Some are grown in cool greenhouses, others in a lath house. Many folks consider them the showiest and gayest succulent one can think of.

Epiphyllums usually are taking it easy after their blossoms have worked hard to produce lovely flowers. As blossoms fade gradually they begin to grow again. Epiphyllums are perhaps one of the showiest species of the succulent plants. It's time to give them some attention as to repotting them if roots have become heavily pot-bound. The soil mixed with some organic matter should be of a coarse texture for good drainage yet the medium holds some of the moisture so roots benefit from the water and fertilizer.

Where epiphyllums need shade protection, Primavera chrysanthemums need sun or more sun than shade. If you've noticed yellow color low growing pompom mums in 4 inch clay or plastic pots at your local nursery, and have passed by these special kind of mums, primavera, you are missing having some yellow color flowers twice a year in your garden! The plant's overall height growth is about 10 inches, but the plant spreads out to about 15 inches or more spread. The bright yellow blossoms literally smother the plants. Old flowers should be cut back partially into the leafage growth and fed some balanced plant food. About three or four months later they burgeon forth with masses of yellow blooms again. This plant also is a good pot plant specimen for patio or porch.

Crissy epiphyllum, a lovely orange variety, is beautiful succulent mostly grown as pot plant.

Plant a couple of Statice (Limonium) perezii, sea lavender plants back of the primavera mums and that garden planting will look like a tastefully arranged live plants flower arrangement, because the purple color of the sea lavenders provides an attractive pleasing color foil for the bright yellow primavera mums.

The sea lavender blossoms sprays may be hung up and dried for a month or so, then taken down. They furnish an attractive dry arrangement indoors far more interesting than the falsie plastic flowers.

BUGS LIKE plants, too. Thrips, which are minute, narrow pests, love to feast on rose petals, gardenia buds and flowers, carnations, and some other plants. Add a little oil emulsion to the insecticide spray you use for control of thrips, or other plant pests for that matter. The soil emulsion or a regular spreader sold at nurseries for this same purpose adds more sticky quality to the insecticide spray, therefore making it more effective for pest control.

Spider mites attack underside foliage of poinsettias, hydrangeas, roses and other plants. They hate to go to bed with wet feet. Wise gardeners hose foliage with a sharp stream of water on the underside leafage of the plants during late afternoon. Plants that are susceptible to mildew fungus infestation or rust should not be sprayed except in the morning—and it must be sunny.

The water spray discourages spider mites from becoming established in your garden. Nontheless, gardeners still should insecticide spray the plants just to be sure they are eliminated.

Gardeners can discourage heavy infestations of pests by hose foliage spraying shrubs and plants that stand sharp stream of water, usually at about two week intervals. The sharp spray dislodges any accumulation of leaves that drop in the crotches of the branches, thereby removing possible housekeeping areas where pests might breed.

HYBRID BERMUDA lawns are becoming increasingly popular due to being practically evergreen, taking 5 degrees more of cold than the "native" varieties, and, more importantly, they don't produce viable seeds that might sprout in unwanted places such as flower beds or cracks of blacktop driveways. "Viable" means capable of growing-developing.

William Brown, a former nurseryman who sold out his nursery in 1955, and was just about the first to experiment with hybrid Bermudas, knows whereof he speaks: "In test plots where we have made a little effort to remove weeds, we find after a summer's growth that few weeds remain. These new hybrids are much finer-bladed than the old type and produce a tough turf that withstands a great deal of traffic and play, as well as producing beautiful lawns and eliminating much of the necessity of expensive control of lawn moth, crab grass and other pests."

Update Borders

Sometimes we tend to get in a rut where our perennial borders are concerned. Shasta daisies, delphiniums, phlox and other permanent flowers bloom so dependably from year to year that it's a temptation to leave them just where they are, never adding to them or subtracting the ones that don't make the fullest show.

This is a mistake. A successful perennial border has to be updated from time to time if it's going to keep its full interest and sparkle. Gaps should be filled—and filled with the newest and best. Old plants that have lost their vigor should be replaced with the finest varieties you can buy. Maybe it's time to try some new combinations — tall yellow columbine, for instance, with light pink penstemon and blue delphinium. A blue delphinium you shouldn't miss is the airy Connecticut Yankee, a prize-winning, low-branching beauty that's terrific as a medium-tall background. Members of the California Association of Nurserymen recommend that soil for delphiniums be deep and rich, and it's a good idea to work a cupful of lime or bonemeal into the holes at planting time.

GARDEN CLUBS

THE NORTH LONG Beach branch of the American Begonia Society will hold its 4th annual begonia and shade plant show Friday and Saturdoy in Machinists' Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Joe Littlefield, Southland Magazine garden columnist will be master of ceremonies.

Show hours are 2 to 10 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m .to 9 p.m. Saturday. Persons entering plants in competition should bring them Thursday between 6 and 10 p.m. or Friday from 8 to 9 a.m.

A PROGRESSIVE luau dinner will be given on Saturday by the Los Altos Garden Club for members and their escorts.

Reservations and information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Walter Thiessen or Mrs. Wallace Rosser.

NEW OFFICERS will be installed at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday of the Garden Grove branch of the California National Fuchsia Society, at Peeks Terrace Room, 7801 Bolsa Ave., Westminster.

The officers are Emile Erickson, president; Bill Loos, vice president; Violet Allen, secretary; Mrs. James DeVore, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Eastwood, membership secretary; John Martin, national representative, and Clarence Eastwood, alternate national representative.

Featured at the meeting will be a plant exhibit, and each person attending is asked to bring a plant, arrangement or blossoms.

Cotton Stages Comeback

Tricks in the Shade

By A. C. McLeod

SOME PRETTY Tricks are happening in broad daylight all over the country this summer making the "victims" the happiest homeowners under the sun. The newest tricks in cotton canvas shading are making homes more liveable and lovely than ever with a brand new concept in the art of exterior decorating.

Canvas awnings have shrugged off their purely functional garb and have emerged as important adjuncts to home architecture. Window awnings still perperform their essential duty of cutting glare and costs of cooling in the summer . . . but now they do it with a chic and flair not seen until recently except in the most lavish residential settings.

Box-like awnings in conventional dull colors have given way to soaring shapes in bright florals and prints and delicate pastels or vivid solid colors. The new designs are tailored to the individual home and often are used to redeem or minimize architectural defects.

Poolside cabana (above) is but one of many canvas products being marketed this summer for leisure-time living. Another example is patio shelter (below), to provide privacy.

AS MORE and more families take to the backyard for expanded living space in the summer, the demand has grown for shelter devices to make the outdoors more comfortable. And canvas dealers are keeping up with the demand, reports the National Cotton Council.

The "canvas shelter" of yesteryear was more often than not simply a pup tent in the backyard to amuse the children and usually an eyesore to exasperate parents. Now that parents have invaded the backyard the canvas shelter has come of age and made a very successful debut into the leisure society of outdoor living.

The old-fashioned summerhouse may never stage a comeback but its modern canvas substitute bids fair to take its former popularity. Many new versions are popping up all over the country, ranging from spot shades for the patio to lavish poolside cabanas.

One of the most popular version is a simple patio shade, usually attached to the house and supported by a framework that can be dismantled at summer's end. For individuals who want something different there is, among others, the "circle of shade." Cantilevered from the house or from a free-standing pole, it can be tilted any direction for maximum shade any time of day. Sun lovers who want their shade and suntan, too, might choose a retractable canvas awning.

POOLSIDE CABANAS that eliminate the need for permanent bath houses come in all sizes and shapes, as do shading devices that protect bathers and watchers from the harsh consequences of too much full sun.

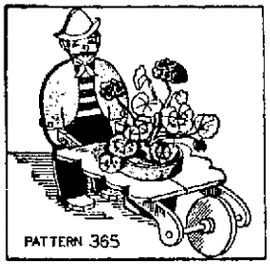

Free-standing "privacy shades" are the beautiful last touch for garden areas. Such units can provide just the needed amount of shade for delicate plants that can't tolerate full sunlight and make a shady refuge for the lounger who likes solitude.

The popularity of the "new" cotton canvas is largely the result of scientific research. New chemical treatments developed in recent years have given cotton canvas longer life and added sturdiness so the traditional old favorite is once again the most economical buy in shading and shelters. The usual minimum wear guarantee is five years and once the frame for the installation is installed, replacement of canvas is less than maintenance on most wood or metal shelters.

Improved dyeing and weaving processes have made it possible for manufacturers to produce cotton canvas in a spectrum that ranges from delicate pastels to the latest in vivid decorator colors, as well as florals, stripes and prints to suit the most imaginative taste. Thanks to the new advances, the modern family room is as big as all outdoors, and its decorative appointments limited only by the imagination.

YOU MAKE IT

This bright-jacketed little man knows geraniums. You can tell by the way he displays a bouncing plant on your lawn. Pattern 365, which gives actual-size cutting and painting guides for making this figure and his plant-holder wheelbarrow, is 35 cents. It also is in the House and Yard Packet No. 57, which contains a collection of full-size designs—all for $1. Trailer maker James L. Frey points at model of new idea, tower-like trailer parking lot.

Trailers in the Sky?

A FUTURISTIC HIGH-RISE "trailer parking lot" is envisioned by one of the leaders in the mobile home industry.

A solution to the problem of finding space for trailer parking in crowded metropolitan areas, says Elmer Frey, president of Marshfield Homes, Inc., may be circular towers — somewhat resembling a Long Beach beach front apartment building.

TRAILERS WOULD be parked on upper levels with lower space reserved for automobiles. Shopping centers and other facilities within the structures would make them self-contained communities-within-communities.

Frey, of Marshfield, Wis., insists this idea is not far in the future. "We've come a long way from the trailers of only a few short years ago," he says, "and the future possibilities are unlimited."

NOTHING makes me feel more like a gourmand than the pleasure of a glass of wine with dinner. If the wine happens to be included in the price of the dinner, then my pleasure is double, making me feel like a thrifty, canny Scotchman as well.

So that's one of the reasons I enjoy dining with my family at Nik's Restaurant, 3400 Cherry Ave. at Wardlow Road, near the Signal Hill-Long Beach boundary. The wine dinners are served every night except Sunday in the attractive Viking Room adjacent to the coffee shop. The prices are as agreeable as a winning politician on election night. Monday night the special is a spaghetti dinner, $1; Tuesday it's hamburger steak, $1.20; Wednesday, veal cutlet, $1.20; Thursday, fried chicken, $1.35; Friday, broiled lobster tail, $2.45, and Saturday, tenderloin steak, $1.50. The prices include chablis, vin rose or chianti (a different one is served every night); soup de jour or a fresh, crisp green salad; potato, roll and butter and coffee.

Those who wish a glass of wine with their dinner on Sunday can pay a small stipend for it. The regular menu also offers several fine dinners in the $2 range, proving that owner-hosts Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl have discovered the golden knack of serving distinguished food at undistinguished prices. For those interested in more expensive fare, the Viking Room offers an epicurean steak-and-lobster combination dinner for $3.85.

The service at Nik's is also worthy of high praise.

Caricature by Pete Willette.

CARL NICKOLOFF

Hoot, Mon, It's Included!

The Nickoloffs have assembled one of the most talented groups of waitresses in town. They are more than merely efficient; they're pert and witty enough to engage in light banter with the guests while catering to their whims and wishes.

TEMPTING TREATS—Although closed on Sundays, the three Hubert's Cafeterias in downtown Long Beach are open Mondays through Saturdays, serving amazingly fine foods at prices anyone can pay. Located at 318 E. Fourth, 643½ Pine Ave. and 218 E. Broadday, these attractive restaurants are owned by Hubert Hust, a disciple of restaurateur Andy Gassaway. Like Andy, Hubert gives generously to charity, lives by the Golden Rule and takes wonderful care of his customers. His $1.25 roast beef dinner is a remarkable value.

Q. Is there a feud between J. Edgar Hoover and Sen. Bobby Kennedy? I have read that there is no love lost between them.—H.T. Lewis, Seattle, Wash.

A. No feud. When Senator Kennedy was Attorney General in charge of the Justice Department, he did not see eye-to-eye with Hoover on several problems and procedures. Mr. Hoover, because of his long government service, established national reputation and wide political influence, has long been regarded as a law unto himself.

Q. Everybody knows that Ursula Andress has been fooling around with Jean-Paul Belmondo. My question is: Does Belmondo's wife know about this? Also how many children do the Belmondos have?—Lois Jenkinson, Upper Darby, Pa.

A. Belmondo's wife, former club dancer Renée Constant, has long been aware of her husband's extracurricular activities. The Belmondos have three children.

Q. Is it true that Beatle John Lennon, a millionaire, won't give a dollar to his father who earns $20 a week?—Nola Green, Vancouver, B.C.

A. Fred Lennon, who earns $22 a week as a bartender at the Tony Jug Hotel in Surrey, says: "John has forgotten me all right. We've only met once since he became famous." John Lennon's parents were divorced, and the Beatle has been most generous to his mother.

Q. How many U.S. Presidents were Army generals before they reached the White House? — Bernard Riche, Newark, N.J.

A. Of the 35 U.S. Presidents, 11 were generals: Washington, Jackson, W. H. Harrison, Taylor, Pierce, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, Eisenhower.

Q. A friend of mine says that neither he nor any other ordinary person is allowed to be tattooed in New York state. Isn't it a constitutional right for a man to get tattooed if he wants to?—Pierre Joffre, New York, N.Y.

A. New York City's new health code outlaws tattooing. New York State's Court of Appeals has upheld the constitutionality of the code on the grounds that "The record shows . . . that the prohibition of lay tattooing was an advisable procedure for the security of life and health."

Q. I would like to know if a pocketbook version of Ralph Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed, is available.—F. Tremaine, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A. It will be in November.

Q. Is Helen Keller still alive? If so, how old, and where does she live? — Bennett C. Alvarez, San Diego, Calif.

A. Miss Keller, 86, resides in Easton, Conn.

Q. What is the real reason Frank Sinatra was banned from Mexico? Is it because he tried to introduce gambling on behalf of the Las Vegas syndicate?—E.L.E., Chicago, Ill.

A. Sinatra was banned from Mexico because he produced Marriage on the Rocks, a film which held Mexicans up to ridicule.

Q. What's happened to young John Barrymore? — Vicki Henstchel, Wichita, Kans.

A. Young Barrymore is working in television. See photo (1).

Q. In 25 years of moviegoing I have never heard more obscene dialogue than in the film Virginia Woolf. Will you please explain to me how Warner Brothers obtained official producers' approval of this film?—D.L., Denver, Colo.

A. Originally approval was denied. Pressure was then brought to bear upon the Motion Picture Producers' Association. The denial was reversed by a group of outside producers.

Q. Is it true that in the present Bing Crosby marriage, Bing goes his way and his wife, Kathryn, goes hers? What is she doing now, still working as a nurse?—Julian Knox, Palo Alto, Calif.

A. Kathryn Crosby has been playing summer stock throughout the country. She is a professional actress although she has qualified as a nurse.

Q. Is it true that Isabella Rossellini, one of the twins Ingrid Bergman had with Roberto Rossellini, is quietly dying of a mysterious bone disease in Rome? Why has nothing appeared in the American press?—Diane Hyams, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Reportedly Isabella, 13, is suffering from scoliosis, an abnormal curvature of the spine, making her appear smaller than she really is. She is being treated by Professor Scaglietti in Florence, may require a fusion operation. Her mother, Ingrid Bergman, who gave custody of her three children by Rossellini to their father, has canceled her acting commitments, will stay in Italy at Isabella's side for the length of her recovery.

Q. Who said: "When you become used to never being alone, you may consider yourself Americanized."?—Roberta Vaughn, Princeton, N.J.

A. André Maurois, born 1885, French writer.

Q. Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion — where is he living? Is he married? — Victor Weiss, Baton Rouge, La.

A. Schmeling is in Hollenstedt, south of Hamburg, with new wife Anny Ondra.

Q. A few questions, please, about Lorne Greene of Bonanza. Is he an American or Canadian citizen? How many times married? How many children? How old is he? His present wife? — Dan Froley, Superior, Wis.

A. Greene retains his Canadian citizenship. He has been married twice, has 21-year-old twins by his first marriage, which ended in divorce in 1960. His son Charles is a student at MIT. His daughter Linda is now Mrs. Robert Bennett, lives in Santa Monica, Calif. Greene is married to Nancy Deale, who once acted under the name Liza Cummings.

Q. If Red China with 600 million people is ever to sit in the United Nations, what will happen to Formosa or Nationalist China?—Evans Ritchie, Baltimore, Md.

A. One possible solution: permit the people of Formosa to vote in a free election under U.N. supervision whether to become an independent nation with their own U.N. representatives.

Q. There is only one physician in Congress, Senator Gruening of Alaska. How many physicians are there in the British Parliament?—Sydney Buchman, Boston, Mass.

A. 24.

who's got what:

If you're confused about which airline has the lowest fares—we don't blame you. So much has been said lately about Family Plans, Youth Fares, Excursion Fares, etc. The fact is no airline has an exclusive on these special fares or on regular fares! The Civil Aeronautics Board establishes airline fares and we think that's the way it should be.* These are called "tariffs" and they determine the cost of a ticket over a given route for a certain type of airplane and service. In other words, cost is not a factor in choosing an airline! What, then, is the difference between airlines when even the fares are the same? On Continental, the difference is pride—the pride Continental's people have... in their jobs, in themselves, in their airline. You can't see it—you feel it! And you feel good, comfortable, confident. This extra measure of pride comes from the fact that Continental, as major airlines go, is not a big, impersonal one. So Continental's people maintain their interest and involvement in how their airline is run. That's what you feel. Come travel with us and feel the difference pride makes. Your travel agent or Continental will arrange the fare that suits you best... please call.

*There are rare exceptions (aren't there always?) and these are usually based on the type of plane or service. For instance, between Houston and Los Angeles it is less expensive to take Continental's economy class Golden Jet service because no other airline offers this class of service on that route.

CONTINENTAL The Proud Bird with the Golden Tail

FOR MOTHERS AND WIVES A REASSURING MEDICAL REPORT FROM VIETNAM

98.5 percent of our wounded GI's survive

by JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON.

In the rice paddy or the steaming jungle, the Vietnam War is one of the most vicious conflicts ever fought. But when an American GI is wounded, he benefits from medical care that's unsurpassed in military history.

With the speedy transport and treatment techniques used by U.S. forces, only one and a half percent of wounded reaching hospitals are lost. This compares with 2.5 percent in the Korean War and 4.5 percent in World War II.

The battle stories inspire the headlines but behind them lies a daily drama of heroism: the fight of American medics and doctors to save the lives of the wounded.

The drama begins with the courageous medic on foot, slogging toward the hostilities, toting a first aid kit instead of an ammunition pack. Many a medic, often wounded himself, has administered lifesaving aid under hot enemy fire. Many a medicopter has gone in where armed copters feared to follow to bring out the wounded from the midst of action.

Even the Viet Cong has reason to thank the American medic. Time and again a wounded enemy left behind by his comrades has felt the gentle hand of a kid from Seattle or Dubuque, impartially dispensing painkiller or bandage.

The end of the Vietnam struggle is not yet in sight. But, in addition to reducing mortality among the wounded taken to hospitals, the war to save lives has already produced startling victories. Consider these dramatic facts:

- Most wounded are rushed to the nearest hospital faster than an auto victim injured in the U.S. More often than not, the wounded are out of the jungle and on the operating table within an hour.
- Specialists are available for any kind of emergency operating, except occasionally brain surgery. There is still a shortage of brain surgeons in Vietnam. But in general, GI's can count on better medical treatment on the edge of the jungle than their families at home can expect in the average hospital emergency room.
- Sums up Army Surgeon General Leonard Heaton, "I personally visited the major medical units operating in Vietnam in October last year. No soldier in Vietnam today is lacking adequate and effective medical care."

As in all wars, germs are still more dangerous than bullets. But even the germs are being beaten. Of every 1000 men serving in Vietnam, one a day ends up in the hospital. A startling 75 percent are disease cases; only 11 percent are wounded. The remaining 14 percent are nonbattle injuries, including some snake and scorpion bites. When the military buildup began, Army doctors expected the disease rate to be even higher, 6 to 1 instead of the present 4 to 1.

They have confidence in their new drugs, anesthetics and techniques. They are grateful for the generous supply of whole blood, contributed not only by Americans but by the people of Okinawa, Japan, and Korea. New equipment helps them to preserve plasma and have it available near the fighting fronts. There is also the modern miracle of air conditioning which brings a temperate climate to the sun-bathed humid land. Without air conditioning, instruments rust and sterile dressings become infested with mold in the monsoon dampness.

But most important of all have proved to be the flying ambulances, those great ungainly helicopters that can whisk the wounded to safety in minutes over otherwise impassable terrain. The Army Medical Service has more than 50 medicopters, each with a three-man flight crew and at least one flying medic. Sometimes a doctor goes along, too. One medicopter can evacuate four wounded or three litter cases, but there have been tighter squeezes during battle.

The medicopters carry no arms and display the Red Cross on their sides. According to one flying medic, the Viet Cong usually respect the Red Cross. But occasional guerrilla snipers will pepper them, knowing they can't fire back.

Conducted with test tubes, but no less dramatic, is the war against disease. Most GI's come down with mild dysentery soon after arrival but recover in a day or so. If the bug buries deeply into their intestines, it can prove fatal. Doctors feared a high rate of this severe amoebic dysentery but there has been virtually none. The best guess is that some of the new drugs given for malaria are killing off the amoeba.

One of these drugs is dapsone, an antileprosy drug, which seems to be effective against the falciparum strain of malaria which turned up in the Vietnam highlands and has resisted the chloroquine and primaquine antimalarials regularly taken by U.S. troops in Southeast Asia. The Viet Cong, entrenched in the highlands for years, have gradually acquired immunity to the disease but our men get it when they come in contact with enemy dead, wounded or captured.

Spec. 5 Aubrey Johnson, in Walter Reed Hospital, is so grateful to Army doctor who saved his foot that he wrote back to his outfit to be sure to thank the doctor.

Though dysentery cases lead in volume, malaria is still the most serious challenge because it keeps a man out of action longer—from six to eight weeks. The Army's Walter Reed Hospital has assigned more than 60 research contracts in a crash program against falciparum malaria at total cost of more than $29 million.

The Army's unsung victories in the hospitals and medical laboratories are being shared with the Vietnamese people. At the village level, the medic trudging along with his platoon has become a saint of healing. Worried, weeping mothers bring their sick children to him, old people totter to his side, peasant men and women show him infected wounds. Sometimes, he helps at difficult births.

PARADE talked to a typical medic, Sgt. Thomas P. Marrinan, a company medic of the 173rd Airborne Brigade. With four platoon medics, he was responsible for the welfare of 180 men who, for nine months, were flung into one desperate action after another.

He estimates that about 20 men in his company were killed in action, another 50 wounded during the nine-month period. Of all the wounded who could be evacuated, only one man died. But there were 15 cases of malaria, two fatal.

Added Marrinan, "We had lots of trouble with scorpions. Some men can stand them, others can't. One captain was in such pain that he writhed in convulsions. I had two poison snake bite cases and one heat exhaustion case. It was the guy's own fault; he didn't take his salt."

What happened if Marrinan came across a wounded guerrilla? "I'd give him a shot of morphine to kill the pain, stop the bleeding and give the required first aid." To Marrinan there was no difference between friend and foe when it came to saving lives.

I thanked Marrinan for his story and reached to shake his hand. He grabbed mine with his left hand—his right arm had been destroyed by a guerrilla grenade.

He had been given the same first aid that he had given to so many others. Within 15 minutes, he was undergoing surgery in a 60-bed hospital 50 miles away. Now he has an artificial arm.

The average medic—almost always a volunteer, though some are now assigned —gets 10 weeks' training at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and is then assigned to a platoon. In battle, he crawls from wounded to wounded, administering first aid, applying tourniquets, giving on-the-spot transfusions with blood substitutes, tying splints to broken bones.

Such a medic was Specialist 4-C Raymond Ortiz of the 1st Cavalry. His unit parachuted to the rescue of other cavalrymen trapped near the Pleime Special Forces camp. Ortiz advanced within 20 feet of the enemy to treat wounded men. He was hit three times. The first bullet rendered his left arm useless. But he went on. Hit a second and third time, he continued giving aid until he collapsed from loss of blood.

Ortiz carried six men to waiting medicopters but refused to be taken out himself until all other wounded had been cleared. After a night of hideous battle, he at last was plucked from the heart of the battlefield. Now serving at Fort Bliss, Tex., he wears the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second-highest award for bravery.

For the badly wounded, nine hospitals are strategically located so that no wounded man should be more than a 30-minute helicopter ride from any of them. The beds are emptied as fast as possible so they will be ready in case of heavy fighting. Occasionally, after a big engagement, a forward hospital is swamped with casualties.

Capt. Albert Linden, 28, Waterman, Ill., lost a leg when hit piloting helicopter, was with doctor in five minutes. He calls care "better than if I'd been a civilian."

Then a terrible responsibility falls on the "triage" officer—a title taken from the French word for "sorting." He must make an almost split-second, soul-wracking diagnosis to decide who requires immediate surgery, who can get along for a few hours with first aid, and who is beyond help.

In all South Vietnam, there are 1600 military hospital beds, handling some 3500 patients a month. Caring for them are some 250 doctors and 330 nurses, one-third of them male. There is a shortage of nurses both at home and in Vietnam, but those in the war zone are serving with distinction. Nine were decorated last year.

The Army, with the largest medical service, has had no difficulty in recruiting doctors. Some volunteer out of a sense of duty, others because "you can get more experience in one month in Vietnam," as one told PARADE, "than in a year's private practice at home."

Spec. 4 Frank Goldsmith, 33, took sniper's bullet in hip. Helicopter arrived in 15 minutes; doctor removed slug within 45. "Oh, yeah," he recalls, "we got the sniper."

Patients who can be returned to duty within 30 days usually remain in Vietnam. Those requiring 60 days are flown to military hospitals in Okinawa, Guam and Japan. If the cure is expected to take more than 90 days, a man is flown stateside — usually to the military hospital nearest his home.

Have the wounded any complaint against the medical service? Certainly not against the medics in the field. PARADE talked to several Vietnam cases, who spoke with awe at how swiftly they were given a new chance at life. One after another reported that he was out of immediate danger and getting skilled care within 10 minutes to an hour. Here are a few typical testimonials:

Spec 4 Frank Goldsmith, 33, Simpsonville, S.C., struck in the hip by a sniper: "It took only 15 minutes for the chopper to reach us. In less than 45 minutes, I was on the operating table. Oh, yeah, we got the sniper."

Pfc. John Kenneth Hart, 22, Cleveland, blasted by his own artillery: "The medic was right there. He worked on me, put a splint on my arm. Then he carried me to the chopper, which flew me to the field hospital where my leg was removed."

Spec. 4 Troy Taylor, 20, Canton, N.C., got morphine and tourniquet 10 minutes after Viet Cong shot him in leg, says, "Treatment has been the best you can get."

Spec 5 Aubrey Johnson, 25, Nashville, Tenn., severely wounded after his truck ran over a landmine: "I was rushed by truck to a marine hospital. They took X-rays and operated on me at once. I had a shattered ankle, and the doctor who operated saved my foot. I wrote back to my unit and told them if they ever saw that doctor again to thank him."

Sgt. Richard Lewis, Ocean City, Md., injured by a grenade: "It just so happened that a medic was right there, and he put a tourniquet on me. Within five minutes, I was at the battalion aid station where I was given treatment and pain pills. They put two pins in my wrist to hold the bones together. Then I was flown by chopper to Saigon. They finally had to amputate the arm."

Staff Sgt. Douglas Harlow, 39, Charlottesville, Va., badly crushed by a landmine: "I was picked up by a chopper within 30 minutes. In another 15 minutes, I was in the hospital."

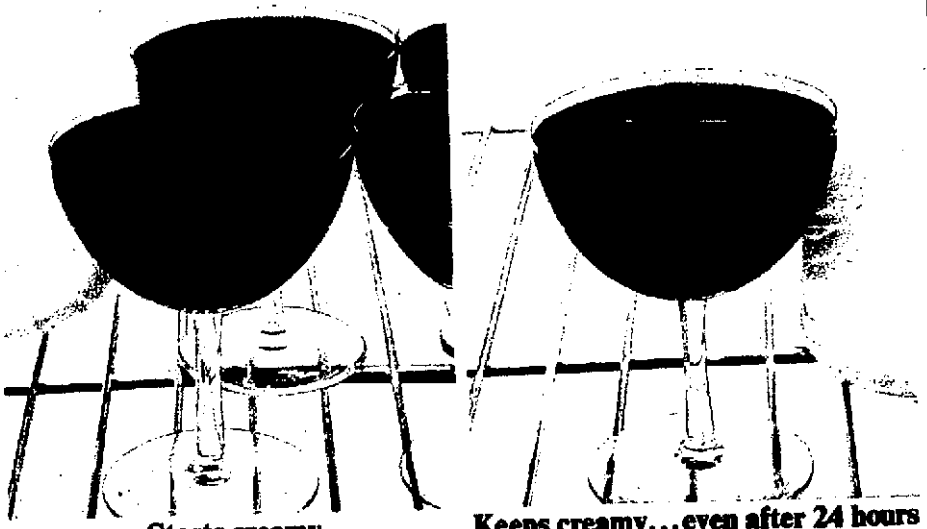

Not all are satisfied with the treatment they have received back home. There is some grumbling about overcrowded hospitals, lack of attention, lack of understanding. To some, it seems as if the doctors here—far from the hot war where bullets fly, where men live from day to day and have an instinctive sympathy for each other—are indifferent.

By the end of the year, nearly half a million troops may be in the war zone. There are signs that the big crunch may be coming. Whether this is so or not, more men in the field mean more work for the medics—more wounded, more cases of disease, more accidents.

Have we at home made preparations to receive these victims of war? Already the country's medical services are beginning to feel the new pressures of the Medicare program. America should be capable of taking care of both its old people and its young fighting men. It is not a question of priorities but of planning.

The military medical services are doing a superb job, but they need our support. ■

my favorite jokes by simmy bow

EDITOR'S NOTE: Simmy Bow, 40, one of the few bachelor comedians, began his show business career in Chicago. He wanted to become an actor, but World War II interrupted that ambition. After his stint in the Air Force, however, Simmy moved to Hollywood where he not only studied drama at the Ben Bard Theatre but was hired as an instructor. In the late 1940's Simmy decided to major in comedy. He wrote an act for himself—it consisted mostly of topical, offbeat one-liners —got bookings in small nightclubs. In the past decade he's graduated to all the major nite spots: the Playboy Club circuit, the Blue Angel in New York, the hungry i in San Francisco, the Slate Brothers in Los Angeles. Simmy also acts on TV from time to time, has appeared in The Untouchables, The Whirly Birds, Sheriff of Cochise, etc. Recently he returned from a successful tour of Australian nightclubs. The following jokes are those he told in his last appearance at the Hollywood Playboy Club:

A rich hillbilly died and left his money in a trust fund for his wife. Only thing is she can't touch it until she's 12 years old.

I put a tiger in my tank. He drank the gas.

More than twice as many people drown in tubs as in swimming pools, so you're better off taking a bath in a swimming pool.

A guy tossed a nickel in a blind man's cup but didn't take a pencil. The blind man called out, "Whether you take one or not, pencils cost 10¢ each now."

Even though we've got fast-drying paint today, painters who work by the hour still work slow.

The difference between socialism and capitalism is that under capitalism man is exploited by man. Under socialism, it's the other way around.

If you "fly now" and the plane crashes—do you still have to pay later?

Elephants are not afraid of mice—unless they get threatening letters.

Automobile manufacturers have been crashing cars with dummy passengers in order to study injuries. And to a large degree they've succeeded in making automobiles safer—for dummies! This is a good thing because there are an awful lot of dummies driving automobiles.

Last week a friend of mine lost all his teeth—they were repossessed.

I know a farmer who has a cow that grazes on synthetic grass. She gives plastic milk.

Just finished a great book. Don't miss it. It's called, What Makes Wyatt Earp?

What's wrong with politicians in Washington these days? Why don't they give the common man what he really wants? A common woman!

Sometime soon, the Jones boys' father will ask himself if he has enough life insurance

(And how much is enough, anyway?)

It's a question that often comes up when new responsibilities come along. You've probably asked it yourself.

A quick answer is a minimum of four to five times annual income.

A better one is it all depends. On the size of the family, as well as income. On the financial responsibilities still ahead. On how far other assets will go towards meeting them.

Chances are you've already decided that your other resources can't do the job alone. Especially if you have a family to support. Kids to put through college. A mortgage to pay off. Retirement ideas that call for more income than social security or your company pension will provide.

That's why you own life insurance. It gives you an important advantage over all other types of thrift: the full amount is guaranteed from the start. It's unique that way.

But remember that family circumstances change. Needs never stand still. Enough life insurance today may be too much—or too little—tomorrow. To keep your protection up-to-date, review your policies regularly with your life insurance agent. He's trained to help you.

JOANNA PETTET

SHE'S GOING PLACES

by LLOYD SHEARER

"New, hot, young New York actress" in Paris: Joanna Pettet keeps apartment in Manhattan, but would rather be "loner in Europe."

PARIS.

Joanna Pettet, London-born, Canadian-reared and New York-trained, is convinced that she is en route to becoming a major screen star.

"I just have to," she says, "because I'm terribly ambitious, terribly lucky and terribly driven."

Twenty-two and independent, honey-haired and cat-eyed, photogenic and talented, Joanna to date has worked in two films: The Group and The Night of the Generals, which she recently finished here.

In The Group, Mary McCarthy's story of what happened to eight Vassar alumnae, Joanna delighted the critics with her portrayal of Kay, wife of a sadistic scriptwriter. In The Night of the Generals, she acts the sadistic daughter of a Nazi general. She falls in love with her father's corporal, played by Tom Courtenay.

The Night of the Generals concerns itself with the manhunt for a German general, a sex fiend who had brutally murdered prostitutes in Poland, France and Germany during World War II. Some of the film was shot in Poland; much of it was photographed here. Peter O'Toole plays the psychopathic killer, Omar Sharif the dedicated police major who tracks him down. The film will be one of Columbia Studios' major productions of the year. And Joanna Pettet is not alone in thinking it will help launch her to stardom.

"IF I AM AGGRESSIVE..."

Anatole Litvak, the director, and Peter O'Toole, the star, are both sure Joanna will hit it big. "She's not the type," says O'Toole, "to let opportunity pass her by." "Her big advantage," claims Litvak, "is that she knows how to act. This is not necessarily required for screen success, but certainly it does no harm." Says Sidney Buchman, the writer who cast her in The Group, "This girl is no shrinking violet. She is pleasantly aggressive."

"I may be aggressive," Joanna concedes. "But I'm not tough or bitchy. I'm not one of those girls who'll do 'anything' for a part, and I'm not a knife-wielder.

"If I am aggressive, it's because I have to be to survive, especially in this business. I'm alone in the world. My father, who was a fighter pilot in the RAF during the war—his name was Harold Salmon—was shot down when I was just a few months old. I have a photograph of my father, but I don't remember him. My mother died last year. So you can see I'm pretty much on my own.

"I like to think that I'm terribly independent," she goes on, "and maybe that's not a good thing. Men don't cotton to career girls who are terribly independent. We sort of frighten them off. But that's the way I am — self-reliant. Perhaps when I fall in love with some strong, wise man I won't be quite so independent. But strong, wise men aren't easy to come by."

Joanna Salmon was born in London in 1944. After her father, a pilot in the Royal Air Force, was shot down at age 33, she was taken to Vancouver, Canada, by her mother. She was a cute, attractive, golden-haired child. And on the train from Montreal to Vancouver, one of the passengers, Charles Pettet of the Canadian Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Company, asked her if she'd like some chewing gum. She declined, but introduced her mother to the "nice man." As these things sometimes happen, Charles Pettet took a liking to Mrs. Salmon. The liking developed into love, and subsequently the pair got married and settled down in Montreal.

There Joanna attended several schools —Trafalgar House, Miss Edgar's & Miss Cramp's and later Westmount High School, from which she was graduated at 15.

"As a child," she remembers, "I was rather shy and afraid. I used to hold on to mother's apron strings, but as I grew older, I grew a little more outgoing. I decided to make acting my career. I was tall and precocious as a teenager, and I had a boy friend, Allan Schiach, who now writes in London under the name of Allen Scott. He had written a play, Got It Made, and I got a job in it for $60 a week.

"I took that money and the $1000 my mother had saved from the Widows' Pension Fund — the British government used to send Mother $25 a month for me, and she had never spent it—and I went to New York to study drama.

"A 16-year-old girl in Manhattan—well, she either swims or sinks. I learned to swim. I attended the Neighborhood Playhouse. I moved out of the Y.W.C.A. because it was too expensive. I shared an apartment with another girl. She turned out to be a bitch. So I moved to another apartment. I learned to survive. In my second year at the Playhouse I won a scholarship, so that cut down some of my expenses."

Joanna's first break in New York came when she got a bit part in the comedy

In The Group, her first movie role, Joanna plays Kay, one of eight Vassar alumnae, opposite Larry Hagman (r.).

Take Her, She's Mine. She also understudied the lead, later played it in the road company at $125 a week. "It takes that first job," she says, "to get the second. After eight months on the road, I got another play, The Chinese Prime Minister, then a starring role in the Jean Kerr play, Poor Richard."

Sidney Buchman, the writer-producer of The Group, watched Joanna in Poor Richard and called her to read for him. An old pro by then, Joanna read beautifully and got the part, filmed in New York.

"NEW, HOT, YOUNG..."

When producer Sam Spiegel started to cast The Night of the Generals, he heard about this "new, hot, young New York actress" and asked to see her in the uncut version of The Group. They wouldn't show Sam the unreleased picture, so he got hold of a TV film Joanna had acted in, Trials of O'Brien, proved to himself that she was photogenic. He then flew her to Paris to read for director Anatole Litvak. Again Joanna came through under pressure. Columbia signed her, got her an apartment on the Rue Washington for $750 a month and here at the moment Joanna Pettet remains, "free, white and 22, beholden to no one, responsible to no one but myself," and most sadly, "with no one to be proud of me no matter how good I am, how well I act, how much I achieve."

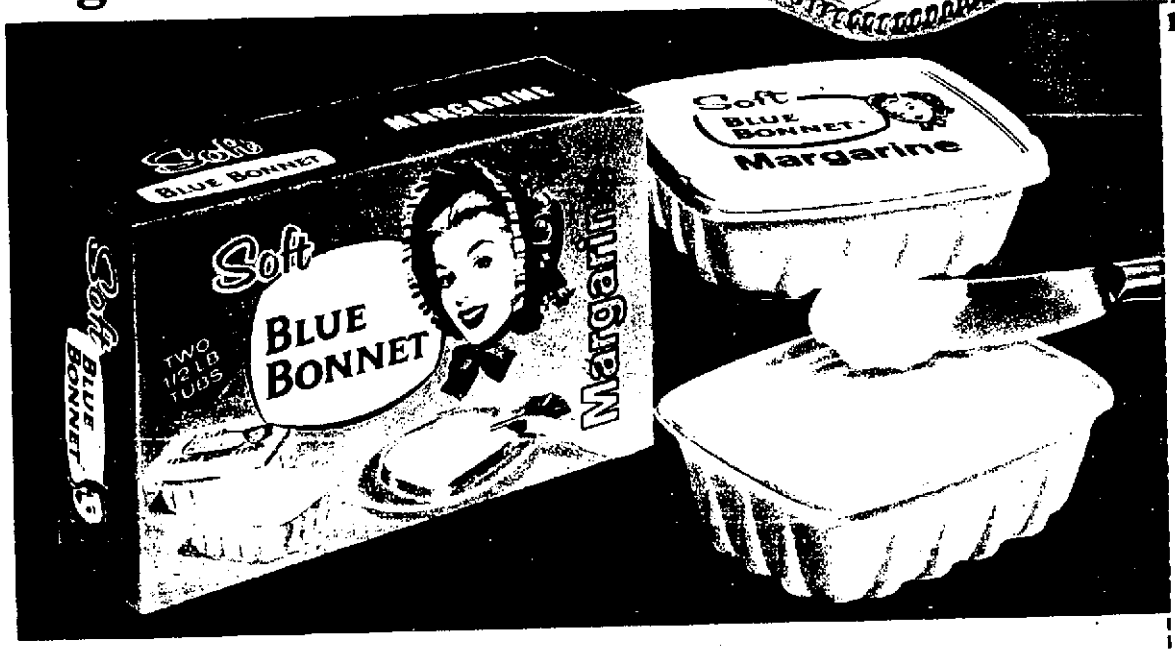

Joanna has an apartment in a brownstone on East 36th Street in New York which she shares with another actress, Beverly Rich, and a Corvair she used to drive to Rhode Island for weekends. But now she's not so sure she wants to return to that life. "I'd much rather be a loner in Europe," she says, "than a loner in New York."

The chances are considerable, however, that she will remain in neither place too long. Hollywood has heard of her. Hollywood is beckoning. And it's to that wavelength ambitious, talented Joanna Pettet is tuned in. ■

In The Night of the Generals, she plays starring role of general's daughter, with Peter O'Toole and Coral Browne (l.).

beef and bacon burgers

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Something new has been added to the hamburger to make it special party fare. The extra flavorful ingredients added to the beef patty are raisin-bread crumbs and smoky bacon bits. They impart an entirely new taste to an age-old favorite. Bacon burgers are wonderful served plain on a bun, but even better with a choice of toppings and condiments. Try them on your grill; you'll love them.

Bacon Burgers

- 3 lb. lean beef, ground
- 2 cups soft raisin-bread crumbs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- Few grains pepper
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup steak house catsup
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 6 slices crisp-brown bacon, crumbled

Combine all ingredients; mix thoroughly. Shape into 12 large cakes. Grill over charcoal and cook to your liking, turning once. Serve in heated hamburger rolls, with slices of tomato, Swiss cheese, onions and pickles. Don't forget the condiments, such as mustard, chili sauce, steak sauce, catsup and prepared horseradish.

Hello, young lovers: From all over the nation have come gifts and greetings of affection for Luci Johnson and fiancé Pat Nugent.

THEY LOVE LUCI

ON THE EVE OF HER WEDDING, HERE'S WHAT WELL-WISHERS WRITE

by OPAL GINN

WASHINGTON.

Of all the showers of the nation's most famous bride, the one that has touched Luci Baines Johnson most is the spontaneous shower of sentimental gifts and greetings from well-wishers around the world. She will be married to Patrick J. Nugent Saturday in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception—first White House bride since Eleanor Wilson, President Wilson's youngest daughter, married Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo in 1914.

From Poona, India, to Eden, Texas, the plain people of the world have deluged Luci with songs, poems, recipes, advice and congratulations. They want to make sure the President's daughter gets a good start in marriage.

They have sent her gifts old, new, borrowed and blue. There have been religious medals, candles and statues. A three-foot statue from a New York admirer was gently declined. Grandmothers have offered family Bibles, crocheted pillowcases and hand-sewn doilies. Even teenagers have sent Luci their prize sewing.

A 15-year-old girl from Rochester, N.Y., sent two pillowcases and two sheets trimmed in delicate crochet work. An elementary school class from Penns Grove, N.J., sent coasters the children had made in school. One practical donor contributed a pair of plastic mittens to keep the bride's hands from getting sticky while handling the wedding cake.

All told, the President's younger daughter has been collecting about 250 letters and 50 gifts a week. Many commercial concerns, hopeful of publicity, have been sending her expensive gifts. These have been politely returned. Gifts from friends, of course, are accepted. Anything from strangers costing more than $10 is sent back—though allowances are made for sentimental home-made presents. Luci has been stacking the gifts in the second-floor bedroom and the third-floor solarium.

She has given as much time as she can spare to acknowledging gifts and answering letters — with help from Willie Day Taylor, a family friend and employee.

One of the most startling letters was signed by Pat Nugent.

"My name will undoubtedly sound familiar to you," he wrote from Anaconda, Montana, "since it is Patrick Nugent. Because of you I have seen my name in the news on various occasions. Even though the persons are different, we do have one thing in common, our names."

Another Pat Nugent, this one from Philadelphia, turned out to be only 7 years old. Wrote his seventh grade sister: "It is a shame you are not marrying my brother, whose name is Patrick J. Nugent. He is really taking a ribbing because of the name and gets embarrassed every time someone says he is marrying you. He is only 7 years old and doesn't appreciate the importance of the similarity. . . . I think you're trading your famous name for a name to be proud of."

A Perth Amboy, N.J., girl sent the President's daughter a sixpence. She explained: "I imagine you will have 'something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue.' But there is a bit more to this that many people don't seem to know about: 'A sixpence for your shoe.' I am enclosing a sixpence just in case you wish to carry out the above tradition in full."

The White House didn't comment as to whether Luci will slip the sixpence into her shoe.

There were letters, too, from foreign lands. A student from Poona, India, recalled studying in the United States and meeting the President. Luci had said a few words. "Thank you for giving color to that function," wrote the student, "by being there and talking. I find Americans as very nice, friendly, good-humored people. I read that you have been engaged, so I desired to congratulate you on that. Since my return to India, I am going to school now. I wonder what you are doing? It would be such a great honor for me to receive a letter from you."

A miss from Dumbarton, Scotland, wrote: "I was delighted to read in the papers that you are being married on Aug. 6, the same day as myself, and would like to know if you wish me to send you a sprig of white heather for good luck, as this is an old Scottish custom."

Indeed, many couples who will be married on Saturday felt compelled to write to the President's daughter.

Wrote a typical bride from Oakmont, Pa.: "To say the least, I am very proud to know that we will be married on the same day, Aug. 6, 1966. We're probably two in a million who have chosen this date, but I find I must write."

The nation's most famous young couple loads back of car with gifts from a shower.

Many with birthdays on Aug. 6 also brought it to Luci's attention.

"I wanted you to know that you are getting married on my birthday," wrote one little girl from Kansas City. "I will be 8 years old on Aug. 6. I would like to come to Washington to see you get married but I will have a birthday party and think of you that day."

Another, also writing in a childish scrawl, from Dallas, Tex., wrote joyfully: "I'm gald that you are getting married on my birthday. That is happiness. I love you."

Old folks whose own weddings had taken place on Aug. 6 also wrote.

One Coral Gables, Fla., grandmother commented typically: "How wonderful, for on that day my husband and I will celebrate our golden wedding anniversary."

An Alexandria, Va., housewife noted another similarity. "I, too, am a Texas girl married to an Illinois boy," she wrote. "We have been married seven lovely years and have a 9-month-old daughter. . . . From experience, as a Texas girl married to an Illinois boy, I can truly say Illinois gave me a wonderful husband."

A Niles, Mich., housewife offered a special recipe on "How to Preserve a Husband." The directions included this admonition: "Some insist on keeping them in a pickle, while others keep them in hot water. This only makes them sour, hard and sometimes bitter. Even pure varieties may be made sweet, tender and good, garnishing them with patience and sweetened with smiles and flavored with kisses to taste, then wrap them in a mantel of charity, keep warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion and serve with peaches and cream."

Of course, the teenagers from coast to coast bubbled over the wedding of their most famous contemporary.

Wrote one from Whitestone, N.Y.: "Congratulations on your engagement to Patrick Nugent. I think he's really cute."

Another, more serious, wrote from Cincinnati: "I am writing this note to congratulate you on your upcoming marriage and to commend you on the upholding of the reputation of the American teenager. You have not only caused a new warm light to fall on us, but you have also forced older Americans to look upon us with seriousness as well as humor."

Among letters from children a first-grader wrote: "At present we are studying the Post Office. We decided to send our best wishes to you using our postal system."

A 10-year-old girl from Evanston, Ill., wrote: "Dear Lusy: I am going to look for your wedding picture in the papper when you get married. I like to look at pretty white wedding dresses and black and white tucedoes. I like to see the bride's vale too. I think weddings are wonderful."

A whole nation seems to agree.

WORLD'S BEST ARTISTS. Know anything about painters? Who in your opinion are the 10 best painters in the world today? Connaissance des Arts, a French art magazine, recently listed 250 outstanding artists, asked 35 world authorities to choose the 10 best.

Every authority listed Pablo Picasso as No. 1. Joan Miró, another Spaniard, was No. 2. Max Ernst was third, followed by Dubuffet, Bacon and Chagall.

PABLO PICASSO IS GREETED BY AN ADMIRER—A FRENCH PEASANT GIRL.

RUSSIAN LADIES OF THE NIGHT. The Soviets have finally admitted what many American tourists know: there are call girls in Moscow. Most of them can be seen at the various currency bars, only late spots in the Russian capital, where all tabs must be paid for in Western money. The girls gather at the bars, usually after 11 o'clock, flirt with prosperous tourists and businessmen, organize orgies in "foreign flats." Komsomolskaya Pravda, the Communist youth newspaper, maintains that there is no Soviet law to curb the call girls, describes the arrest of Svetlana Trofimova, a 19-year-old blonde, at the National Bar opposite Red Square "as a disgrace. She was kicking and screaming all the way to the police station, shouted brazenly: 'Why should I work when I can easily make $100 a night?'"

IN DEMAND. Konrad Adenauer, long-time chief of West Germany, is being swamped by offers from painters and sculptors who want to immortalize the former chancellor in oil, watercolor, wood or stone. Reason: Adenauer's portrait, painted by Oskar Kokoschka, is now on exhibition. Kokoschka's fee: $50,000. All offers to date quote far lower fees.

INFORMATION SUPERMARKET. Heads of American companies are submerged with information. It's been estimated that it would take one executive 500 years to read all the economic and technical literature published in the U.S. last year. To make the task easier, IBM has just concluded a deal with Dun & Bradstreet to classify and program all data received on some 390,000 firms. The purpose of the project is to make inexpensive market studies available to all interested businessmen.

CAMPUS, FRENCH-STYLE. The French are trying a new formula in university education, the American campus. Last fall 410,000 students registered at French universities, twice as many as in 1960. By 1970 more than 750,000 are expected. Most French universities are located in ancient, inadequate city quarters that cannot be expanded. To meet the physical problems of mass education, it was necessary either to split up the universities and disperse them in branches throughout the city or to try a totally different idea in education: the campus.

The first of these opened last year at Orléans. At first students protested against losing the freedom and cultural advantages of the city, but experience has justified the decision to move to suburban campuses. Students at the Faculté des Sciences in Paris protested against being "deported" to Orsay. But at the end of the first year, 77% of them had passed their exams, compared to 54% in Paris.

"To accept the campus," explains one student, "is to accept studying. France should be grateful to the U.S. for this idea in education."

WHERE THE MONEY IS. The Supt. of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402, is selling for 15¢ an excellent pamphlet entitled, "How Our Income Is Divided." It is based on statistics collected by the Bureau of the Census. It reveals that at the lowest income level in 1959, nearly 14 million families and unrelated individuals received cash incomes of less than $2000 (about $40 a week). These units made up about one-fourth (23%) of all families and individuals in the U.S. and they received one-twenty-fifth (4%) of the income. At the other end of the scale there were slightly more than one-half million families and individuals with incomes of $25,000 and over. They made up 1% of all families and individuals and received 8% of the income. The pamphlet contains a small mine of fascinating information on just how much money is received by families and individuals at each income level.

Garry Moore Bucks 'Bonanza'

By TERRY VERNON

COMPETING against "Bonanza," the nation's top TV rated show, is like trying to climb Mt. Everest with a pair of roller skates.

Any such mountain climber would soon hit the skids and so does any program—ask "Perry Mason" — that attempts to combat "Bonanza."

Mt. Everest will have to wait. For champ "Bonanza," however, there's a new challenger in the fall video ring.

Introducing at five-feet and a couple of inches plus, weighing sacks of pasteurized feathers, the one and only, Battlin' Garry Moore.

"I welcome," said Battlin,' "the opportunity to oppose 'Bonanza.' At my stage of life, there's no sense in going into something easy."

GARRY CHEERILY looked at several CBS-TV representatives and wryly added: "Could be that's what I have to say."

If it is what he had to say, it's also something he believes — within reason.

Part of the advance publicity program includes the distribution of sweatshirts emblazoned, "Beat Bonanza." But Garry isn't buying that target 100%.

"Maybe they'll just move over a little," he said. "There's such a big availability of audience, we don't have to knock them off to be a winner ourselves."

So how is he going to make them move over?

"Television," replied Garry, "has unconsciously turned itself away from what made it great in the first place, an ability to com-

PATRICK McGOOHAN

Secret Agent Drake Gone--But the Image Lingers On

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The remarkable Patrick McGoohan of "Secret Agent" is working on his new series in a small office at MGM studios at Elstree outside London. Recently I dropped in to see what he has in preparation for the American networks next year.

This is not as casual as it sounds — it takes a bit of negotiation to get to see McGoohan. For one thing he is shy, for another he feels his views on sex and violence in television are well known — he won't have any of the first and limits the second to the action absolutely essential to the plot.

And he insists on keeping his private life private: He is happily married to the woman he described as "my first and last wife." So the handsome U.S. born Irishman tends to find an interview a repetitious ordeal in ordinary circumstances. But my visit did not come at an ordinary time.

For McGoohan had only just crystalized the conception of his new series "The Prisoner" and was excited enough about its possibilities to forget the 15-minute limit he usually imposes on questioners. This time he did most of the talking, and if he manages to bring off before the camera the many facets of drama he sees in its basic situation,

NEW 'PHONE HOUR' FORMAT

Plan Wider View of Today's Musical Life

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour," for years a revered 60-minute musical yawn that never seemed to realize it had switched from radio to television, is finally about to get with it.

The Sunday evening series, tired of being taken for granted — which it certainly was—this fall will drop its old traditional approach of music-to-offend-nobody-by:

A distinctly characterless format offering the safest performers with the safest selections of the safest part of show business' variety program middleground. And when I say middleground, I mean middleground.

Not that the "Telephone Hour" is about to get revolutionary — not at good old mainstream-consensus-balanced programming (some good, some bad) NBC-TV, perish the thought.

* * * *

BUT IT IS—when it returns Sunday, Sept. 25 — going to experiment a bit by offering itself as a series of 16 documentaries that attempt to involve the viewer in various aspects of contemporary musical life.

In short, the pay phone on the wall in the hallway (nickel, please) provides a fond memory, but the television phone is now upon us. Romberg is swell, but long live Bernstein (Lennie —and Elmer too).

As the "Telephone Hour" departs from its studio-performed musicals of the past, and sets out on its color documentaries that are expected to average out to about $400,000 each in cost (according to spokesman), two projects have been announced officially:

A study of Gian Carlo Menotti's Festival at Spoleto,Italy, a program seeking to fashion an anatomy of the occasion, showing the composer as a creative director, and trying to involve the watcher.

A closeup look at the famous Berkshire Festival in Massachusetts, how it came to be and its cultural importance. As with all the contemplated projects, this hour, says the spokesman, will by no means be merely a musical concert.

* * * *

A NUMBER of other projects are also in the process of being fleshed out:

An hour about an international jazz festival at Comblain-La-Tour, near Liege, Belgium, which, according to the spokesman, has a dramatic aspect in the sense that it involves an ex-GI named Joe Napoli who fell in love with a town and decided to do something for it.

A program trying to understand what makes a prodigy, and how one develops, and why some survive and others don't.

A broadcast hopefully involving four world-famed divas, contrasting their personalities and development.

A study of a small American city that is suddenly awakening to the world of culture—in short, one that is part of the current popular renaissance. The hour, at this point, hopes to tell the story of a typical city through its cultural development.

A program which would be an anatomy of a legend in music—a famous maestro now dead.

There would also be topical holiday hours during the Christmas and Easter seasons.

SPECIAL

SENATE HEARINGS—Taped highlights of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's (D-Mass.) subcommittee hearings on the U.S. position in regard to refugees and escapees are aired in a 90-min. special at 1:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Witnesses include Sec. of State Dean Rusk, AID chairman William S. Gaud and Abba P. Schwartz.

THE UNIVERSITY in America—Paul Newman and Jack Lemmon, acting as concerned citizens, co-host an hour's exploration of the problems of today's university, with its restless, protesting students, and its impersonal, frustrated professors. Taking part in the 4 p.m. color hour, ch. 7, are Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, Justice William O. Douglas, attorney Arnold Grant and Dr. Rosemary Park, president of Barnard College.

THE BIG EAR—Robert MacNeil reviews the wide extent to which illegal bugging and telephone wiretapping of private conversations are carried on in America during an "Encore" hour at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Reuven Frank produced the repeat hour, which includes interviews with private detectives, the inventor of the "martini olive," and former Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

LONDON PALLADIUM—Fess Parker is host for the fifth of six special music-variety hours taped at London's famed music hall-theatre, screening at 190 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Performers include Royal Ballet stars Rudolf Nureyev and Svetlana Beriosova, comedians Dickie Henderson and Dave Allen, acrobatic dancers the Browsky Twins, comedian Dave Allen, and regular singer-dancer Millicent Martin. (Roger Moore hosts the final Palladium hour Aug. 12.)

FESS PARKER and Millicent Martin are on "London Palladium Show" at 10 p.m. Sunday on channel 4.

SPECIAL

WHERE THERE'S SMOKEY—Some of these unsold pilots, like last week's supposedly-camp Merriwell yarn, are so bad they make the re-runs welcome. But this "Vacation Playhouse" film bears the production stamp of Desilu, so you might want to take a chance. Soupy Sales and Gale Gordon co-star at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, as the reputation of a small-town fire chief finds itself on shaky ground due to his well-intentioned but bubble-headed brother-in-law. Hollis Irving, Louise Glenn and Jack Weston are featured.

ABC Sets Joey Bishop

New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Joey Bishop will be the host of a new 90-minute late evening variety show that the American Broadcasting Company network will begin televising next April. It will be presented from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., Mondays through Fridays.

The Bishop show, originating in Hollywood, will be similar in format to Johnny Carson's "Tonight" program on the National Broadcasting Company network. Bishop just completed a two-week assignment as substitute host on "Tonight" while Carson was on vacation.

In addition to appearances by guests, the ABC show will establish a permanent cast of performers.

SPECIAL

TORME'S BACK in Town —In the first of five taped musical hours to air each Tuesday during August, the singer does "Riding High," "When the World Was Young" and his new composition, "Tracy." Joining in at 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, are Marian Montgomery, the Polka Dots and British comedian Roy Castle. Later shows will spotlight Shirley Bassey, Vikki Carr, Count Basie and Peter Nero, with each hour repeated the following Thursday.

UFO: Friend, Foe or Fantasy — Walter Cronkite explores the mystery surrounding unidentified flying objects during a repeat "CBS Reports" colorcast at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Participating are persons who claim to have seen UFOs, and scientists with varied theories on the origin of the phenomena. (Next week, an hour split between KNXT's report on students' work with deprived children, and CBS' postponed "Essay on Bridges.")

HUSBAND HUNTING in L.A.—The trials and tribulations of the single woman in a rootless society, and unusual aspects of the mating game, are described by a panel of unmarried women in a repeat hour with Jerry Dexter, at 10 p.m., ch. 13.

"The Prisoner" may be one of the more gratifying TV successes of 1967.

"The Prisoner" is an effort to take the curious world of counter-espionage into a new and deeper dimension. It will be a one-hour show in color limited to a minimum of 13 episodes and a maximum of 30.

* * * *

"THE TROUBLE with television is that it takes an idea and milks it to death," McGoohan said. "They keep it going until they're scraping the barrel for plots—we did 86 'Secret Agents' and we went through the bottom of the barrel. But the of the barrel. But 'The Prisoner' will be different.

"Each episode will be self-contained but part of a continued story line. It will be absolutely essential, however, to see the first segment for an understanding of the series. So we are going to publish that one as a book and anyone who misses it and who is intrigued by later episodes can get the book and read all the basic information."

McGoohan will be taking on a difficult acting (as well as producing) job but he feels he is ready for it; he has awards in Britain both for stage and TV acting. He talked about his hopes while flashing camera slides of the strange location he has found for "The Prisoner" on a portable screen.

* * * *

"JOHN DRAKE of 'Secret Agent' is gone" he said, "but we're not foolish enough to try to change the image we have established with TV audiences.

"In 'The Prisoner' I've worked in a top security job and I've had enough of it so I resign. But I have a lot of secret knowledge which could be of use to the other side. So I am abducted from London and I awaken in a holiday village.

"It is a prison — but who is the warden? Who are the captors? Are the British trying to find out whether I am still reliable? Or is the other side trying to pump me?"

The drama will go on in a village in Wales built as an architectural whimsy by a wealthy man. It is a fantastic melange of styles — Grecian temples and thatched cottages, turreted villas. McGoohan starts filming there in September.

"We might have gone on with 'Secret Agent'" he said, "but the American network took so long to make up its mind we decided to close it down. I had a lot of help on that series but as star and producer and even writer of some of the scripts of 'The Prisoner' I'll have only myself to blame if its a lousy show.

"And that's the way I like it."

SPECIAL

JOHN GARY SHOW—Riddle me this. Who laughs on ABC early this evening, and then turns impressionist for this hour? Doffing his costume of Batman's Riddler, Frank Gorshin turns to impressions of historical figures as they might have been played by Richard Burton (Washington), John Wayne (Patrick Henry), Edward G. Robinson (Jefferson), Richard Widmark (Benedict Arnold), Boris Karloff (George M. Cohan) and Broderick Crawford (Lincoln). Joining the singing host in musical portions of the 10 p.m., ch. 2 color hour, including a salute to Rodgers and Hammerstein in a state fair setting, are Jimmie Rodgers and Vikki Carr.

SPECIAL

CHANGING CLIMATE in Watts — Novelist-screenwriter Budd Schulberg talks of the success of a creative writing class he opened last year in a coffee house converted from a riot-wrecked store in Watts as he joins host Keith Berwick on "Speculation." Taking part in the 8 p.m. discussion, ch. 28 (with a repeat Sat. at 9 p.m.), are Stan Saunders, community organizer in Watts and Rhodes scholar student; Johnnie Scott, poet and playwright; and Sue Welch, director of Watts Towers Teen Post. (A network hour on the same subject, with both Schulberg and Scott, screens Aug. 16 at 7:30 p.m. on NBC.)

Moore Bucks 'Bonanza'

"I FIRMLY BELIEVE most people are lonely. If you get a chance, you should talk to a man. 'Hi, Sam. How are you? It's been a week since I've seen you.'"

That's Gary's format for his new fall series. He's going to talk to Sam. And if you're watching, he's going to talk to you, too.

There's a little bit more to the format. The emphasis will be on comedy, rather than variety.

"Look," said Garry. "You get good writers, good producers and you do funny things. What else is there?"

* * * *

THERE IS something else and it's a worrisome thought that Garry doesn't let nag him too often. The something else is an industry slide-rule, a ratings' point of view, although Garry didn't so specify. What he did specify was:

"What you must have today is an instant hit. If not by the time you're six weeks old, you're in bad trouble.

Garry's previous hits have included "I've Got A Secret" and "The Garry Moore Show," the latter having left the air two years ago. His radio - TV experience goes back to the 1930's.

It's experience which has taught him something he intends to utilize in the new Garry Moore series.

"If you get an idea," he said, "try it.

"It may be a dog, but you haven't killed the world."

Today

FOOTBALL, 7 p.m., ch. 7, has Chris Schenkel, Terry Brennan and Bill Fleming at Chicago's Soldier Field for the 33rd annual College All-Star game, with top seniors from the 1965 collegiate season meeting the NFL champion Green Bay Packers. (Live coverage preempts most regular ABC programming, except for "Summer Fun" and "Addams Family" which shift to post-game slots.)

SPECIAL

JOHNNY GRANT'S Hollywood in Viet Nam—Last June, Grant's "Operation Starlift" took Dick Contino, Leigh Snowden, Julie Gregg and Max Horton on a two-week USO-Hollywood Overseas committee tour of U. S. troops in Viet Nam. Color films of the trip, plus those of others who have made the tour, including Bob Hope, John Wayne and Eddie Fisher, will be narrated by Grant at 8 p.m., ch. 5.

A WHITE HOUSE Wedding — Preparations for tomorrow's wedding of Luci Johnson to Pat Nugent will be the subject for an hour-long special at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Harry Reasoner and Roger Mudd will anchor the coverage of the preparations for the first wedding by the daughter of a President in office since that of Eleanor Wilson on May 7, 1914.

TV MOVIE TIPS

SUNDAY

STORY ON PAGE ONE, 9 p.m. (7) — Rita Hayworth, Anthony Franciosa, Gig Young (1960). Clifford Odets suspense drama of the trial of an unhappy wife and the widower who loves her, charged with slaying her brutish husband.

WEDNESDAY

GLASS MENAGERIE, 9 p.m. (7)—Jane Wyman, Kirk Douglas, Gertrude Lawrence, Arthur Kennedy (1950). Tennessee Williams' award-winning play of a strangely introverted St. Louis family.

IMITATION OF LIFE, 11:30 p.m. (2) — Claudette Colbert, Warren William, Louise Beaver (1934). Fannie Hurst story of romance, comedy and tragedy, far superior to the Lana Turner remake.

THURSDAY

FEVER IN THE BLOOD, 9 p.m. (2)—Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Angie Dickinson, Jack Kelly, Don Ameche (1960). Sensational murder trial, whose idealistic judge is caught up in a gubernatorial battle.

FRIDAY

VIVA ZAPATA! 11:30 p.m. (2) — Marlon Brando, Jean Peters, Anthony Quinn (1952). An Oscar for Quinn in excellent historical drama of Mexican revolutionary leader, following his rise from peon to President.

SATURDAY

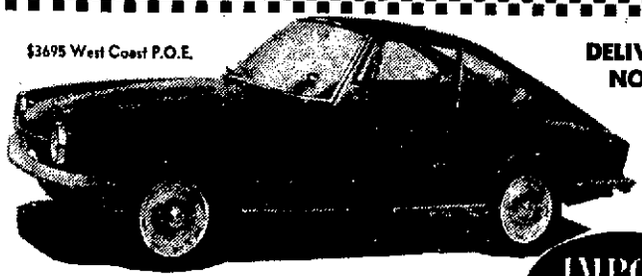

IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT, 11 p.m. (9) — Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable (1934). The granddaddy of all sophisticated comedy romances, and a multi-Oscar winner.

"SUNSET BOULEVARD," starring Gloria Swanson and William Holden, will be shown again on "Saturday Night at the Movies" at 9 p.m. Saturday on channel 4.

DISCOVER THE BIG DIFFERENCE IN PROMPT PERSONAL CARE

New Process Used Exclusively by HERMAN'S on Wall to Wall Carpet Cleaning!

Eliminates Cause of Rapid Soiling

Prolongs the Life of Your Carpets

If your carpets are soiling more since you had them cleaned, the reason may be due to a detergent build-up.

Ordinary cleaning methods and/or home remedies merely add to the problem of rapid soiling.

Herman's ADSORBENT Process used exclusively by us, removes the residue of detergent build-up. The carpets are then shampooed with our Soil Retardant Process that is scientifically formulated and warranted to preserve the life of your carpeting, brings back the resiliency of the pile, colors are bright and clear again. Adds extra years of luxury to your carpets. Carpets cleaned by Herman's stay cleaner up to 5 times longer.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR TV TUBE

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A wise viewer never counts his specials before they bloom in the picture tube. But for the first time in many years there is an encouraging restlessness in the TV industry and it may augur an era of expanding creativity.

Come mid-September, the potboilers designed to soothe the pliant masses assuredly will still be around in all their profusion. The grounds for cautious cheer lie at different directions. Here and there, in commercial television and non-commercial television, there are signs of a rebirth of video theater, of recognition that the home screen is starved for occasional substance in entertainment.

* * * *

HERE ARE some of the developments: The American Broadcasting Co., which received its full share of lumps for fathering a cycle of violence, is inaugurating a regular Wednesday night series called "ABC Stage 67."

The contemplated attractions include "The Love Song of Barney Kempinski," an original comedy by Murray Schisgal, with Sir John Gielgud and Alan Arkin; a musical comedy based on Oscar Wilde's "The Canterville Ghost"; an original David Karp play entitled "The Confession"; Jean Cocteau's "The Human Voice," with Ingrid Bergman; "A Night Out in London," produced by David Frost, and many others.

* * * *

THE COLUMBIA Broadcasting System has announced a project designed to uncover original properties deserving of two hours of prime time. It has set a preliminary budget of $500,000 out of which it is prepared to go $25,000 for a fresh script, with no legal barriers to the drama's subsequent presentation in either stage or film form.

National Educational Television is planning a series of 40 presentations to be called "N.E.T. Playhouse." Maxwell Anderson, Thornton Wilder and Arthur Miller are scheduled to be represented, as are several British playwrights.

The National Broadcasting Co. plans a presentation of "Othello," with Sidney Poitier. In addition, George Schaefer, producer of "Hallmark Hall of Fame," plans to offer "Anastasia," with Julie Harris, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," Maxwell Anderson's "Barefoot in Athens," with Peter Ustinov, and James M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton."

'Dick Tracy' To Go Network

William Dozier, the television producer who brought "Batman" to A.B.C., has reached an agreement to produce "Dick Tracy" for the N.B.C. network. His independent company, Greenway productions, soon will begin making a half-hour pilot film. It was reported that "Dick Tracy" might make its debut midway during the 1966-67 season.

AIRLINES CRISIS FORCED ISSUE

LBJ JUNKS WAGE-PRICE GUIDEPOSTS?

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The words used by President Johnson in justifying the airlines strike settlement, rather than the size of the settlement itself, have led analysts here to believe that the Administration may be changing or abandoning its policy of wage-price "guideposts."

There would be nothing unusual in a settlement that cost in the neighborhood of 4% a year or even more, though the wage guidepost is 3.2%. Typical settlements reached so far this year, though they have been relatively few, have been in the 4% range.

But these settlements, such as those in construction, though they were in excess of the guidepost figure, were allowed to pass by the Administration, generally without comment. The guidepost principle remained.

Now the principle itself, at least by implication, has been abandoned. Many observers believe that this point had to come in any event, for reasons unconnected with the airline strike.

The President evidently felt that the public inconvenience caused by the strike required a settlement, even at the price of breaching the guidepost principle.

The guideposts started from the proposition that wages in the economy as a whole should rise in line with the rise in worker productivity, or output per man hour. Because productivity increases can vary in the short run, the guideposts used the concept of "trend" productivity, or the growth over a long period of time.

This figure, arrived at in last January's economic report of the President to Congress, was 3.2%. The key to the guidepost principle was that all workers are entitled to this amount in wage increases, regardless of productivity in their own industries. Thus barbers or hospital nurses, whose productivity cannot increase much, had as much right to 3.2% as airline mechanics, whose hourly production was rising at 6% a year or more.

Sources close to the Administration estimated the cost of the contract at $73 million over three years. The emergency board recommendations would have cost $76 million over 42 months, or about $67 million over three years.

The cost estimate that emerged from union sources caused a flap within the Administration and infuriated President Johnson. P.L. Siemiller, the union president, later issued a statement "to set the record straight" saying the union "has not attempted to estimate the cost of the settlement" because it lacked "sufficient facts" to do so.

COURT BARS PILOT STRIKE

Heads of Airlines Locals Balk, Urge Rejection of Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders of machinists union locals representing nearly a third of the striking 35,000 airlines workers indicated Saturday night the new contract proposal will be rejected today.

The executive boards of Local 1759 representing 1,200 employes in Washington, 1781 with 6,000 workers in San Francisco and 1650 representing 4,600 employes in Kansas City turned down the tentative agreement Saturday night.

The three boards will recommend to their memberships today that they reject the contract.

In addition, leaders of two other locals representing another 700 workers said reaction to the settlement has been "strongly negative." They are Local 1058 representing 500 workers in San Francisco and Local 796 with 200 employes in the Washington area.

* * * *

PRESIDENT FRANK R. Waldner of Local 1759 said he expects his local to overwhelmingly reject that offer."

Waldner said the principal objections concern a delay of fringe benefits until 1967, and various local issues concerning the carriers.

In Los Angeles, officials of United Air Lines Local 1932 and TWA Local 111 said their executive boards voted to recommend rejection of the new contract.

Tom Foster, strike chairman of Local 1932, said of the contract:

"There's no cost of living escalation clause, the time lapse for fringe benefits is too distant, the immediate wage increase was not enough, there's not a paid pension plan, there's no fully-paid health and welfare plan, and no improvement in overtime rates."

The possibility that one of the lines — Trans World — would remain grounded was averted late Saturday when Federal Judge Edmund Palmieri issued a temporary injunction ordering the line's pilots to return to work if the machinists ratify the proposed contract. The pilots threatened a walkout of their own Saturday in a dispute related to the IAM strike.

The other four lines — United, Eastern, National and Northwest — expect to get their planes back in the air within hours if the machinists approve new terms hammered out Friday at the White House after President Johnson entered the dispute personally.

Details of the contract are to be announced today after the IAM's 35,400 members vote.

* * * *

LATE SATURDAY, however, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., issued a statement in which he said the machinists had won a 36-month contract giving them a wage boost "somewhat more than 4%."

Morse said his statement has made to support an earlier one in which he contended that the settlement "was within the general framework" of the recom-

U.S. Armed Strength Buildup Passes 3,093,000 Goal Early

Course of War to Determine Limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The massive buildup of U.S. armed strength has passed its announced goal of 3,093,000 a year ahead of time. There are strong indications it will continue.

Pentagon officials are reluctant to talk in specific terms about the eventual size of the military forces.

When questioned, Deputy Secretary of Defense Cyrus R. Vance has said "we cannot see clearly at this time what will be required. We do not know yet what the upper limit on military manpower will be.

Other sources said force planning is projected ahead three months at a time.

* * * *

THE COURSE of the war in Viet Nam is the major factor to determine the level to which over-all American armed strength will be raised.

The U.S. force in Viet Nam totals 280,000 men. This total is expected to climb to 400,000 by the end of this year and probably higher next year.

If conditions should dictate a bigger-than-expected reinforcement in Viet Nam, the effects would be felt throughout the military establishment.

For example, sending an appreciably greater force to Viet Nam would require an increase in the number of recruits and units to fill the holes left in the garrison in the United States.

A larger force in Viet Nam, under a one-year tour of duty, would necessitate a step-up in the output of replacements.

The big U.S. buildup was set in motion just one year ago.

Subsequent to that, Congress was asked to provide funds to augment the Army, Navy, Marines and Air Force by 452,000 men.

Under the schedule laid out for Congress by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, the new level of 3,093,109 men was to be reached by June 30, 1967.

However, the buildup progressed so swiftly that the objective was reached—and surpassed by a little—

Second B52 Raid Blasts 'Peace' Zone

SAIGON, Sunday (AP) — U. S. B52 bombers pounded the demilitarized zone today for the second straight day. The target was North Vietnamese troops in the neutral area.

A U.S. military spokesman reported the raids today but said he had no details.

The giant Stratoforts hit the demilitarized zone Saturday for the first time in the Vietnamese war.

As in the Saturday raids, the eight-engine bombers struck today in the southern half of the 6-mile-wide demilitarized zone where elements of the North Vietnamese 324B Division had been sighted.

* * * *

U.S. MARINES and South Vietnamese troops for the past two weeks have been fighting the North Vietnamese division in Operation Hastings one to two miles south of the zonal border.

The zone, established by the 1954 Geneva Conference, separates North and South Viet Nam.

A U.S. spokesman said after the Saturday raids that visual and aerial photo reconnaissance had uncovered large concentrations of North Vietnamese troops in the neutral zone.

The targets Saturday included an ammunition dump, a weapons storage area and 26 gun positions.

It was possible today's raids struck at the same or nearby targets.

The groundbreak-

WEDDINGS ARE WHERE LITTLE BOYS SHOULDN'T BE

It was Saturday afternoon and not the time for any self-respecting boy to be decked out in ruffled shirt and cummerbund, doing duty as pageboy at a wedding. Such is the message in these views of John F. Kennedy at the wedding in Newport, R.I., of his mother's half sister, Janet Auchincloss, and Louis P. Rutherford. In photo on left John is restrained by an older boy at the reception. At right—one shirt tail out and the other on the way, and his cummerbund discarded—young John is led away by his new Swiss governess, Francoise Geizendorf, after scuffling with other pageboy. He's whooping, not yawning as it might appear.

Flowers Inundate Truman

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Former President Harry S Truman, hospitalized for a "minor intestinal disturbance" and a general checkup Saturday, received scores of floral tributes, including gold chrysanthemums and red roses from President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson.

The floral display from Johnson arrived at Research Hospital early Saturday night.

A bulletin on Truman's condition was issued at 8 p.m. CST. It stated Truman "remains in satisfactory condition and is resting comfortably."

2,000 OUTSIDE CHURCH

Mrs. JFK's Sister Fights Mob, Weds

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—Mrs. John F. Kennedy's half sister Janet Auchincloss, fought her way through crowds to be married Saturday with the former first lady in the congregation and 2,000 spectators jostling police outside the church.

Janet, 20, became the wife of Louis P. Rutherford, 21, New York City.

Hundreds climbed trees, telephone poles and out on roof tops to view the wedding party. Hundreds more lined the curb, spilling out into the street. There were crying babies, fat women in bermudas, camera-carrying tourists, guitarists still around from jazz and folk festivals and nuns watching from the windows of a convent across the street.

Many had seen Mrs. Kennedy married to the late President in the same church—St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church—in 1953. As soon as guests left the church, several hundred spectators rushed inside to grab mementoes of the wedding—flowers from the altar, leaves, pieces of green canopy over the door and pieces of the white car-

Bogalusa Colored Man Shot

BOGALUSA, La., (AP) — Clarence Triggs, 24-year-old Negro was shot to death Saturday in racially troubled Bogalusa.

Asst. Police Chief L. C. Terrell said Triggs, a construction worker, died of a wound in the head. The body was found near a wrecked car in a park just off a main highway through Bogalusa. Police Chief Claxton Knight said the car, abandoned by a motorist, was unrelated to the slaying.

Robert Hicks, president of the Bogalusa Voters League, said Triggs had participated in the civil-rights movement here.

1.5-Inch Cloudburst Soaks Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS (UPI)— A mid-afternoon cloudburst dumped 1½ inches of rain Saturday and winds up to 50 miles an hour toppled trees at this desert resort.

Brief flashfloods cascaded out of the mountains, but damage was limited to secondary roads. Major traffic arteries were unaffected.

A few homes were mudded, but officials said property damage was minor.

PRINCE PHILIP IS ● ● ● ● ● ● ● FROM CLUB

LONDON (AP) — Prince Philip, husband of Queen Elizabeth II, has been blackballed for honorary membership in one of Britain's leading scientific societies, published reports said Saturday.

A Buckingham Palace spokesman declined comment on the reports and referred all questions to officials of the Institute of Physics and the Physical Society. Officials at the society were unavailable for confirmation.

The Sunday Telegraph said it had talked to members, who confirmed they had been informed that the prince—the Duke of Edinburgh — had been turned down.

The Telegraph's front-page report added:

"The result is an affront to the Prince. It has caused grave embarrassment to the society, particularly because it was the society itself which invited him to join."

THE PUBLISHED reports said the institute invited the duke to be proposed for honorary membership through its committees.

"It was felt," said the Sunday Telegraph's account, "that such a move would recognize his contribution to science in Britain and that his acceptance would be a compliment to the society. When Prince Philip was approached he agreed to accept nomination."

The standing procedure is to poll the society's members on the proposed nomination. Response to such polls is normally small but if one-quarter of those voting refuse, the proposal is defeated.

The Sunday Telegraph's informant said there were 850 votes cast, of which 250 were against Philip. So, he was rejected.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

Reagan Raps UC Regent for Brown Campaign Work

Ronald Reagan demanded at Grass Valley Saturday that a top political aide to Gov. Brown either get out of the 1966 campaign or resign as a University of California regent.

Reagan aimed his fire at Frederick G. Dutton, a former assistant secretary of state, in a speech to a Junior Chamber of Commerce state board meeting. The Republican gubernatorial nominee replied to charges by Democrats that he is trying to make the university a political issue.

He said it is Brown who "is directly involving our great university system in politics in this election.

First of all, the man who is heading his campaign—Fred Dutton — is also a regent of the university. It would be difficult to involve the university any more directly in politics," Reagan said.

"I am demanding that, for the good of our university system, that the governor ask Mr. Dutton either to step down from his campaign post or to resign as a regent."

'Proof's Ready'

State Controller Allan Cranston said Saturday in San Francisco he would gladly meet Republican gubernatorial candidate Ronald Reagan in Sacramento Monday and prove to him "that the John Birch Society is riddled with radical and religious bigotry." Reagan challenged Cranston in Chico Friday to "name names, dates and places and stop being so mysterious" about charges Cranston made in a "white paper" on the Birch Society.

"Even though I am astounded that Mr. Reagan should persist in his unwillingness to acknowledge the evils of the Birch Society, I am pleased to have been given this opportunity to provide him personally with the facts," Cranston said.

Cranston said he guaranteed to present Reagan with "names, dates and places which will prove beyond a doubt the anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism and racism which flourishes at all levels of the Birch Society." Democratic State Chairman Robert L. Coate called Reagan an "apologist" for the Birch Society and claimed that he was supported by it.

Back to Heat

French adventurer Jean Pierre Marquant, the rugged ex-paratrooper who walked 102 miles through the searing heat of Death Valley, returned Saturday to take additional film footage. He set out on foot from Ubehebe Crater bound for Scotty's Castle, about 12 miles. Accompanied by a two-man support team and refrigerated truck carrying supplies, he expected to wrap up the abbreviated walk and photography mission today.

On the Way

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Nugent will depart from Waukegan, Ill., by car today for Washington, where their son will marry Luci Johnson Aug. 6. Mrs. Phyllis Nugent, sister-in-law of bridegroom-to-be Pat Nugent, will accompany the couple, who will be honored by Ambassador and Mrs. W. Averell Harriman at a rehearsal dinner.

Twins Surprise

There was nobody to surprise when 18-year-old sailor Joseph Chernesky Jr. made a surprise visit home to Detroit. The doors were locked and the family car was gone when the young Navy man arrived on his unannounced 10-day leave. His parents were en route to pay him a surprise visit at his base in Florida, taking three other children, Margaret, 14; Christine, 10, and Pat, 8. After borrowing a sleeping bag from a neighbor and resting in a pup tent in the back yard, Chernesky got one consolation: His sister Lois, 20 showed up and they had a happy reunion.

A Duty Call

While stationed in Viet Nam last year, Spec. 4 Rayford Huber Jr. wrote a letter to his hometown magistrate explaining where he was and promising to answer motor vehicle summons as soon as he got home. He returned last week after his three-year tour of duty, and found himself a job. He also went to court, produced a somewhat yellowed, but neatly folded summons, and paid a $205 fine for driving with a revoked license. Magistrate John D'Angelo imposed the mandatory fine. "You are to be commended for your thoughtfulness in writing us, and for your uprightness," D'Angelo said. "It is gratifying to this court to see one who flinches neither at his duty nor his debts to society."

Now He'll Die

It appears that James D. French will get his wish and become the 83rd person to die in the electric chair of the Oklahoma State Penitentiary. The 26-year-old condemned slayer, barring further stays, is to die Aug. 10. He was serving a life term for murder when he strangled his cellmate, Eddie Lee Shelton, in 1961, and later was condemned to death. French repeatedly has said he is guilty and wants to die. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. French of Huntington, W. Va., have said they would comply with their son's wishes and make no further effort to save his life. "James begged us on our farewell visit not to intercede but to let him die," Mrs. French said in a telephone interview. "He said it would be a living hell in the prison because probably would be cooped up like an animal most of the time."

Both Go Free

The Rome court that found it impossible to convict Claire and Youssef Bebawi for the slaying of an Egyptian playboy said Saturday it was convinced one of them was guilty. The court said it exonerated the divorced Egyptian couple of the murder charge in order to avoid condemning an innocent person, since it was impossible to prove which one committed the crime. The Bebawis both were charged with premeditated murder in the 1964 pistol and acid death of Farok Chourbagi, Claire's 28-year-old lover.

WINS YOUNG AMERICAN MEDAL FOR BRAVERY

Girl, 18, Braves Sharks to Rescue 4

The most heroic boys and girls in the United States have been honored, since 1951, by an official national tribute—The Young American Medal for Bravery. Only the President himself can award this unique medal. Only a few youngsters, all under age 19, have won it with their valor. Here is the story of one of "America's Kids Courageous." Six others will follow.

By THEODOR SCHUCHAT
(Copyright, 1966, by North American Newspaper Alliance)

NEW YORK — It was a gay group setting out for a Fourth of July cruise in the Les-LeMar along Georgia's inland waterway that calm summer evening in 1953.

Disaster struck less than two hours later.

Mrs. Earnest Haar and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Seybold, were in the galley of the 42-foot Haar yacht, fixing turkey sandwiches. Mr. Haar was alone in the wheelhouse separating the fore and aft compartments of his craft.

In the aft cabin, lounging on the built-in bunks, were Marilyn Haar, 18, and her young friends, Virginia Davis and Lois McKethan.

Abruptly, the Les-LeMar turned around. Then it capsized, "in the twinkling of an eye," Mr. Seybold remembers.

"We hit a sandbar! Quick —get to the door!" Mr. Haar shouted.

But there wasn't time. Water swirled through the vessel, lapping at the armpits of the seven frightened vacationers.

* * * *

INSTEAD of escaping from the wheelhouse, Mr. Haar groped for the stairs to the galley. Before he could reach his wife there, the icebox door struck his head and he collapsed in her arms.

In the aft cabin, the girls began to pray—"not for our lives, for we felt we had lost them, but for our souls." Virginia said later, "Marilyn remained calm and told us she was going down under the water to find a window and see if she could open it."

Marilyn dove into the muddy, black water, tugged at the window, then shot back to the surface for air. Again and again, she returned to the stubborn porthole.

On the tenth try, it opened.

Marilyn escaped and returned to guide her friends to safety. Virginia got out easily but Lois, who could not swim, came through the porthole, holding Marilyn's foot, only after considerable coaxing.

Once out, the raging current pulled her under, twice. As lightning crackled overhead, Marilyn swam to the struggling girl. Clinging to the capsized hull, Virginia reached out and pulled Marilyn and Lois back to the boat.

* * * *

MARILYN dove to the submerged forward deck, found life preservers for her two friends, then struck out for the forward compartment where the adults were trapped.

"We heard a knocking," Mr. Seybold recalls. "There, in complete darkness and separated from the outside by the impenetrable bottom of the boat, came the voice of Marilyn."

"Have faith!" she called. "Don't give up. God will show me a way to get you out."

As Marilyn sought a way to rescue them, the adults tried to escape. The Seybolds struck out for the wheelhouse, couldn't make it, and returned to the galley, Mrs. Seybold drowning in the attempt.

The rising water slowly rose to the necks of the terrified three survivors. Suddenly, the Les LeMar turned on its side. The shift swept the unconscious Mr. Haar out of his wife's arms, into the swirling darkness.

* * * *

THE SIDE of the boat now pressed down against Mr. Seybold and Mrs. Haar. Soon it would leave no place for their heads but beneath the rising water. Then Marilyn's voice was heard again:

"Are you there? Listen: I've found a porthole. It is open; you can get air if you can find it. Follow my voice."

The trapped survivors found the porthole and gasped for breath.

Then down Marilyn dove, again and again, pounding on the boat, searching for an opening, a window, a door.

"She knew of the danger of this shark-infested water," Mr. Seybold says with admiration. "She realized she could be trapped herself in the railing or the rigging of the boat, but she gave none of this any thought; her only concern was to find a way out for us."

Then Marilyn called again: "I've found a window! You can make it—you are saved, but listen to me and listen carefully.

* * * *

'THIS WINDOW is about 15 feet from where you are now at the porthole. I will knock on the boat as close to the window as I can, and you follow the sound of my knocking. You will have to swim underwater, but you can do it!"

"So we went, Mrs. Haar and I," Mr. Seybold remembers, "leaving behind so much of us there below in the water, in the dark."

Minutes after they escaped, the tide completely covered the Les-LeMar to which they clung, adults and teen-agers alike. Rain was falling steadily and the wind chilled them as they floated with the capsized craft, awaiting rescue.

"It was gruesome sitting there and every now and then seeing a shark swim past," Seybold remembers. "It made my blood run cold to sit there on the edge of that boat," Virginia adds, "and watch with the breaking of dawn, these creatures swimming around as if waiting for their human prey. I think the blood from Marilyn's wounds had attracted them to the scene."

* * * *

FOR 10 HOURS, the five huddled on the Les-LeMar's hull. They were discovered at 4 a.m. by passing fishermen.

On Dec. 14, 1954, President Dwight D. Eisenhower presented Marilyn Baker Haar with the sixth Young American Medal for Bravery for never losing her faith and courage that terrible weekend the year before.

Marilyn later attended Coker College. As a Red Cross swimming instructor at Hunter Field Air Force Base, she met and married William W. Ramsey. Today she is a housewife in an Atlanta suburb.

AFTER MOSCOW VISIT

Major War Fear Bared by U Thant

NEW YORK (UPI)—United Nations Secretary General Thant returned from an abortive peace mission to Moscow Saturday, warning that the conflict in Viet Nam is on the verge of erupting into a "major war."

Thant, who spent five days conferring with Soviet leaders, said on his arrival at Kennedy International Airport that the visit had "confirmed" his "fears" that Viet Nam "will develop into a major war."

"I don't want to go into specifics," he told newsmen, "but my feeling is that the fight might spill over the borders."

* * * *

THE SECRETARY general made similar statements earlier in the day as he left Moscow and during a brief stop in Paris to change from a Soviet airliner to an American one.

Thant described his talks with Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin as "very useful and frank" dispite his failure to enlist Soviet support for Viet Nam peace talks. While the subject of Viet Nam "dominated" the talks, he said, the questions of disarmament and U.N. finances also came up.

* * * *

THE SECRETARY general said he found "a general feeling in Moscow that it is up to those who are fighting to take the initiative" in arranging a truce.

He said any move by the Soviets to join the United States in pressing for peace was unlikely.

"The United States views North Viet Nam as the aggressor and the Soviet Union views the United States as the aggressor," he said. "With these very different viewpoints, it is very difficult to reconcile their attitudes."

During the talks, Thant said, the Soviet leaders reiterated their public statements that "they are prepared to render all possible assistance to North Viet Nam."

Saturn Rings Ice, Says Soviet Savant

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet news agency Tass reported Saturday that a Soviet astro-physicist has evidence that the rings around the planet Saturn are made of ice.

Tass said Vasili Moroz has been studying the spectra of Saturn since 1961 and his work was done with "very sensitive astronomic equipment."

China General, Top Reds Flushed in S. Viet Jungles

SAIGON (AP)—The official Viet Nam press said Saturday some high-ranking Asian Communists, including a general from Red China met 10 days ago under an extraordinary security guard in the jungles of Tay Ninh Province of South Viet Nam.

Without touching on what may have been their subject matter, the government news agency indicated a chance military patrol broke up the session in confusion.

The Viet Nam press said South Vietnamese Army troops infiltrated the area, near the Cambodian frontier about 70 miles northwest of Saigon, and engaged in a firefight with elements of a full regiment of guerrillas posted in the jungles as a security force. By its account:

The Communist representatives broke up the meeting and pulled out, leaving behind a briefcase that was seized by the troops.

Captured documents named one participant, Vo Chi Cong, as counselor of the Viet Nam People's Revolutionary Party and personal representative of President Ho Chi Minh of North Viet Nam.

On hand from Red China were Maj. Gen. Huyet Deat Trung, military adviser to the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, and Maj. Ngu Goang Rang, political adviser to the front.

Both names were spelled phonetically in the Viet Nam press account. They sounded similar to Vietnamese names, but it is common for both the Chinese and Vietnamese Communists to change names. Ho Chi Minh's name, for instance, is one he adopted while hiding out in China from French police years ago.

* * * *

THE VIET NAM press story said a colonel named Mot Nang was present as a representative of the Cambodian National Defense Ministry and that a colonel identified only as Chewclani represented the Communist Pathet Lao in Laos.

Top leaders of the South Vietnamest Communist movement were reported on hand.

The party leadership of the Viet Cong has been known to maintain its headquarters in Tay Nihn Province, just across from the Cambodian frontier. The jungle canopy there is two and three layers deep.

American and Vietnamese troops and warplanes have joined in various sweeps that jarred but never fully broke the Red hold on the countryside.

Target-Shooter Dies in Surgery of Gun Wound

Frank Victor Fawley of Buena Park died in surgery Saturday after suffering a gunshot wound while target-shooting with friends on the desert near Apple Valley.

Fawley, 21, of 7331 8th St. was wounded in the lower left chest when a bullet ricocheted off a rock at Cottonwood Springs.

He died after six hours of surgery during which he was given 23 pints of blood.

Soviet Economic Growth Rate Slowed, Study Tells Congress

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Economic growth has slowed markedly in the Soviet Union since 1958 and the total size of the Soviet economy is still about 47% that of the United States, a major new study concluded Saturday.

The study of all aspects of Soviet economic performance and policy was made by a number of experts in this Joint Economic Committee. It runs 1,093 pages. The sections are by individual authors, who are named.

By 1964, one part of the study found, Soviet citizens had a standard of living only 31% that of Americans. It said:

"The Soviet population lives markedly better in the mid-1960s than it did at the end of the postwar reconstruction. Between 1950 and 1958, per capita consumption grew at an average rate of over 5% a year, but since 1958 the rate has fallen by half. Nevertheless, Soviet consumption per capita has increased from 27% of U.S. consumption per capita in 1955 to 31% in 1964."

* * * *

SHARPEST INCREASES in Soviet consumption have been in consumer durable goods, such as radios, television sets, sewing machines and washing machines, though not in automobiles. The number of these durable goods in use per capita remains, however, far below that of the United States.

The study on the over-all performance of the Soviet economy, measured by the gross national product, found that the growth rate averaged 7.1% a year from 1950 to 1958 but has slipped back to an average of 5.3% since that time. The study concluded.

San Pedro Cabin Cruiser Gutted by Blast, Fire

An explosion and fire gutted a $24,000 cabin cruiser off berth 74 in San Pedro about 7 p.m. Saturday.

There were no injuries when the 36-foot vessel burst into flames while tied up at the Shell Oil dock.

The owner, Leo Evans, 40, Hawthorne, motel and bar owner, said he and Robert Marshall, 34, of Showlow, Ariz., were knocked off their feet by the explosion.

"We immediately jumped to the dock, cast off the lines and pushed it into the channel away from the gasoline tanks," Evans said.

Evans said he had taken 130 gallons of gasoline just before the blast.

* * * *

HARBOR Division firemen, said the cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

Evans, Marshall, Duane Allen, 30, of 521 Javelin St., Torrance, and John Evans, 47, of 11045 Elbins St., Lakewood, had just returned on the boat from a cruise to Catalina Island. John Evans and Allen went ashore minutes before the explosion ripped the boat.

'SHAME TO JOIN A UNION'

Southland Nurses Firm in Bid for Salary Gains

By BILL DUNCAN

Nurse Julia looked down at her watch. It was a quarter to 7 in the morning. Her shift would begin in 15 minutes.

Routinely, she signed in and picked up a tray of thermometers sealed in germ-proof cellophane envelopes and then a clipboard with the names of 16 patients she would care for in the next eight hours. This day would have eight more patients that usual because the hospital was short several nurses.

Her days would start with taking temperatures of the patients and would include bathing eight patients, feeding all them breakfast and lunch, answering many lights (call from patients) and telephone calls.

* * * *

FOR THE MOST part, it would be routine — something she had done for 12 years as a registered nurse.

What wouldn't be routine would come at 10 a.m. when she'd be called to assist in the emergency room where a mother, cut and bleeding, would become hysterical when she learned that her daughter had died in the automobile accident in which she herself was injured.

Nurse Julia would hold the woman to restrain her from reaching the child's body. Her fresh white nurse's uniform would become soaked with blood as the distraught woman buried her head against the nurse and sobbed:

"Oh, my God, why?"

Nurse Julia would change the uniform for a green surgical nurse's garb and continue her duties:

—Comforting an elderly lady who thought her gall stones were surely cancerous.

—Giving solace to a young wife whose husband lay encased in a cast from neck to toe—the victim of a three-story fall when scaffolding collapsed.

—Easing the pain of a child horribly burned and slowly dying from injuries received when a pot of boiling water for the tea she was brewing to surprise her mother overturned and spilled over her body.

—Masking her own feelings as she answered the 11th "light" for a male patient who kept complaining.

There would be other emergencies and crises that day — a typical day in the life of Nurse Julia and that of any floor nurse in a hospital.

She does it for $450 a month — less than the pay of a clerk-typist in the business world . . . less than the pay of most retail clerks . . . less than the pay of a Long Beach meter maid.

The $450 is the average in most Southern California hospitals.

"The registered nurse is the most underpaid, overworked individual in our society today," said a charge nurse at one of Long Beach's hospitals.

Southland nurses are asking pay increases, but not as vigorously as nurses in San Francisco where a strike is near.

* * * *

A STRIKE is not beyond the realm of possibility. The Hospital Council of Southern California has set up a study committee to study nurses' salaries and working conditions.

Leadership in making the demands is coming from the California Nurses Association — a professional organization poorly subscribed to by the nurses themselves. It is not a bargaining agency, and some nurses have accused the group of not looking out for the interest of nurses.

"We are professional people and it is a shame that we should have to join a trade union to get decent salaries," argued a Bellwood Hospital nurse who said that her $450 a month was the top of the salary scale after 10 years. "But we will unless someone listens to our demands."

None of the nurses interviewed by the Independent, Press-Telegram really wanted their names printed. "If anything, it is unprofessional to strike," an Artesia nurse said. "Our first interest is in the patients themselves and the care we can give them, but there comes a time when you must do something drastic. If we strike, then you can use my name."

The nurses' demands for improvement come in a time of shortage of nurses — especially in hospitals where the hours are long and demanding.

Nurses in looking out for themselves can be handicapped by the very quality that makes them good nurses — a bias toward self-sacrifice for others.

* * * *

AS AN EXAMPLE, RN Lionne Conta, associate executive director of California Nurses Association, commented:

"It took the group sometime to ask the Hospital Council of Southern California for a salary study for fear it might be construed as a primary interest in salary."

She said the CNA's primary emphasis is on professional factors "we believe essential for an acceptable standard of patient care."

The CNA and the hospital council have set Aug. 8 for a review of proposed salary adjustments. A liaison committee will hear recommendations from a private consultant, hired by the council to study the problem.

* * * *

APPARENTLY WAGES are not the only condition the nurses want to negotiate. The CNA also wants more to say about the hospital operation, and the council appears willing to concede to some degree.

James Ludlam, legal counsel for the hospital group, indicated this in a letter to the California Nurses Association:

"On behalf of the council we can assure you that we also realize that there are many more problems that have been highlighted by recent developments than just pay scales."

Illustrative of the situation in nursing are these developments:

—A Long Beach nurse and a mother said she quit her job several years ago "when I discovered the babysitter I hired for my three children was getting more than half of my take home pay."

Parkland Hospital where President Kennedy died of an assassin's bullet, has recently started an international recruitment for nurses.

—Hospitals are sending out teams to try to pirate nurses from other states—particularly during the winter months in Northern cities.

—Medicare has set off a hospital crises and the demand for nurses is greater than at an time in history.

—Young women are shunning the nursing field for more lucrative jobs elsewhere.

Of the 200 registered nurses on the staff at Long Beach Memorial Hospital about 15 are members of the CNA. In the entire Southern region, about 6,500 nurses are members of the organization.

"But the membership is increasing steadily, particularly since the San Francisco crisis," said Ralph Eliaser, CNA public relations man.

"I'm ready to fight," a Bellflower nurse exclaimed. "When society has reached the level that it is willing to pay a topless bar maid $250 a week, its time it recognized the woman dedicated to a greater ideal."

Risk of Bay Area Nurses' Walkout Grows

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —The possibility of a walkout by 2,000 hospital nurses grew Saturday when a 10-hour bargaining session ended in failure.

The nurses have submitted resignations which will take effect Wednesday morning unless agreement on higher wages is reached in the meantime.

State Conciliator Tom Nicolopulous called another meeting between representatives of 33 San Francisco Bay area hospitals and the California Nurses Association for Monday.

The talks which broke up early Saturday brought "absolutely no progress," according to CNA research director Tom Hartley. "As far as we're concerned, they (the hospitals) don't even have a proposition on the table."

If all the nurses who have submitted resignations honor them, the hospitals will lose more than half their nursing staffs. It would he the first major walkout in the nation by hospital nurses, according to the U.S. Public Health Service.

The hospitals are admitting only emergency patients, and the CNA has agreed to have some nurses available for emergency cases on a volunteer basis during the walkout.

The nurses are demanding a monthly salary range of $600 to $720 while a three-member fact-finding panel studies the issue. The hospitals have been unwilling to increase salaries an average of $60 a month.

"This squabble is not about the ultimate salary," said Hartley. "Rather, the salary being discussed now is that amount necessary to keep the nurses on the job."

Farm Help Finds Brink's Checks

WESTBORO, Mass. (UPI) —Two farm laborers found three money cases Saturday containing checks taken in last week's $131,000 Brink's armored car robbery in Bedford.

Wendell Hancock and Philip Bailey came across the small suitcases near a stone wall separating the farm of Edward Uhlman from Route 30.

FBI agents summoned to the scene told Uhlman the checks had been taken in the July 22 Brink's holdup.

Four bandits carrying submachine guns ambushed three Brink's guards outside the Mitre Corp. in Bedford and escaped with $131,000 in cash and an estimated $17,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Middlesex County Dist. Atty. John Droney said Friday police know the identity of the smooth-working holdup men but can't arrest them because of recent Supreme Court decisions.

FBI agents dusted the suitcases for fingerprints in an effort to provide Droney with the evidence needed to crack the case.

The commando-like holdup took an estimated 15 seconds, and the guards never had a chance to use their weapons.

* * * *

A BRINK'S spokesman said the guards "would have been crazy if they had tried anything. They were looking down the muzzle of a machine gun."

The stolen getaway car was found later the same day abandoned in Woburn.

Five days after the Brink's robbery, three bandits shot and wounded two armored car guards outside the Jamaica Plain Veteran's Hospital in Boston and made off with $68,000 in cash and checks.

No arrests have been made in either robbery.

Federal Banks Hike S&L Rate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Seven of the 12 Federal Home Loan banks have announced they are increasing their interest rates on money borrowed by savings and loan associations.

The five other banks are expected to follow suit in hiking the interest rates from 5.5 to 5.75%. The boost reflects higher interest rates in the money market. The banks that have announced interest hikes and the dates the boosts are effective are: Boston, Sept. 1; Cincinnati, Aug. 1; Greensboro, N.C., Sept. 1; New York, Sept. 1; Pittsburgh, Sept. 1; Spokane, Wash., Sept. 1, and Topeka, Kan., July 18.

BRIDAL COUPLE SURROUNDED
Police clear a path through crowd for Mr. and Mrs. Lewis P. Rutherford after their wedding in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Newport, R.I., the same church in which the late President John F. Kennedy married Jacqueline Bouvier Sept. 12, 1953. Mrs. Rutherford (Janet Auchincloss) is half sister of the former first lady.

pet over which the bride walked down the main aisle.

Some of the spectators waited five hours to get good vantage points and police found it difficult to control the eager crowd. Many of the guests had to fight their way into the church.

As Mrs. Kennedy arrived, a crowd of about 500 surged forward shouting, "There she is, there she is," "She's beautiful," "see her." Dozens reached out to touch her and tried to grab at her yellow coat.

Smiling, she made her way through a narrow path to the door of the church accompanied by secret service men.

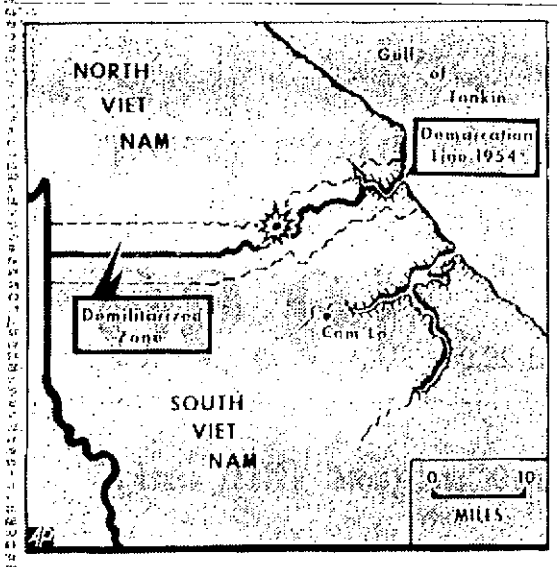

The crowd screamed again when Caroline Kennedy, 9, one of four flower girls in the 31-member bridal party, arrived. John Jr., 5, frowned when he heard the crowd calling his name and put up his fist. He was rushed inside.

The bride arrived 10 minutes late, delayed in traffic, and entered the church with a furrowed brow, seemingly on the verge of tears. The nuptial mass lasted 40 minutes. Most of the spectators waited for the party to come out.

The bride and groom left first without difficulty, but then hundreds of persons filled the streets making it impossible for Mrs. Kennedy's limousine to get to the church. There was a delay of about five minutes while police pushed people back.

Limousines were lined up for a mile on the narrow one-way street in front of the church. Similar traffic jams occurred on the road by Hammersmith Farm, the 75-acre summer home of the Auchincloss family and site of the wedding reception. The bride wore a short-sleeved dress—a sheer organza embroidered with silk petals—designed by Fontana of Rome. It was ankle-length in front, forming a ten foot train in back. Bridesmaids wore white princess-line long cotton dresses.

Caroline and the other flower girls wore long white silk organza dresses and wreaths of blue and white flowers. John Jr. and the other six page boys wore blue linen shorts and white silk shirts.

NEUTRALITY VIOLATORS HIT

ing American strike, loosed at dawn, stirred moderate to heavy antiaircraft fire from clandestinely emplaced enemy guns.

In other aspects of the war:

—Briefing officers announced that U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese troops now have killed the equivalent of two battalions of North Viet Nam's 324B Infantry Division in Operation Hastings. This is a 15-day-old campaign just south of the demilitarized zone. The list of counted enemy dead rose to 830. Though some Marine units have been mauled, over-all Allied casualties were called light.

—Soldiers of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division probed a longtime Viet Cong Stamping ground in Binh Duong Province, 50 miles north of Saigon, with no immediate contact. They are involved in a large, new sweep-and-destroy operation code-named Springfield.

—A recent visitor to Hanoi said the Russians are providing North Viet Nam advanced-model MIG21 aircraft to combat American raiders. He would not guess at the number. The war's dogfights so far have resulted in the destruction of 17 of the Communists' fighters, including three MIG21s, against a loss of five U.S. planes.

Military Buildup Past Goal

as of June 30 this year. This was shown in official figures released this week.

Although the total U.S. military force is now beyond the stated goal, two services — the Army and the Marine Corps—are below their objectives. The Navy and Air Force have more men on board than provided for in the projections furnished to Congress last August and January.

As of June 30, the Army stood at 1,199,764 men—some 34,000 short of the immediate goal. The Marine Corps totaled 261,659 as against an objective of 278,184.

* * * *

THE NAVY was pegged at 744,626, up about 17,000 from stated goals. The Air Force totaled 887,307 — higher by about 34,000.

Draft calls for August and September are at as high a level, relatively, as they have been throughout the buildup year — 36,600 for August and 31,200 for September. All will serve in the Army.

Pilots' Walkout Blocked

mendations made by a special panel appointed by the President in an attempt to avert the strike Morse was the panel's chairman.

There had been reports that the settlement was double the Administration's guideline of 3.2% for wage increases, but Morse said that "any allegation that the wage settlement goes beyond 4.4% is simply contrary to fact.

The Oregon Democrat said the union originally requested a contract that would have cost the companies between $115 and $117 million over a 36-month period.

Morse said his panel recommended a settlement that would have cost about $66 million.

"As I judge it," he said, "the settlement reached by the parties was for about $72 or $73 million dollars, with no cost of living escalator."

The new disput involving Trans World arose when the Air line Pilots Association (ALPA) charged in Chicago and New York that TWA had violated two sections of its contract.

An ALPA spokesman said that when the machinists' strike began, TWA failed to give pilots two weeks' furlough notice or two weeks' pay in lieu of such notice, as called for in their contract.

In issuing the temporary injunction in New York Palmieri said he would hold a full hearing on the dispute Tuesday.

2 Slain, 2 Injured in Courtroom Gunfight

PLENTYWOOD, Mont. (AP) A burly oil worker, fined on an assault charge, fatally shot the mayor of Plentywood and wounded the judge and a policeman Saturday before the wounded officer killed him with a bullet between the eyes.

The gunfight took place in the city courtroom just after Duane Falk, 33, of Plentywood, the oil worker, was convicted of assault and fined $50. Sheriff Lyle Medders said Falk stood up and started shooting.

Mayor Ludvig Tande, 46, shot in the arm and side, staggered through a door and died on the floor of the fire department garage.

Falk wounded Jutice of the Peace William Denixas, about 80, who had hobbled into the courtroom on crutches, and city policeman Ole Fiske, 59.

Undersheriff Ben Holt said Fiske, shot in the side, then struggled with Falk until Falk accidentally shot himself in the side. In an ensuing exchange, Fiske shot Falk in the head, Holt said.

Fiske was in serious condition in a hospital and Denikas, who normally is confined to a wheel chair, was in satisfactory condition.

Falk had just been convicted of assaulting Robert Engstrom of Reserve, Mont., in a Plentywood bar in June. Ed Rucker of Plentywood, the defense attorney who represented Falk, said the earlier fight was over $230 Falk contended Engstrom owed him for damage done to his car in an accident last year.

"I got the hell out of there in a hurry," Rucker told newsmen. "I hid in the fire garage next door and counted six shots. Then I started to go home for my gun and I saw Falk fighting with Ole Fiske," the policeman. Rucker said he could not tell who fired the shot that killed Falk.

Residents of this town of 2,000 in extreme northeastern Montana streamed to city hall, where Falk's body lay on the courtroom floor and Tande's on the floor of the firehouse.

"The whole town is stunned," said J. S. Polk, editor of the weekly Plentywood Herald. "The mayor was our leading citizen. People are just standing around stunned."

Bottle, Rock Strike Aide to Rev. King

CHICAGO (UPI) — A top aide to the Rev. Martin Luther King was struck by a bottle hurled Saturday from a crowd of whites jeering at Negro and white demonstrators protesting alleged housing discrimination on Chicago's southwest side.

The Rev. Jesse D. Jackson, a King aide and a leader of the protest march, said he also was struck by a rock. Jackson suffered a cut on the arm but was bandaged at the scene and continued the eight-mile "silent vigil" march to and from a Gage Park real estate office.

Two young white men were arrested.

* * * *

THE NEARLY 500 marchers had reached the real estate office, east of Kedzie Avenue on 63rd Street, prayed and begun the return march when the white crowd gathered at the west side of the busy intersection.

The whites shouted, "Go back where you belong, you scum," and, "What do you want to take peoples homes away for?"

Several whites carried crudely lettered signs reading "White Power." Some youths in the crowd chanted, "White Power, White Power."

Negro demonstrators carried signs reading "Negroes Are People, People Need Homes," "Down with Apartheid," and "We Will Now Be Heard."

Some of the marchers were Catholic priests and at least one was a nun. A white man shouted, "How much it cost you for the uniform, Father?"

* * * *

SOME OF the shouts were delivered in thick foreign accents. The area is heavily populated with Lithuanian immigrants. One woman jeered, "You should be ashamed for the mixing, you scum." Another yelled, "I tell you, it's worse than Communist Russia."

The missile which struck Jackson was one of several thrown from the crowd.

Cordons of police quickly shepherded the marchers into adjoining Marquette Park, where they paused to rest and sing civil-rights songs. Several hundred white youths gathered a short distance away and shouted more insults at the demonstrators.

1 Vote Time for UAL Machinists

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Striking machinists at United Airlines Saturday were advised voting plans on ratification of a new contract have been radically changed.

Local strike chairman Tom Foster said district officials notified him the four times originally scheduled today for voing on the pact are not workable.

Foster said members of local Lodge 1932 will now be allowed only one meeting — at 11 a.m. — at which to discuss the contract and cast ballots. The 8 a.m. and 5 and 8 p.m. meetings have been cancelled, he said. Voting will still be at the UAW Hall at 5250 W. Imperial Highway.

Foster said district officials told him the afternoon meetings would not allow enough time to get results to Washington in line with votes being taken elsewhere in the country.

'Soapy' Awaits Comeback Test

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON (AP)—G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, who resigned as assistant secretary of state to run for the Senate, tests Tuesday whether he still has the vote-drawing power in Michigan that kept him in the governor's chair throughout the 1950s.

Williams is rated by political observers as a strong favorite over Detroit Mayor Jerome Cavanaugh for the Democratic Senate nomination.

He would like to win big in the Tuesday primary and carry the momentum over into the fall election contest with Republican Sen. Robert P. Griffin. Griffin has no primary opposition.

* * * *

KANSAS, IDAHO and Missouri also have primaries Tuesday.

In Kansas, Rep. Robert Ellsworth is trying to upset Sen. James B. Pearson in the Republican primary.

In Idaho, Gov. Robert E. Smylie, the nation's senior governor in length of service, is asking Republican renomination for an unprecedented fourth four-year term. Don Samuelson, a young legislator, is running against him.

Idaho is locked in controversy, cutting across party lines, over a 3% state sales tax. The tax is already in effect and the governor supports it. A referendum on the tax will be held in November.

Missouri does not elect a senator or governor this year, but three of its 10 House members have challenges in the primary. They are Republican Durward G. Hall and Democrats Richard Ichord and Paul C. Jones.

* * * *

A FIFTH primary of the week is Thursday in Tennessee. Gov. Frank Clement is making another run at Sen. Ross Bass for the Democratic nomination for the Senate. He lost to Bass two years ago for the two years in the unexpired term of the late Sen. Estes Kefauver.

Former Gov. Buford Ellington and John J. Hooker Jr. are contending for the Democratic nomination for governor in what is generally regarded as a clash between the Kennedy and Johnson factions of the party.

Ellington resigned as President Johnson's director of the Office of Emergency Planning to run for governor. Hooker, a Nashville attorney, was an assistant to Robert F. Kennedy when the present New York senator was attorney general.

* * * *

TENNESSEE Republicans have a contest between Kenneth Roberts and Howard Baker Jr. for their Senate nomination. Their nominee for governor is Charles Moffett, former director of the University of Tennessee Evening School.

In Michigan, Republic Gov. George Romney is unopposed for nomination to a third term. His fall opponent will be Zolton Ferency, state Democratic chairman who has no opposition for his party's gubernatorial nomination.

In addition to Pearson and Ellsworth, there are two other candidates for the Republican Senate nomination in Kansas. They are William D. Tarrant, former mayor of Wichita, and Mrs. Ava V. Anderson, wife of a Concordia dentist.

Pearson came to the Senate in January 1962 by appointment and won election the following fall to the remainder of the unexpired term of the late Sen. Andrew F. Schoeppel.

Ellsworth is a three-term House member.

* * * *

SEEKING the Democratic Senate nomination are J. Floyd Breeding, a former Congress member; Harold S. Herd, state senator; J. Leigh Warner, an insurance executive, and K. L. Smith, who was the Democratic nominee in 1962 against Republican Sen. Frank Carlson.

Republican Gov. William H. Avery has nominal primary opposition. So does Robert Docking, the prospective Democratic nominee. Docking, an Arkansas City banker, is a son of former Gov. George Docking.

Idaho has a three-way contest for the Democratic nomination for governor involving Cecil Andrus, William J. Dee and Charles Herndon.

THE STATE elects a senator this year but there are no primary contests over the nominations. Ralph Harding, a former House member, will try to unseat Republican Sen. Len B. Jordan in the November election.

Neither of the state's two House members — Democrat Compton I. White Jr. and Republican George V. Hansen —has primary opposition.

A candidate for Hansen's seat, via the Democratic primary, is Army Capt. George Willmore, fresh from flying helicopter missions in Viet Nam. He is opposed in the primary by A. M. Bill Brunt, a former state Democratic chairman.

* * * *

HERE IS THE August political lineup (primaries except where designated as conventions):

Aug. 2—Idaho: senator, 2 representatives, governor.
—Kansas: senator, 5 representatives, governor.
—Michigan: senator, 19 representatives, governor.
—Missouri: 10 representatives.
Aug. 4—Tennessee: senator, 9 representatives, governor
Aug. 9—Arkansas: runoff.
Aug. 13—Louisiana: senator, 8 representatives.
Aug. 16—Montana: senator, 2 representatives.
—Wyoming: senator, 1 representative, governor.
—Virginia: runoff.
Aug. 20—Delaware: local candidates.
Aug. 23—Alaska: senator, 1 representative, governor.
Aug. 27—Delaware: Democratic convention, senator, 1 representative.
Aug. 29—Delaware: Republican convention, senator, 1 representative.

A MERE 78 Quits Golf for a Job; It's in Africa

MONTREAL (AP)—At 78, Donald M. Lowe is giving up golf—to take up a two-year assignment as an engineer in Uganda.

Lowe has joined the volunteers of the Canadian University Service Overseas and is putting in an 11-hour day at Loyola College learning the Luganda language before taking off for Africa.

"I would not come out of retirement to take an assignment in Canada because there are younger qualified men who can do the job," he says. "This assignment overseas is another matter. I feel I can work with the people of Uganda in helping set up a modern road transportation system which they need."

A bachelor born in Scotland, Lowe served in both World Wars. After handling several major engineering projects in Canada, he retired in 1962 to a 36-hole day.

Travel Films Available at Public Library

Where to vacation and how to behave when you get there are covered in some of the 22 16-mm. films available throughout August at the Long Beach Public Library in Lincoln Park.

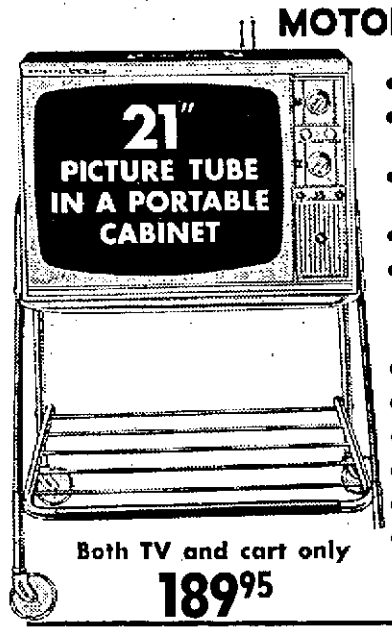

Films include: "Kootenay Lake Holiday," an exploration of scenic British Columbia, "Land of the Blue Tartan," which was made in Nova Scotia and "Yellowstone National Park." "Forest Murmurs" points out the ugliness caused by littering natural areas with trash and debris.

Additions to the library's permanent film collection include "The Clown Princes," a survey of styles and personalities of early day comedians such as Charlie Chase, Harold Lloyd and Laurel and Hardy, and "Girls in Danger," Mae Marsh, Leatrice Joy and others facing death (and worse) in old silent films.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

Stilwell Search Ends in Pacific

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The seven-day search in the Pacific for Brig. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell ended at nightfall Saturday.

The Coast Guard, which had directed the intensive operation, asked that ships and planes traveling in the area 400-700 miles southwest of here keep a lookout for traces of the missing plane.

The search had been scheduled to end at dusk Friday but four hours before the deadline a Coast Guard aircraft spotted a bright orange piece of wood in the area where the plane was last reported.

Two cutters and an airplane searched the seas again Saturday. The plane returned to its base at mid-afternoon and the cutter Taney headed for port about the same time.

The cutter Dexter remained on the scene until sunset, then made for home.

Opposes Wallace

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—Congressman James D. Martin accepted the Republican nomination for governor Saturday night with a promise to outdo Gov. George Wallace in making Alabama more prosperous.

He told delegates to the GOP state convention that election of Wallace's wife, Lurleen, would establish a "dynasty that we can ill afford, that, indeed, could leave our state bankrupted." Mrs. Wallace is the Democratic nominee to succeed her husband when his term expires next January. She won her nomination in a statewide primary last May 3.

Martin, the Republicans' top vote-getter, became the GOP nominee after convention delegates shouted down a last-minute attempt to pull him out of that race and run him instead for the U.S. Senate. Martin had said previously he would oppose any such effort if it developed on the convention floor.

Crash Kills Five

WINSLOW, Ariz. (AP)—Five persons were killed and two injured critically Saturday in a two-car collision on U.S. 66 four miles west of Winslow.

Dead are Charles West, 53; Janice West, 47, and Wendy Joe West, all of Redwood City, Calif.; and Lawrence Avery, 26, and Mary Ann Avery, both of Hollywood. In critical condition in a Winslow hospital are Eric West and Nina Joe Milsap, 15, both passengers in the West vehicle.

Ky Condemned

WASHINGTON (AP)—Forty-seven representatives joined Saturday in condemning South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for suggesting an invasion of North Viet Nam and eventual war with China.

The members, including three Republicans, said Ky's statement indicated he has goals far beyond President Johnson's limited ones. They called for "more forceful" efforts to seek a political peace.

Concern for Ironsi

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—Nigeria's government claimed Saturday to have crushed a revolt by dissident army troops but officials maintained silence on the fate of the president, Maj. Gen. John Aguiyi-Ironsi.

Widespread reports in Africa and abroad said Ironsi and one of his military chiefs fell into rebel hands at Ibadan, 150 miles north of Lagos.

The government broadcast repeated assurances that control had been restored but made no mention of Ironsi's fate.

Positive It's U-2

PANAMA C. Z. (AP)—The wreckage of a plane and human remains found by farmers in Llanquera, Bolivia, have been positively identified as those of a U.S. Air Force U2 and its pilot, Capt. Robert D. Hickman, 32, of Alexandria, La., a U.S. spokesman here announced Saturday.

Hickman's plane disappeared Thursday. Farmers found the wreckage Friday.

The announcement said identification of the pilot's remains and the wreckage was made by an investigating team headed by Lt. Col. Edward J. Fox, air attache of the U.S. Embassy in La Paz, Bolivia.

South Drenched

By United Press International

Heavy rain fell across the South Saturday, ending a drought in Virginia. Temperatures plunged 40 degrees in 12 hours in the Pacific Northwest.

Wrong-Way Crash Kills 5, Injures 2

INDO (UPI) — A car traveling in the wrong lane of U.S. 60-70 collided head-on with an oncoming automobile Saturday, killing five persons and critically injuring two young girls.

The dead included four of the six members of the Robert Koch family of Santa Monica, who were riding in one car.

Koch, 43, his wife Ynez, 41, son Stephen, 16, and daughter Victoria, 6, were killed. Two other daughters, Heidi, 12, who underwent surgery,, and Lisa, 14, were in critical condition at Indio Community Hospital.

The fifth victim was James Grouch, 47, of San Bernardino, driver and sole occupant of the wrong-way car.

Officers said the collision occurred on a stretch of divided freeway 11 miles east of here.

Probe Ends on Harbor Car Dive

Investigation into the mysterious plunge of a car salesman's 1966 demonstrator into Long Beach harbor ended Saturday when the owner refused to file a complaint.

The car dropped into the turning basin at the end of Edison Avenue Friday night. Navy divers located the auto in 50 feet of water, and a tow truck pulled it to the surface but, no bodies were found.

Detective Frank Estes said the car, a total wreck, is owned by Reiman-Turpin Pontiac, 412 W. Anaheim St., Wilmington.

* * * * *

THE CAR was checked out to salesman Joseph Silva, 57, of 319 W. Fifth St., Long Beach, who told Detective Estes he last saw the car shortly after 9 p.m. Friday when he parked it outside a bar in the central district of Long Beach.

Silva said he believes two young men he met in the bar took the auto, but he is not sure, Detective Estes, said.

When the wreckage was pulled to the surface police found the key turned to the "on" position in the ignition, the gear shift in neutral, the headlights switched on, and the right front window down.

It wasn't known if anyone was in the car when it plunged into the harbor.

STATE LAW BEING REDRAFTED TO MODERN STANDARDS

Penal Code Revision Sure to Stir Disputes

The proposed new California Penal Code will reflect what its writers feel are, in many cases, completely new standards of conduct, different by far from the standards which existed when the present code was enacted in 1872.

The Independent, Press-Telegram believes the revision to be of such importance to every citizen that it has assigned award-winning court reporter Bob Schmidt to the task of analyzing some of the more controversial areas in the present and proposed codes.

It is anticipated that some of the recommendations will be subjected to intense public criticism—some of it logical and reasoned, some of it emotional. The Independent, Press-Telegram in an effort to contribute to the logical, reasoned review of the code, will publish in months to come articles that will analyze some of the more important — and therefore controversial—proposals.

By BOB SCHMIDT
Staff Writer

Californians soon will have a new set of rules governing their conduct.

And the new rules may create as much furor as some recent court decisions which, in part, prompted the move to revise the state Penal Code.

Some crimes now labeled as felonies—the more severe violations for which offenders can be sent to state prison—may be graded down to misdemeanors. And some acts now called criminal may not, when the new code goes into effect, be against the law at all.

Among the controversial questions certain to be debated publicly and heatedly are:

Should any criminals be punished by death?

Should homosexual activity always be against the law?

Should abortion laws be broadened?

Should a young man be subject to prosecution for the felony offense of statutory rape when the girl involved is under 18, but seems older?

Should there be any restrictions whatever on the writings citizens may read or the films or pictures they may see?

Does a society which puts millions of dollars each year into the pockets of bookmakers and the sellers of lottery tickets really want tight gambling laws?

Should some offenses, such as minor traffic violations or common drunkenness be considered "crimes" or merely "infractions"?

How much latitude should communities have in enacting laws meeting local problems? (This is the "preemption" problem, possibly the most controversial of all topics to be considered before the new Penal Code is enacted.)

And—less serious perhaps, but an example of the need for bringing the Penal Code up to date—should it be a felony offense calling for a 1-to-10 year prison sentence to steal something from a building on fire in San Francisco? And only in San Francisco, according to Section 500 of the current Penal Code?

The monumental task was begun in 1963, when the Joint Legislative Committee for the Revision of the Penal Code was authorized. The committee hopes to have its work completed by 1970, according to Long Beach-Signal Hill Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, a member.

"This isn't simply an alteration or compaction of the existing code," Deukmejian says. "We are writing an entirely new Penal Code, starting from scratch."

The current code was enacted 94 years ago, Deukmejian points out, and although it has been amended and altered many times, and modifications have been made through judicial interpretation of the code's provisions, the lengthy, unwieldy document still contains an abundance of outdated provisions; contradicting, confusing, and overlapping statutes, and double delegations of authority.

The 10-member committee—five senators and five assemblymen under the chairmanship of Sen. Donald L. Grunsky of Watsonville—has been directed to:

1. Appraise and, if necessary or desirable, restate and redefine provisions of law relating to crimes.

2. Eliminate existing provisions of criminal law which are no longer useful or necessary.

3. Rearrange and regroup the provisions in an orderly and logical grouping of subject matter.

4. Appraise, simplify, and improve present procedures.

5. Draft a code of criminal procedure to embody existing and proposed procedures governing the disposition of criminal and quasi-criminal actions.

To do the research and actual drafting of the new Penal Code, a 10-member advisory board was created under the chairmanship of Prof. Arthur H. Sherry of the University of California School of Law at Berkeley.

A tentative plan, calling for 16 "divisions," has been drawn, Prof. Sherry explained, with areas now located in other codes, such as the Health and Safety Code and the Vehicle Code, scheduled to be incorporated.

The division expected to create the most controversy is the one numbered 11 and titled "Crimes Against Sexual Morality, Public Decency, and the Family."

Division 11 is subdivided into six chapters:

1. Rape, Abduction, Seduction, and Related Offenses.

2. Sexual Crimes Involving Children.

3. Bigamy, Incest, Sex Perversion.

4. Obscenity.

5. Prostitution.

6. Abandonment and Neglect of Dependents.

The subjects of sex and morality are themselves "controversial," Prof. Sherry says, "so it figures that anything we do in those areas is going to be controversial."

The fat may hit the fire in September, when the proposed sections dealing with sexual activity are scheduled to be submitted to the committee for its consideration.

"We hope to be able to provide not only the chief recommendations themselves, but concrete and intelligent alternatives," Prof. Sherry explains, "so that if the first version is not sufficiently satisfactory the committee has sensible compromises it can consider."

Helping Sherry with the actual research and drafting are four "reporters" who have been studying the various sections of the current penal code, the history of laws relating to criminal behavior, the American Law Institute's model penal code, and the penal codes of six other states which already have completed modernization of their criminal laws.

The proposed code will be sifted through several advisory groups representing all segments of society before it is sent finally to the legislature for approval. It will not only specify those acts which are criminal, but also will outline the procedure for prosecuting suspects, for punishing those who are convicted, and the extent and manner in which those who are placed on probation or parole are supervised.

"Our law," said then attorney general Stanley Mosk in 1963, "must be understandable and . . . 'findable.' I think I can safely say that our (basic) criminal law is not 'findable'."

The writers of the new California Penal Code hope that its provisions are both understood and findable, and that it will help Californians live in peace with each other.

Slumdwelling Eskimos United in Land Claims

By HOMER BIGART
New York Times Service

BETHEL, Alaska—The worst slums in the United States are not in the racially turbulent ghettoes of New York, Cleveland, Chicago or Los Angeles. By all available indices of poverty, they are sparsely strewn, like garbage on an ice floe, along the desolate sea frontier of the United States with the Soviet Union.

Except for Nome, Kotzebue and Barrow, the 50 or more Eskimo settlements on the Bering and Arctic coasts of Alaska are rarely seen by tourists. The squalor of the region has had little or no impact on the national conscience.

Eskimos, if thought of at all, were considered to be so friendly, so indomitably cheerful and so amenable that nobody in Juneau or Washington, except a few officials in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, ever worried much about them.

* * * *

SUDDENLY, however, state and national governments are becoming sharply aware of political agitation among the 50,000 Alaskan "natives." The term natives embraces 27,000 Eskimos, 17,000 Indians in the interior and southeastern Alaska and 6,000 Aleuts, a people of mixed Eskimo and Russian blood living on the Aleutian Islands and the Kenai and Alaskan peninsulas.

The last twelve weeks have seen the formation by Eskimos of political action groups. These groups will press Eskimo claims to vast sections of Alaska. Some leaders have even suggested the creation of a native party. But for the moment they will work within the existing parties. Most Eskimos are Democrats.

Because natives comprise more than 20% of the state population, their votes are important.

Eskimo leaders feel they can muster enough strength to defeat Alaska's lone congressman, Rep. Ralph J. Rivers, in his bid for renomination in the Democratic primaries in August. They are after Rivers because they consider him unsympathetic to their land claims—claims that have been labeled "fantastic" by Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska.

Various greedy motives have been ascribed to the Eskimo communities for demanding all of northwest Alaska and all the Arctic slope, north of the Brooks Range, including areas believed fabulously rich in oil and copper.

Native leaders retort they are simply demanding their rights under the U.S.-Russian Treaty of Cessation, under which Alaska was acquired in 1867. The treaty says, "Natives shall not be disturbed in the possession of the land they occupy."

And the new breed of Eskimo leadership, educated to middle-class values and wanting economic security, has evolved a rather subtle line of argument for native title to the land. These young leaders promise not to stand in the way of "orderly" industrial development and mineral exploitation. They say they only want to prevent the rape of the land and the pollution of the streams.

At a hearing July 8 before President Johnson's public land law review commission in Fairbanks, Hugh Nicholls, one of the most articulate of the new Eskimo leaders, noted that "the past performance of the white man speaks only too plainly of his inability or indifference in preventing stream pollution and depletion of the God-given natural sources of food."

* * * *

NICHOLLS IS a light-skinned Eskimo, a carpenter, a veteran of World War II, and executive director of the recently formed Arctic Slope Native Association of Barrow. Nicholls said the new political action group was backed by "90% of the native people."

Nicholls said the average native family income in booming Barrow was between $4,000 and $5,000. But Barrow was by far the richest Eskimo community, he said, while at Anaktuvik Pass, in the Brooks Range, the cash income per family might be as low as $500 a year.

Briton Evicts Yank Tenant in Protest to War

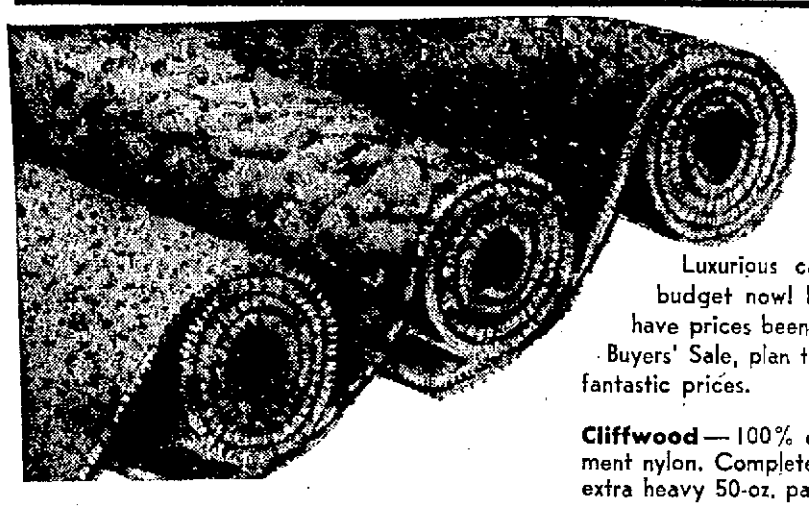

FINCHINGFIELD, England (UPI)—A British landlord has evicted his tenant, U.S. Air Force officer, as a protest against the Viet Nam War.

Norman Lewis, who also is an author, said he planned to give the home to the Save the Children Fund, a British organization that cares for injured and homeless Vietnamese children.

Lewis said he personally liked Lt. Caesar Querra, the tenant, but felt he "must make whatever personal protest I can against the war policy of the present administration in Viet Nam, which I consider to be barbarous, futile, and a growing danger to world peace."

$5,000 PRIZES OFFERED

Fishing Derby Offers Bonanza

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Outdoor Editor

The Independent, Press-Telegram 1960 Metropolitan Long Beach Sportfishing Derby will get under way this month and the $5,000 in cash prizes, plus others, is expected to lure probably more anglers to Long Beach than we have seen for years.

The derby starts Aug. 20 and continues through Sept. 18, and there will be a fishoff of 15 finalists on Oct. 1. Incidentally, Oct. 1 is the date for the opening of the California International Sea Festival at Long Beach, which no doubt will be shortened to the "Long Beach Sea Festival."

* * * *

SINCE THE MID-MAY announcement of the I, P-T sportfishing derby, there has been a tremendous interest by anglers who fish from piers, breakwaters, barges and sportfishing boats, all of which will be eligible for the derby prizes.

The piers and barges will have five species of fish, which will not be competitive with the same species on the live-bait or private boats. In other words, if you catch a barracuda, kelp or sand bass, bonito, a croaker or a halibut on a pier or barge, it will not have to compete with the same species caught on private, rental or sportfishing boats.

Species eligible for sportfishing and private boats—and private boats would include rentals—will be albacore, bri tuna, barracuda, kelp or sand bass, bonito, halibut, white sea bass, yellowtail, black sea bass, broadbill or marlin. The last three are in a special class but may be entered by any angler catching one of the three.

* * * *

SHEEPSHEAD, rockfish, sharks and all other non-game fish are not eligible.

There will be official weighing stations at Huntington Beach Pier, Seal Beach Pier, Long Beach Marina, Belmont Pier, Pacific Sportfishing, Pierpoint Landing, Norm's Landing, San Pedro, and Skippers' 22nd Street Landing, San Pedro.

A fisherman from any city may compete, but he must fish off those piers and the barges served by those piers or the sportfishing boats from the above-mentioned piers and landings. The contest does not go down the coast farther than Huntington Beach, nor up the coast farther than San Pedro.

That does not necessarily mean that a private boat can't fish far away from Long Beach. However, it is assumed that private boats capable of running great distances will observe the same rules that apply to U.S. fishing tournaments. No fish from far down the Baja California coast will be allowed.

* * * *

THE PERSONS NAMED to the derby committee are the following:

June Ascolesi, Belmont Pier; Fred Austin, barge Islander, served by Belmont Pier; Earl and Mabelle Cameron, Huntington Beach Pier and barge; Robert Caneen, inspector of patrol, Department of Fish and Game, Terminal Island; Donnell Culpepper, outdoor editor, I, P-T; Dottie Cummins, Skippers' 22nd Street Landing, San Pedro; Dave Dobbie, Seal Beach Pier and its barge, the Alaska; Larry Hagen, Norm's Landing, San Pedro; Dr. Thomas Kiddie, president, Southern California Tuna Club; J. E. (Mac) McClintock, Pierpoint Landing, Long Beach; Eddie McEwen, Pacific Sportfishing; Bernard J. Ridder Jr., business manager, I, P-T, and Norwin S. Yoffie, special promotions, I, P-T.

* * * *

FIRST PRIZES in the 15 categories will be $250 and second prizes will be $50. The anglers catching the heaviest fish, naturally, will be the winners.

In addition to the cash prizes, Garcia-Conolon is putting up 15 rods and reels for third prizes.

Entry blanks will be available at all weighing stations, only those previously mentioned. No stations below Huntington Beach will be permitted. If a private boat chooses to fish south of the border and make a fast run for Huntington Beach, the entry will be permitted, but only if vouched for under the rules which the clubs use—and that means the 32nd parallel.

* * * *

Posters giving full rules and regulations will be at all weighing stations and will be printed in this writer's column prior to the start of the tournament.

Any person 16 years of age or older must, as California law requires, possess a valid state fishing license, unless he is fishing only from a pier ONLY, where no license is needed.

Any catch made anywhere in violation of the California Fash and Game Code will be disqualified.

40,628 Non-Farm Jobs Available

SACRAMENTO (AP)—The State Employment Service is looking for workers—40,628 in non-agricultural jobs alone.

"That's more than three times as many unfilled job openings as the 12,468 at the end of 1958," Gov. Brown job openings.

Brown said that California unemployment has been falling and the labor market is getting tighter. He said the federal manpower development training program is helping to fill many of the commented.

The employment service reports that it made 64,659 non-farm job placements last month.

The current vacancies range from semi-skilled to highly skilled occupations.

The highest figures for workers needed include 760 machinists, 603 draftsmen, 777 mechanical engineers, 867 general mechanics and repairmen and 604 social and welfare workers.

HEARING SLATED

Beer Bar Curb Sought by City

A Long Beach City Council committee hopes to launch a statewide movement next week to reverse the increase in beer bar licenses.

Chairman Emmet Sullivan has announced that his legislative committee will hear testimony Aug. 8 on proposals to establish a quota system or some other legal device for limiting the licenses, now issued by the state without specific restrictions.

Sullivan said representatives of the beverage industry are being invited, along with any witnesses from the general public who ask to be heard. Appointments may be made through the city clerk's office.

The hearing developed in part from complaints of intrusion of beer bars into business districts immediately bordering on residential areas.

Because the City Council itself can't legislate on the subject, Sullivan said the aim is to draft specific proposals for consideration by the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Department and the Legislature.

Wilkins Tells Black Power Misgivings

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Last week, two Negro leaders announced plans to hold a national conference in September to define "black power." The following article, based on a recent interview with Roy Wilkins, executive director of the NAACP, indicates how a key figure in the civil rights movement will be approaching that important conference.

Roy Wilkins sat at the counter of the Biltmore Hotel Coffee Shop in Los Angeles munching on some crisp bacon and toast and digging into a double order of hash brown potatoes.

"No eggs," he had instructed the waitress, "It's my diet," he explained.

Wilkins, here for the 57th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, had gone to the Biltmore that day to escape the hurly burly of convention activity at the Statler Hilton, where the group was headquartered. And the conversation at breakfast had turned, inevitably, to "Black Power."

VIEWPOINT

* * * *

IT WAS CLEAR from everything that Wilkins had said at the convention that black power could no more be a part of his intellectual diet than eggs could be a part of his food diet.

Yet the unsettled question was whether Wilkins, the confirmed integrationist, could find any acceptable basis for working with the other civil rights groups who were crying for black power.

For the alternative, it seemed to observers, was a painful rupture that could only hobble the whole civil rights drive.

There were reports even then of a possible summit meeting on black power. And Wilkins, sensing that a conference of civil rights leaders would be called sooner or later, apparently thought it might be useful to set down informally some of his own conditions for such a meeting.

* * * *

ONE THING was certain: cooperation with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee and the Congress of Racial Equality, the leading black power groups, would depend, he said, on a redefinition of the slogan, perhaps its very abandonment.

Wilkins didn't try to conceal his irritation over the fact that black power had been implanted in the public mind as an aggressive separatist philosophy with overtones of black supremacy, as he put it.

He said he frankly couldn't see how any effort to redefine the term could possibly undo the damage that had already been done in fact.

Moreover, he was angry at SNCC for having "foisted" the slogan on the civil rights movement. The proper time for a conference, he indicated, would have been before, not after, the slogan's introduction.

* * * *

WOULD HE ATTEND a summit meet, though?

Maybe yes, and maybe no, Wilkins smiled coyly at a subsequent news conference. It would depend, he said, on how the invitation was worded.

Wilkins obviously wasn't closing the door. But neither, as his remarks in the interview indicated, was he going to play the game by SNCC's rules.

'THERE'S A HAZARD AFT, SIR'

Mrs. Joan Ririe of Torrance, whose sultry voice may replace the buzzers which warn of equipment malfunction or other hazards on U.S. submarines, is shown in the pre-recording room of Northrop's Nortronics Division. Her recorded warnings would say such things as "Fire! Fire!" and "Flooding! Flooding in the forward torpedo room!" She's done similar work for the Air Force.

SULTRY VOICE FOR SUBMARINE ALARMS

Navy May Enlist Sexy Sal

The sexy, sultry voice that the Navy may use to warn submariners of danger belongs to a girl who finds nothing unusual about her newest assignment.

She's Joan Ririe, an actress, speech expert, singer, dancer, and choreographer who has done this kind of work before.

In fact, the Air Force used her voice first as part of the warning system in B58 bombers. The Navy announced in Washington Friday that the idea will be checked out soon aboard an operational submarine as a possible substitute for buzzers, bells and flashing red lights as signals of equipment malfunction.

Mrs. Ririe's voice may sound sultry in the recordings, but in conversation it's sweet and lilting. The conversion is no problem, she says for a speech teacher and actress.

"Sultry was the way they wanted it to come through," she said in an interview. "It's a big first, for this sort of purpose."

Equipment utilizing her voice is produced by Nortronics Division of Northrop Corp. at Palos Verdes. It is designed so that if two malfunctions occur simultaneously the voice will report the most serious one first.

To get the right timbre, Nortronics summoned 200 young women, taped their voices, submitted the recordings to psychologists and human factors experts.

Mrs. Ririe, 34, won the Nortronics job. She lives in Torrance with her husband, Bill, a professional drummer known as Rye Ririe, and two children—a girl 3 and a boy 1½.

"It keeps me very busy," she said. "I've been in show business for years. When I'm not acting, singing, dancing, being a mother or working at Nortronics, I teach speech classes."

Mrs. Ririe—her professional name is Joan Elns—was under contract to MGM for seven years. She sings and dances with orchestras, among them Russ Morgan's, records for Decca and has many television parts. She has just finished the choreography for two shows.

But there is a special fascination about the sultry-voiced warning business, and she expects to get more of it.

"After all," she said, "the Air Force calls me Sexy Sally."

War Claims Her Brother, Fiance

READING, Mass. (UPI)—Tragedy in Viet Nam was brought home shatteringly to a 22-year-old girl here for the second time Saturday.

Appearing dazed and walking limply, Diane Croce attended a funeral service for her brother just a few weeks after attending a similar service for her fiance, also a victim of the Viet Nam fighting.

A Marine sergeant assisted Miss Croce from St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church after the funeral mass for Marine Lance Cpl. Robert J. Croce, 20. He died July 15 in "Operation Hastings," just four days after arriving in Viet Nam.

On July 6, Miss Croce flew with her mother to Chillicothe, Ohio, to attend the funneral of Navy Medical Corpsman George Cotrill, 20, killed June 16 in Viet Nam.

Diane and Cotrill had planned to be married July 17 but the wedding was postponed when he was transferred from Chelsea, Mass., Naval Hospital to Viet Nam.

Croce's flag-draped casket was carried into the church for the solemn high mass by six Marines.

Diane, a slender 100-pound girl with long black hair, maintained her composure during the service, attended by some 200 persons.

Her mother, Mrs. Bernard A. Croce, broken down and was assisted from the church by her husband.

Two other sisters and two brothers also were at the mass for Croce, who joined the Corps after graduating from reading High School in 1964.

A boyhood chum, who had talked Croce into enlisting in the Marines instead of the Air Force, is serving with the Leathernecks in Viet Nam.

The funeral procession moved slowly to Forest Glen Cemetery where Croce was buried in the military section.

Liberia Ship Runs Aground Explodes; 34 Flee Safely

SPENCER'S ISLAND, N.S. (AP) — The 4,200-ton Liberian freighter Janet Glory ran aground and sank Saturday in Nova Scotia's Minas Channel. All 34 persons aboard made it safely ashore, but a witness said the freighter exploded as she went under and capsized a small lobster boat reportedly carrying three men. Searchers found one body.

There was no immediate sign of the other two men believed aboard the fishing craft.

Cecil Grant, a store proprietor in the mainland community of Spencer's Island, said the freighter sank late Saturday afternoon after all 31 crew members, Greek Capt. Vassilakis, his wife and 11-year-old daughter were safely brought ashore.

The Janet Glory exploded as she went down, apparently when cold water struck her hot boilers, Grant said. The Lobster boat, reported close to the freighter as she foundered, later was found overturned, he said.

Grant said a Royal Canadian Air Force helicopter was in the area.

The Janet Glory, bound for Lake Charles, La., with 8,900 tons of barite ore loaded at Walton, N.S., ran aground in fog early Saturday on Rocky shoals off tiny Spencer's Island, about a mile from this community of the same name.

The Minas Channel is at the mouth of Minas Basin, an eastern arm of the Bay of Fundy.

Hoffa Snooping Reward Posted

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Teamsters' president James R. Hoffa has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to proof that federal agents and "others employed by them" used wiretaps, stole documents and checked his mail during his Tennessee trials.

The offer was made in advertisements submitted to the Chattanooga News-Free Press Saturday for publication this week.

Hoffa was tried in Nashville late in 1962 on conspiracy charges but the case ended in a mistrial and he subsequently was indicted on jury-tampering charges growing out of that trial. In 1964 a federal jury convicted him after a six-week trial transferred here from Nashville. He is appealing his eight-year sentence to the U. S. Supreme Court.

* * * *

THE TEAMSTERS' chief leveled charges of wiretapping at federal agents during the trial here and in later motions seeking a new trial.

Hoffa's signed statement for the advertisements said he believes agents and others "committed law violations" as follows:

"Wire tapping of the phones of Attorney Z. T. Osborn" of Nashville, an attorney for Hoffa, "and of the phones of the undersigned (Hoffa) and his attorneys at the Andrew Jackson Hotel in Nashville and the Patten Hotel in Chattanooga.

* * * *

"PLACING eavesdropping devices (listening bugs) in the offices and hotel rooms of the undersigned and his attorneys in Nashville and Chattanooga.

"Theft of documents from the offices of his then attorney, Z. T. Osborn" at Osborn's former Nashville address.

"Mail covers on the mail of his then attorney, Z. T. Osborn; the undersigned and his other attorneys at the Andrew Jackson Hotel in Nashville and the Patten Hotel in Chattanooga."

Timetable on Safety Irks Ford

DETROIT (AP)—Ford Motor Co. engineers regard the proposed new federal safety law as unrealistic, The Detroit News said in a copyrighted story in its Sunday editions.

The News, in a story by industry writer Robert W. Irvin, named Ford and said some 1968 luxury car models, including Ford's Thunderbird, could be kept out of production because of the timetable for putting the new laws into effect.

The News said officials of the other auto companies — Chrysler, General Motors and American Motors — do not voice the same concern though they also are critical.

"You're looking at a worried bunch of guys," Donald R. Frey, general manager of Ford Motor Co.'s Ford Division said in the published story.

* * * *

..FREY SAID "this is not just a Ford problem. This is an industry problam."

The timetable gives the car manufacturers only six months to make design charges for meeting the new standards while the minimum time required for such changes is two years, The News said.

Congress is ready to pass a bill applying to all 1968 model cars. The new standards are to be published by next Jan. 31 to take effect within 180 days to 12 months.

$1 Million Painting of Venus Arrives

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Arrival in the United States of the famous "Resting Venus" by Paris Bordone, a masterpiece valued at more than $1 million, has been announced by a Washington collector and art historian.

Dr. Stefan Krajocovic said the famous oil painting was hidden in Vienna during World War II and during the postwar Russian occupation. He said it was originally part of the collection of Prince Giovanelli in Venice and coveted by Italian dictator Benito Mussolini.

Dr. Krajocovic, who is chairman of the National Committee for the Liberation of Slovakia, said he would like to arrange a special showing for Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson. He said the First Lady had inspired in the nation a "new love of beauty, but beautificatioin is not just for roads and streets. It also is for inside the home, and art best fulfills this need."

* * * *

DR. KRAJOCOVIC said "this Venus stands with the great paintings by Titian and Giorgione of the Greek goddess of love."

"The 43 by 69 inch canvas shows a nude Venus hiding behind a ballustrade over which hang red draperies," said Krajocovic. "Behind the vision of her body is a typical Venetian landscape with a hill topped with the ruins of a castle.

"The Venus is a dark blonde. Her right hand rests on a light blue pillow; her left arm is lifted and holds a white veil, while touching her hair with the tips of her fingers. The bed is light red and the landscape is done in warm colors."

Dr. Krajocovic said the canvas is the only original "classical Venus" in the United States and compares with the Giorgione Venus in Dresden and that by Titian in Florence. He said the lifesize painting had been authenticated by Dr. Antonio Morassi, director of the Brera Gallery in Milan; Dr. Amadore Porcella in Rome, and Ammerich Schaffran, art historian in Vienna who was the art expert during the Nuremberg Nazi trials.

L.B. Boys Will Shoot the Rapids

High adventure on the rapids of one of the world's most exciting rivers is awaiting 25 Long Beach high school boys.

Shooting the Green River through the spectacular canyons of Dinosaur National Monument in Utah, surrounded by some of the most beautiful scenery in the country, the boys will be part of the Los Altos YMCA's 1966 Utah River Boat Run.

Sponsored by the YMCA, the trip is open to any high school boy in the city.

* * * *

THEY WILL leave Long Beach, under the supervision of Dave Savage, Los Altos program director, Aug. 21 and return Aug. 29. They will travel by truck, camping along the way, to Vernal, Utah, in the heart of Dinosaur National Monument, to begin the raft trip.

From here they will go upstream about 100 miles to where their neoprene U.S. Navy assault boats have been anchored. From here starts the actual four-day, four-night boat trip.

Shooting the rapids when they come to them, and floating lazily in between, the boys will ride down the river. Camping along the river bank at night will give them plenty of opportunity to explore the country. If they like to fish, and are any good at it, they may supplement the ample diet provided.

* * * *

PROFESSIONAL boatmen will navigate the rafts through the rapids and supervise handling of the rafts.

One of the most enticing elements of the whole trip will be the magnificent scenery of the national monument.

After the four-day raft trip is over the boys will return by bus, again camping along the way.

Further information on costs and arrangements may be made by contacting the Los Altos YMCA.

THANKS TO RANGER 7

Scientists Know Moon Like Own Backyards

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A quarter of a million miles away is an area of the moon that has become as familiar to a few score government scientists and technicians as the backyards of their homes.

Members of the U.S. Geological Survey's astrogeology branch know practically every pebble in a section covered by the last photograph made by the Ranger 7 spacecraft just before it crashed into the lunar surface two years ago.

Using highly sophisticated and painstaking photo interpretation techniques to analyze the Ranger's dying blink, the scientists have come up with a scale relief model and contour maps showing details as small as four inches in the 95 by 85 feet section.

With this pioneering feat of extra-terrestial mapping behind them, the scientists of the 200-person branch currently are studying photos and other data returned by the Surveyor spacecraft.

They're also preparing for what they expect will be a quantum jump in their knowledge of the moon through photos to be taken by a series of moon-girdling satellites.

* * * *

THE FIRST of these lunar orbiters is due to be launched from Cape Kennedy sometime between Aug. 9 and 14. Each is expected to take highly detailed photographs of about 6,500 square miles of the moon's surface.

Although the cameras will sweep wide areas around the lunar equator as their elliptical orbits bring them to within 28 miles of the surface, the moon mappers are interested mainly in photos of nine areas chosen as possible landing sites for the first American astronauts to step onto the moon.

The first lunar orbiter also will make two passes over the now-dead Surveyor soft lander. The nearly straight-down photos from the orbiter will help in interpreting some of the features recorded in the generally more oblique photos of Surveyor.

Photos of the key areas will be rushed to the survey scientists here and at the astrogeological facility at Flagstaff, Ariz., soon after they are received and processed by stations of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. This is expected to take up to two months.

KATHLEEN LARSON, of the U.S. Geological Survey's astrogeology branch, pastes small photos of the moon into a concave hemisphere for stereoptic viewing—one of the many sophisticated techniques used in mapping the moon.

Then the moon mapping corps will begin the careful, tedious job of analysing the pictures and using them to determine the contours of the potential landing sites and what type of material is there.

As with the Ranger photo, the Survey scientists will use a newly developed photometric technique to analyse the orbiter photos.

* * * *

PHOTOGRAPHS ARE scanned with an electronic instrument that determines the density of the film exposed by the spacecraft's cameras. "Light" and "dark" areas of the image are converted by mathematical formulas to elevation references.

The formulas were devised to a large extent by years of observations from earthbound instruments such as telescopes and spectrometers in addition to the information from the spacecraft.

The scope of the task in tackling the hundreds of lunar orbiters photos is indicated by the fact that it took 12,000 photometric measurments to compute the contours in the one Ranger section.

The astrogeologists are aiming to provide maps and geological information that will give the first U.S. moonwalkers a pretty good idea of what to expect when they emerge from the Apollo excursion module—an event planned by the end of this decade.

In return for their efforts in behalf of the lunarnaughts, the geologists hope to get important feedback from that historic flight and the ones following.

Survey experts have been giving NASA astronauts instruction in basic geology and have been working on instruments for making observations of the characteristics of the lunar surface and subsurface.

* * * *

THE FIRST moonwalkers will have neither the time nor the space needed to collect and return large amounts of lunar material, but the geologists hope they'll be able to bring back considerable information with cameras and equipment.

One gizmo devised by the Survey is an acoustical device capable of detecting underground chambers and tunnels — which many scientists believe may be beneath some sections of the lunar surface.

It worked so well in detecting natural tunnels in a Hawaiian lava flow that it's now being studied by the Defense Department for possible use in discovering the elaborate burrows of the Viet Cong.

Missile Facility Officially Opens

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

Atlantic Research Corporation officially opened its new multimillion-dollar Missile Systems Friday with dedication ceremonies at the four-building, 15-acre facility in Costa Mesa.

Main speaker for the occasion was Lt. Gen. W. Austin Davis, vice commander of the Air Force Systems Command, who addressed several hundred city and state representatives and top ranking military and government officials.

The division facility, on which ground was broken 10 months ago, includes manufacturing, engineering, administrative and executive buildings totaling 130,000 square feet.

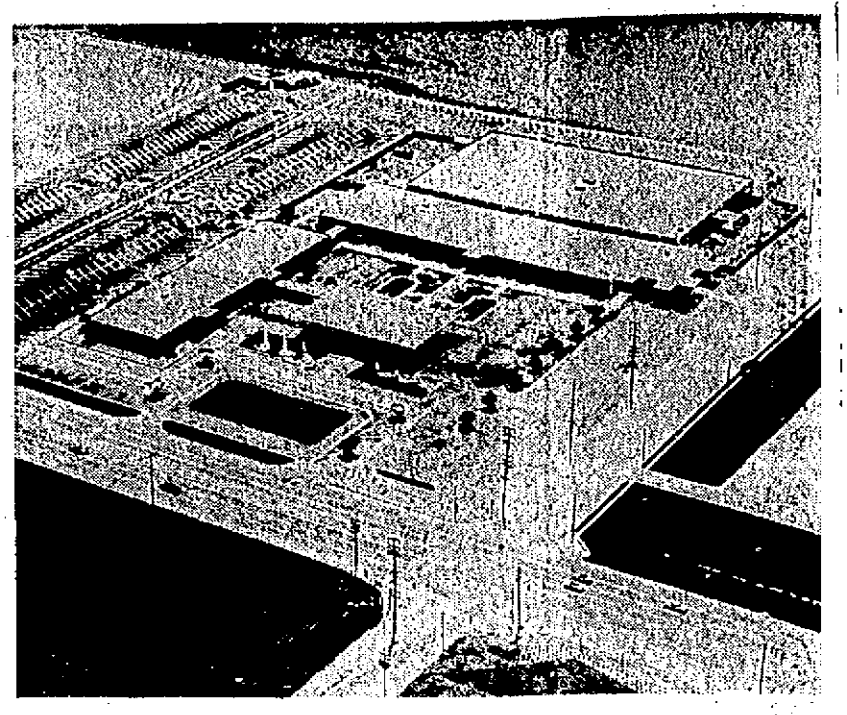

Another 15 acres may ultimately be utilized at the plant location, 3333 Harbor Blvd.

More than 800 employes work at the division, with several hundred more soon to be added. Major project at present is assembly, checkout and launch of the Athena booster for the Air Force.

Within the facility complex are laboratories for vibration testing, telemetry testing and calibration as well as an environmental laboratory and temperature and altitude simulators.

Legal 'Drunk'

MANILA (UP) — If there is any doubt, the Batangas Town Council has ruled, a drunk is anyone who "smells of liquor, is red or pale in the face, as the case may be, sways from one side to another as he walks and acts not in his usual manner." The penalty for these manifestations in public is five days in jail or $5 fine.

JAMES RESTON

Hanoi Blunders by Failure to Grab Compromise Offer

By JAMES RESTON
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — After almost every war, the historians think they can identify a point where both sides had more to gain by compromising than by fighting. It may be that this point has been reached in Viet Nam.

In World War I, the Allied powers were so convinced that the Kaiser was the ultimate enemy that they insisted on fighting on to a military victory, and thereby helped bring into existence two much more dangerous and formidable forces—the Nazis on the one hand and the Communists on the other.

In World War II, this same determination to achieve a military victory, pursued in the name of liberty, resulted in the loss of liberty for various countries in Eastern Europe and the Balkans — the very places whose freedom was the primary aim of both world wars.

* * * *

THIS IS ONE of the major lessons of war in the 20th century. No matter how hard the antagonists have tried to anticipate the consequences of war, the fighting inevitably has produced unexpected results beyond their control.

Washington has learned this lesson better than Hanoi. In fairness to President Johnson, he has tried to start the compromising process, but has been rebuffed so consistently that the fighting is again dominating the scene. The air war on North Viet Nam was more severe in the last week than in any other week of the conflict. The premier of South Viet Nam, Air Vice Marshal Ky, has started talking about either an invasion of North Viet Nam or a very long war, and while it is easy to repudiate him there is a certain tragic logic in his point that so long as the enemy has a jungle sanctuary in North Viet Nam, bombing will not bring the conflict to a military conclusion.

* * * *

THE TRAGEDY of this is that Hanoi now has a better chance of achieving its major objective by negotiation than it has by fighting, and does not seem to realize it. The major objective of both the North Vietnamese and the Chinese governments seems fairly clear. They want all American military power out of Viet Nam. No doubt they would like to establish a Communist regime in Saigon, but primarily they want to get rid of an air and naval force which could destroy every city in North Viet Nam and Communist China.

Hanoi has chosen to try to achieve explusion of U.S. troops by force of arms rather than by negotiations, and this must be the worst political miscalculation since the Bay of Pigs. The United States is obviously not going to lose the first test of arms in its history to North Viet Nam, of all places.

In this situation, North Viet Nam has no hope of driving the American expeditionary force out of the country, but it coluld undoubtedly negotiate us out. The President has been quite explicit about this.

"We seek neither territory nor bases, economic domination nor military alliance in Viet Nam" he said in his State of the Union message last January.

"We seek no bases or special position for the U.S.," Secretary of State Rusk told Congress on Aug. 3, 1965. Dozens of similar statements have been made on behalf of the Washington government ever since.

Hanoi obviously does not believe this. The officials there see the U.S. building an air and naval base at Kamranh Bay that is the most modern in Asia. They feel they were twice deceived by negotiation—once at the end of World War II when the U.S. helped restore French power in Viet Nam, and again at Geneva in 1954, when they thought the U.S. would keep its power out of Viet Nam.

The U.S. could be held to its no-bases promise, however, by international supervision of a compromise settlement.

* * * *

THIS IS undoubtedly a major blunder. All the doves in America, backed by political pressure for peace, cannot bring about such an American military withdrawal before negotiation. Hanoi misinterprets both the objectives and the influence of those of us who want a negotiated settlement in Viet Nam. If its main objective is the withdrawal of American power from that country, it can get it by negotiation, but it cannot compel withdrawal by force.

On the contrary, the longer the war goes on and the greater the American sacrifice in lives, the stronger the pressure will be here in the U.S. to justify the war by retaining precisely that American strategic presence at Kamranh Bay the Communists are seeking to avoid.

This is the tragedy of the war. Both sides are caught up in the dominion of fear—Washington in the fear of a Communist conquest of the peninsula and Hanoi and Peking in the fear of permanent U.S. bases that could dominate both North Viet Nam and China. The problem is to break this deadlock of suspicion, and this is much more likely to be achieved by talking than by fighting.

* * * *

IN RECENT days, a hopeful thing has happened in Viet Nam. The Hanoi government has listened to the appeals of the world to spare the captured American fliers. It apparently has concluded that it should not do what it clearly had the power to do, and that its own interests were best served by talking and reasoning about the problem.

The opportunity exists on the larger question of a negotiated settlement of the war. If Hanoi's objective really is to get rid of American power in Viet Nam, it undoubtedly can do so in an internationally supervised negotiation. It cannot do so by counting on the force of arms or the force of peace sentiment in the U.S.

POLICE SEEK BLIP IN SEAT OF PROWLER

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The seat of his pants is the best clue to the mysterious prowler of an East-side neighborhood in Pontiac.

The evidence was obtained by "Radar," a great dane owned by Alfred Cooley, 36, a resident of the neighborhood where buildings have been broken into 24 times in past weeks.

A neighbor girl saw the prowler and unleashed Radar. The dog chewed off the seat of the man's pants before he could vault a fence.

"Sooner or later we're going to get him," Cooley said.

Demos Snarled in Minnesota, New York

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief of Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON—The American political pot is simmering in the summer heat. A few primaries and conventions remain, notably in Minnesota and New York. In both states the Democrats have snarled themselves up in efforts to find gubernatorial candidates.

For most of the rest of the nation, it is a time for consolidation, organization and planning strategy to, hopefully, bring victory in November. Candidates attend state fairs, political picnics and make other public appearances but, on the whole, August finds them seizing a breathing space before the arduous and climactic weeks from Labor Day until the gathering at the polls.

This year offers only an off-year election, but a number of contests are certain to attract wide attention.

The campaigns in Minnesota and New York will be among those primary, convention and general election contests to be analyzed and reanalyzed in terms of the presidential elections two and six years hence.

THE MINNESOTA elections will, rightly or wrongly, be read in terms of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey. The Democrats up there dumped their governor, Karl Rolvaag, and nominated in convention Lt. Gov. A. M. Keith. Humphrey kept out of the contest, save to give both sides his advice, but it has been construed by some that the substitution of Keith for Rolvaag, was not displeasing to him.

Rolvaag, however, did not take his dumping lying down. He announced he will force a primary and run against Keith for the nomination. That contest is in September, with no one yet in a position to predict the outcome.

Whoever wins in the Minnesota Democratic primary will still have his hands full in the general election when he faces the Republican aspirant, Harold Levander. Minnesota Republicans are gleefully predicting a glittering triumph.

Should this take place, national politicians will immediately place a black mark against the name of Hubert H. Humphrey who, as Minnesota's most distinguished Democrat, is expected to see that his state remains securely in Democratic hands. Whether Humphrey does or does not have anything directly to do with a Democratic defeat won't make any difference. It will count against him and there will be much headshaking over his presidential ambitions—if indeed he harbors such ambitions.

* * * *

IN NEW YORK, the campaign for Democratic nomination for the governorship has already become rough. Charges of fix and double-cross fill the air and five hopefuls are scurrying around the state trying to line up delegate support for the convention, which is close at hand.

Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, actively attempting to organize New York Democrats into some kind of a coherent whole in order to strengthen his ambitions, whatever they may be, has thus far remained aloof from the pre-convention struggle. Possibly he has more to lose than gain by throwing his strength to one man or another, and his best bet may be to remain on the sidelines while the rugged internecine battle is fought to a conclusion. And if the Democrat should lose in the general election to Republican Nelson A. Rockefeller, Kennedy will be right there to pick up the pieces.

Over on the West Coast, thousands of microscopes will study the California gubernatorial campaign. If Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown is reelected, probably not much will change nationally, but should Ronald Reagan win, the Republican picture for 1968 or 1972 will alter. A Reagan victory will thrust him willy-nilly onto the national scene and current Republican presidential hopefuls will face an entirely new ball game.

With these and other important contests coming up, it is just as well that, for the moment, we are having a summer respite.

Congo Expels Belgian Consul

KINSHASA, Congo (AP) — The Congolese government has expelled the Belgian consul in Lubumbashi, the Belgian radio said Saturday night.

The radio, quoting a Congolese Foreign Ministry announcement, said the consul, identified as M. Marchal, had been declared persona non grata and ordered out within 24 hours.

Airline Strike End up to Vote Today

By DON HASTINGS

It appeared that President Lyndon B. Johnson had solved another national problem when he announced that a settlement had been reached in the 23-day strike against five major airlines.

Details of the agreement between negotiators for the airlines and the striking International Association of Machinists were not announced and union members vote today whether or not to accept the pact.

President Johnson, who had summoned the negotiators to Washington, said the settlement will not be inflationary and was within the general framework of wage increases recommended by the administration. Actually, the wage-hike guideline is 3.2 and the settlement calls for an estimated 4% increase. In announcing the settlement, Johnson said the guideline policy left room for bigger hikes in special circumstances.

P. L. Siemiller, president of the striking IAM, said union officials were sure the agreement would be ratified today.

Airline officials said planes will be back in the air four hours after ratification.

THE CRIME rate in the nation continues to outstrip the population growth, according to the annual report issued Wednesday by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Serious crimes occurred five times every minute last year, the FBI said.

The crime rate increase was sharpest in the suburbs — 8% — and Western states — 10%.

While the increase fell off from the 11% gain of the previous year, the crime rate continued to outpace the population increase by almost six to one. Since 1960, the FBI said, serious crimes have increased 46%. Population has increased 8%.

Long Beach's crime rate, according to the FBI report, is increasing slightly faster than other cities of its size, but only half as fast as the average in the West.

IT ONLY took a month. It was one month to the day after the Senate confirmed Richard Helms as the new chief of the Central Intelligence Agency when some of the senators who approved of him began calling for his scalp.

Helms wrote the St. Louis Globe-Democrat saying how pleased he was with an editorial titled, "Brickbats for Fulbright." The editorial said the Senate had given Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) "his comeuppance" for trying to increase congressional control over CIA activities.

When the newspaper printed Helms' letter, senators arose to denounce him. Helms apologized to Sen. Fulbright, but Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) immediately called for Helms' resignation.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, of which Fulbright is chairman, and Morse a member, met with Helms in closed session Friday. Afterward, it appeared that tempers had cooled.

If you are a senator, you can criticize another senator. If you aren't, watch out, there are 100 of them!

STAYING LOW to evade sniper fire as they keep watch over a wounded buddy, two Marines sweat out Operation Hastings, one of the biggest battles of the war in South Viet Nam. The three were pinned for a half-day before being evacuated by a helicopter.

THE NATION

SHOTGUN-carrying guards spirited Richard Speck from Chicago's city jail infirmary to the Cook County Jail in secrecy so great the county jail warden didn't know about it until moments before the prisoner arrived.

The 1½-block transfer of the accused killer of eight nurses was made as city jail doctors decoyed reporters to a news conference and pleaded with them to guard against any chance of an assassination like that of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of President John F. Kennedy.

THERE WAS no stopping the slump in the stock market.

The market Friday closed out the week by skidding to new lows for 1966, even as airlines rallied on the news that President Johnson had intervened personally to seek an end to the strike by the International Association of Machinists against five major lines.

THE WAR

OPERATION Hastings continued in Viet Nam. It was a case of pounding away at North Vietnamese forces pushing south and it was costing a heavy toll.

In one week, 136 Americans were killed. For the same week, the enemy lost an estimated 1,275 killed and 120 captured.

On the political front, South Viet Nam Premier Nguyen Ca Ky called for an invasion of North Viet Nam. "Sooner or later," he said, "we, as free men, have to face the Chinese Communists. I think it is better to face them right now than in five or 10 years."

A vexing problem subsided during the week: Hanoi's intentions toward American fliers after being shot down over North Viet Nam. Ho Chi Min, North Viet Nam's premier, said there are no plans to try the Americans as war criminals.

THE WORLD

A ROUTINE flight ended up much more than that. Air Force Capt. Robert B. Hickman, 32, took off in a U2 "spy plane" from Barksdale Air Force Base in Louisiana Thursday. He was supposed to turn back after passing over Cuba, but he didn't.

Searchers found the charred wreckage in west central Bolivia, 140 miles south of the capital city of La Paz. In the wreckage was the shattered body of the pilot.

What happened? The only explanation so far was that Capt. Hickman lost consciousness due to lack of oxygen and the plane flew on automatic pilot until it ran out of fuel.

* * * *

PRIME MINISTER Harold Wilson of Britain either carried his program to save the pound sterling to the White House in Washington or he fled a near-mutiny in his own nation when he came to the U.S. last week.

In London, the government announced a massive price and wage freeze — stiffer than World War II controls. Nobody liked it.

At least 6 million workers will lose raises now due them. A business spokesman said the new measures "do not seem to enlist the wholehearted cooperation of the people . . ."

Wilson asked President Johnson's support in the fight to prevent devaluation of the pound, which could affect the American dollar value. Johnson hedged and asked how Great Britain felt about the American position in Viet Nam.

THE WEST

FINAL TALLY of the vote by West Coast longshoremen on a new five-year contract with shippers may not be in until Thursday, but indications were that the dockers would approve the multi-million-dollar pact.

It was reported from San Francisco that the new contract had been approved by a 4-1 margin. In the Long Beach - Los Angeles harbor area, members of the International Longshore Workers Union Local 13 rejected the pact by a vote of 1,458 to 1,169.

Union spokesmen said the pact had been approved in San Diego and Port Hueneme and voting still was being conducted in Seattle and Portland.

The coastwide trend appeared to be giving the new contract approval by about 70% of the total.

Longshoremen will get a 90-cent hourly wage hike over the life of the agreement, starting with a 50-cent boost immediately. This will put the average rate at $3.88 per hour. In addition, the contract calls for an increase in pensions from $165 a month to $235, and a $1.9 million yearly increase in the maritime association's contribution to the mechanization and modernization (automation) fund.

12,000 Attorneys, Profs to Convene in Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Some 12,000 American lawyers, judges and professors gather here next week for discussions that will range from traffic courts to proposed laws for outer space.

The American Bar Association is revisiting this city on the St. Lawrence after 53 years. Many high-ranking Canadian officials, including Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, will address the 89th association convention and related legal groups. Great Britain will be represented by Sir Charles Ritchie Russell, Lord Justice of Appeal and Privy Councillor.

In the important area of criminal law, U.S. Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach will report on the work of the Crime Commission appointed by President Johnson July 26, 1965. Katzenbach heads the group which was charged with conducting "the first systematic, nationwide study of the entire spectrum of crime problems."

* * * *

RADIO-PRESS coverage of crime news will be a live topic. Katzenbach's proposed guidlines on this subject will be discussed by Fred M. Vinson Jr., assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's Criminal Division.

Legal services linked to war on poverty program will be outlined by E. Clinton Bamberger Jr., director of this work for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The convention begins Aug. 8. Related groups meeting ahead of the main event include the National Conference of State Trial Judges, the Conference of Chief Justices, the Commissioners of Uniform State Laws, and the National Association of Women Lawyers.

The women will be addressed by Canadian Secretary of State Judy Lamarsh and Genevieve Blatt, a member of the President's Crime Commission and Pennsylvania's secretary of internal affairs.

* * * *

THE WIDE-RANGING programs include a panel discussion on alcoholism and a three-day traffic court seminar, with announcement of cities receiving American Bar Association awards for outstanding traffic courts.

The association is divided into so-called "sections" under such headings as "International Law," "Family Law" and "Criminal Law" to deal with legal problems more specifically.

The House of Delegates, the association's 275-member policy-making body, may create a new section on "individual rights and responsibilities" in view of growing interest in this subject.

The House of Delegates is considering a proposal to replace the U.S. commissioner system with salaried U.S. magistrates. Association endorsement carries weight when legislation is before Congress.

A "federal magistrates act" has been introduced by Sen. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Md., whose subcommittee has held hearings on the subject. He will address the American Judicature Society.

U.S. commissioners set bail, conduct preliminary hearings, determine indigency and in some areas render binding decisions in petty offense cases, yet some 30% of them are not lawyers. They are paid on a fee basis, according to the number of cases they handle.

* * * *

THE SYSTEM has changed little in the past 70 years.

The House of Delegates is also considering means of stemming the flood of habeas corpus proceedings brought by state prisoners in federal courts. These actions are filed by inmates of state prisons who claim they were denied federal constitutional rights at their trials.

Orison S. Marden of Scarsdale, N.Y., president-elect of the association, will take office for a one-year term.

Col. Miller Gets Space Unit Post

Col. David V. Miller, a resident of Palos Verdes, has been named the new vice commander of the Space Systems division in El Segundo, effective Sept. 1.

Col. Miller, a veteran in Air Force command, research and development assignments, holds a master's degree in physics from the University of Wisconsin and is a graduate of the Air War College and the Harvard Advanced Management Program.

He has been the program director for the Air Force Titan III Standard Space Launch Vehicle since July 1964. In this capacity he has directed development of the Titan IIIC, the nation's most powerful military space booster, which successfully orbited seven communication satellites and a graviet gradient satellite 18,200 nautical miles above the equator last June.

Col. Miller has more than 6,000 pilot hours, has served as a nuclear research officer, was assigned to the Pentagon as a special assistant for nuclear development and later as deputy director of research and technology.

PAUL A. HELM . . . Retires Monday

AN EXPERT SPEAKS

Automation: a Police Weapon

Automation is rapidly becoming a formidable weapon in the battle against crime, Paul A. Helm, retiring superintendent of the Long Beach Police Department's Record Bureau, said today.

Helm, who retires Monday, pointed to the great help automation has been in the recovery of stolen cars and the arrest of car thieves.

"When I joined the department Aug. 1, 1944 as an identification officer, police officers in the field were lucky if they received a list of area stolen cars within 24 hours of the theft.

"Now via radio from the field he can check the station and learn within two minutes if a suspicious car has been stolen anywhere in the state."

This, he explained, is made possible by a high speed teletype which is connected to a computer in Sacramento.

* * * *

SIMILAR computers will be able by early 1967 to provide similar information on guns and outstanding warrants for arrest.

Other machines within the next few years will instantly provide law enforcement officers with other information of great value in reducing crime and arresting criminals, Helm asserted.

Helm, who was promoted to chief clerk Oct. 1, 1963 and superintendent July 1, 1963, was one of only 13 employes in the Record Bureau when he reported in 1944.

The bureau, which now includes the warrant and complaint details, now numbers 68 employes.

In 1944 there were 190,000 reports on file and 140,000 arrest reports. Now they number 711,000 and 224,000.

* * * *

HELM IS A member of the Southern California Association of Record Supervisors, International Association for Identification, California Division, and was president of the Southern California Association of Fingerprint Officers in 1955-56. He took graduate courses in police identification and records at both USC and California State College at Long Beach.

He holds teacher's credentials to teach his specialties and has instructed in the Long Beach Police Academy since its founding in 1954.

Helm, and his wife, Margaret, plan a leisurely trip to Honolulu and on their return, trailer trips throughout the country and Canada.

The couple has two children, a married daughter, Shirley Miller, and a son, Stanley, a United Airlines cargo representative.

SHOWS START THURSDAY

Downtown on Wednesday Circus Animals to Parade

A caravan of circus animals will parade along downtown streets Wednesday in a prelude to the Thursday opening of Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus at the Long Beach Arena.

The 160 animals will be unloaded from the circus train at the Southern Pacific Railroad yards at Eighth Street and Pico Avenue in the Port of Long Beach.

At 11:45 a.m. the elephants, camels, horses and other lead stock will start in a line of march over the Ninth Street bridge, along Sixth Street to Pine Avenue, and then south to Pine and Broadway where the animals will make a brief stop at noon before proceeding to the Arena.

Wednesday will be "setting up" day. The circus will open its four-day run with a 2:45 p.m. matinee on Thursday. Evening performances are scheduled at 8 Thursday and Friday. Shows will be at 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30 and 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Children under 12 years old will be admitted at half price on opening day and at a 2:45 p.m. Friday matinee. Tickets are on sale at the Arena box office, all Mutual agencies and Wallich's Music City stores.

Former 452 Bomb Wing Vets to Meet

Sixtee years ago on Aug. 10, Long Beach's famed 452nd Bomb Wing was recalled to active duty for the Korean War, the first Air Force Reserve unit to enter combat in that conflict.

Next Saturday night former members of the organization will hold a reunion in the Noncommissioned Officers Club at the Space Systems Division, 5800 Arbor Vitae St., Inglewood, at 8:30 p.m.

Members of the unit were recalled on Aug. 10, 1950, and sent directly to George Air Force Base. After only 77 days of refresher training there, they were sent to Japan and into combat.

The unit was awarded the Korean Presidential Unit citation. After being returned to the United States at the close of hostilities, the bomb wing was deactivated. Later the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing was activated in its place and then transferred to March Air Force Base.

NO 'WEAKER SEX?'

Lifeguards Wanted: They Must Be Males

By DON BRACKENBURY
From Our Los Angeles Bureau

This story is replete with sex, politics, conflict and crime.

It's about an announcement that Los Angeles County is hiring lifeguards for 10 of its swimming pools.

The county's Civil Service Commission said that examinations for the lifeguard positions will be given today starting at Will Rogers Park, 1335 E. 103rd St., Los Angeles.

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn brought politics into the act by pointing out that three of the pools where guards are needed are Mona, Enterprise and Athens parks, all in the Willowbrook area and in his supervisorial district.

The sex? Well, the announcement specifies that applicants must be between 18 and 39 years of age—and must be male.

* * * *

"RIDICULOUS," snapped Greta Andersen, champion Long Beach distance swimmer and operator of a swim school at 3561 Farquhar Ave., Los Alamitos.

"A woman can do the job as well as a man can do, as far as lifeguarding is concerned," Mrs. Andersen contended.

Here comes the crime angle: Federal law prohibits job discrimination on the basis of sex.

A spokesman for the State Division of Fair Employment Practices pointed out that there are no state laws covering the problem, but that enforcement is the responsibility of the Equal Opportunities Commission in Washington.

* * * *

THE STATE OFFICIAL didn't want to call the county specification of "men only" for lifeguards discriminatory, but in answer to a specific question whether such policy is a violation of the federal act, he said:

"It could be, if, for example, a woman who was a qualified lifeguard—that is, passed all the tests—applied for the job, and they turned her down simply on the basis that she is a woman."

The county counsel's office said the county justifies its demand for male lifeguards on the basis that "the rigorous demands of the job are such that only the strength of the male physique can handle them."

How about that, Mrs. Andersen?

* * * *

"A LOT OF THESE men lifeguards are in terribly bad shape," the channel swimmer declared. "Their stomachs are hanging down over their bathing trunks."

Mrs. Andersen acknowledged that a woman wanting to serve as a lifeguard "must be as good a swimmer and as strong in the water as a man would be."

For a job as a lifeguard at a swimming pool, she believes a woman would do a better job.

"I think a woman would be more sensitive to watching smaller children than a man would," she explained.

* * * *

MRS. ANDERSEN doesn't discriminate at her own swim school pool. She has a male lifeguard. She has hired women for the job, however.

She made it clear, however, she has no doubts about a woman's ability to meet the requirements of the county job.

"I'll challenge Supervisor Hahn to a swimming race any day of the week," she said.

IT'S A MAN'S WORLD?

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

HAVE you been to one of those high-price-per-plate political dinners and wondered thereafter what was done with your money?

Political morals being relatively high in these parts, it probably went for legitimate campaign expenses. But in most cases, that has to be a presumption — there is little or no control over such funds except by the dinner beneficiary or his close associates, and little or no accounting to the public or to the people who pungled up $100 or so for a $4 dinner.

In the fascinating case of Connecticut's Sen. Tom Dodd, it has been alleged that he used political dinner funds for personal purposes. This raises the question as to whether such money should be treated as income for tax purposes. To those who have to pay taxes on all the money that comes their way, that seems like a fair question that should be applied to funds any politician uses for his personal benefit.

THE dinner money issue is only one angle of the Dodd case, which will surely cause a lot of politicos to take a second look at the way they handle such things as the expenditure of so-called campaign funds, expense accounts, gifts from self-seeking admirers, and so on.

Some may be shaking a little in their well-shined boots. It's hard to believe there are not others who have engaged in some of the practices that have come under public scrutiny and criticism in the Dodd affair. Unhappily for Dodd, he happened to have some disgruntled aides who lifted things from his office files and showed them to newspaper columnists.

Despite laws requiring reports on campaign expenditures, these accountings are often pretty loose and vague, and not easily challenged. There's no law, so far as I've heard, that requires a separate and specific accounting of those high priced dinner funds. The assumption is that they are lumped with other money and go into reportable campaign expenditures.

Seldom is an issue raised about such affairs, possibly because those who might be expected to raise it are also politicians who have some little matters of their own they'd rather not have subjected to public examination. If they get smart, they may expect reprisals.

So Dodd may be the whipping boy in a situation which has some cleansing effects in the nether world of politics. Brutal as Columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson may seem in their treatment of the white-haired Connecticut Senator (who came within a hair of being Lyndon Johnson's vice president choice), it's highly possible they've performed an important public service.

PEOPLE who write for journals or broadcast their words are happy, of course, at evidence of people reading or listening. Now the popular TV news team, Huntley and Brinkley, may be wondering about their audience in Baltimore.

They had barely left the air Thursday eve after a semi-documentary about how peacefully things were going race-wise in Baltimore, when a gang of white racists began raising the devil in the Maryland metropolis. Was it a coincidence, or did some of the Baltimore gang hear the broadcast and decide it was time to show Huntley and Brinkley a thing or two?

A LONG BEACH woman (Los Altos area) who is generous but cautious closely questioned a 12-year-old youth who called at her door trying to sell candy "for our club" at an excessive price. When the kid told her the club was sponsored by the YMCA, she telephoned the "Y" and was told it had no such club.

Apprised of this, the candy seller said he was talking about sponsorship by the San Pedro "Y". Well, she said, she'd just call the San Pedro "Y" to make sure.

"Oh don't do that, ma'am," he urged. "I just meant that our club is near the San Pedro YMCA."

He didn't make the sale.

Stingrays Lose Ground to Weekly Net Patrol

By BARBARA KNESIS

They never had a chance.

The two men in the rowboat quietly drop their 275-foot net to the ocean floor, entangling them in the great rope trap before they know what's happened. Wiggling and squirming, they are brought to the shore, pulled the last 50 yards by tractors.

Thus, the City of Seal Beach each Thursday rids itself of several hundred more stingrays — sandy-colored fish that inflict a stinging puncture wound on bathers who stir them from their serenity at the bottom of the sea.

* * *

AL LOPEZ, public works foreman who supervises the weekly stingray mop-up operation, says the city has been at war with the fish for about four years.

"They're attracted here by the warm water," he said, referring to the beach area near the rocky jetty at First Street.

Since the city started the operation, its stingray first-aid cases have "dropped drastically," according to lifeguard Mike MacArthur. He said in 1962 half the 1,432 first-aid cases were caused by stingrays. Last summer 413, or one-quarter of the cases treated, were stingray.

MacArthur said it looks like the number of cases will drop to one-eighth this summer.

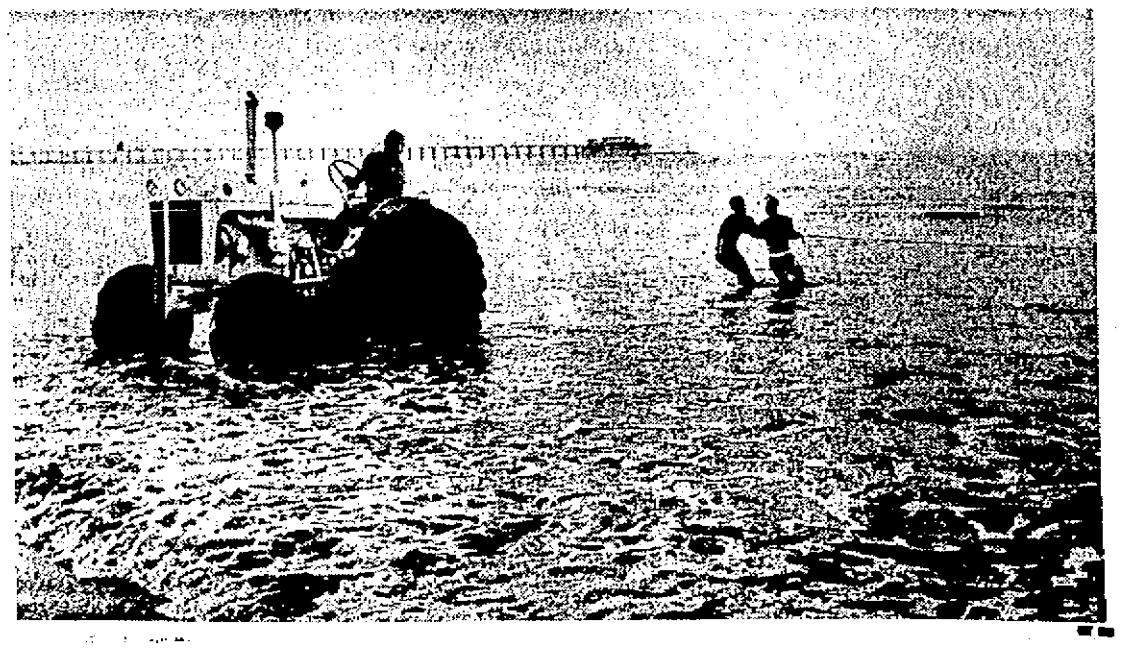

In a typical dawn catch, several hundred stingrays, a half-dozen beer cans and numbers of assorted fish including an occasional harmless leopard shark are found in the net.

Jerry Wadley, curator of fish at California State College at Long Beach, came down one week armed with several small pails to collect fish for the college museum. Officials from Los Angeles County General Hospital also show up now and then to collect stingrays for venom samples used in research.

Fish unwanted by collectors are tossed back to sea. As for the stingrays, they go into the rear of a truck—the end of the trail at each weekly roundup.

State Is a Most Generous Landlord

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The title of "most generous landlord of the year" must go to the free-wheeling State Highways Division.

It was clearly nominated for the honor by legislative auditor general William H. Merrifield. A report by Merrifield to Chairman Vincent Thomas, D-San Pedro, of the Joint Legislative Audit Committee tells of the good life of tenancy with the state as the landlord.

Uncle Sacramento has footed the bill for everything from wall-to-wall carpeting to swimpool covers. Its plunge into the rental business is on a massive scale.

SINCE 1960, at any one time the state has owned more than five thousand dwelling units. Some 435 of them—about 8%—are in Long Beach. They were acquired on the right of way of the future Artesia Freeway and other highways.

In a report to Assemblyman Thomas, Auditor Merrifield raised such a furor on the rental fringe benefits that the Assembly Transportation and Commerce Committee intends to query highway officials over rental policies at an August hearing.

The obvious issue: Is the state overly generous?

Merrifield alleges that a Long Beach tenant at 6720 Lime Ave. was permitted to deduct from the rent the cost of the same water closet twice.

He also says a Los Angeles family at 3401 Seadlock Lane, was allowed to deduct $1,650 from rent for plumbing, though auditors could find no evidence that efforts were made to obtain bids for the lowest price.

The same plumbing-plush tenant in Los Angeles was allowed to deduct half the cost of installing new carpeting. "There is no evidence that this carpeting had been installed," says Merrifield/ He noted that almost an entire year's rent was offset by plumbing and carpeting allowances.

A swimming-good time also was had by a Sacramento tenant of the state.

This family successfully won a rent reduction from $225 to $185 a month on the grounds that "during the winter a swimpool is a handicap and these renters have agreed to take care of a pool."

Then the state got stuck with the pool bills, including $57.89 for cleaning and an additional outlay for a pool cover.

Another tenant of the state was permitted to deduct $75 from rent for drapes and rods. Someone else cashed in on a rent reduction for the cost of a chain saw rental and pest-control inspection fee. In another case, a tenant was allowed $389 for a new lawn because of the presence of bermuda.

Merrifield also cited cases in which cleaning allowances to a new tenant were not charged against a prior tenant. One involved a $37.10 cleaning bill in Bellflower at 10043 Beverly.

"We can find no valid reason why the state's prescribed procedures of disbursement for repairs should not be followed in the case of right of way rental property," says Merrifield.

* * *

HIGHWAY OFFICIALS are preparing an answer to these and other Merrifield findings. Their preliminary reaction is along the lines that in the long run the state saves money by allowing tenants to improve their property so that it doesn't become blighted.

This well could be the case. Or, there could be instances of waste.

But regardless, it serves the interest of the state that the California Assembly periodically questions the state bureaucrats. The auditing staff of Assemblyman Thomas and the upcoming Assembly investigation are safeguards for efficiency and economy.

* * *

STATE-OWNED PROPERTY on freeway rights of way is due to be demolished or moved within a few years.

Therefore, the state serves notice in lease agreements that improvements are to be limited. The small-print in a state lease contains a clause saying:

"State will not make any improvements or repairs on said property of any nature whatsoever, except repairs to roof, main sewer lines, water service lines, and the following items only where considered necessary by state: Patch interior plaster, replace broken plumbing fixtures and replace water heaters."

It is obvious that legislative auditors are wondering whether the highway bureaucrats read the small print in their own contract.

Jobs Are an Answer to Crime

" The sleep of a laboring man is sweet, whether he eat little or much . . .

—ECCLESIASTES

A YOUNG MAN who has marched 25 miles with rifle and pack and then has to stand guard duty is not likely to commit a crime that night.

Crime in the United States has increased 46% in the last five years, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

All statistics about crime are subject to some suspicion. A high crime rate may in part indicate the competence of the police in recognizing and reporting crime.

But, considering all reasonable cynicism, crime is on the increase in the United States, and young people are the worst offenders.

In wartime, crime drops off rather sharply. The statistics are again hard to analyze because the military takes care of offenders in its own way. But the fact remains that troops are less likely to commit crimes than their counterparts in the same age groups.

Should we then draft all young people to reduce crime? That is not realistic.

But we should give them something to do, and preferably something very hard to do. Young men need to prove their manhood by undergoing hardship, stress and challenge. And there is plenty of work in town and country which needs young muscles. And brains.

IT IS SHAMEFUL to have purposeless young people loafing around and dreaming up trouble. Bureaucracy and the dole will never help them—but give them a chance to do necessary work and they will help themselves.

Work programs should be voluntary. But a high civilization should provide an outlet to achievement and opportunity to those who will take it.

Idleness is part of the crime problem.

People Get Tired of Kids

FRANK SINATRA did it again. He took a swing at a news photographer in New York. Frankie has been throwing haymakers at people, mostly newsmen, throughout his public life.

Ordinary citizens would be jailed for assault; but Sinatra, rich and famous, always seems to go free.

Sinatra is a talented actor and singer who has given pleasure to millions. The public has been good to him. He should feel some gratitude and conduct himself within the ordinary ways of society.

But some men are always kids. Drunk or sober, 50 - year - old Frankie goes on acting like a 12-year-old in an alley fight.

State GOP Platform to Be 'New Tool'

CALIFORNIA Republicans within the next six days will attempt to build the most radical new tool in the history of California politics—a readable, usable platform.

Constructing the 1966 GOP state platform is the principal business of the party's state convention next Saturday in Sacramento. It gets done every convention. Its highlights are reported and then it's customarily filed because a file is a fitting place for such generally wordy, imprecise, platitudinous and long documents—Republican or Democratic.

BOB HOUSER

But the aim this year, according to Don Anderson, aide to State GOP Chairman Dr. Gaylord Parkinson, is to make the platform a genuine, usable campaign tool for every Republican candidate in the state.

To this end, the drafters will try to make it shorter and understandable. They intend to make it wieldy enough to be printed in brochure or pamphlet form so that it can be handed out to the public with reasonable conviction that it will be read. They want to hand it out house-to-house so that, instead of a mysterious compendium, it becomes an effective campaign tool.

* * *

ITS CONTENT is not expected to vary a great deal from the 1964 state platform. That instrument was not drafted by Goldwater partisans who built the controversial national GOP platform. Virtually the same group will be in important seats next weekend in Sacramento so the party does not fear any significant threat from an esoteric right-wing reservation of the party.

There are, however, a couple of hurdles which platformists must confront—the Rumford Act and the so-called CLEAN initiative, which goes on the November ballot as Proposition 16.

The Rumford Act, to all candidates apparently, has to be handled like sword swallowing, guarding at all times against a hiccup on its two sharp edges. Mindful of the overwhelming YES vote on Prop. 14 two years ago, giving property owners absolute discretion in sales and rentals, the candidate — and the platform — probably must play the 66% odds against Rumford's fair housing features. At the same time he—and the platform—must weigh the contentions of bigotry which attach.

SECOND potentially sticky point in GOP platform consideration is a stance on the CLEAN, anti-obscenity initiative. Easy as it is to declare against obscenity, respected figures in both parties, including the Los Angeles County district attorney, have reservations about any chance for life of the measure, even if passed.

The initiative declares state policy is to prohibit obscene matter and conduct. It redefines the words "obscene" and "knowingly" over which so many anti-pornography efforts have tripped. And it provides rules and procedure for prosecution and enforcement.

Embarrassment might be the least of the party's woes if it were to commit four-square to a proposition that its non-emotional leaders warn can't stand constitutional scrutiny.

Finally, the GOP convention will sponsor day-long campaign workshops concurrent with its platform sessions to ground party workers in how to avoid the petty frictions that have impeded elective progress in the past.

All the rest looks like consensus the GOP hasn't enjoyed in years.

LBJ to Tour California Visit Gets High Priority

* * *

(From Our National Bureau)

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's whirlwind trip to middlewestern points last weekend was only a warm-up for larger-scale presidential gallivantin' during the next three months.

Between now and the November elections, the Chief Executive is expected to selectively make trips to virtually every part of the country.

Although the trips mostly will be billed as non-political, they'll be worked out so that the magic of a presidential appearance will touch areas where it is deemed most needed to bolster Democratic fortunes.

High priority has been assigned to California, where Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown is facing a nip-and-tuck battle with Republican nominee Ronald Reagan. When this would be timed still is being studied, but mid-October appears to be a good bet.

Intra-party quarrels in some areas have given them low priority in presidential travel planning. For instance, a Minnesota trip by President Johnson might somehow be construed that the White House is injecting itself into the Democratic party feud between Gov. Karl Rolvaag and the governor's would-be successor, Lt. Gov. A. M. (Sandy) Keith.

A SPECIAL congressional committee recently suggested division into two committees of the House Education and Labor Committee, headed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, who's often been accused of letting his duties slide while he relaxes.

The reorganization committee may have figured that half a loaf would be better than one.

* * *

PRESIDENT JOHNSON no longer refers to Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., by name.

When the Chief Executive speaks of Morse, Congress' most harsh and vocal crtiic of administration foreign policy, he simply calls him "Senator X."

* * *

ATTITUDES OF the poor on marriage and their spouses were revealed in a Health, Education and Welfare Department publication entitled "Low Income Life Styles." The study, doubtless expensive, is a summary of hundreds of recent research studies among the poverty-stricken.

It may come as a complete surprise, but typical attitudes of low-income wives are that their menfolk are "unpredictable, difficult to understand, inconsiderate and overwhelming."

Low-income husbands tend to think of their wives as "temperamental, emotional, demanding and irrational."

ASTRONAUT JOHN COLLINS accepted Vice President Hubert Humphrey's telephoned congratulations shortly after the successful splashdown of the Gemini 10 mission and then remarked that he had spotted Humphrey's home state of Minnesota while in orbit.

Humphrey asked Young if he'd seen some of the state's 10,000-plus lakes, and Young said he had.

"Good," replied the vice president. "Pick one out that you liked and we'll go fishing there some time."

For Once, Uncle Sam Quit Acting Like 'Aunt Patsy' on Foreign Aid

Washington Star Service

WASHINGTON—This venerable old city has been having a lively time of it lately: Myrna Loy on stage, Harry Belafonte in recital, Shakespeare every other night, and a Harem of Eight Belly Dancers revolving at a local bistro. But the best show in town this week was played in the Senate on Tuesday afternoon.

That was the afternoon the Senate erupted — for once, praise God, for once—with an expression of anger and resentment against some of our allies who put profits first and friendship last. For one glorious moment (and that is about all it will amount to), Uncle Same stopped being Aunt Patsy. By a smashing vote of 56-33, the Senate turned upon West Germany the cold and level gaze of a nation whose easy-going patience had temporarily run out. It should have happened years ago.

THE DRAMA began quietly, back in March, when Senator Byrd of Virginia and Senator Pastore of Rhode Island learned that the West German government had given its official approval and financial support to the formation of a consortium to build a steel mill in Communist China. The two senators made remonstrances, issued statements, telephoned the State Department. Nothing happened.

Nothing happened, that is, except that American troops continued to stand guard in Europe; and over in Viet Nam, in defense of freedom, American men continued to die of munitions provided by the Red Chinese.

With the annual foreign aid appropriation bill coming up, Byrd prepared a one-paragraph amendment. In its final form, it declared the sense of Congress that the action of "any government" in approving and financing a steel plant in Communist China "is a grave blow to the common defense of the free world and to the safety of American troops in Viet Nam." A little before noon on Tuesday, Byrd called his amendment up.

Now, it was a part of the drama that under the rules of the Senate, Mr. Byrd is Mr. Nobody. He may be the son of a famous father, in the hundred-member body, he is no more than No. 99. It is almost unheard of for a rookie to challenge the leadership on a major point of policy.

Only a few members were on hand when Byrd began to speak. Looking at him from the gallery, one saw his father 25 years ago—the same hand in pocket, the same choppy gestures, the same stubborn sense of right and wrong. Byrd is no mellifluous Dirksen. He speaks like a chairman of the board, sputtering over second-quarter sales. His voice is as flat as a filing card.

But on Tuesday there was an edge to the voice. A few senators floated into the chamber, took seats, lobbed friendly questions. A small electric current began to flow; and Mike Mansfield, majority leader, sensed it. He stood pensively on the first step of the Senate well, examining the carpet, considering ways to cut the embarrassment off.

Arkansas' Senator Fulbright, chairman of Foreign Relations, sought to reason with Byrd. This was a foreign aid bill, not a foreign policy bill. He thought it a bad mistake to clutter it with irrelevant matters. The Byrd amendment was sure to offend some of America's friends. It would accomplish nothing that could not be better accomplished through quieter diplomacy.

Abruptly, the debate caught fire. California's Kuchel, his face flushed, angrily denounced the Byrd resolution. Louisiana's Russell Long put his shoulder to the administration's wheel. But the chamber was filling. Colorado's Peter Dominick, Delaware's John Williams, South Dakota's Mundt, South Carolina's Thurmond, all joined the action in Byrd's support, the Western and Southern and Northern accents pushing to be heard. New York's Javits bustled in. Nebraska's Hruska put a barb in Kuchel's side: Suppose West Germany were not financing a steel mill, but were financing actual arms shipments to the Viet Cong instead? What was the difference? Kuchel mumbled a poor reply.

Mansfield tried twice to prevent a vote, on a motion to table and a motion to postpone indefinitely. Each time the roll-call votes came crunching down on his head. Under the Constitution, the Senate has a duty to advise and consent, but ordinarily the Senate merely consents. On Tuesday it advised, emphatically, indignantly; and it bespoke the resentment of a heavily burdened nation.

L. A. C. SAYS

Good Reasons for Foreign Aid Review

MORE THAN one-third of the U. S. federal debt is represented by the $116 billion we have given in foreign aid the past 20 years. The interest we now pay in taxes on that part of the debt is about $4 billion a year, or about $600 a year for every man, woman and child in our population. The interest is more than the present annual foreign aid we are now putting out, although it does not show up for this purpose.

FROM A WELL documented statement by the Citizens Foreign Aid Committee a list of the 130 countries to which we have given aid is detailed. The figures show a total of over $9 billion we have given France, almost the same amount to Britain, and $5 billion to India. In return for these gifts over the years we now find each of these and most of the others denouncing our policies in Viet Nam.

The survey also shows how our gold supplies have been reduced to dangerous proportions by these countries demanding gold for dollars they hold and have accumulated during these years of our gifts. While most of the gifts have been in the form of loans, they are actual gifts because few optimists expect any repayment.

OF THE $12.3 billion loss of gold from our treasury, France has demanded and received $2.6 billion. We have not demanded that this money first be applied on the debt France owes us. We have paid it out and thereby weakened our own monetary safety. We have given Austria over one billion and then sent a half billion in gold to redeem our own dollars. While Britain owes us as loans a large portion of the $9 billion we have sent her we have also redeemed dollars in gold in the amount of $1.4 billion.

When you read the list of 130 countries to which we have sent over $116 billion you realize very few of them show any appreciation. They vote against us in the United Nations, condemn us for our Viet Nam efforts to stop aggression and many of them have a lucrative trade with the enemy, North Viet Nam and Red China.

THE REPORT quotes President Johnson at a White House reception on the third anniversary of the Organization of African Unity when he said: "My country has offered the African Development Bank technical funds to survey projects and possibilities and funds for capital projects . . . we have been devoting a large part of aid funds for African education. This proportion will increase . . . African continental development needs a modern communication system. We want to explore these and other ways to respond to African needs."

It raises the question as to how much further we can go in this aid to others. We have a problem here at home in finding ways to educate and help our Negro population. In many ways it is more a need than that of changing the conditions in Africa. But we do not have the resources to do both. There are sound reasons voiced in Congress for our greatly reducing or eliminating foreign aid. We have done much to help these 130 nations over the past 20 years. Now it seems reasonable that we should let them help themselves for a while and put our own economy in order.

Peace, It's Wonderful, in City Council

By GEORGE WEEKS
City Government Reporter

A STRANGE ATTITUDE of peace prevails in the City Council. Not in years have nine political individualists got along with such polite restraint, such mutual consideration. Near-unanimity has been the rule. Even the budget sessions, which often provoke raucous debates and split roll calls, went off with hardly any surface tension.

Councilman Emmet Sullivan, who enjoys a spot of disputation as well as the next man, has been reduced to digs at the press, whose attitudes and choice of subject matter he deplores.

To newcomers familiar with the verbal bloodletting in other legislative bodies the spectacle—or lack of it—is puzzling. To regular observers the era of good feeling has become slightly soporific. Has City Hall suddenly sworn off of internal controversy?

THE ANSWER is that it hasn't. The lull won't last, because it is against political human nature. No one knows what the next subject of councilmanic wrangling will be, but it will come before long — and about time, too. In a fairly diverse city, uniform harmony in the top policy making body is not exactly a reassuring symptom.

One reason for the current season of amiability has to do with the election of the mayor and vice mayor.

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Some three months ago it became apparent that Mayor Wade would be re-elected by his colleagues and that Councilan Robert F. Crow would become the new vice mayor. The trail of animosities left by the intra-councilmanic election of 1963 then vanished.

Most of this aftermath surrounded the office of vice mayor. In 1963 new Councilman James A. Hayes won in what was generally considered a surprise and an upset. When Hayes decided a few months ago to run for the State Assembly instead of the council, the lingering frustration among older councilmen eased. Crow, who had aspired to the office three years earlier, was the new choice in an agreement off the record but nonetheless solid even before the official voting.

The Seventh District councilman has often been the center of storm disputes. Agile in rough-and-tumble debate, he is not a lawyer but has sometimes used the trial lawyer's tactic of oral indignation, especially when his cause looks like a loser.

More recently he has taken on a sort of conciliatory, senior statesman stance. According to reports, he was partly responsible for dissuading a couple of councilmen from trying to push through further pay raises for a few job categories on the last day of budget action. If the effort had been made, it would almost certainly have generated strong reaction by other councilmen who considered the issue closed.

Behind-the-scenes mediation by the mayor and by City Manager John R. Mansell also has contributed to the apparent show of unity. In six years the mayor has gained such tact and prestige that not one of his appointments to the council's standing committees or to four advisory bodies drew opposition. The whole list was confirmed without a dissenting vote.

STILL ANOTHER REASON for the harmony is a trend that has grown up almost unnoticed in recent years. Councilmen have become more and more inclined to accept the views of the councilman from the district when neighborhood issues are at stake. The effect has been to blur the concept of a system wherein all councilmen are elected by the whole city, though nominated by districts.

There have been exceptions to the mutual consent to keep hands off of another councilman's district. Others will arise in the future.

Still, the 1966-69 council looks like a serious-minded, relatively temperment-free assembly. New Councilmen Paul R. Deats and Thomas J. Clark Councilman Robert F. Crow would besmoothly. Gone are the times when an Andy Baird would regularly carry out his announced intention of "shaking 'em up again today."

THIS PROSPECT of down-to-business approach comes at a time when Long Beach is in midstride with developments such as oil production, shoreline improvements, urban renewal and the furthering of human relations without the familiar phenomenon of violence.

It may be just as well, for the moment at least, that the council sessions get the job accomplished without much in the way of color or histrionics. These qualities make for less dullness but not necessarily for more progress.

Help on the Freeway

EDITOR:

I'm writing in behalf of Mr. Jero Di Leva and myself (Al Koehler) of San Pedro in hopes you'll convey in print our heartfelt gratitude to two young men on a motorcycle (unnamed, from Long Beach) who stopped and assisted our wives and children under extreme circumstances when a tire blew out on a white, Falcon station wagon the other night on the Harbor Freeway near Rosecrans, while traveling in the inside fast lane.

The damaged tire and the spare both were serious problems which caused anxious moments and considerable time in finally clearing up this very serious situation, with all the danger involved in a heavily traveled freeway.

These two men (God bless them) gave completely of themselves in time, effort and most certainly under dangerous conditions. Since unfortunately their names weren't learned we're hoping this may be printed so these two fine men will know of our deep gratitude and that others will know about them.

Thanks From Lynwood

Congratulations and thanks to you and David Shaw for finally saying what has long been whispered about Lynwood, integration and our relations with our neighbors in Willowbrook, Watts and Compton.

Our local press has been noticeably silent on these problems. So, at the very least, David Shaw's article can provide an opening for discussion.

Hopefully, some of us may be jolted into becoming responsible citizens instead of muddling through with our heads in the sand as usual.

Calls It "Sickening"

EDITOR:

Your news item concerning "Miss Selden" and her "judgment" of a 3-year-old child as "sub-normal" is about as sickening as anything I've read.

Every 3-year-old isn't toilet trained. She's getting what millions of kids in much richer homes never get. Miss Selden isn't washing the clothes for the child. She isn't giving the love and cuddling a little girl needs.

I'm thankful there still are people like the Hamiltons.

We all know you won't find them on every block or even in every city.

The Miss Seldens are too numerous—they become dictators.

Would Use Missiles

EDITOR:

If our missiles are as good an attack weapon as Defense Secretary McNamara says, and I hope they are, why then do we continue to send our planes in to bomb?

A missile bombing would create panic to the enemy as well as get the job done. It would also eliminate the Viet Cong's ability to retaliate by the shooting down and the capture and putting of our pilots on display.

It would also have the end result of forcing Russia to put up or shut up on its ability to claim they have an anti-missile defensive weapon.

The Future of a Little Girl

EDITOR:

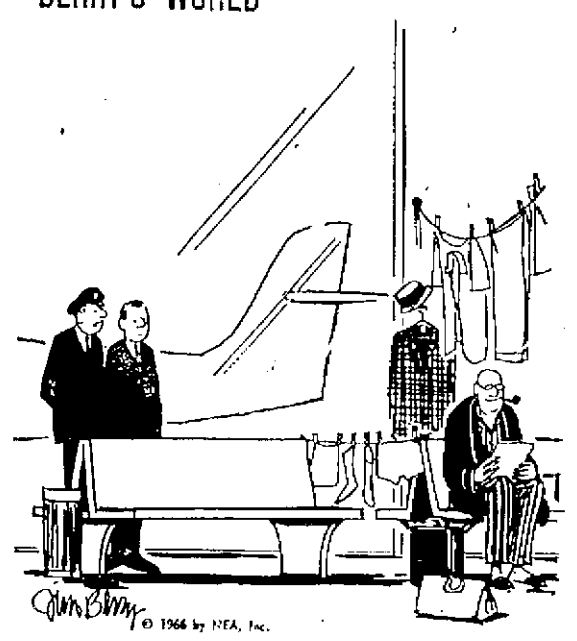

I was reading a story in your paper of a little girl who was to be separated from her foster parents, whose only crime was just being too old to raise her. The child's welfare office has checked and they have decided that when little Judy was 15 years old her parents would be in their seventies.

Now I would say to those people who decide who shall have the care of a minor child, what is the most important thing in a child's life? Love, with the proper discipline and with understanding.

When the child reaches her teens she will be able to think for herself. We all know that this is a difficult decision for the child's welfare supervisors to make. But I vote for the older couple who have proven their love for Judy. And; after all, you get the best tunes out of old violins.

REA Co-ops Profit From Juicy 'Tax Breaks'

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has an easy way to save several million dollars this year by abolishing the bargain-basement interest rate and tax-exempt status of Rural Electrification Administration co-ops. Some budget advisers are advising him to do it.

This, however, would be a blow to one of LBJ's old friends, ex-Congressman Clyde Ellis of Arkansas, who has built up the REA co-ops to a point where they rival private industry.

This was not what the Rural Electrification Law was intended for when passed by the New Deal in 1936. At that time vast areas of American farm land were without electricity. Today 98% of American farms are powered by electricity and the REA co-ops have developed to the point where they distribute power to wholesale buyers, factories, and even to competing public utilities.

Private companies pay 48% taxes, the REA co-ops pay nothing. Private utilities pay around 6% interest on their bonds; the REA co-ops pay 2%.

CONGRESS RECENTLY UPPED the interest rates for government loans to underdeveloped countries. But the same Congress has refused to up interest rates to REA co-ops. Meanwhile some local co-ops merely reinvest their 2% money at 6%. This gives them a neat profit of 4%.

The Colorado Supreme Court last February cracked down on one of the major REA co-ops, the Colorado-Ute Electric Association, organized to distribute wholesale power to Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Arizona. The court ruled that this combine was a long way from the Roosevelt 1936 proposal to supply power to remote farmers where private utilities had failed to penetrate.

However, Clyde Ellis once befriended Lyndon Johnson when he was running for the Senate in Texas, and Lyndon is a man who doesn't forget. When Federal Power Commission Chairman Joseph Swidler proposed that the FPC regulate REA co-ops if they operated across state boundaries, Clyde Ellis became so indignant that he exerted all his considerable power on Congress and the White House.

Congress then passed a special law exempting REA co-ops from FPC regulation, while LBJ refused to reappoint Swidler as FPC chairman. Swidler, the man who dared tangle with Clyde Ellis, is out.

The President has now nudged the REA with an order that it must loan no money beyond the fiscal year just ended. He could go further and remove REA's tax-exempt status and its 2% interest. If so he would save a sizeable chunk of money.

FOR THE FIRST TIME in history the Republican Conference of the Senate may be chaired by a lady—Sen.

DREW PEARSON

Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. The position will be open when Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts retires at the end of his current term.

Anticipating this, Mrs. Smith has told Sen. George Aiken that he should seek the job. She argued that eastern moderates should not relinquish power to Republican conservatives. Aiken replied: "If I took that job, I should have my head examined."

Meanwhile other Republican Senate positions are held by conservatives or far westerners. Chairman of the Republican Policy Committee is Burke Hickenlooper of Iowa, a Midwest conservative. The minority leader, Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois, is another Midwest conservative. Sen. Tom Kuchel of California, the minority whip, is a moderate, but from the Far West. Secretary of Republican Senators is Milton Young of North Dakota, usually conservative.

The only eastern moderate among GOP Senate leaders is Saltonstall, who now retires.

Sen. Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, an easterner but no moderate, is now eyeing his place as chairman of the Republican Conference Committee.

So if Aiken sticks to his present decision, Maggie Smith has decided to give Cotton a run for his money. She has seniority and it would be difficult for other senators to block her unless they want to raise the issue of sex.

Note—The recent Civil Rights Act specifically states that it is against the law to discriminate in job hiring because of sex.

TEEN COMMANDOS

Off Streets, On Jobs

By DON KIRKLAND

Ask Dwayne Larson if his anti-poverty "commandos" are worth their salt. Or just watch them at work.

What a kind of unexpected zeal, these 50 Long Beach-area teen-agers are spending their summer vacation under Larson's tutelage in the newest of the federal government's youth opportunity programs, designed to fill a two-fold void:

"We're not only getting these youngsters off the streets," boasts Larson, the program's 24-year-old Long Beach coordinator, "we're giving them jobs."

* * * *

JOBS ARE THE grist of the program and of some 21 others just like it throughout Los Angeles County. At each "commando" post, teenage boys and girls muster daily for community work projects that may range from house painting to dishwashing. They receive $1.25 an hour for their efforts, provided through the Los Angeles Federation of Neighborhood Centers, an offshoot agency of the federal Office of Economic Opportunity. With funds to operate through Sept. 1, Larson's "commandos" hope to sweep across much of the Long Beach area with a vast community improvement program, designed primarily to help rehabilitate slums and provide aid to the needy, ill or elderly who cannot solve their problems alone.

Likening the program to the depression-era Civilian Conservation Corps, Larson holds high hopes for it being re-funded in September. "It is up to us to prove that it can and does work, and we're well on our way to doing just that," he says.

Although there is no economic criterion for selecting the young corpsmen, the major "commando" recruiting drive goes on in low-income-area Teen Posts, also a project of the government's youth opportunity program. Once selected, the youngsters may work up to 30 hours a week, provided there are enough projects to go around.

That, in itself, is one of Larson's biggest headaches. With the help of 21-year-old Benny Scott, his assistant, Larson has begun appearing before local city councils and civic groups to solicit community projects. In Hawaiian Gardens, the City Council happily promised to provide the paint for a crew of teen-age workers who will stencil curbside house numbers at no cost throughout the community.

DWAYNE LARSON, BENNY SCOTT CONFER
Plan New Projects for Teen-Age Workers

* * * *

IN LONG BEACH, the crews moved into a poverty neighborhood and painted a score of frame houses, then moved on to clearing a Boys' Club lot of debris and weeds.

Although the program has been in operation only since July 1, Larson already has opened an office at 1153 E. 10th St., and proposes to use it as a headquarters for finding deserving local projects.

As ideas pour in, Larson has begun to get some of his own. Among them, a "vest pocket park," in which vacant lots are cleared and transformed into temporary playgrounds in poverty neighborhoods.

"What we have done so far," says Scott, "is employ indigenous youngsters to work within indigenous neighborhoods. So far, it has been a great success."

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the administrative jobs, the program also provides for a crew of five "handymen" at each post, comprised of men whose special skills qualify them as instructors. Combined with a $300 monthly stipend for materials, Larson says the program provides an opportunity for heretofore unavailable community improvement.

Although each "commando" post selects its own projects—and thus must determine whether a need actually exists—Larson says there is little opportunity for abuse of the program.

"Right now, we need work—and lots of it," says Larson. "It's the way we're going to prove that these kids are worth every penny we put into the program."

Navy Seeks Apprentices at Shipyard

Deadline to apply for written qualification tests for apprenticeships at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard is Wednesday. Examinations will be given in August.

More than 100 apprenticeships are open in 13 different trades — including boatbuilding, electrician, marine machinist and welder—according to D. M. Hendrickson, director of the shipyards industrial relations program.

Apprentices will receive $2.30 per hour while undergoing four years of training, including classroom instruction at Long Beach City College and Terminal Island and on-the-job training. There are no minimum experience or education qualifications.

Win F. Hanssen Elected Auditorium Group V.P.

Win F. Hanssen, manager of Municipal Auditorium and the Long Beach Arena, has been elected senior vice president of the International Association of Auditorium Managers.

Hanssen, who also manages Veterans Stadium for the city, was named to the association post last week at the group's 41st annual conference in Las Vegas. Hanssen is a former vice president of the association.

He took over management of the auditorium and stadium here in 1955, and became director of the Arena when the latter was built in 1962.

Hanssen, 51, came to Long Beach from Waterloo, Iowa.

PIGEON WITH A PROBLEM

You can't even trust the food you eat these days. Bird perched atop building at 1227 Pine Ave. was nibbling piece of bread when noise caught his attention. He jerked his head up, had a rye bread collar quicker than you could say "sesame seed." Now he's a flying lunchstand for feathered friends.

ROOM CLERK FAILS TO GET HIS MAN

PENTICTION, Canada (UPI) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police received this message from Vancouver on their direct-dial teletype machine:

"Can you reserve a room with two doubles for this evening and tomorrow for Mr. Jones and family leaving here to arrive Penticton 6 p.m.?"

An immediate message was sent back to the Hotel Vancouver. It stated:

"Not sure they would like the rooms as all have bars. This Penticton RCMP."

The final message read: "Oops, sorry. Guess I dialed the wrong number."

Motorcyle, Auto Crashes Fatal for 3

Two motorcyclists and an Inglewood motorist died Saturday from injuries received in Southland traffic accidents.

Dead are:

Artis Hendricks, 22, of 991 Nevada St., Long Beach, who died in Daniel Freeman Hospital, Inglewood.

Tony Lopez, 20, of 9041 Passons Blvd., Downey, who died in Downey Community Hospital.

Nathan Mandel, 58, of 8468½ Byrd Ave., Inglewood, who died in General Hospital, Torrance.

Inglewood police said Hendricks lost control of his motorcycle Friday afternoon on Lincoln Boulevard near Sepulveda Boulevard and slammed into a guardrail.

Lopez was injured fatally Friday afternoon when his cycle struck the rear of a car driven by William Lancaster, 39, of 11716 Elmcroft St., Norwalk, who was not injured. The accident occurred on Florence Avenue near Chaney Avenue.

Mandel died an hour after his car went out of control on rain-slick Wilmington Boulevard south of 190th Street early Saturday and was struck broadside by a car driven by Winslow L. Reed, 20, of Los Angeles. Reed was uninjured.

L.A. Pair Held as Suspects in Compton Death

Two Los Angeles men remained in Compton city jail Saturday night as suspects in the murder of a 29-year old Compton man.

Police said the victim, Ralph Palacios, of 119-B W. Myrrh St., was stabbed to death shortly after 1 p.m. Saturday during a fight at a party in a neighborhood apartment.

Held for investigation of murder were Renaud Cage, 25, and Astor D. Whitfield, 26, arrested one block from the apartment.

USS Hancock Back From Viet Cruise

ALAMEDA (UPI) — The 27,000-ton aircraft carrier USS Hancock will return Monday to Alameda Naval Air Station after nine months in the South Pacific, mostly off Viet Nam. Highlights included bombing of the Haiphong supply depot in North Viet Nam, shooting down Russian-built MIG17 jets and photographing a Russian-built missile in flight.

Stars Hosts to Families of Navy Men

Wives and dependents of Long Beach Navy men fighting in Viet Nam will be honored today by the Friars Club, 9900 Santa Monica Blvd., in Beverly Hills.

The first of a series of star-studded brunches will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Hollywood stars helping inaugurate the unique Friars tribute for 125 dependents of the Long Beach destroyer tender USS Bryce Canyon will be George Jessel, Debbie Reynolds, Ben Blue, Phil Silvers, Eddie Fisher, Jackie Cooper and Glenn Ford.

The stars will sign autographs, mingle and eat with guests and present gifts gathered by the club.

The group will be taken to Beverly Hills in Navy buses.

A continuing series of brunches will honor Long Beach dependents weekly, a club spokesman said Saturday.

Clothing Worth $4,000 Stolen

Clothing worth $4,000 was taken in a burglary Saturday at Theo's Toggery, 2037 Pacific Ave., Long Beach police said.

Officer P. C. Beane said a milk carton was thrown through a plate glass front door to gain entry.

Two men were seen taking clothing from the store and placing it in a car parked in front about 5:30 a.m., police said.

French-Russ Tour Exchanges Growing

MOSCOW (AP) — The exchange of Soviet and French tourists is increasing as political relations between the two countries improve, Izvestia reported Saturday.

The Soviet government newspaper said 36,000 French tourists visited Russia in 1965, and more than 40,000 are expected this year. By comparison, the Soviet travel agency Intourist says 20,000 Americans visited this country last year. Izvestia said there was a 15% increase in Soviet tourists visiting France this year.

Bandits Get $2,400 in Anaheim Holdup

Two young bandits took $2,400 in cash and personal checks Saturday from the manager of an Anaheim drugstore.

Anaheim police said one of the men, who was armed with a .45-caliber automatic, approached the manager of the Thrifty Drug Store at 625 W. Orangewood Ave., and told him to hand over the money he was carrying in a briefcase.

ADMIRALS RAMAGE, ROEDER MOVE UP

1st Fleet Skipper Goes 'Front Office'

By BUCK LANIER
Naval Affairs Reporter

SAN DIEGO — An admiral who took the First Fleet from peacetime to wartime status with trim efficiency has moved up to the "front office."

Vice Adm. Lawson P. Ramage is new deputy commander of the Pacific Fleet after turning over his command to Vice Adm. Bernard F. Roeder in ceremonies aboard the attack carrier USS Kitty Hawk.

Only Wednesday Adm. Roeder was relieved as commander of the Pacific Amphibious Forces.

Adm. Ramage, a Congressional Medal of Honor winner in the submarine USS Parche during World War II, and Adm. Roeder, both were presented awards personally by the Pacific Fleet's boss, Adm. Roy L. Johnson.

Ramage received the Distinguished Service Medal and Roeder a gold star in lieu of his fifth Legion of Merit.

The fleet commander cited Adm. Ramage's "leadership, sound judgment and aggressive training requrements in getting First Fleet units ready for combat off Viet Nam."

Roeder wrote "impressive pages in amphibious warfare during his command . . . opening up many new concepts with his forces . . ." Adm. Johnson said.

There were 18 amphibious operations into the Viet Nam war zone during Adm. Roeder's 14-month term.

In his remarks, Adm. Ramage said:

"This was not a one-man show at all. I was lucky to be working with a great team of professional experts for the past two years. Our exercises were tough and arduous, and in many cases exasperating.

ADM. L. P. RAMAGE

"But all knew it was a case of getting it right in the First Fleet because there won't be a second chance if a blunder is made in the war zone."

Adm. Roeder said there will be "a continuing state of readiness in First Fleet."

Rear Adm. Evan P. Aurand, commander, Antisubmarine Group 1 on the USS Bennington; Rear Adm. Fillmore B. Gilkeson, commander, ASW Group 3 on the USS Yorktown; Rear Adm. Albert J. Carpenter, commandant of the 11th Coast Guard District; and Clint Furrer, chairman of the chamber of commerce's Armed Services Committee, were present from Long Beach.

POOL VISTS SCHOOL

'Instant' Plunge

By HAL LOWE

An "instant swimming pool" is making a big splash with elementary school students in the Carson-Dominguez area.

The pool is used by the Youth Services Bureau of the Los Angeles City Schools for classes in elementary and intermediate swimming.

No elementary school in the area has a permanent swimming pool, so the portable pool is giving many children their first taste of aquatic life.

The youthful sea-hunters have found the 16x24-foot pool much to their liking. Two hundred and twenty-five are enrolled in 28 classes in the pool now at the Benito Street School. The junior-grade flippers also find the 30-inch depth of the pool just right, not only for learning basic elements of swimming and floating, but also in giving them confidence during those awkward moments when they forget to close their mouths while under water.

Joe Fisher, a teacher in the school district, is pool manager. He is assisted by a staff of four instructors, who spend four hours a day in the water with eight students at a time. The half-hour classes are held five days a week for two weeks.

The portable pool spends two weeks at each location. On Aug. 5 it will be taken to the Dolores School in Wilmington where a new group of 7-to-12-year-olds will start swimming.

The crew usually moves the pool on a Monday morning, then assembles and fills it with 7,400 gallons of water. By that time, word has gone around the neighborhood that a new swimming hole is open and students, even those not registered, start the line up for a dip.

$1 Million Asked to Develop Park

From Our Los Angeles Bureau

Formal application for $1 million in state funds to develop a swimming pool and other facilities in Victoria Park, 190th Street and Avalon Boulevard, will be filed within the next week, according to Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

The funds sought are part of the $150 million bond issue approved by state voters in November, 1964.

Hahn said the state already has given tentative approval for use of the bond money for an Olympic-size swimming pool, bathhouse, four tennis courts, softball and baseball fields, rest rooms and general development of a 26-acre area.

Final plans for the swimming pool are scheduled to be submitted to county supervisors Aug. 23. Construction is expected to begin in mid-October. It is hoped the pool will be open by the summer of 1967.

An 18-hole golf course already is under construction on 177 acres of Victoria Park. It is being financed by a loan from the County Employes Retirement Board, to be repaid from greens fees.

4 Pounds of Twins Growing Up--2 Months, 5 Lbs. Each

By CHARLES SUTTON

When Mrs. Sylvester Fitterer of 6418 Keynote St. gave premature birth to twin girls May 26 at St. Mary's Hospital, her doctor told her to expect the worst.

One of the girls weighed only 2 pounds, 4 ounces, the other 1 pound, 12 ounces. The smaller twin was believed to be the smallest ever delivered at St. Mary's.

"If they're over two pounds, we can often save them," explained Miss Helen Olivia Driscoll, head of the premature nursery at St. Mary's. "But less than that, well, it's almost impossible."

Saturday, the almost impossible was an inescapable fact.

The twins, all dressed up for the occasion in pretty yellow dresses, and each weighing over 5 pounds, lay in their parents' arms, ready to be taken home for the first time. There they were to be met by the Fitterers' three other children, also girls: Christine, 6, Marie, 4, and Carolyn, 3.

Oh, yes, the twins' names:

The smaller one, in whom the Fitterers had hope, is named, Patricia Hope. Her sister, for equally appropriate reasons, is named Celeste Faith.

Said Dad, smiling broadly, "So far, so good."

Western Lines Logs First Half Profit Gain

Western Air Lines recorded substantial gains in revenue passenger miles and net profits in the first six months of 1966 over the comparable period last year, according to J. Judson Taylor, senior vice president and treasurer.

First-half profits this year were $6,102,000 or $1.42 a share, compared to $5,221,000 or $1.22 a share in the first half last year, the 1965 figures including $237,000 from sale of equipment.

June profits were $1,432,000 or 33 cents a share—a record for the month—compared to $1,028,000 or 24 cents a share for June of 1965. The former June record was $1,301,000, or 31 cents a share, in 1964.

Gain in revenue-passenger miles for the first six months of this year was 25.3% over the first half of 1965, Taylor said.

Analysts Puzzling Over Slide by Stock Averages

By JOHN J. ABELE
New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Stock market analysts had a new ball game to work with this week. The numbers on the scoreboard were plain but, as often happens, there was disagreement over what the score was.

The reason for the uncertainty was the drop of the market's two most closely watched indicators—the Dow-Jones Industrial and railroad averages—to new lows for the year.

Other leading market indicators such as the new composite index of the New York Stock Exchange, which measures price trends of all common stocks on the big board, and Standard & Poor's 500-stock index, dipped but did not set new lows. The Dow-Jones averages, however, still get most of the attention of the tape watchers.

The industrial average hit a 1966 low of 852.83 on Monday on a plunge of 16.32 points, the sharpest one-day slide since the assassination of President Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. It slipped a bit lower Tuesday, finishing at 852.17, almost 8 points below the earlier 1966 low of 864.14 on May 17.

* * * *

THE RAILROAD average missed a new low on Monday but hit one on Tuesday, when it dropped to 220.26. Its previous low for the year had been 220,54, also on May 17.

At the low, the industrial average was 14.4% below the year's high of 995.15 on Feb. 9 and the railroad average was 18.9% below the February high of 271.72.

To many market technicians, the simultaneous posting of new lows by the two averages represented a new bear market sign similar to that registered in May when they pierced their March lows. The market's technical weakness, they said, is being augmented by fundamental factors, such as the slowdown in the pace of economic expansion, the unusually tight money situation and the accompanying flight of interest rates, the financial crisis in Britain that has stirred fears of devaluation, and the uncertain outlook for corporate profits next year.

Meanwhile, the dwindling herd of Wall Street bulls began running up their "buying opportunity" flags. The market's slide, they said, had amply discounted many of the gloomy factors confronting the economy.

* * * *

THE OPTIMISTS ALSO pointed to the string of favorable second-quarter reports upholding earlier projections that corporate earnings this year would be about 10% higher than in 1965.

Translated into terms of the Dow-Jones industrial averages, this means that aggregate share earnings of the 30 major corporations whose stocks are components of the average still are expected to total $60 this year, compared with $54 last year.

At this week's low of 852 on the Dow, the average was priced at slightly more than 14 times the expected 1966 profits. This week's low was 12 points higher than the 1965 low of 840, when the Dow-Jones industrials were priced at 15.5 times their 1965 learnings. At the bottom of the sharp price break in 1962, the industrials were priced at 14.7 times estimated earnings.

While price-earnings ratios are relatively low on the basis of expected 1966 results, the big queston confronting the market is the course of profits in 1967. Wall Street analysts are making tentative forecasts but the over-all picture is still hazy.

* * * *

THE MAJOR IMPONDERABLE is the war in Viet Nam. It is the principal factor putting a squeeze on the nation's economy and is in large part responsible for the inflationary pressures, spiraling interest rates and the possibility of an income tax increase next year.

"Viet Nam has become the dominating factor in American life today," Heinz H. Biel, a partner of Emanuel, Deetjen & Co., wrote in a market letter this week. "Policy decisions will have a vital bearing on our economy and, consequently, on our stock market. Sooner or later a determination will have to be made whether to quit or to fight a war to win."

Biel concluded: "Pending a clear-cut policy decision whether to terminate or escalate, a general stock market prognosis is impossible. Under such circumstances investors have no alternative but to continue a conservative course and maintain a sizable reserve position."

Highway Perils Cumberland Gap

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Kentucky Highway Commissioner Henry Ward says he is confident that a tunnel will be built to save historic Cumberland Gap from the devastation of a road-widening project.

Ward gave his view after a conference with federal highway officials. He is seeking federal funds to help build the tunnel, rather than widen the highway now running through the gap, which was the route taken by Daniel Boone leading families west.

Sees No Peace

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville of France ended three days of talks with Hungarian Communist leaders Saturday expressing pessimism about chances for settlement of the Viet Nam conflict and the German problem.

FPC Gas-Rate Refunds Staggering to Producers

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Power Commission has removed any doubt about its determination to enforce a natural gas rate refund policy highly obnoxious to most independent producers.

It also was obnoxious to Commissioner Lawrence J. O'Connor Jr., who found himself on the short end of votes that made the policy the order of the day. The Texan charged that consumers will benefit scarcely at all while the impact upon producers could be "staggering."

The policy — now twice reaffirmed — was established last June 1 in a Skelly Oil Co. case. It covers temporary FPC sales certificates issued to producers but without specific refund provisos.

* * * *

THE COMMISSION majority, backed by the Supreme Court, held that whenever a producer violates the FPC's in-line sales price for interstate gas in any field, he must refund the overcharge, whether or not his certificate had a refund clause. There are some exceptions involving royalties and state taxes.

This has now been nailed down by two new 4 to 1 votes, with O'Connor the lone dissenter. The cases involved producers in Texas districts Nos. 3 and 4, including H. L. Hawkins and H. L. Hawkins Jr.; Continental Oil Co.; Jonnell Gas, Inc., and Blanco Oil Co.

Basis of the policy is that the commission is bound by law to force refunds when a producer falls to prove they are unjust. "The overriding purpose of the natural gas act," the majority said, "is protection of the consuming public, as the courts emphasized time and time again."

* * * *

THE PRODUCERS argued among other things that the commission was ignoring companywide costs in cases where one particular producing property may be losing money and hence there was no money for refund.

Sales affected took place before and after Sept. 28, 1960, when the FPC put all producing areas under temporary price ceilings — what it called in-line prices.

The commission deferred ordering refunds, pending its Skelly decision. The Skelly case grew out of a 1954 legal test in which the District of Columbia Court of Appeals held that the FPC was on solid legal ground. The Supreme Court agreed. Even before this, however, the commisison had made a similar ruling in an Amerada Petroleum Corp. case.

* * * *

IN ONE of its newest orders, the commission warned all producers against trying to evade the policy. It said they had had ample time since February 1964 to know and understand it and thus should have taken steps to protect themselves when refunds were ordered.

O'Connor, obviously angry, blasted his colleagues for using the Skelly case as a precedent. He charged they had disregarded a previous Sunray Mid-Continent Oil Co. case in which the 10th U.S. Circuit Court at Salt Lake City held that a producer had the right to know the conditions under which his gas would be sold, "so he might make an intelligent decision whether to accept a certificate."

O'Connor said the commission majority should now hold its fire until the Supreme Court reconciles the conflicting court edicts. He had dissented in part from the Skelly decision.

AS THINGS now stand O'Connor declared, the benefits to consumers will be small "but the impact upon the producer and upon his operations will, in many instances, be staggering." He added that it was clear the majority "had committed an error" in accepting the Skelly dictum as the controlling precedent.

The majority response was that the Sunray case had no legal bearing on its latest orders.

Queen Mother Nears 66, Wonders If It's a Spoof

By MARGARET SAVILLE

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth the queen mother will be 66 on Thursday, but can't quite believe it.

"Have I really lived that long?" she asked recently.

She has the same trouble with other people. She never forgets the dates of their birthdays but never remembers their actual ages.

But then she's always been a bit hazy about time. Strict punctuality was never her strong point.

One thing is sure. A lot of people will be remembering her birthday. For this spry widow, affectionally called "the queen mum" by her people, is one of the most popular members of the British royal family.

* * * *

SHE WILL GET flowers from around the world because of her love of gardening. She will get presents from her children, Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret, and her six grandchildren. The Queen's husband, Prince Philip, and their daughter, Princess Anne, will leave their packages and cards behind before flying out to Jamaica for the Commonwealth Games.

Normally she enjoys excellent health apart from a bout of influenza every so often. She still tells people her emergency appendicitis operation last year "came as a tremendous surprise to me."

* * * *

IT FORCED postponement until last spring of a seven-week tour of Australia, New Zealand and Fiji.

The trip was typical of the busy life she leads at an age when others might think of retirement.

Since she was widowed in 1952 through the death of King George VI she has made official visits to 19 countries, going to some of them twice.

She is president, patron or has some other connection with 300 various organizations, including hospitals, charities and education foundations.

Whenever she is in London she usually has three or four public engagements a week.

She has lived since the death of her husband at Clarence House, a stone's throw from Buckingham Palace, and she also has a weekend country place up the Thames at Windsor.

* * * *

BUT THE PALACE she loves to go to get a bit of seclusion is her castle of Mey on the wild northeast coast of Scotland. There she can follow one of her favorite hobbies—fishing.

August calendar filled with colorful events

Visitors and residents in Southern California in August will be treated to outrigger canoe races, a zany boat parade, a mile-high burro derby, Spanish and Li'l Tokyo festivals, a beach sand sculpture contest and an old gold town celebration.

The All Year Club, which issues a calendar of colorful events in its work of building the area's billion-dollar tourist business, reported that some 32 events, day and night, will stretch over the 10 days of the Sports and Arts Festival at Santa Monica Aug. 19 to 28. Women as well as men will paddle in outrigger canoe races that will draw a team from Hawaii. Youngsters will compete in sand sculpture. There will be a six-mile walking race.

About 50 zany boats will sail in the Character Boat Parade at Newport Harbor Aug. 27. A typical Character Boat is Edgar Bergen's SS Poopalong: purple cabin, ivy growing up the antenna, elderly steam engine with a shrieking whistle.

* * * *

WEARY wranglers and their unruly burros will race 43 miles around the valley at Big Bear Lake during the Old Miners Days, Thursday through next Sunday, celebrating the time when a gold strike opened up this mile-high resort land.

Santa Barbara will hold its Old Spanish Days Fiesta during the full of the moon, Wednesday through Sunday. The historical parade brings out some of the most colorful costumes in the nation and there will be a second costumed parade for youngsters.

Japanese lanterns will light up the Li'l Tokyo section of downtown Los Angeles for the Nisei Week Festival Aug. 13 to 21. There will be judo tournaments, a Cha-No-You tea ceremony and a colorful Ondo parade of several hundred kimona-clad dancing girls.

* * * *

AN OLD-TIME Mining Celebration will be held Aug. 27 and 28 at Randsburg with a miner's hard rock drilling race and gold panning. Randsburg, where the Yellow Aster mine gave up $16 million in gold, looks like a movie set mining town.

The Farmer's Daughter contest at the Farmers Fair at Hemet Aug. 17 to 21 will bea beauty contest — and more. Five pretty girls will compete nightly in a different farm task such as milking, sewing, baking, tractor driving, and a surprise climax such as wall papering or dressing out a chicken.

Santa Paula will hold its annual Art Exhibit Aug. 10 to 14 for the 30th year. It is unique in that prize oils and water colors are bought by the Chamber of Commerce and school districts to be added to a growing permanent collection.

Services Set Tuesday for Teacher at Wilson

Services for a Wilson High School teacher who once played football with the New York Giants will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday at Mottell's Mortuary.

Gerald Dennerlein, 50, of 56 59th Place, teacher in the Long Beach Unified School District since 1949, died Friday.

He was graduated from Los Angeles city schools in 1931 and earned his B.A. at St. Mary's College in 1937. Then for three years he played left tackle for the Los Angeles Bulldogs and New York Giants.

Dennerlein earned his master's in history in 1940 and his doctorate in education in 1958 at USC.

Before coming to Long Beach he spent several years in elementary school administrative positions, including principal, at Elsinore, Azusa, Bakersfield and other Southern California cities.

Dennerlein taught at Poly High School 11 years before coming to Wilson, where he taught senior problems.

In 1957 the "How America Lives" series in Ladies Home Journal featured an article on the Dennerleins and their Peninsula home titled "There's More Fun Than Money in Teaching."

He was a member of the National Education Association and the Alamitos Bay Community Interest Association.

Dennerlein is survived by his widow, Rosellen, three married daughters, Mrs. Darlene Clayton, Mrs. Carol Wood and Mrs. Katherine Kershner; his mother, Mrs. Hazel Whan; a brother, Don, and a sister, Mrs. Darlene Marosewski.

The family requests contributions be sent to the Heart Fund.

GERALD DENNERLEIN

De-Cased the Joint

A burglar took six cases of soft drinks worth $16 from a storeroom at Charlie's Restaurant, 5705 Atlantic Ave., early Saturday, Long Beach police said.

Caustic Kills Infant Boy

A baby boy died Saturday after a 16-day illness caused by what Orange County coronor's deputies said was a "caustic substance."

The San Clemente infant, James Anthony Thomas, only 22 days old, succumbed at Children's Hospital at Orange.

An autopsy disclosed burns on his mouth, throat and stomach, the coroner's office said, adding that it was unable to determine the nature of the "caustic substance" and has ordered an examination.

San Clemente police said the child's mother, Antonia, 24, was placed under a physician's care after the child died. The illness of the infant caused the Marine Corps to return the father, James S. Thomas, from Viet Nam. The family home is at 1607 N. El Camino Real, San Clemente.

Police said they also are conducting an investigation.

Navy Man Wounded Near Arena

A Navy man was shot and seriously wounded Saturday by two men who, he said, tried to rob him on the beach at the rear of the Long Beach Arena.

Eligio R. Fchuique, 33, a radio man aboard the USS Long Beach, was in good condition on the hospital ship Haven after doctors treated him for bullet wounds in the right shoulder and upper left leg.

* * * *

FCHUIQUE, WHO lives at 25528 Doble Ave., Harbor City, told police he was shot when he ran from two men in their late 20's who had tried to rob him at 12:15 a.m.

He told officers he was able to reach Ocean Boulevard, half a block away, where he hailed a taxi cab which took him to the dispensary at Long Beach Naval Station.

A Navy ambulance took him from the dispensary to the Haven, where he underwent surgery.

Clothing Stolen

Clothing valued at $195 was taken Saturday from a car owned by Robert S. Colburn, 1056 W. 187th Place, Gardena, while parked in a lot at Artesia Boulevard and Orange Avenue, Long Beach police said.

Fuller Brush Man Robbed

A Fuller Brush Co. salesman was left without samples Saturday after a thief took three boxes of brushes and other supplies worth $300 from the trunk of his car.

The victim, Clayton R. Carson, 31, of 4117 E. 2nd St., told police his car was broken into while parked in front of his home.

If routine bores you — consider becoming an IBM Customer Engineer

Because here's a position that has as much variety as it does responsibility. You're at the center of a vital service performed by the fast-growing industry of electronic computers and associated equipment, you keep studying and developing throughout your career. There's no boredom in a job like that!

What is it like to join the IBM company as a Customer Engineer? You enter an IBM training program (with full pay). Later, you assume responsibility for your own territory, where you install and service data processing systems. You work with customers in business, industry, science, education or government. You get an in-depth view of one or more of these fields while representing IBM.

Interesting? Yes, and just as there are virtually no limits to what computers can do — your opportunities for a long-range professional career with IBM would be unlimited, too. Go as far as your abilities take you!

What do you need? A mathematical aptitude plus a good knowledge of basic electronics. A minimum of two years' technical education or recent electronics experience — military or civilian. A knack for meeting and getting along with people. If you qualify, you may find yourself in a fascinating job with lots of built-in educational benefits.

If you would like a position with unlimited variety, call for an appointment (Days—Evenings—Saturdays).

THE SPACE AND INFORMATION SYSTEMS DIVISION
NORTH AMERICAN AVIATION has immediate openings in the following fields:

ENGINE LATHE OPERATOR
Make complete set-up and operate various types and sizes of engine lathes to machine parts to close tolerances. Improvise set-ups and lay out reference lines and center points as required. Perform turning, facing, drilling, boring, grooving, threading and machining angles and radii.

MILLING MACHINE OPERATOR
Set up and plan sequence of machine operations to obtain required finishes and tolerances to minimize the amount of machining. Will work from blue prints, design prints and sketches. Perform variable and non-repetitive tooling, holding tolerances on multiple and compound angles and contours.

MOLDED PLASTIC TOOLING BUILDER
Develope, layout and fabricate plastic tooling by the casting and laminating processes. Will work from tool masters, plaster, form dies, tool and engineering drawings and sketches as well as verbal instructions.

PATTERN MAKER—PLASTER
Fabrication of all types of plaster patterns. Will involve the transferring of trim and reference lines by taking casts from master plaster or wood patterns, for dies, compound angles and double curvatures. Will involve the mixing of plaster, plaster and saturated hemp application to prepared framework. Set up and fabricate wood and steel frames and forms for making plaster patterns and mockups.

TOOL AND DIE MAKER
Make holding fixtures, drill jigs and pierce and blank dies. Requires close tolerances and coordinated dimensions with master tools. Will work from tool design prints, engineering drawings and sketches.

TOOL MAKER
Will determine sequence of operations for fabrication of assembly jigs and fixtures. Coordination of tool holes and reference points in parallel plane or planes. Will supply information not on prints.

UTILITY MAN—TOOLING
Will obtain materials, tools and required equipment for tool makers. Will move and position materials, parts, tooling and equipment as directed. Will also prepare details for welding by clamping in noted locations. Will be necessary to rough cut materials to required size using hand or power saws. Will stamp tooling by hand or install number plates for identification.

To explore these positions, please apply in person to L. G. Penny, General Applicant Lobby, 12830 South Clark Street (1 block south of Imperial Highway), Downey, California.

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to sex, race, creed, color or national origin.

If you want a soft 9 to 5 job . . .

DON'T ANSWER THIS AD

But if you are presently earning $5500-$8000 per year and feel stymied, take a look at a most unusual opportunity with McDonald's, the nation's largest carry-out restaurant chain.

You may think at first—"Who, me, work in a drive-in?"—but look at the facts! In just 12 years we have grown to be the nation's largest chain with 1965 sales over 170 million dollars.

Our continued expansion in Orange County has created openings for several mature men over 25, capable of becoming managers within 6 months to a year.

Manager's salary starts at $7800 per year. Training salaries range from $5000 to $7000 per year. Excellent fringe benefits include full insurance and profit-sharing.

A Message to Advertisers!

THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE

READ THE WANT ADS EVERY DAY!

Among the large audience there is bound to be somebody who wants the things you have to offer. That person is not going to spend time, effort, money or gasoline to find out details of your proposition UNLESS you have worded your message so that it interests him. A few more words may mean a lot more dollars in your pocket . . . remember that when you place your next advertisement.

The next time you call an ad taker to place a Want Ad in the Independent, Press-Telegram, stop and consider this. You are about to spend some money for an advertisement and you want to get the utmost in results. To accomplish this your ad should tell ALL the details about the things you are trying to accomplish. Be sure you don't make any of the following errors that frequently prevent results . . .

DON'T OMIT THE ADDRESS!
Many out of town readers will write you but will not spend money for a long distance call.

DON'T OMIT THE PHONE NUMBER!

DON'T USE BLIND BOX NUMBERS!
Avoid them at all costs. They are difficult to answer. It is more convenient to phone.

DON'T LEAVE HOME ON DAYS OTHERS MIGHT ANSWER YOUR AD!

DON'T OMIT WORDS THAT WOULD TEND TO INCREASE THE NUMBER OF RESPONSES.

DON'T CONCEAL THE PRICE DESIRED!
Surveys show that many people will not answer an ad unless the price is given.

DO GIVE YOUR AD SOME THOUGHT BEFORE CALLING!

DO RUN YOUR AD MORE THAN ONE DAY!
Not all of our readers are home every day. Just the person who wants what you are offering may not see your ad until the 9th or 10th time it runs.

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

Marion Davisson is a busy, active Realtor who, although born in Kansas City, Mo., has lived in Long Beach since the age of four. This is her 20th year in real estate, and she has been a member of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors since 1955.

Through the years, she has been active on board committees, served as director one year, served as state director of the California Real Estate Association for six years, and was in charge of the women's division of the local board for one year. She has served on Realette Toastmistress, Wire Club (Women in Real Estate) and was the first woman Realtor in Long Beach to handle exclusive listings on own-your-own buildings. Her newest in this line is Redondo Manor, at 3401 E. 1st, built by Raymond Gayton.

In private life, Marion is Mrs. Clarence R. Dale, residing at 2110 Florida. She has a son, Warren, of Torrance; two daughters, Mrs. Dan Daniels of Long Beach and Mrs. Richard Cain of Cincinnati, and 3 grandchildren.

THERE WILL NEVER BE A BETTER TIME

TO BUY A HOME

You Will Pay a Lot More in Just a Few Months

It is estimated that increasing labor and materials costs are adding about $1,000 per year to the price of a $20,000 house. And costs are sure to increase faster in the near future. Thousands of families from other areas are coming to Southern California every month. They are looking for places to live and you have to compete with them in increasing numbers. And available land for building homes is shrinking fast. These things plus increasing interest rates point to one conclusion . . . buy that home now.

The longer you wait, the more you will pay.

And remember. A house is a good hedge against inflation. The house you own can only increase in value as other prices go up. You're protected.

In the pages of this Classified Section you will find the best in home values. Consult them now. And do something about it. Buy that home now and save money.

4-2 OVER WEST GERMANY

England Rules World of Soccer

WEMBLEY, England (UPI) — Geoff Hurst scored twice in overtime to complete a rare three-goal "hat trick" Saturday that gave England a 4-2 victory over West Germany for the 1966 World Cup soccer championship.

Hurst, who tallied England's first goal of the game early in regulation time, took a pass from Alan Ball at the 10-minute mark of a 30-minute extra session and scored on a 10-yarder that broke a 2-2 tie.

The English scoring star uncorked a left-footed kick in the waning seconds of overtime for the insurance tally.

* * * *

A PARTISAN crowd of 97,000, including Queen Elizabeth, applauded the English squad for a full half-hour after the game as England celebrated its first World Cup.

An estimated 400 million others watched the action live on television. The game was beamed to the United States on tape by the Early Bird satellite.

Germany scored first in the battle between defensive giants played on a field made soggy by 48 hours of rain.

Helmut Haller's scorching kick to the left corner caught English goalie Gordon Banks out of position in the 12th minute of play. Hurst tied it six minutes later and England went in front 2-1 on Martin Peters' goal with 13 minutes to go in the game.

With a minute left, Germany received a free kick from 10 yards outside the penalty area. Lothar Emmerich booted the ball toward the goal, where it was blocked by Roger Hunt and in the ensuing scramble, Wolfgang Weber kicked it home from point blank range to tie the score at 2-2 and send a title game into overtime for only the second time since 1930.

Ball started the English attack that produced the winning goal. He drove down the right sideline and passed to Hurst, who slammed in a shot from 10 yards out that hit the crossbar, bounced over the goal line and then caromed out.

West Germany protested mildly. Referee Gotteried Dienst of Switzerland conferred with linesman Tofik Bakhramov of Russia and the English goal was upheld.

* * * *

THE GERMANS went all out in an attempt to tie the game again, but the toil of going through qualifying rounds, which England was exempted from as host nation, and struggling past some of the greatest teams in the world was just too much for the visitors.

The victory was worth 22,000 pounds ($1,600) in special bonuses to the English team. Each German collected his normal international match pay of 23 pounds ($64.40).

English captain Bobby Moore received the Jules Rimet Cup from Queen Elizabeth, kissed it and passed the trophy on to his teammates.

The Germans were forgotten and the estimated 18,000 German fans in the stands were silent.

Moore, who stars for the West Ham squad, was selected most valuable player over Portugal's Eusebio, the tournament high scorer and pre-tournament favorite to win the award.

Luck o' Cards (Pitching, Too) Beats Dodgers

By GEORGE LEDERER
Staff Writer

ST. LOUIS—With a little bit of luck, the Cardinals are moving right up.

Larry Jaster thought he was lucky to have shut out the Dodgers Friday night for the third time in a row.

Saturday, it was Al Jackson who attributed his six-hit, 3-1 victory over the Dodgers to a little luck.

The game attracted a sellout crowd of 47,770, largest to see a regular-season contest in St. Louis.

"I think my luck has changed," said the little lefthander, whose record with the Mets last season was 8-20. With the Cardinals, who have moved from seventh to fourth by winning six in a row and 12 of 13, Jackson has won 11 and lost 8.

Jackson suffered through nine defeats by the Dodgers before he registered his first victory against them last season, a three-hit, 1-0 decision over Claude Osteen. Now he's won three of his last four against the world champions and the loss was via an unearned run.

Dick Stuart drove in the run Saturday with a first-inning infield hit, the only earned Dodger run against Jackson in the last 33 innings.

Walter Alston concurred with the lucky label. Although the Dodgers were restricted to six hits, two by Stuart and two by Tommy Davis, he thought they "hit the ball hard. I thought we looked terrible at the plate Friday, but we hit some shots against Jackson. The trouble was they were caught."

Lou Johnson hit three line drives, but only one fell in, for a double in the third inning. Johnson was left at second. Willie Davis also hit the ball hard three times and had to settle for one hit in four chances.

The Dodgers, who remained 1½ games behind the league-leading Pirates, collected three of their hits in the first inning. W. Davis led off with a single, advanced as Jackson wild-pitched and scored on Stuart's two-out single off third baseman Charlie Smith's glove.

T. Davis' follow-up single was wasted as Jim Lefebvre fouled out. Lefebvre started for the first time since Sunday when he jammed his right shoulder.

Only two other Dodgers reached second base, Johnson in the third and T. Davis in the seventh. T. D. lined into the game-ending double play after Stuart singled again in the ninth.

Don Sutton (9-8) started for the Dodgers and took his first loss of the month. He allowed all eight Cardinal hits and left after Mike Shannon and Smith singled to start the sixth.

Joe Moeller and Phil Regan were perfect in relief, but the damage had been done early.

Sutton gave up two runs in the first inning and Lou Brock's 11th home run wrapped it up in the fifth. Brock had three for the second night in a row and has eight in last three games. He also stole his 41st base to go 10 up on Maury Wills.

Brock singled in the first inning and Tim McCarver followed with a tying triple. Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly made it 2-1. Cepeda's hitting streak ended at 13 games.

Jackson concentrated on his fast ball, as did Jaster the night before.

"No," said Jackson, "I wouldn't call the Dodgers a curve ball-hitting club. They've got some good fast ball hitters who can knock it out of the park, but the secret is in getting the ball in the right spots."

Although he didn't walk a man, Jackson thought his control was a bit off. "I might have thrown harder than in L.A., but I didn't make as many good pitches."

The Dodgers thought he made enough.

Rookie Steve Carlton (0-0) will be third lefthander to start against the Dodgers in the concluding game of the series this afternoon. He will be opposed by Claude Osteen (12-8).

Dick Stuart singled twice and drove in only run as Dodgers lost to Cardinals, 3-1.

CHANCE BACK ON BEAM WITH SEVEN-HITTER

Angels Nudge Tribe in 9th

SUNDAY, JULY 31, 1966 PAGE D-1

By ROSS NEWHAN

History illustrates that Dean Chance is always a winner after the All-Star game. Students of history were beginning to suspect that might mean the Pro Bowl.

However, Chance set them right Saturday night with a dazzling seven-hitter which included 10 strikeouts and which evolved into a 2-1 victory over Cleveland on Tom Satriano's ninth-inning single.

This left California only one percentage point removed from second place Detroit. That the Angels remain 13½ games removed from the top rung seemed of little concern to 27,922 fans at the Big A as they left on Cloud Nine following Anaheim's ninth-inning cloud-burst.

It washed out a five-hitter by Gary Bell and rewarded Chance (8-12) with his first victory in four starts since the All-Star recess.

Yet, the statistics show that Dean has allowed only three runs in his last 24 innings.

"This is the closest he's been to 1964," said catcher Bobby Rodgers.

That was the year Chance won the Cy Young Award. In the intervening 18 months he has been just plain sigh, and one of the reasons for poor start if that's what you can call 17 weeks this season deals with size.

"Tonight was the first time this year the mound has been up to its right level," offered Chance. "My fast ball was finally sinking — just as it did in '64."

One is left with a sinking feeling when Dean attempts to build a mountain out of a mound's hill as he did be-

ANGEL OF DAY

DEAN CHANCE pitched seven-hitter, struck out 10 as Angels nipped Cleveland 2-1.

Bucs Squelched by Phillies, 4-1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Richie Allen hit a two-run homer as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the National League-leading Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 Saturday behind the five-hit pitching of Larry Jackson.

The victory snapped the Phillies' losing streak at five games.

Jackson, notching his 10th victory against nine losses, gave up only a run in the fourth when Manny Mota walked, advanced to second on Willie Stargell's line out and came across on Donn Clendenon's single.

Allen's homer, his 24th, scored John Briggs, who opened the fifth with a single, lifted the Phils to a 3-1 lead.

Philadelphia added a run in the sixth when Dick Groat doubled, went to third on a ground out and scored on John Callison's single.

Woody Fryman suffered his sixth defeat against eight victories. It is the second time this season that the Pirate rookie has lost three successive games after winning four straight.

He gave up the Phillies first run in the fourth inning by walking Bill White with the bases loaded.

Sky Gipsy Outduels Gelbart at Del Mar

By ERNIE MASON

DEL MAR — Sky Gipsy II, a feisty gamester from the Auld Sod, dug in tenaciously in the stretch to narrowly defeat determined Harry Gelbart in the $16,200 Oceanside Handicap before 16,456 onlookers Saturday.

Providing jockey Donald Pierce with his third victory of the afternoon, the handsome Irish-bred colt tallied by a head in a quick 1:09⅖ for six furlongs. Two lengths back of runnerup Harry Gelbart was Embassy, with the filly Fleet Treat fourth in the band of eight 3-year-olds.

Couple O' Quid, the 2-1 favorite under jockey Don Ross, who had announced his retirement earlier in the day, was eased when he went lame on the far turn. Ri Tux top weighted at 122 pounds, was fifth.

Harry Gelbart, a well-backed 5-2 with Jerry Lambert in the boot, showed the way in the first few strides, but was soon engaged by Sky Gipsy who rushed up between horses under Pierce's guidance.

Sky Gipsy slowly edged ahead of his rival and then clung to that margin to the wire. Sky Gipsy II, who packed 113 pounds to 116 for Harry Gelbart, paid $8.40, $3.60 and $3.20. Harry Gelbart returned $3.60 and $2.80 and Embassy returned $4.20.

In an attractive supporting feature on the nine-race card, Mustard Plaster got up in the final strides to whip High Perch and Old Mose in a thrilling finish.

Mustard Plaster, all-time leading Washington-bred money-winner, charged from last place to capture the mile event over Del Mar's turf course.

Raul Caballero won two races on the card, accounting for the opener on Tassie for a $32..20 payoff and the fourth on Lonesome Boy for a $12 mutuel. The daily double paid $226.20.

With a total handle of $1,487,562 and a fine turnout, Del Mar enjoyed the best opening Saturday in its 27-year history.

Who Says Youth Is Just for Young

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . If you feel you're not getting enough exercise, Howard Barnes, 41, president of the Seniors Track Club (20 Bay Shore Walk), has a solution: join his group. Howard himself runs 78 miles a week—10 miles five days weekly and 14 miles twice a week (from his Belmont Shore residence to Roosevelt Jr. High in COMPTON). Membership is available to all gents over 40.

. . . Newest club member is Fred Grace of Los Angeles. Fred is 68 and runs about 85 miles per week! Grace has a pattern, too: He trots eight miles Monday and Thursday, 10 miles Tuesday and Friday, 12 miles Wednesday, and 15, 20 or 26 miles (the last the Olympic marathon distance) on Saturdays and Sundays. He runs in parks, playgrounds and on school grounds. You and I should be in such shape as Fred. He's 5-2, weighs 125 and can press 135 pounds. He's done 1,800 pushups in groups of 25, with a 30-second break between each 25. His next goal is 3,000 pushups . . . and at the age of 68 yet! Do you feel as inadequate as I now?

. . . Louisville's draft board might think it has trouble keeping track of Cassius Clay, but Long Beach's Ollie Brown must run him a close second. The former Poly High baseball star missed several exhibition games this spring in order to switch his National Guard assignment from Tacoma (last year's Giants' farm club) to Phoenix (the Giants' current PCL farm unit). Ollie said that if he made the Giant varsity he'd have to switch to the San Francisco board. He made the varsity and then switched boards again. Then Ollie was sent back down to Phoenix, necessitating another change. He was recalled two weeks ago by the Giants and Operation Switch was on again. I wonder when the poor kid finds time to play baseball?

. . . Bob McCallum of Lakewood Kiwanis reports that it pays to advertise. In a recent item here we reported that a young lady was having trouble securing decent Dodger seats, even at the $3.50 box seat rate. Bob contacted the damsel and satisfied her request, courtesy of Kiwanis.

FROM JOHN HERBOLD, the Poly High coach, Angel scout and subject of an interesting Time magazine article: "Merrill Smith, who operates Smith's Concessions at Blair Field, out of his own pocket bought 10 baseballs for each of the teams that utilizes the field. He really helped us (Long Beach Blues' Connie Mack team) finish the year—ballwise—although it came as a complete surprise. He just handed each team 10 new baseballs and took off, not pausing for thanks. Blair is a great field, but you sure lose a lot of balls there. I think Legion, Colt and Connie Mack all benefited from his generosity. I know that our club alone uses about 10 dozen balls a summer."

. . . Speaking of Blair Field, Chicago Cub captain Ron Santo still recalls the first time Leo Durocher met with the club there in spring training. He continually tells writers throughout the country that Leo's first remark, as printed in our newspapers, was this: "If you don't like the way I do things, that's where you should go." Leo then pointed to the door. The way the Cubs are progressing, maybe most of the Cubbies now wish they had accepted the offer.

. . . Bob Von Eps, former Poly catcher and now with the White Sox Appleton (Wisconsin) Foxes, was named most valuable player in the Mid-West League All-Star game, yet ended up in the hospital the same night. While going for a pop foul, Bob landed on his side, suffered a kidney injury and was to be sidelined at least 10 days. P.S. Bob made the catch.

WALTER O'MALLEY'S response, when asked if he didn't agree that there were symptoms that pro football is outstripping baseball (i.e. the networks pay tremendous sums to football, while baseball almost had to beg to put across its package deal): "I would say those are observations of people who have become a little bit older, a little bit sicker, and a little bit tired of writing and asking questions about sports." When you question O'Malley don't expect him NOT to pull out all the stops.

. . . 'Twas a sad day this past week when the news flashed over the wires about Tony Lema's untimely death. This writer's introduction to Lema came during the now-famed Orange County Open when Tony acquired the internationally - known "champagne" tag. A happy-go-lucky sort, Tony was the consternation of many pro golfers. They couldn't understand why he didn't get upset like the rest of them. Tony's attitude should be a lesson to all of us.

. . . On the other hand, there's Arnold Palmer, a popular golfer who has been known to blow up on several occasions. Fellow linksters are always twitting Arnie about the time he spends tinkering and tooling his clubs. "If he had to charge himself for the time he spends working on his clubs," once said Doug Sanders, "he'd go bankrupt." Aussie Peter Thomson put it more bluntly: "He's always beating on his bloomin' clubs . . . it drives a man bloody crazy."

. . . An area auto racing source reveals that Graham Hill, winner of the Indianapolis "500," was only the THIRD choice driver for owner John Mecom. No. 1 was John Surtees, who cracked up last September in Canada. No. 2 was Walt Hansgen, who was killed at Le Mans. Mecom reluctantly settled for Hill, the veddy British fellow who romped home with the whole ball of wax.

Boswell Puts Brakes on Orioles, 7-0

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Dave Boswell allowed only one hit—Russ Snyder's leadoff single in the seventh inning — as the Minnesota Twins crushed the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles, 7-0, Saturday.

Boswell, a 21-year-old native of Baltimore, walked the game's leadoff batter, Luis Aparicio, then retired 18 in a row before Snyder started the seventh by rapping a single to right field.

Boswell then struck out Frank Robinson for the third time, got Brooks Robinson on a grounder as Snyder moved to second and ended the inning by fanning Boog Powell.

Boswell struck out 11 in all and took over the league lead from Washington's Pete Richert with a total of 149.

The victory for the young right - hander was his sixth straight and gave him a 10-5 mark over-all.

Earl Battey, Boswell's battery mate, hit a three - run homer in the fifth, and Harmon Killebrew hit his 22nd homer in the seventh after Tony Oliva singled.

Braves Club S.F. Twice--6-5, 15-2

ATLANTA (AP)—Gene Oliver slammed three homers Saturday night, driving in seven runs and powering Atlanta to a 15-2 whipping of San Francisco, the Braves' third straight conquest of the Giants.

Atlanta also won the afternoon half of the day-night doubleheader, 6-5, in the 11th inning when Denis Menke singled home the winning run. The losses dropped the Giants into third place, 1½ games behind National League-leading Pittsburgh.

The twin bill turnout of 75,343 pushed Atlanta's attendance past the million mark to 1,031,526.

Oliver hit a pair of two-run homers off starter and loser Bob Priddy, and the reserve catcher slapped a single and a three-run blast off reliever Ray Sadecki.

Oliver, who now has six homers for the season, became the first Brave to hit three in one game since Hank Aaron did it in 1959.

Woody Woodward drove in four runs with three doubles and a single for Atlanta, which backed up Denny Lemaster's eight-hit pitching with a 20-hit attack.

Menke's winning single in the opener was off Lindy McDaniel, third Giant reliever in the 11th. The hit scored Rico Carty, who was walked by losing pitcher Frank Linzy.

Willie Mays' 24th homer of the year and the 529th of his career—a solo shot in the third—had given the Giants a 3-0 lead, and Ollie Brown drove in a run with a triple and scored on Hal Lanier's single in the sixth.

The Braves tied the score 3-3 in the fifth on Mack Jones' two-run homer and pulled into a 5-5 deadlock in the seventh on three singles and Hank Aaron's sacrifice fly.

The Braves wasted no time going to work on the Giants in the second game. They had already scored another run when Oliver hit his first homer and had four runs in the third and fourth innings when they had seven other hits in addition to Oliver's second homer.

Chisox Shut Out Yanks, 6-0

CHICAGO (UPI) — Left-hander Gary Peters pitched a three-hitter Saturday for his third shutout and his Chicago White Sox teammates scored in two-run clusters to beat the New York Yankees, 6-0.

It was the 14th shutout by White Sox pitchers and the 10th time the Yankees have been blanked.

Bobby Richardson and Mickey Mantle each singled and Clete Boyer doubled off Peters as he worked his seventh complete game for his seventh win, but no Yankee baserunner reached third and Peters faced only 29 batters throwing 75 pitches.

He gave up no walks and struck out three.

ONLY ORIOLE HIT 'CLEAN'—BOSWELL

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (AP)—Dave Boswell, 21-year-old Minnesota pitcher who manager Sam Mele says is the best young righthander in the American League, had no complaints Saturday after narrowly missing a no-hitter against league-leading Baltimore.

"It was a clean hit," Boswell said of Russ Snyder's single in the seventh inning. "It was a sinking fast ball, and he hit it good.

"Actually, it took the pressure off," added Boswell, who was born and reared in Baltimore.

"He's a good hitter, so I have no complaints about that. I just smiled to myself and thought how much I wanted to get the shutout."

It was the only hit Boswell allowed as the Twins won, 7-0.

Snyder said the pitch was "about belt-high and I got good wood on it."

Mele said Boswell defied tradition by talking in the dugout about having a no-hitter going.

"He was kidding on the bench about it," said Mele. "He's the best young righthander in the American League. When guys like Brooks Robinson and Al Kaline tell you he's got great stuff, you know he's good."

It was Boswell's first one-hitter in the major leagues.

Boswell had a mild complaint about an umpire's decision in the eighth when Dave Johnson was awarded first for being hit on the left arm with a pitch.

Mets Are Winners for July

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Mets were assured of their first winning month in their five-year history Saturday night when Dennis Ribant scattered nine hits, pitching a 6-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The victory was the 17th of the month for the Mets, against 15 defeats. They have just one game left this month. Dick Ellsworth suffered his 17th defeat for Cubs, giving up all six runs before being knocked out in the fifth.

The Mets picked up a pair of unearned runs in the first and second innings and finished Ellsworth with three runs in the fifth.

Bosox Stop Nat Streak

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Smith drove in three runs with a homer and double and George Scott belted a three-run homer as the Boston Red Sox whipped Washington 8-2 Saturday behind the six-hit pitching of Jose Santiago.

The victory snapped Boston's losing string at three and ended a four-game winning streak for the Senators.

Santiago did not permit a Washington runner past second base until the ninth in posting his 10th victory against seven losses. The Senators ended his shutout bid in the ninth on three singles and an infield out.

Reds Thump Astros, 5-1; 5th in Row

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds backed up Sammy Ellis' six-hit pitching with home runs by Vada Pinson and Deron Johnson to beat the Houston Astros, 5-1, Saturday and run their winning streak to five games.

Ellis' victory, his seventh against 14 losses, extended Houston's losing string to seven.

Pinson's homer, his ninth of the season, came off loser Mike Cuellar in the fourth inning with Tommy Harper aboard.

Singles by Pete Rose and Tommy Helms preceded Johnson's three-run homer off Claude Raymond in the eighth inning. The homer was Johnson's 13th of the season, tops for the Reds, and gave him 11 runs batted in during his last four games.

A's Rookie Odom Pitches, Bats Way Past Tigers, 2-1

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Johnny "Blue Moon" Odom, recalled from Mobile in the Southern League earlier this week, pitched two-hit ball for eight innings and batted in both runs in leading the Kansas City Athletics to a 2-1 win over the Detroit Tigers Saturday night.

The 21-year-old right hander gave up only two hits until the top of the ninth when he walked Jake Wood and was relieved by Joe Grzenda. Both those hits were off the bat of Orlando MacFarlane.

Odom struck out six and walked only three in recording his first major league victory since playing briefly with the A's in 1964. He pitched a one-hitter against Baltimore in 1964.

Nitehawks Lock Up Title Via 4-1 Win Over Anaheim

The Long Beach Nitehawks clinched the Western Softball Congress championships Saturday night as they defeated Anaheim, 4-1, at Pearson Park.

Cleo Goyette's home run in the sixth inning with John Hartsell aboard broke up a pitching duel between Don Sarno and Jack Randall.

Anaheim scored its lone run in the seventh when Mark Bailey reached first when a third strike got away from the catcher. Bailey advanced to second on an infield out, went to third on a run-down play and scored before time could be called.

The Hawks added two more runs in the eighth when Hartsell and Nick Hopkins crossed the plate.

Long Beach pounded out 11 hits off Randall and reliefer John Haagsma who entered the game in the ninth. Bob Osborn, Roger Hull, Hartsell and Bob Wills each collected two hits.

Anaheim could manage but four hits off Sarno.

The win gives the Hawks a 22-7 league record with one game to play Friday against Pomona at Park Ave. Field.

Casey's in Clover . . . and Silk Shorts, Too

NEW YORK (AP) — There stood Casey in a pair of white silk underpants decorated with the Mets' skyscraper emblem and the embroidered words, "Go, Go Mets."

"One of my birthday gifts," beamed Casey Stengel, a sprightly 76.

"How'd I look in the banner parade at Shea Stadium?"

It's back to the big city and one more brief baseball fling for the colorful, crease-faced character who won 10 pennants in 12 years as manager of the Yankees and then moved over to become a symbol of the game's losingest club.

He had to put on a Yankee uniform as manager of the American League Old-Timers in the exhibition preceding the Mets-Chicago Cubs game Saturday night — a show commemorating Casey's first year as All-Star manager in 1950—but closest to him was the Mets' symbol.

Casey left no doubt that the Mets also were closest to his affection despite his great success with the rich Yankees.

"Our club is moving now," he commented, referring to the Mets. "We had to start out with a bunch of old players, men who had made their mark with other clubs. Now we've got young men who are making a name for themselves as Mets.

"And the people love them — young people, old people, all kinds of people."

And the Yankees—why has their popularity faded?

"They fire their manager as soon as he wins a pennant," Stengel said. He himself was eased out of the Yankee organization and he was followed by Yogi Berra, fired after winning the American League pennant.

Casey, inducted earlier last week into baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., observed a quiet birthday with his wife, Edna, in their penthouse suite overlooking Central Park.

"I tell people who come up here that this is my plantation," Stengel said, looking out over the mid-Manhattan park. "I tell them all those people down there work for me."

Among his gifts, Casey was proudest of his fancy shorts, made up by the man who designs the scanty costumes for the Playboy Bunnies, and a special baseball bat inscribed with the towns and dates of Casey's career, starting with Kankakee, Ill., in 1910.

"At Kankakee, we used to ride street cars between towns," he recalled.

Telegrams and messages flowed into the apartment. Flowers were delivered. The phone rang almost constantly.

Stengel reinjured his hip at the All-Star game in St. Louis because of a pair of new shoes but he can still manage to walk without a cane.

"After the game, a radio man came up to me and stuck a microphone under my nose," Casey said, "I thought he was going to ask me about the game and that 108-degree temperature which had people dying.

"He said, 'Casey, what do you think of tight money?'

"I've got three banks—two in Glendale and one in North Hollywood — but I didn't want to get my nose into the financial stuff, so I said: 'Son, it seems to be they're putting a lot of copper in our quarters these days. My suggestion is—buy copper.'"

UNSCRUPULOUS SKULKER OF SCRIMMAGE DENIES 'HUT-HUT'

Bill George Figures He at Least Has Ram Job

"It's a job and I'm just tickled to death I've got one. Everybody loses a step every year they play, but with what I know about defense I feel that I can contribute." —Bill George of the Rams.

What's that? Bill George of the RAMS!

Not the notorious Bill George, the meanest midway monster of them all, that unscrupulous skulker of scrimmage, the heinous heathen of "hut-hut."

"That was a very odd thing," says George, indeed now a member of the Rams who can recall with pure objectivity but no little amusement his role in their bumblingest hour.

It was six years ago on the turf at Wrigley Field in Chicago. Bob Waterfield was then the Rams' coach, but that day it could have been the Marx Brothers.

Remarkably, they lost by only 34-27, but mention "hut-hut" to anybody involved and it seems much worse.

"The Rams were going on the first sound after they came out of the huddle," says George, then the Bears' middle linebacker, "and they weren't spending too much time in the huddle.

"Now, all our defenses were predicated on our getting in a huddle and going through the whole list of our defenses, and everybody hearing it. Well, the Rams were putting pressure on us coming in and out of their huddle so quick and going so quick on the line of scrimmage that we hardly had time to get in and out of our huddle.

"But, on the other hand, all our defenses were so set up that we could call any defense we had while standing on the line of scrimmage, and this is what happened.

"Now, they're going on the first sound and meantime I'm calling the defenses and they're going on MY sound, rather than on their quarterback's sound."

THE RAMS' quarterback was Bill Wade, who coincidentally, was to join the Bears two years later. His signal for the snap of the ball was a sharp "hut." The Rams, thrown into hopeless confusion, accused George of mimicking Wade's "hut-hut," effectively jamming their signals.

"It was nothing like a 'hut-hut,'" George says innocently. "One of our alerts I recall vividly was, 'Backs set.'

RICH ROBERTS

In other words, the backs come right out of the huddle and set down immediately, implying a quick count, and this is what we were trying to alert everybody for.

"I don't know how they interpreted it as 'hut-hut.' You could have said 'snake' and they would have gone.

"But the odd part was that, as many penalties as they got in that game, they never changed their cadence. They continued to go on the first sound. We were pretty successful with what we were doing, so we stayed with it."

Actually, George insists that defensive tackle Fred Williams was calling the defense for the Bears some of the time, "but I was the one who got all the blame for it."

The subject came up later when Wade joined the Bears.

"Yeah, he was bitter," George says, "but I said, 'Bill, if you were so bitter, why didn't you change your cadence? Why didn't you go on the third or fourth sound?' We couldn't change their game plan, but their game plan affected ours. Of course, we didn't have to adjust. They were the ones that should have adjusted."

YOU GET THE FEELING that George's departure from the Bears and owner-coach George Halas after 14 seasons puts no strain on the emotions.

"There's no question that I'll have a better shot here," he says. "If I hadn't come to the Rams I wouldn't have played this year. I would have quit.

"I wanted to play, but I wanted to play for a guy like George Allen. Personal reasons, mainly. I've known George for a number of years. I trust him. I have faith in him."

With the Bears, Bill says, "Coach Allen handled the entire defense. About the only thing coach Halas had to do with the defense was to come in occasionally to see if everything was running smoothly. Or if we lost, then we'd all catch hell."

"Of course, Clark Shaughnessy was originally the one who installed all the Bear defenses . . . the first man to start an all-out red dog, putting pressure on the quarterback, and oddly enough he's got the least amount of credit for it. This is before Allen came to the Bears and, in fact, a little bit of coach Shaughnessy's work is reflected in coach Allen, too."

At 35, George admits that "there's no doubt that I'm not quite as fast as I was, but speed is a great fallacy. It's great to have speed, but to have speed and not know what to do is utterly useless."

Nor does the pain and the pounding deter Bill's enthusiasm.

"I think I've had enough the past 14 years to hold me a while," he sighs, "but it never was easy to take. I never found it easy anywhere along the line to take a whack in the head."

WHEN HE DOES TIRE of whacks in the head, though, George has more comfortable ways of growing old.

"I have a selling job, and (Mike) Ditka, (Joe) Marconi and I have a miniature golf and driving range in Chicago. We have an ultra, ultra modern type of facility. I know it's cost us enough money, so it should be modern. It's doing very well.

"I also sell castings and gears. All I know about it is the castings are very hard and they're very expensive. I'm learning the business, actually. My name helps, of course, especially in a town like Chicago where they're so very much in back of the Bears."

However, George is no longer a Bear, and appears quite willing to accept it.

"That's all in the past," he says. "I'm with the Rams now. Maybe we can catch the Bears going on a quick count. And that's okay with me."

Keller, Coble Hurl Flyers to 19th District Legion Title

By GARY RAUSCH

Phil Keller and Mike Coble, a couple of all-round players, nearly did it all Saturday in pacing back-against-the-wall Flyers to the American Legion 19th District championship at Blair Field.

Keller hurled a four-hit, 1-0 shutout of Torrance in the vital first game and Coble stopped the Blues on six safeties in the nightcap, 3-2.

But their pitching was only half the story. Sharing the center field position and batting in the fifth and sixth spots, the ex-Wilson High duo scored all the Flyer runs and chipped in three singles and a double.

* * * *

THE VICTORIES hurl the Harbor League champions into Area playoffs against 23rd District titlist Magellan C. Mars at Blair Wednesday night (7:30).

Keller was in charge all the way in the opener. He struck out six, walked one and faced but 32 men, five over the minimum.

He had only two brief flings with danger. In the sixth he sandwiched two outs around an infield single then drilled opposing pitcher Bart Johnson on the first pitch. But Irl Davis tapped out meekly to end the threat.

* * * *

PINCH RUNNER Doug Jarvis replaced the singling Dan Graham to open the ninth. Johnson sacrificed Jarvis to second. With a 1-2 count on Davis, Jarvis took off for third but was gunned down by catcher Rob Sagehorn and Davis fanned on the next pitch.

The Flyers scored in the fourth. With one away, Coble, who had fanned with the bases loaded in the first, doubled inside the third base bag. A passed ball got him to third and stocky Larry DuRee plated him with a line shot through the hole at short.

Keller got the Flyers going in the second game, singling to left with one down in the second. Coble followed with a high chopper which Graham threw away, allowing Keller to score.

It was Keller starting things again in the fourth, walking and stealing second. Coble walked on four pitches and DuRee singled infield to load the bases. Davis plunked Pat Hopkins to force home Keller and Sagehorn rifled a long sacrifice fly to right, scoring Coble.

Coble, who hurled nine strong innings in Wednesday's 2-1 win over El Segundo, tired in the seventh and needed 43 pitches to get through the last three frames.

* * * *

TORRANCE loaded the bases on two singles and an infield error to begin the ninth. Coble blew over Davis on strikes but a force out at second ended the shutout.

Then Sagehorn's passed ball gave Torrance its second tally and Flyers coach Jack Graham "a near heart attack." Two pitches later Jarvis had walked and Gary Nesenson had been hit by a Coble fastball — loading the bases again.

Slick-fielding Bob Grich ended the rally, fielding a hot grounder and forcing Jarvis at third.

MILLER WINS 'EM BOTH

Salta Sweeps by La Mesa

Joe Miller, a standout all season, and Doug Stodgel, playing in only his second game, sparked Salta Pontiac's 3-1 and 9-3 doubleheader sweep of La Mesa Saturday in California Collegiate Baseball League action at Long Beach City College.

Miller threw only 102 pitches in notching his 10th win of the year, so he calmly went out and threw 50 more in five innings of the nightcap to rack up No. 11 and the league-leader's 19th against two losses.

Stodgel just joined the team last week but it didn't take him long to get warmed up. For the day, the second baseman went 5-for-5 with two runs batted in and another scored.

The CCBL's leading hitter, Rod Gasper, upper his .446 average with four singles, a double two runs scored, two RBI and a stolen base.

Barney Scholl put Salta ahead for keeps in the opener, singling to lead off the sixth, going to second on Mike Floyd's sacrifice, stealing third and romping home on an overthrow into left field.

Miller went out with a healthy lead in the second game thanks to a wild seven-run third. Successive singles by Gaspar (bunt), John McKee, Walt Weller, Floyd (bunt) and Rod O'Brien plus a wild pitch and passed ball netted four runs.

A walk to Dennis Parks Stodgel's single, an error and Gaspar's second safety of the frame pumped home the final three runs.

GIRL'S AAU TITLE IN DOUBT

MILLBRAE, Calif. (AP) — Teen-ager Denise Paschal of San Francisco outpointed defending women's pentathlon champion Pat Winslow Saturday at the Women's National AAU Pentathlon meet in Millbrae but may be denied her title on a technicality.

Miss Paschal, 17, arrived at the meet more than an hour late because she was detained in a traffic accident. AAU referee Frank Geis ruled she could backtrack to compete in two events she had missed, the 80-meter hurdles and shot put.

His action was contested by the Millbrae Lions, Mrs. Winslow's track club, when it was announced that the San Francisco girl had 4,343 points to 4,256 for Mrs. Winslow.

The meet results have been referred to the National AAU for examination by a court of appeal.

Miss Paschal ran the hurdles in 11.6; put the shot 34-6¼, high jumped 5-2¼, long jumped 18-8 and ran the 200-meter dash in 26.5.

Mrs. Winslow, six times women's pentathlon champion, ran the hurdles in 12.3; had a 40-8½ shot put; high jumped 5-1¼, long jumpedteam. 16-10 and ran the 200 meters in 25.9.

Cherrie Sherrard of Oakland placed third in the competition with a point total of 4,229. Janet Svendsen of Millbrae came in fourth with 3,803. There were 12 contestants.

Rams Toil but Fans Get Stiff Necks

By AL LARSON

Would you believe tennis football?

More than 3,000 fans came away with stiff necks after watching two football games at Chapman College Saturday.

Continuous action was coach George Allen's modus operandi. He divided the Rams into two offensive and two defensive units, lined them up back-to-back on the opposing 40-yard lines and treated the overflow crowd to two games in one.

Quarterbacks Bill Munson and Roman Gabriel alternated with the offensive units. Munson led four scoring drives while Gabriel was at the helm for two others.

* * * *

MUNSON, WHO fired three touchdown passes, didn't waste time finding a crack in the second unit's defensive armor. He connected on a 40-yard pass to rookie fullback Henry Dyer of Grambling on his second play from scrimmage.

Dyer showed some swift when he raced 20 yards moments later for his second td.

Munson also completed a 14-yarder to tight end Marlin McKeever and a 32-yarder to halfback Jim Stiger for scores.

Gabriel than caught fire and tossed touchdown passes to Stiger (17 yards) and Tommy McDonald (13 yards).

During the 94-play scrimmage, Munson completed 15 passes in 31 attempts for 153 yards. Gabriel was on target 17 of 31 times for 125 yards. Munson had one intercepted.

Rookie halfback Mike Dennis of Mississippi was the day's leading rusher. He gained 47 yards on eight carries. Dyer and Ben Wilson each netted 32 yards.

McDonald, who finished second among NFL receivers last year, led the Ram pass catchers with seven, good for 58 yards and one score.

Allen said he was pleased with the unique scrimmage both from a fan's point of view and because no player was sitting idle.

"I was especially pleased with the running of rookie backs Mike Dennis and Henry Dyer," Allen said. "Dennis continues to show improvement every day while Dyer has a world of ability.

* * * *

"I THOUGHT our linebackers looked pretty good. We had a lot of good hitting. I was disappointed in one phase. I think our receivers dropped too many again."

Allen did single out tight end Billy Truax, who caught five passes. "He continues to impress me. He's one of those 110% players I'm always looking for."

Myron Pottios, newly acquired linebacker from Pittsburgh, and rookie defensive back Darrell Hoover of Arizona State led all tackles with six. End David Jones was credited with five.

Following the scrimmage, Bruce Gossett staged a field-goal kicking exhibition. Gossett made a 53-yard attempt, two-out-of-three from the 50 and hit all three tries from the 40.

Casper Tied With Sikes for 500 Lead

Sikes also had a four-under-par 68 after taking a bogey 6 on the final hole when he wandered into the trees and three-putted.

Casper coupled 35-33 for his 68 over the 36-36—72 course. It is such a new layout that winter rules, improving the lie on the fairway, are being enforced.

The conditions were not too conducive for great shot-making and there was a drop-out of 14 players, the most for a PGA sponsored event this year.

Casper said that the greens were so hard that it was difficult to try to read them.

"It is a shame that no water has been put on these greens," he said.

* * * *

BILLY DROPPED an eight-foot putt on the 16th, a 25-footer on the 17th and canned his eagle by placing a No. 4 wood shot 17 feet from the hole and ramming in his putt on the 18th.

Sikes had a pair of 34s for his 68. He and Casper shared the lead with 207 while Chi Chi Rodriguez followed with a 73 for 211.

Defending champion Bruce Crampton of Australia and three other pros were disqualified in the big dropout.

Crampton, who was among the top runners with a two-under-par 142; Bob Charles of New Zealand, Homero Blancas and Harold Kneece were ousted for failure to comply with the new PGA continuous putting rule.

The regulation was put into the books to help speed play and was in use in the U.S. Open, the Western Open and the National PGA. Simply, it requires a player to putt out regardless of his distance from the hole.

Left-hander Charles was challenging for the lead with a 71-69—140 and Kneece was 146. Blancas was far off the pace with 160.

* * * *

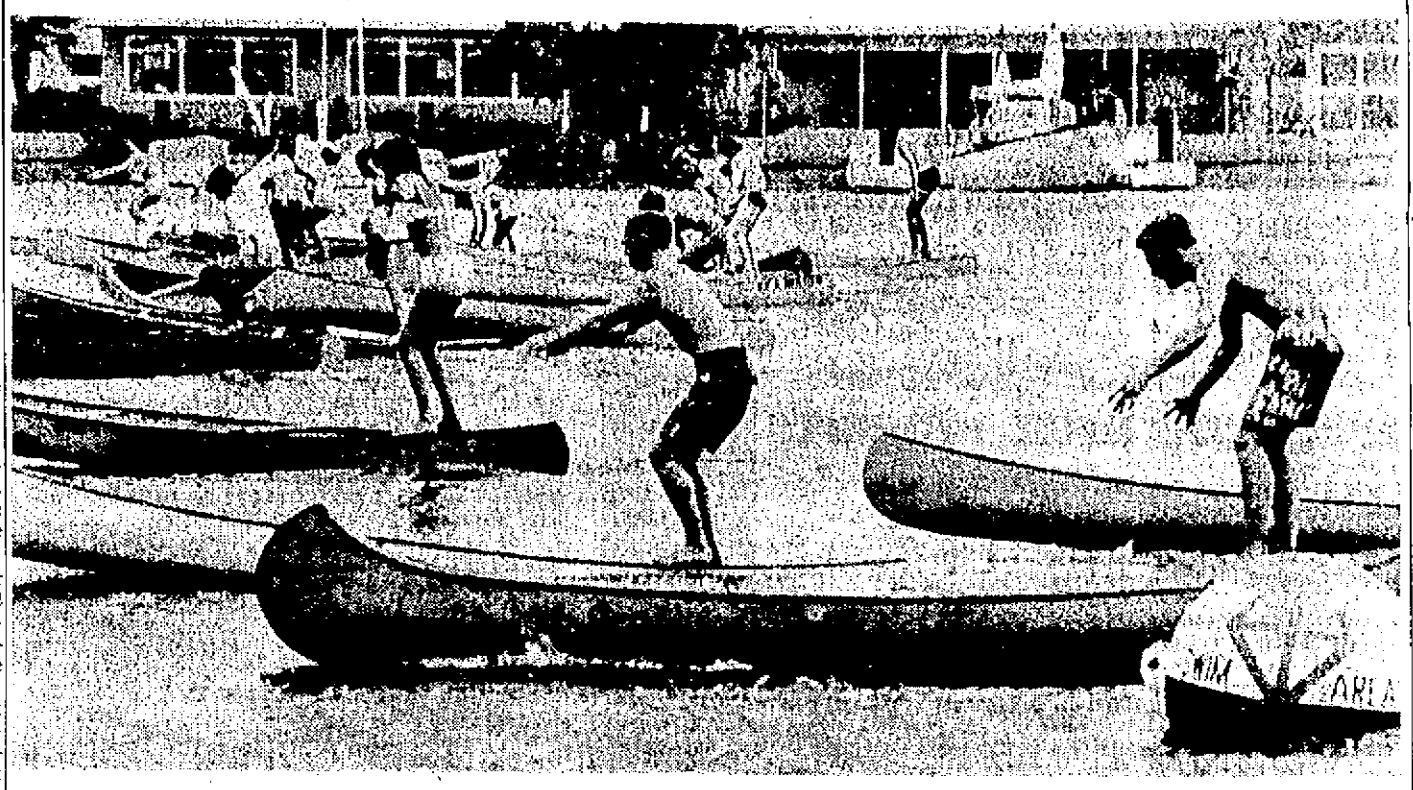

"I JUST forgot completely about the rule," said Crampton.

Tournament supervisor Jack Tuthill put the blame strictly on the players.

"It is their responsibility to become familiar with the rules under which they play each week," he said.

The 14th player to leave was Dave Marr, the 1965 PGA champion who was ejected after he failed to sign his score card. Marr had a 225 for the three rounds, leaving him an also-ran in the field.

U.S. Girls Win Curtis Golf From British

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP)—The United States Curtis Cup team weathered a gathering British storm in the afternoon singles matches Saturday and won the international women's golfing trophy for a fourth straight time by a final score of 13-5.

Continued fine play by Barbara Fay Boddie, Phyllis (Tish) Preuss and Carol Sorenson Flenniken, who had a hand in nine of the points scored in the two-day matches, helped the Americans coast to victory after they entered Saturday play with a 7-2 advantage.

* * * *

IT BECAME 9-3 after the United States won two of the three Saturday morning Scotch foursomes. But in the afternoon, the British women finally found the answer to the woods and waters of the Cascades' closing holes and made a fight of it.

The Americans, however, won three of the six singles—the victories belonging to Mrs. Boddie, Miss Preuss and Mrs. Flenniken—and halved two while losing only one.

The clinching half-point came when Anne Quast Welts claimed a half in the No. 2 singles with Mrs. I. C. Robertson, who had rallied from three down by capturing the 15th, 16th and 18th holes.

Mrs. Flenniken had the day's best medal showing in a 2 and 1 victory over Ita Burke in the final singles.

Miss Preuss was 2-over in a 3 and 2 victory over Elizabeth Chadwick and Mrs. Boddie six over while disposing of Susan Armitage, 3 and 2.

* * * *

MRS. MICHAEL Bonallack accounted for the British singles triumph, clipping American women's champion Jean Asheley, 2 and 1.

The other halved match was between Pamela Tredinnick of Britain and Nancy Roth Syns.

For the first time since mid-June, a steady rain fell on the mountainous Cascades, but it didn't slow the American charge toward a fourth consecutive cup triumph.

15,905 See Ronda Take AHRA Title

Gas Ronda of Covina, driving a factory powered Ford Mustang defeated Hayden Profitt of Garden Grove in a Corvair powered by a 396 hp Chevrolet engine for the title of top fuel stock eliminator Saturday night to highlight the opening days activities in the American Hot Rod Assn. nationals at Lions Drag Strip.

The biggest crowd in the strip's 12-year history, 15,905, caused a big traffic jam not only leading to the strip, but on it as well, with a record total of 723 cars running off during the program.

In the final run, Ronda blasted to a 9.25 et in the quarter-mile at a speed of 156.79 mph to overcome a two-car length advantage and to gain the victor's prize of $1,500. Profitt lost at 9.38 and 148.51.

In winning this year's championship, Ronda repeated his victory of a year ago when he won the same title at Lions.

Racing continues all day today and next weekend when the big fuelers take over.

"Pitching is enough to drive you daffy," said Dean early Saturday afternoon. "You have to worry (1) if they'll score some runs for you, (2) if they'll catch the balls and (3) what you're going to throw the batter."

The third of the furrows on Chance's young brow has been a sore spot with the Angel catchers.

"I wish just once he'd let us call a complete game for him," said Rodgers. "He shakes us off more than Belinsky did. And Bo was pretty dumb when it came to knowing hitters."

It was ironic that third baseman Satriano struck the blow which made Chance a winner, for last Sunday in New York Chance blamed catcher Satriano for calling the pitch which helped make him a loser.

It is an involved story leading up to Tommy Tresh's homer, but Satriano, with common-sense says,

"If he didn't want to throw that pitch all he had to do was shake me off again."

This time Chance decided to shakeup the Indians. Receiving a psychological as well as physical lift from the mound and following Rodgers' strategy, he was in trouble only twice.

The first time, Ed Kirkpatrick, transplanted from right to left in lieu of Rich Reichardt's departure, misjudged Max Alvis' fly and Vic Davallillo, who had singled and stolen second, scored the initial run in the sixth.

The second time, with runners on first and third in the eighth, he fanned Rocky Colavito for his 10th whiff of the game, equalling his previous high this season.

Norm Siebern's single was the only hit off Bell until the sixth when consecutive singles by Jay Johnstone — his first in the majors — Jim Fregosi and Siebern squared the score.

Bell walked Siebern to open the ninth. A sacrifice put pinch-runner Jackie Hernandez on second. An intentional walk put Satriano in the batters' box. A single to right put Chance in the winner's circle.

Chance revealed that he pitched the entire game with a stomach ache. His teammates are beginning to complain aloud about the stomach ache they get from Chance's alibis.

ANGEL ANGLES: The firing of a scout is not exceptionally newsworthy . . . In the release of Tuffie Hasbem, however, the Angels' hierarchy has acted ruthlessly and in a manner which should be noted publicly . . . Hasbem was the Angels' chief link to the vast talent lands south of the border . . . His first discovery was Bo Belinsky and his latest was Minnie Rojas . . . Hasbem brought Rojas to Fred Haney's attention last winter and kept a fire under the negotiations which were handled by assistant GM Marvin Milkes . . . When it was noted in print that Hasbem had discovered Rojas, Milkes' jealousy was aroused and the pair became embroiled in a press room argument recently which evolved into a shoving match . . . A few days later, Hasbem was quietly fired . . . Both Milkes and Hasbem are exceptionally competent people, having spent their early years in baseball . . . Neither displayed their wisdom in the press room argument . . . However, the Angels' discretion in firing Hasbem was even worse . . . As a man, 3-0 as scout he is irreplaceable . . . But he won't be out of work long . . . Buzzie Bavasi will announce shortly that Tuffie Hasbem is scouting for the Dodgers . . .

Fred Newman (4-4) faces Steve Harman (5-6) in this afternoon's series finale . . . New York opens four-game series Monday night . . . George Brunet was honored as Alpha Beta's player of the month . . . Reliever Richard Egan departed on a 6 p.m. plane for his Stevens Point, Wisconsin home . . . He is expected to enter Mayo Brothers early next week . . . Cleveland has brought its fine young catcher Duke Sims off the disabled list . . . He will be sent to Portland and then recalled when in playing shape . . . Jim Gentile was so excited when traded by Cleveland that he lost his suitcase . . . Diamond Jim's mis-placed valuables include two pair of alligator shoes, two alpaca sweaters and two cashmere shirts.

Jay Johnstone admitted that he was "awfully nervous" prior to his major league debut . . . "Of course," said Jay, "I was awfully nervous last night, too, after getting word I was joining the Angels." . . . In his Seattle adieu, Jay lashed a triple and single and departed with a .335 average . . . He prefers center field but will be permanently stationed in right . . . He was signed by the Angels out of Edgewood High in Covina in June of 1963.

South Carolina Awaits Title Ruling

Commissioner Jim Weaver said he and the Atlantic Coast Conference executive committee will decide Monday whether Clemson and North Carolina State should be declared football co-champions for 1965.

Weaver ordered South Carolina to surrender its title for giving illegal financial assistance to two varsity players.

South Carolina, which had been the co-holder with Duke of the championship on 4-2 league records, goes to the bottom of the list at 0-6. North Carolina State and Clemson now advance to the top with 5-2 marks if they are given a win instead of a loss. Duke, which beat South Carolina, would remain at 4-2 but fall to third.

Packers 15-Point Picks to Whip All-Stars Friday

CHICAGO (AP)—The champion Green Bay Packers of the National Football League, pegged 15-point favorites, meet the last pack of big gold prospectors from the college ranks in the 33rd annual All-Star football game at Soldier Field Friday night.

The Packers themselves have a heavy investment among the opposing 47 pro football-bound lads, who profited handsomely in the battle of dollars now apparently ended with the merger of the NFL and the American Football League.

The fast and brawny All-Star array, seeking the first collegiate victory over the NFL champs since the Packers were upended 20-17 in 1963, includes two explosive Packer rookies, Donny Anderson of Texas Tech and Jim Grabowski of Illinois. They reportedly cost Green Bay $575,000 and $325,000, respectively, to sign.

* * * *

PERFORMING against the Packers also will be such well-heeled rookies as linebacker Frank Emmanuel of Tennessee ($350,000 from the Miami Dolphins) and halfback Mike Garrett of Southern California ($325,000 from the Kansas City Chiefs).

Despite the liberal wealth of the collegiate squad, new All-Star head coach John Sauer regards this as one of the most cooperative, hardest-working units assembled for the mid-summer classic.

One observer at the Northwestern University campus, where the All-Stars have been drilling since July 14, commented:

"These boys came to play and if they lose it won't be from lack of effort."

Sauer moved up from an assistant post to the top All-Star job when Otto Graham, after directing the collegians eight years, became head coach of the Washington Redskins.

Friday night's game, which finds the NFL champs holding a 21-9-2 edge in the series, will be telecast nationally.

The contest, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., will pack about 65,000 in arc-lighted Soldier Field where last year the Cleveland Browns held off the rallying All-Stars for a 24-16 victory.

The All-Stars showed some rough spots in bowing to the Chicago Bears, 34-20, in a game-type scrimmage Thursday at the Bears' St. Joseph College camp at Rensselaer, Ind.

* * * *

BUT THE tune-up also indicated the All-Stars may have the best running attack in several years, hubbed around big but fast ball carriers.

The quarterback assignment, probably uncertain until kickoff time, will go to one of a trio including Steve Sloan of Alabama, Bill Anderson of Tulsa and Gary Lane of Missouri.

Graebner, Roche in Net Finals

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI) — Clark Graebner of Beechwood, Ohio, and Tony Roche of Australia gained the final round Saturday in the men's singles of the Eastern Grass Court tennis championships.

Graebner, seeded No. 5, upset top-seeded Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, 11-9, while Roche, seeded No. 2, beat his touring teammate, fourth-seeded Owen Davidson, 4-6, 12-10, 6-2, 7-5.

Graebner, winner of the Pennsylvania grass court crown last week, was bothered by Richey only in the final set. The Ohio star practically had his own way on the courts during the first two sets.

Richey showed spurts of brilliance, but he could not overcome Graebner's repeated use of half volleys which would catch the Texan out of position.

In the other semi-final match—in progress at the same time on the adjoining court—both Roche and Davidson played superb tennis.

* * * *

UNSEEDED Rosemary Casals of San Francisco registered her third straight upset when she defeated fifth-seeded Karen Krantzcke of Australia, 6-2, 6-4, to reach the finals of the women's singles.

Miss Casal previously beat top-seeded Billie Jean King of Long Beach, the 1966 Wimbledon champion.

Donna Fale of New York gained the other finals berth by surprising sixth-seeded Carol Hanks Aucamp of St. Louis, 6-3, 6-2.

PRO GRID FRONT

Giant Drill Highlighted by Gogolak

Cleveland Browns' offensive unit scored the first three times it had the ball in the final scrimmage with the defense at their Hiram College training camp Saturday.

Rookie fullback Charley Harraway scored once on a 20-yard run. Frank Ryan tossed a two-yard scoring pass to Leroy Kelly, and Jim Ninowski hit Walter Roberts with a 15-yard scoring pass. Rookie quarterback Archie Roberts saw action briefly and moved the offense to three first downs before Ryan took over.

Pete Gogolak did the kicking for both sides as the New York Giants' offense team defeated the defensive squad, 7-6, in a 90-minute controlled scrimmage that lured 12,000 spectators to Fairfield University training camp in Connecticut.

Gogolak kicked a pair of field goals for the defense early in the game and then came back to add the extra point for the offense late in the fray when they scored on a 70-yard march directed by quarterback Bob Timberlake.

Timberlake, whose play drew praise from coach Allie Sherman, connected on a 23-yard pass to Freeman White and for 24 yards to Bob Lacey in the drive. Steve Thurlow blasted over from the three for the score. Gogolak's field goals were 45 and 49 yards.

Joe Namath and Mike Taliaferro each threw two touchdowns in the New Jets' first full-scale training camp scrimmage at Peekskill, N.Y.

Namath connected on 11 of 17 passes for 202 yards. He threw a 64-yard bomb to veteran flanker Don Maynard for one td and hit tight end Dee Mackey on a four-yard scoring toss. Taliaferro's passes to Pete Lammons and Baker Turney covered 20 and 50 yards.

Two former Philadelphia Eagles — Ralph Heck and Bob Richards — have been named co-captains of the Atlanta Falcons for their Monday night pre-season game against the Eagles.

Cookie Gilchrist arrived in Denver five days late and managed to save himself an additional $100 fine by a scant 36 minutes. The Denver Bronco fullback has been fined $500.

The Chicago Bears' "fat men's club" which numbers 10 overweight players, was denied a Sunday respite while owner-coach George Halas gave the rest of his players the day off.

The fat 10 must stay in camp for a sweating out today under the supervision of Halas. The overweight players were not named, but Halas stressed that the $50-per-day fine for extra poundage will be upped to $200 per day Monday.

Top Cleveland Question: Who Will Replace Jim Brown?

By AL LARSON

The burning question in professional football today is "Who will replace Jim Brown in the Cleveland Browns' backfield?"

Coach Blanton Collier who ultimately must decide the issue is very forthright when he answers the question. "No one will really replace Jim Brown because players such as Jim just don't come along every day. He was the greatest runner in the history of the game and his records will stand for a long time.

"However, I do expect men on our roster now to make places for themselves. I am confident that we will come up with an effective running attack to go along with Frank Ryan's passing."

Collier also pointed out that in the Browns' running system, he prefers to refer to his two ball carriers as running backs as distinguished from most clubs who designate one ball carrier as the halfback and the other as the fullback.

* * * *

AS A MATTER of record, Cleveland's bread-and-butter running plays for the past three seasons have been their No. 18 and 19 end sweeps in which speed is more important than power running.

Cleveland's ball carrying hopes for 1966 are placed in Ernie Green, Leroy Kelly and Charley Scales of last year's team, plus rookies Charley Harraway, Gary Lane and Randy Schultz. Anticipating Brown's retirement in 1967, the Browns selected these three newcomers in the past two drafts. They appear to be exceptionally talented running prospects.

Green, who has shared the Browns' running duties with Brown the past three seasons, has a lifetime ball carrying average of 4.7 yards per carry, a respectable mark in the NFL. Collier is hopeful that Green, given the opportunity to be the bell-wether of the Cleveland running attack, will respond to the challenge.

Kelly, starting his third season with the Browns, will be handed the first crack at Brown's position. He and Walt Roberts have teamed up to give the defending Eastern Division champions one of the most exciting punt and kickoff return duos in the NFL. He was the league punt return leader in 1965 with 17 runbacks for 265 yards and an average of 15.6.

Harraway is a 6-2, 230-pound fullback from San Jose State who was the Browns' 18th draft choice last year. He scored 14 touchdowns last fall to tie Heisman Award winner Mike Garrett of USC for West Coast scoring laurels. Big and strong, he appears to have the necessary speed and power.

Lane, drafted as a "red shirt" in 1964, has requested to be used as a runner even though he was a quarterback at Missouri where he led his team to the Big Eight title and a victory over Florida in the 1966 Sugar Bowl affair.

* * * *

IN THE MISSOURI system, Lane ran as often as he passed and he compiled a 5.4-yard rushing average. Currently he is with the College All-Stars prepping for Friday night's meeting with Green Bay.

Lane, along with the Rams' two All-Star players, Bill Guy Anderson and Tom Mack, will fly to Los Angeles Saturday morning. All three will suit up for Saturday night's Coliseum battle between the Rams and Browns.

Schultz, 5-10 and tipping the scales at 210, comes from Iowa State Teachers College where he set school and conference records in just about every rushing department. He has been the Little all-America fullback for the past two years.

HE'S IRREPLACEABLE

When Jim Brown gave up football for films recently, he left Cleveland Browns with a unique problem this season: Who's going to play fullback?

FOOTBALL ALREADY!!!

Falcons, Eagles Kick Off Pros' Practice Games

United Press International

The spanking new Atlanta Falcons undergo their baptism of fire in the professional football ranks Monday when they join the Philadelphia Eagles in kicking off the first week of the exhibition season which features the annual College All-Star Game.

Atlanta, the 15th and latest franchise in the National Football League, hosts the Eagles at its new stadium while the American League begins interstate play the following night at Houston where the Oilers meet the Oakland Raiders.

The big event of the week occurs Friday night when the College All-Stars oppose the NFL champions, the Green Bay Packers, in the 33rd annual Chicago Tribune Charities Game at Chicago's Soldiers' Field.

The other NFL action pits neighboring rivals Baltimore and Washington at the Redskins' D.C. Stadium Wednesday night. On Saturday, St. Louis hosts Atlanta, Chicago plays Philadelphia at Memphis, Tenn., Minnesota meets Detroit at New Orleans, New York takes on Pittsburgh at Ithaca, N.Y., and the Rams entertain Cleveland.

THE REMAINDER of the week's AFL schedule is comprised of two games Saturday night, with Denver hosting Kansas City and Miami taking its professional bow against San Diego.

Dennis Claridge, the former Nebraska star plucked from Green Bay in the expansion pool, will open at quarterback for the Falcons, whose two outstanding rookie signal-callers are unavailable. Randy Johnson of Texas A&I, the most valuable player in the Coaches' All-American Game, is sidelined with a cracked rib while Steve Sloan of Alabama is practicing for the All-Star game.

Tommy Nobis, the Texas linebacker who was showered with money to sign with Atlanta, also is in the All-Star camp and will not see action Monday. Philadelphia will present two new faces on defense in Aaron Martin at halfback and Arnold Wells at linebacker, replacing the departed Irv Cross and Maxie Baughan, respectively.

Johnny Unitas, the perennial all-pro quarterback, will receive his first game test since undergoing knee surgery last December as the Colts strive to extend their pre-season win streak to eight. Otto Graham makes his pro coaching debut with Washington, which hasn't defeated Baltimore in this annual meeting since 1958.

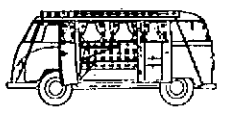

Fullback Jim Grabowski and halfback Donny Anderson, who set the Packers back more than $1 million for their services, will attempt to render Green Bay's pride as flat as its pocketbook when they open for the All-Star against the Packers, who are making their sixth appearance in the charity game. They have won three times and lost twice in previous games.

Two of the AFL's four new coaches, John Rauch of Oakland and Wally Lemm of Houston, will meet in the first AFL game.

Spartans Win Big

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — The touring San Jose, Calif., State College basketball team easily defeated Auckland 92-45 Saturday night. San Jose led 40-23 at halftime.

'Big Daddy' Leads Race Invasion

By DAVE DANIEL

When talk turns to drag racing, drag racing turns to Don Garlits.

Garlits, known as "Big Daddy" by drag race fans everywhere, heads the list of Eastern invaders in Saturday and Sunday's American Hot Rod Assn.'s national championships at Lions Drag Strip.

It's easy to see why Garlits has won fame and the hearts of fans across the nation. A pioneer in drag racing, he designs, builds and drives the sleek rail jobs which have made him the biggest name in the sport.

The 33-year-old veteran, now in his 11th year as a professional, was the first to break the speed barriers considered by some to be unobtainable. He first cracked the 170 mph mark, the 180 mph mark and on July 12, 1964, became the first to reach the vaunted 200 mph plateau. His goal now is the 220 mph hurdle and he has already pushed his "Wynn's Charger" double A fueler to 219.

Garlits, a native of Birmingham, Mich., has won just about every major drag racing title there is, including championships in the AHRA and the rival National Hot Rod Assn.

He also holds the British land speed record of 197 mph which he recorded in 1964 at the British Drag Festival when he lead a team of U.S. dragsters on tour.

An owner of two cars, the Wynn's Charger and the Garlits Chassis Special, Garlits put on one of the most fantastic performances recorded at the 1965 U.S. Fuel and Gas Championships in Bakersfield.

He routed all competition on the first day in the 'Charger, then switched cars and in the Special, swept the field again.

By virtue of the two victories, he had the distinction of racing himself for the top fuel eliminator title. Marvin Schwartz piloted the Special for Garlits, but Big Daddy put his own machine on the trailer with a 205 mph blast in the 'Charger.

The rail job is powered by Dodge—a 426-hemi engine set close to the rear axle and inclined downward at a seven-degree angle for the lowest possible center of gravity.

With a 175-inch wheelbase, Garlits feels that it "should help us gain lower elapsed times and higher speeds. The machine is certainly easier to handle."

Garlits will put his national title on the line against such comers as Long Beach's Tom McEwen, president of the United Drag Racers Assn.

McEwen and Garlits have met six times in their careers and have split the decisions, each with three wins.

BIG DADDY SET FOR LIONS

Don Garlits, known as "Big Daddy" in drag racing circles, will be at Lions Drag Strip this weekend to defend his American Hot Rod Assn. national championship. Garlits was the first driver ever to break the 200 mph barrier.

BEATS FOUL CLAIM

Tronado Takes Arlington

Combined News Services

Tronado survived a foul claim and won the $54,000 Arlington Handicap before 27,559 at Arlington Park Saturday.

Hadevar, the 6-5 favorite, finished second, a length behind the 6-year-old Argentine horse in the one-mile race run in a comparatively slow 1:35 4-5.

Walter Blum, who rode Hedevar, contended Tronado had carried Hedevar wide on the stretch turn. After a 20-minute delay, the stewards let the original finish stand.

In his last race at Arlington Park, Hedevar had won the Equipoise mile June 18 in 1:33 1-5, matching the world record at the time.

Tronado paid $7, $3.40 and $3. Hedevar returned $2.80 and $2.40. Time Tested paid $3.

Assagai, the only 3-year-old in the field, rallied in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $59,700 Tidal Handicap by half a length for his second successive stakes victory.

The son of Warfare, ridden by Larry Adams, raced fourth in the early stages of the 1⅛-mile race over the turf course but closed strongly to catch pace-making Canal in the last sixteenth.

Assagai was timed in 1:49 and paid $10.80, $5.80 and $4.60. Canal, who went to the front at the start but tired in the stretch, returned $5.60 and $4.20 while Moontrip paid $3.80.

Open Fire, owned and bred by track president Donald P. Ross, matched the track record for 1¼ miles and won the $122,970 Delaware Handicap on the closing day at Delaware Park.

The 5-year-old mare scored by five lengths and finshed in 2:00 2-5 equalling the mark set by Royal Vale in 1953. The winner carried only 110 pounds, including jockey Frank Lovato, and returned $10.60, $5.60 and $4.40.

Treachery paid $9.60 and $6.20, while Discipline was $3.60 to show.

Like A Charm pulled away in the stretch at Monmouth Park to win the $107,415 Sorority Stakes by four lengths and keep her record perfect.

Jorge Velasquez rode Like A Charm who was timed in 1:12 3/5 for the six furlongs and paid $11.80, $5.40 and $2.40. Just Kidding paid $8.60 and $3.00 and Rhuharb, the 3-5 favorite, paid $2.20.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

New Belmont Pier, So What's Wrong?

Just the other day there appeared in Malcolm Epley's column a charge by Robert Halsted, address not given, that the new Belmont Pier is "a magnificent farce." Halsted continued to say the engineer who designed this "monstrosity" should receive the prize of the year for inconceivable stupidity. He then continued this way:

"Guy Atkinson, the contractor, has done excellent work, but he only followed the loused-up plans. Interview the fishermen and they will tell you."

Well, Mr. Halsted, whoever you are and wherever you live, we have been interviewing fishermen since that brief paragraph appeared and have discovered that down to every man we have talked to you are 100% wrong. Most of them would like to know what you are beefing about. Are you a designer of piers or a contractor? Why, they want to know, did you call this pier a monstrosity?

First of all, we called on our co-worker, Lew Allison, who handles this column when I am out of town or on vacation. Lew, incidentally, has fished from almost every pier in Southern California and I respect his view on all kinds of fishing. Lew says, first of all, that your letter was published without any effort to pin down your viewpoints or to ask anybody else's opinion.

LEW CONTINUES BY SAYING: "To my mind the pier is a beautiful piece of architecture. It covers more ocean than the old pier, it is lower and, consequently, will be easier to fish from. Its dining facilities, bait and tackle center and its comfort stations are better than those of any pier in California, bar none. Take a look at it and compare it with the new Hermosa Beach Pier, for instance. (And this writer might add, compare it with the new structure just put into operation in the Mission Bay section of San Diego.)

"To its other advantages add modern lighting and a landscaped mall at the head of the pier," says Lew, "it has vastly improved boat docks. The only potential disadvantage I can see is that its beautiful surroundings and delightful promenade present the danger it is going to be crowded with sightseers as well as fishermen.

"I probably have not caught as many fish on Belmont Pier as Jim Willett and some of the other oldtimers, but I'll bet I have caught more than that chronic-sounding critic, who, I believe, has rocks in his head."

Another man who fishes constantly on the old Belmont Pier and who declined to be quoted by name, said: "Gosh, I have been fishing here for years and can hardly wait for the opening of the new one. It will be much easier to land a fish there."

ART AND JUNE ASCOLESI, who, in the name of Mickey's Belmont, Inc., hold the master lease on the old as well as the new pier, were startled when they heard about Halsted's letter. June said, in a letter to this columnist:

"How can a pier specifically designed for the fishermen, possibly be called a farce? The new Belmont Pier was designed for pleasure and convenience as shown below.

"1. It is three feet lower than the existing Belmont Pier, making it far easier to catch and land fish.

"2. It extends approximately 100 feet farther out into the ocean than the existing pier, providing additional fishing space and better fishing.

"3. It has a wing spread of 360 feet located at the far end, providing additional fishing area in a prime location.

"4. The live bait tank is located at the far end of the pier. This will be an aid in keeping the live anchovies used for bait both healthier and stronger. The finest method of receiving live bait will be installed. The anchovies will be raised from the live bait boat into the live bait tanks by an automatic water brail. The fish will remain in salt water at all times. This will prevent their being bruised and crushed in a net. The live bait will remain as healthy and strong as they are when netted at sea. The live bait tanks on the pier are much larger than the present tanks, providing ample room for the anchovies to swim and school freely.

"5. THERE ARE SIX, handy fish-cleaning sinks located on the new Bolmont Pier for the convenience of the fishermen.

"6. Fifty-three benches are provided for the fishermen's comfort.

"7. The new pier will be well lighted (both above and below) making it a safer area for the public.

"8. All material used in the construction of the new pier and its facilities is the most up-to-date weather-resistant material obtainable. As a consequence, the pier should remain in good, safe condition for many years to come.

"9. Both the tackle stand and the snack bar are designed for speedy service so that the customer may be taken care of rapidly and return to his fishing.

"10. Comfort stations are located both in the center and at the end of the pier for the convenience of the customers.

"11. The landing floats have been designed to load passengers safely on the fishing vessels. In addition to this, a hoist will be installed to pick up the passenger's fish from the deck of the boat and place it on the pier.

"All the above-mentioned items should most certainly provide the right setting and facilities for enjoyable fishing. The free-flowing lines of the pier, plus the attractive plaza with its shrubs and trees, will most certainly be an asset to the beautiful shoreline of Long Beach."

ANYTHING GOES

Competitors will be using their feet as much as their hands tonight during International Karate Championships at Municipal Auditorium. Capacity crowd is expected for 12-match and 5-demonstration program with highlight of day-long eliminations being Grand Championship match.

World's Best Karate Stars Clash in Long Beach Today

By GARY RAUSCH

Ah, so.

Karate, that most ancient and most honorable art of oriental self-defense, will be on display today as Long Beach hosts the third annual International Championships.

Over 600 competitors from Japan, Okinawa, Korea, China, Europe, Boston, Chicago, Salt Lake City, Dallas, San Francisco and even Pasadena start a day-long ordeal of punching, kicking, striking and just plain mayhem.

Eliminations begin at 9:30 a.m. and by 4 p.m., there will be only 18 survivors going into finals, starting at 7. Tickets are priced at $3.50, $3, $2.50, $2 and $1.50.

A turnaway crowd viewed last year's proceedings and officials have already tabbed today's extravaganza a sellout. Even while the committee busily readys SRO signs, a new Grand Champion is lurking in the wings.

Only one of their numbers will leave Municipal Auditorium with the title Grand Champion. The rest will have their share of assorted bumps and bruises.

Mike Stone, possibly the most famous of all American Karate experts, has retired at the ripe old age of 24, giving someone else a shot as kingpin of Karate.

Only last year, Stone came off the sands of Waikiki, a month-old Army discharge in his back pocket, to shred a select field to ribbons in retaining his title.

Upon retirement, the handsome 195-pounder could claim virtually every Karate title—not just once but twice and some three or more times.

A total of 12 matches will be contested, three (light, middle and heavyweight) in each of the white, brown and black belt divsions, leading to semifinals and the final match of the evening — the Grand Championship.

Sandwiched among the division crowns will be demonstrations of the various styles of Karate by a select group of oriental experts.

Only 7 of the 18 champions and runnersup from last year's meeting are entered. And only Buddha knows how many of them will survive a day of pell-mell assault.

Jr. Amateur Golf Tourney Set Tuesday

One of the nation's outstanding golf events, the 19th Jr. Amateur Championship, will lure 150 of the country's finest players to California Country Club in the city of Whittier beginning Tuesday.

Competition is limited to boys under the age of 18 years who will play 18 holes of stroke play Tuesday and Wednesday. The top 64 shooters then enter match play Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Defending champion Jim Masserio of Pittsburgh will be back to try again as will 1965 runnerup, Lloyd Liebler of Portsmouth, Va., and one of the semifinalists, Gary Bennett of Florence, S.C.

Long Beach will be represented by Recreation Park's Paul Mattson, who led the qualifying at California C.C. two weeks ago with a three over-par 75.

* * * *

L.B. AREA teenagers in the competition include Gary Sanders and Bob Sader of Los Coyotes C.C., Buena Park, and Dave Penso of Palos Verdes G.C.

California C.C. is a 6,756-yard layout whose fairways are lined with deep rough, and whose greens are flanked by yawning traps.

There will be no charge for galleryites. California C.C. may be reached by taking Rose Hills Road east of the San Gabriel Freeway. Then turn north on Workman Mill Road and follow it to the course.

BOYS HOCKEY HAS OPENINGS

Ice hockey for boys ages 6 to 14 is available at the Olympic Ice Arena, 23770 Western Ave., in Harbor City.

Parents whose sons wish to join the Bay Harbor Miner Hockey Assn. may inquire during weeky practice sessions at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Instruction for beginning skaters will be provided.

Tuero Girls Champ

LAKE BLUFF, Ill. (AP) — Linda Tuero of Metairie, La., easily captured the national girls 16-and-under tennis crown with a 6-1, 6-2 triumph over Kirsty Pigeon of Danville, Calif., Saturday.

Start good from gate, won handily.
Mutuel pool $145,281.
LONESOME BOY followed the early leaders to the upper stretch, swung out for a clear path, took command, quickly drew off and won going away. SOLID ME broke on top, stayed with the pace, challenged the winner briefly while coming to the turning pole then weakened. FAIR DUMPTY was not good enough.
No scratches.

WOODEN SOLDIER, steadied at the break, went to the lead on his own volition around the turn, drew off without need of urging in the stretch to win with complete authority. ELTIEMPO broke alertly, shared the early lead, dropped back then outgamed MOOLAH UNO at the wire. Latter found his best stride when straightened for the drive, finishing with good speed between horses.
No scratches.

DR. ROY E. broke slowly, rushed up while on the rail approaching the turn to take command, lengthened his lead around the turn and was under intermittent urging through the stretch to insure the win. EVADE lacked early speed, found room between horses along the inside in the stretch to outrace DIZZY BABE to the end. Latter had to be under light early restraint while waiting for room, moved as much ground as possible and offered a mild bid.
No scratches.

SKY GIPSY II was unhurried at the break, found room between the leaders going to the far turn to share the lead with HARRY GELBART then under a skillful ride saved ground while forging slightly ahead in the upper stretch to win gamely. HARRY GELBART broke with the leaders, raced for the early lead along the outside, clung to the winner gamely but was not quite good enough. EMBASSY had no early speed then saved as much ground as possible during his belated bid. FLEET TREAT raced wide in a mile late rally. RI TUX could not get the lead in the stretch turn and bump. XTRASENSORY broke poorly. THE BAGEL KING was done early. COUPLE O' QUID went wrong on the turn.
No scratches.

MUSTARD PLASTER, outrun early, fourth to the turn, circled the field on the stretch turn then outlasted the leaders through the final sixteenth to win gamely. HIGH PERCH raced to gain ground on the far turn, continued his rally through the stretch and narrowly missed. OLD MOSE saved ground on the first turn, remained along the inside, made his bid on the final turn, and remained at his task to the end.

Bookies Call Clay Defense a Laugher

LONDON (AP) — Cassius Clay takes on Britain's Brian London Saturday in a world heavyweight title fight, which the bookies virtually have written off as a one-man fight.

Clay, fighting his second British heavyweight within three months, is the 1-10 favorite. That means you must bet $10 to win one. London, a tough 32-year-old veteran, is 5-1.

Clay, criticized for his draft board difficulties and Black Muslim affiliations in the United States, picked up a guaranteed $280,000 plus ancillary TV rights for his London title defense May 21 against Henry Cooper, British champion.

* * * *

THE CHAMPION stopped Cooper with a badly cut eye in the sixth round.

For his defense against London, Clay is reportedly getting a guaranteed $252,000 along with TV percentages.

London is expected to get about $112,000 from the fight in Earl's Court Stadium, where Billy Graham held his recent London Crusade.

The fight will be carried live on home television to the United States via the Early Bird Satellite starting at 2 p.m. PDT., and negotiations are going on for it to be piped into Europe over the Eurovision network.

"There's no doubt about it—I'm the world's most publicized human being," Clay told newsmen.

If he succeeds against London, the champion moves on to fight Karl Mildenberger of Germany, the European champion, at Frankfort Sept. 10.

"I could do a fight a month, but I'm getting old you know," said the 24-year-old Clay.

London, giving away eight years, is positively breezy by comparison.

Clay says he remembers London fighting "when I was a little boy."

This was at Indianapolis in May, 1959, when Floyd Patterson knocked London out in the 11th round of their title fight.

"Clay's in for a shock," said London.

The Briton has been training at his home town of Blackpool, a lively coastal resort with a Coney Island atmosphere.

* * * *

LONDON'S three British sparring partners aren't as powerful as Clay; but the Briton has impressed with his condition and confidence.

Boxing observers point out that London always fights best as underdog.

In a celebrated fight against former world champion Ingemar Johansson in Stockholm in April, 1963, London knocked the big Swede out, but the bell, ending the last round, cut into the count.

Under present rules London would have won. As it was he lost on points.

London, who has been fighting for 11 years, has a pro record of 35 wins and 12 losses. Clay is undefeated in 24 fights.

London's best recent performances were in knocking out California's Roger Rischer in one round last year, and stopping Amos Johnson of Medina, Ohio, in seven rounds last month.

Latin Soccer Games Open at Wrigley

The Latin International Soccer Games open at remodeled Wrigley Field in Los Angeles today when Guadalajara, Mex., meets Emelec, champion of Ecuador, at 3.

The second game will be played in the Coliseum Wednesday night between Guadalajara and Cartago of Costa Rica.

Next Sunday the play returns to Wrigley Field when Cartago meets Emelec.

The games mark the first Southland matches among top professional teams from Central and South America.

Wrigley Field, once the home of the Angels, has been converted into a soccer stadium recently. The pitcher mound has been removed and The Continental League will play its 1965-67 schedule at Wrigley.

A preliminary game at 1 today will match radio announcers from Baja California against radio and TV personalities of Los Angeles.

* * * * *

MEANWHILE, another soccer field will be available to Southland teams when the season opens in October. A stadium is included in the plans of the European Sports and Shopping Center in Torrance, now under construction.

The complex also includes an Olympic-size swimming pool, tennis courts and volleyball courts. It is located on the West side of the Harbor Freeway near the San Diego Freeway.

Coaches Named for Stokes Game

MONTICELLO, N.Y. (UPI)—Alex Hannum, the new coach of the Philadelphia 76ers, will handle the Western squad in the annual Maurice Stokes Benefit game featuring National Basketball Assn. stars, it was announced by chairman Jack Twyman.

The seventh annual game, scheduled for Tuesday night, Aug. 16, at Kutsher' Country Club, already has lined up Red Auerbach, retired coach of the world champion Boston Celtics, to pilot the Eastern squad.

ROSE BOWL TRACK MEET SLATED TODAY

An impressive list of record-breaking stars will feature the first Rose Bowl Invitational Track & Field Meet slated for this afternoon. Christening of the new "red carpet" running track promises to be amid a setting of colorful ceremonies, pageantry, excitement and outstanding performances.

John Pennel, who set a world's record of 17-6¼ in the pole vault at the Coliseum International Games, leads the long parade of luminaries taking part in the RBI sponsored by the Pasadena Junior Chamber. Also participating will be his roommate, Bob Seagren, whose global standard of 17-5½ was broken Saturday. Paul Wilson, who took second to Pennel with a 17-0¼ effort, will compete as will PAA's Dick Railsback, who cleared 16-6 in the Coliseum along with Seagren.

Art Walker, the triple jump star who set a mark at the Coliseum with a 54-11 leap to raise the American standard for the second time in two weeks, will compete in his pet event, hoping to reach the hallowed land of 55 feet plus.

Don Shy, 110 meter hurdle victor in L.A. will be at the post for the 120 yard high hurdles. Willie Davenport of the Cleveland Striders could set the stage for a lot of drama with an all-out effort, making up for his disappointment last weekend when he was disqualified for two false starts. The season's best marks of the two standouts for the season are: Davenport 13.3 and Shy: 13-4.

DOUBLEHEADER

Chargers Test K.C., Raiders Vs. Boston

Statistical leaders in the AFL will abound when the San Diego Chargers meet the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders take on the Boston Patriots in the big Anaheim Stadium doubleheader Saturday night, Aug. 20.

First grid game at Anaheim Stadium, the contest also is the first doubleheader in AFL annals. Boston and Oakland will kick off at 6 p.m. with the Chargers and Chiefs taking the field at approximately 8:30.

San Diego's Lance Alworth, rated by many experts as the finest pass catcher in football, led the league in most pass receiving statistics. He gained 1602 yards, averaging 23.2 yards per catch, both records. He scored 14 touchdowns to tie another standard.

San Diego halfback Paul Lowe collected 1121 yards on the ground to set a league record.

And still another Charger—Quarterback John Hadl—led in several passing statistics. His aerials picked up 2798 yards.

Gino Capelletti of the Boston Patriots led the AFL in scoring with 132 points. He caught nine scoring aerials, kicked 17 out of 27 field goals and did the place kicking for Mike Holovak's club.

The San Diego Chargers and Kansas City Chiefs were one-two in scoring in the league.

Tickets are on sale at Anaheim Stadium, 633-2000, and Mutual ticket agencies, MA 7-1248.

Cole's U.S. Debut Set

'CHEESECAKE' CHANGES

Costumes Get Scantier

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Costumes are scantier.

Actresses such as Elizabeth Taylor, Carroll Baker, Stella Stevens and Mamie Van Doren—seminude or in translucent negligees — get men's-magazine portrayal in living color.

Emphasis has shifted from legs to bosoms.

These are findings in a study of Hollywood cheesecake, or, more specifically, what changes have been wrought in this art form over the years.

* * * *

THE EARLIEST cheesecake photo is said to be one of the silent screen's vampire, Theda Bara, in low-cut gown as the original celluloid Cleopatra in 1917.

Other landmarks in the annals of cheesecake include:

Betty Grable, back to camera in a white bathing suit, smiling over her shoulder in a pose treasured by troops from Normandy to Guadalcanal a generation ago.

Rita Hayworth in a black lace nightgown sitting on her knees in bed, leaning forward, with her body sideways — another fighting men's favorite.

Marilyn Monroe in her famous 1952 calendar pose, lying nude on her side, seen from above, her red-gold hair streaming out behind.

* * * *

SEMINUDE posing, says Mario Casilli, representative of a leading men's magazine Playboy is "pretty much the accepted thing compared to, say, five years ago. The public is becoming more sophisticated and aware of sex. The bathing suit is going to be no longer something that will interest anyone."

A veteran studio publicist claims current fashions make his job tougher. "The general public has beat the hell out of Hollywood when it comes to cheesecake. Skirts up to here. Dresses cut so low you can see practically everything."

Adventure Film

"A High Wind To Jamaica," Richard Hughes' novel made into a film starring Anthony Quinn, will be shown at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park, Los Angeles, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The film is one of the Summer Adventure Series events for children and their parents.

Actors' Circle on Air Tonight

Two members of the Actors Circle Theater will discuss "Long Beach and the Arts" on KJLH-FM (102.3) at 9 tonight.

They are James De Priest, managing director and Ronald M. Thronson, stage and publicity director. Barbara Ambruster will moderate.

DEVELOPMENT OF the art of cheesecake as demonstrated in costumes (from left) Theda Bara as the original celluloid Cleopatra, in 1917; Betty Grable in the famous World War II GI pinup; Sophia Loren in scanty costume in "Marriage, Italian Style."

THE DANCE WEEK

Nothing to Get Excited About

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Last week was a disappointing one for lovers of the ethnic dance.

Monday morning, word of the Romanian Folk Ballet's four cancellation started the week off gloomily. That night, in Greek Theater, Jose Greco's company opened its six-day run sloppily, with little hope for improvement.

In Royce Hall at UCLA, Friday night, yet another internationally known troupe, Javier de Leon's "Fiesta Mexicana," let us down. Its program, despite bright moments, was overlong, poorly lit, musically mixed, and unexciting.

Happiest of all were sprinklings of mariachi music throughout the evening, a group of Jaliscan songs, and a suite of songs and dances of Vera Cruz, ending in a boisterous Zapateado.

* * * *

UNFORTUNATELY, there was much, much more, beginning with a scene of Mayan and Aztec dances that seemed to go on forever, while five loud primitive drums (not always together, by the way) pounded out one-two-three-four under a single wood flute. Only authenticity could achieve such monotony.

After intermission there was another long scene, a wedding, which offered dances from Tehuantepec and Oaxaca. With these pretty costumes and these pleasant young people involved on the stage, this might have been charming, if half as long.

The following "Chiapanecas," featuring the show's star, Princess Teo Xochitl, was yet another lengthy, uninventive item.

THROUGHOUT, the dancing, always undemanding yet of mixed success in the execution, followed a pattern of walk, turn, spin, pose. Such patterns make a choreographer's life easy, but put most audiences to sleep.

To assure against anyone's napping, the company's eight instrumentalists managed (through careful planning, no doubt) to be utterly out of tune with each other from start to finish.

The one thoroughly successful part of the evening was the costuming, which seemed to reflect a history of styles in Mexico's culture. What a shame more, and better, lighting was not used to show off those costumes, as well as the good-looking dancers wearing them.

'SWIMMING IN HOT WATER'

Pleasant Innocence at Community Playhouse

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Staff Writer

"Pleasantly innocent" might be the best phrase to describe Community Playhouse's latest, "Swimming in Hot Water," a musical with book and lyrics by Long Beach teacher Marc D. Ross.

A good-sized cast, youthful and exuberant, premiered the show Friday night on CP's downstairs stage before an appreciative full-house audience. It will continue weekends through August.

There was something pleasantly pawky about the show, chock-full of now-vanished innocence which once endeared Andy Hardy to a full generation of youthful movie-goers.

Brought back briefly, fleetingly, to the modern stage was that once-confident belief that goodness always triumphs, and stuffy villians can be vanquished with ease. The kind of story that all-but-disappeared after the treachery of Pearl Harbor.

* * * *

"SWIMMING" about in the overheated waters of an exclusive girls' school was Prof. Bradford Smith, just appointed aquatics coach at the institution founded by his grandmother.

Immediately upon arrival, Smith (Randy Keene) is seized upon by a bevy of seven young beautifuls who are starved for masculine attention. Even the nearby presence of a boys' school hasn't lessened their ardor. "They're just children," one of the girls sniffs.

Included within the seven are all the types Andy Hardy once knew so well: Patricia, the snobbish (Jo Gannaway); Marty the athlete (Lora Andrich); Shortstuff the all-around girl (Gail Chadwick); Lulubelle the daughter of the Old South (Susanna Tomecko); Cathy, Valerie, LaVerne and JoAnne, sweet kids all (Risa Berk, Judith Gudowski, Terry Greene, Carolyn Wood).

Then there were the boys, portrayed by Lee Vail, Jeff Scott, Bob Smith, Bill Griffith, John Turner, David Ockrassa.

* * * *

AND THE FEMALE facstuffy ogress (Jo Scott); the stuffy ogres (Jo Scott); the wise and understanding Dean Kramer (Marguerite Murray); Lucille, who would like to have known the professor better (Lillian Hyka); Betty, who does (Julie Bridgette), and Nellie the foil (Sherlah Ivie).

Smith immediately is conned into judging the school's annual beauty pageant, a scholastic IBC so to speak. Somehow it never occurs to him—there's the Andy Hardy influence again—that he can get into trouble over whatever decision he makes.

After a real hair-pulling brouhaha between two of the girls Dean Kramer cancels the contest. How the girls rewin the educator's permission to hold their competition and how "Judge" Smith triumphantly makes the right decision is the rest of the show.

* * * *

ONE OF THE delights is a show-within-a-show when the girls individually sing, dance, elocute, during the "beauty pageant." Real talent then is on display.

Several pleasurable musical production numbers are included along with solos by the principals. Perhaps the funniest—and most professional—was the boys' musical introduction of "Women" to their youngest companion.

Other highlights were the girls' "Tonight, Tonight" and Smith's "She's the Sort of a Girl."

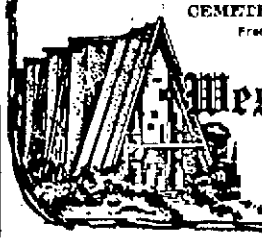

* * * *

THE MUSIC was written by Aminadav Aloni of Hollywood.

Directing was John Williams, assisted by Martha Knowles. Dance routines were choreographed by Joan Elms. Buddy Tobie was technical director and Robin Royce designed the sets. Kevin Murphy handled light and sound, with Cam Doherty providing piano accompaniment for the routines.

Leonard Amiable Insulter

By EARL WILSON

MIAMI BEACH—Fat Jack E. Leonard, who is consistently the greatest deflater of American egos, performed some character assassinations recently at the Hotel Diplomat that were in their way as artistic as the pantomime of Red Skelton and Marcel Marceau.

Brian Kelly of "Flipper" TV fame was at the ringside and an easy target.

"Go like this: — Jack's hands described the rolling dips of a porpoise — "so they'll recognize you . . . Don't take offense, Kelly. You make a mint, even if you do have to live in a swamp."

Celebrated artist Dong Kingman was there sketching busily in his notebook.

"Now I know," Jack E. exploded, "you're the guy that draws all those dirty pictures in the subways."

JACK E. lives in a plush penthouse at the Parc Vendome on W. 57th St. in New York. He has done around 50 TV shows in the last year. He is constantly being told that he should do his own TV series.

"I've made so many pilots, I have my own air force," he said to his Diplomat audience. He explained in an aside: "That's a trade joke—and I'd like to trade it for a better one."

Though he's billed as "the Angry Young Man," he isn't really angry, nor is he so young. He's 55, and he's really good-humored . . . generally. The one thing that annoys him is a columnist crediting one of his jokes to another comedian.

"I love everybody," he says. "I can't run and I can't fight. That's why I love everybody."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Phil Foster said at Rosoff's he's golfing every day as part of his diet: "My doctor told me to live on greens as much as possible."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Romance is like a game of chess — one false move and you're mated."

LONG BEACH, CALIF., SUNDAY, JULY 31, 1960

ON A CLEAR DAY . . . Long Beach From 18,000 Feet. Note Boxed Naples Area

When you step from your home and notice a high-flying plane above, maybe you had better smile you may be on camera!

That plane may be one from Pacific Air Industries, a Long Beach aerial photography and photogrammetric mapping firm headquartered at 725 E. Third St., which since 1949 has provided, on film, complete details of the entire Southland area.

Started in 1949, Pacific Air Industries has grown today to a 50-employe organization utilizing the most modern equipment with offices in Bakersfield and Portuna.

Don Lewis, president, and Ed Jacklin, vice president, who did most of the aerial photographic work in the early days, supervise the vast operations. Clay Amend is general manager and David Morales is in charge of the film library.

Pacific today has the largest collection of aerial photographs in Southern California and possibly in the West. The firm recently acquired the Fairchild Film Library from Aero Service Corp., Los Angeles. This library, combined with those of Pacific Air, brings the total collection to more than 25,000 negatives.

Some of the films acquired in buying out other concerns, date back to 1929, permitting an interesting comparison of land uses in this area through the years.

The photographs in the collection are of various scales, ranging from 600 feet to the inch to 8,000 feet to the inch.

Real estate developers are the most regular customers of Pacific Air Industries photo library, but in the course of a day Morales may hear from a bank which wants to select the best location for a new building, an engineering geologist looking for certain terrain features, or a lawyer who wants to help a jury see the situation better, from the air.

Chief Planner Everett Golden of Albert C. Martin & Associates, recently called for a photograph showing the general area around the site of a proposed new school. "It gave us a good idea of the relationship of the project to the entire surrounding community it would serve. And it indicated just where thoroughfares, commercial and residential areas were located."

Attorneys are using aerial photographs increasingly in the courtroom to settle real estate suits. John P. Pollock told of winning cases where aerial photographs yielded indisputable evidence.

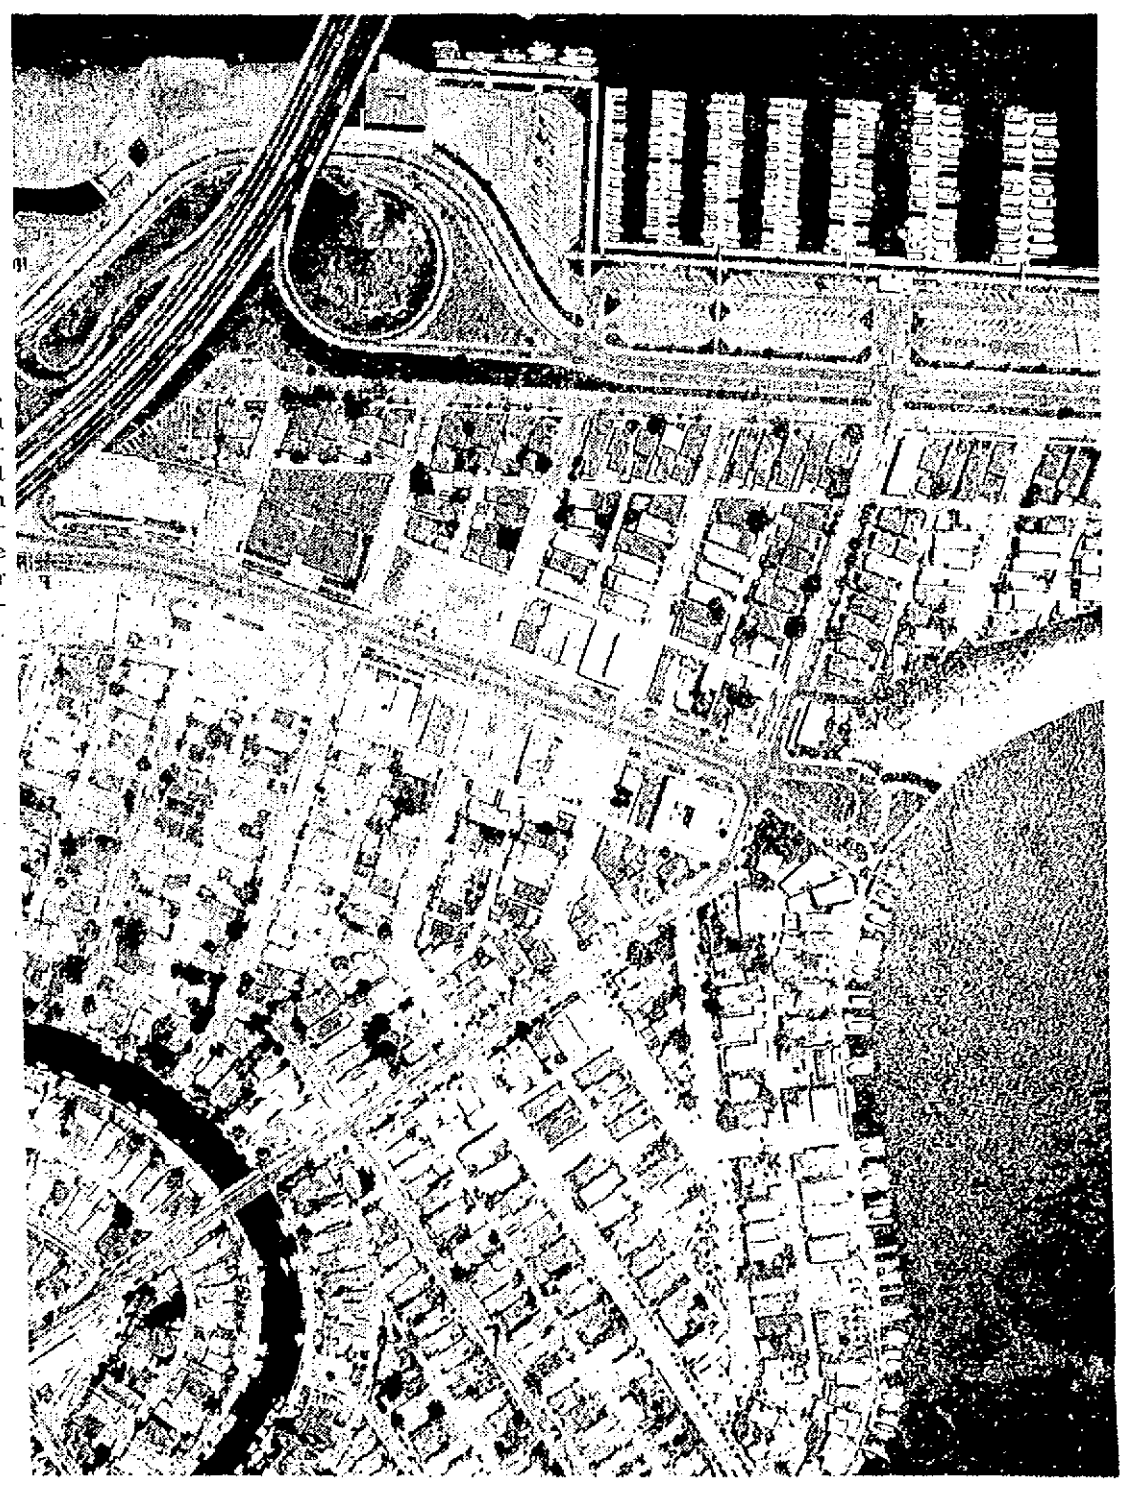

"We had a case recently where the buyer of a tract house claimed he didn't know the lot was on fill, for example. Aerial photographs showing the building pads impressed the jury that the evidences of cut and fill were obvious."

Archiac Building Codes Need Updating

By KEN CHILCOTE

Business Editor

With the home construction industry somewhat in the doldrums under present market conditions, this might be the opportune time for builders to move toward unification of building codes. And, updating of the codes should be foremost.

Technical know-how has given the United States great progress in recent years. But in home building much has been lacking.

An engineer who helps perfect a missile capable of soaring to the moon can fly from the launch site to his home city in a faster-than-sound aircraft perfection; speed over a freeway expanse of elaborate concrete engineering marvels in a motor car that with fingertip touch becomes a gliding palace on wheels, and reach home in minutes.

Then he will enter an archaic home!

* * * *

THE COSTLY HOME was called "modern" by the builder-seller and, while it may look modern, that home was built under methods used early in the century.

Local, state, county and some national restrictions cover the building industry in a maze of regulations that do much to stifle modernization. No industry supplying the basic needs of the public is so ensnarled in official red tape as our huge residential building industry!

"If the aviation industry were faced with similar restrictive practices we would still be flying in fabric-covered biplanes. If the automobile industry were faced with 5,000 divergent codes like housing is, we would be driving cars with beam axles, wood-spoke wheels and mechanical brakes," says J. A. Reidelbach Jr., executive vice president of the Home Manufacturers Association.

* * * *

TRADITION HAS a definite place in American housing, Georgian, Colonial and Cape Cod architectural forms are part of our heritage worthy of perpetuation. Greek columns, Tudor and Gothic arches, Spanish tile and Roman brick, when properly applied, are esthetic delights that should always be on the scene.

But heritage and tradition do not stop with the ornamentation of today's home. Obsolete, antiquated building codes force us to build from the structual point of view, in the same way we built 50 years ago.

For example, buried in the floors and walls are fasteners, hangers, braces, pipes and wires that were chosen decades ago with little if any technical justification. Magnitude of their obsolence varies from location to location.

* * * *

BASIC INTENT of building codes is fine. They are to insure house occupants from fire hazard or the collapse of the building, and to exclude from any home unsafe or unhealthy conditions.

When the codes call for the same type of plumbing, lighting and gas installations used yesteryear, they stifle industry. Yet to get acceptance of new products is a costly venture. Perhaps a manufacturing firm could come up with a new lighting system in the home involving more plastics, remote controls, etc. Under the current system of codes it would mean going from door to door to building departments in cities, towns and hamlets to try and persuade officials to accept the new techniques.

"This enormous expenditure in time, money and effort certainly does not encourage companies to invest their dollars in research and development and, when they do, the end result is that the consumer—the home buyer—has to pay a higher cost than he should," says Reidelbach.

"It has been estimated that the cost of housing would be reduced 10% almost immediately if there were a single, unified national building standard and later on, savings would range upwards of 20% as new methods, products and systems reached the marketplace."

* * * *

ATTEMPTS TO UNIFY building codes have been made since the early '20s and all have met defeat.

"Sometimes," says the HMA official, "it is pressure from a manufacturer or group of manufacturers that enjoy a favored position under existing codes. Some times it is pressure from a particular labor union.

"Then, too, there is a natural and understandable tendency of local officials to favor the most conservative practices of a conventional system under which they obtained their experience. Whatever the reason, they're usually special interest rather than public interest."

A move is under way for the federal government to step in with a code for states and cities to adopt. It should get strong backing from the home building industry and the home-buying public.

THE AERONUTRONIC DIVISION of Ford Motor Co.'s Philco Electronics Group in Newport Beach has been awarded a contract of more than one million dollars for component development on the U.S. Army's Pershing tactical missile weapon system.

The contract for $1,173,706 was granted by The Martin Co., prime systems contractor for the Pershing weapons system, for work by Aeronutronic's Re-entry and Space Systems area.

TWO ANAHEIM FIRMS—Electrac, Inc., and North American Aviation's Autonetics Division—have been awarded government contracts for research and improvements.

Electrac received three contracts from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration totalling more than $462,000. The funds have been allocated for increased manufacture of demodulator systems and design and fabrication of an S-band receiver, demodulator and demultiplexers.

Autonetics received a $3.4 million contract from the U.S. Air Force for the overhaul and repair of the guidance systems of the Hound Dog air-to-ground missile.

Autonetics Division also has received a $1.9 million contract from the Sperry Gyroscope Division of Sperry Rand Corp. (N.Y.) for development of a forward-looking radar for the Navy's A-7 advanced light attack aircraft.

The work will be done by Autonetics' Electro Sensor Systems Division, 3370 Miraloma Ave., Anaheim.

Autonetics is the producer of the country's leading airborne radar and fire control systems. It has built more than 2,000 radars for the F-104 and F-105 aircraft.

PIKE CORP. OF AMERICA reported earnings for the first half of this year rose 63% to record levels on slightly lower revenues than a year ago.

Thomas P. Pike, chairman and president said that contributing to the increase in profits is the heavy demand for offshore drilling that has enabled its major division, Western Offshore Drilling and Exploration Co., to keep its fleet of drilling barges and platform rigs constantly at work for major oil producers throughout the world.

Pike Corporation's net income for the six months ended June 30, 1966, was $1,449,262 or $1.84 a share compared with $888,557 or $1.13 a share for the same period last year.

Gross revenues for the six months were $28,385,049 compared with $29,269,610 for the same period a year earlier.

"We anticipate a continued high level of offshore drilling activity and gains in earnings and revenues from all divisions throughout the rest of the year," Pike said.

Pike Corporation is a major offshore drilling contractor and is also engaged in offshore mineral exploration, aerospace and geomarine research, and distribution of industrial equipment, oil field supplies, and tubing.

KAISER CEMENT & GYPSUM CORP. will construct a multi-million dollar cement manufacturing plant at Scholle, N. M., 55 miles southeast of Alburque.

Peter S. Hass, president, said the plant will make it possible for the company to market cement in New Mexico for the first time.

He said the plant will have a rated annual capacity of 1,700,000 barrels of cement and will serve the entire New Mexico market.

The ultra-modern dry process cement plant will be located on a 1,850 acre deposit of excellent cement grade limestone ore purchased by Kaiser Cement in 1956, Hass said.

The property is located near the geographical center of the state and is bisected by the main line of the Santa Fe railroad and by U.S. Highway 60, a main east-west artery. These factors and the coincidence of fuel and power lines on the property make the site ideal for manufacturing and marketing cement, Hass said.

The Scholle plant will be Kaiser Cement's second manufacturing facility in New Mexico. The other is a gypsum board manufacturing plant owned by Kaiser Gypsum Co., Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary, at Rosario, near Santa Fe.

STANDARD BRANDS PAINT CO., based in Torrance, with an enviable record of sales and earnings gains over the past 27 years, showed 12% increase in net sales the first nine months of this year and net earnings were up 17%.

Sid Greenberg, president, announced the company has made initial entry into the San Francisco Bay area by opening a store in San Jose with another to be opened in Hayward shortly.

The company purchased 11 acres adjacent to its headquarters, warehousing and manufacturing complex in Torrance and will build a 250,000 square foot addition for warehousing and for increased manufacturing.

Some Adjustments Are Seasonal

The dip in this week's Index is not as severe as it might seem.

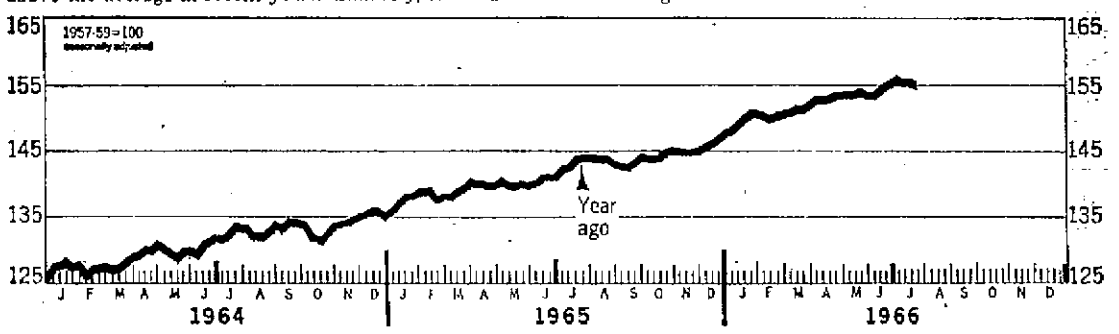

Most of the cause lies with four components that make up 30% of the final figure; auto production, steel output, crude oil refining and paperboard production all dropped on the basis of seasonal adjustments, and the Index dropped with them.

Electric power, on the other hand, continued to soar with the warm weather earlier in July. And many components are marking time due to factors that have nothing to do with the basic state of the economy.

Oil refiners, for instance, are working off high inventories—demand for petroleum products is running well above the average in recent years. Similarly, railroad carloadings are still held down by the annual coal miners' "holiday."

IF THERE IS A GENUINE trouble spot in the current Index, it is in the monthly construction figures. Overall, total construction is still 4.9% ahead of a year ago. Nonresidential construction is 21.5% ahead, and the nonbuilding figure is up 14.8%.

But construction levels nonetheless are dropping, especially in comparison to activity earlier this year. Residential building is now 9% below a year ago; in May, the figure was only 2.6% below its year-ago level. And total construction for the month of June was at the lowest level in eight months.

New Offices for Dean Witter Co.

Dean Witter & Co. will more than double the size of its Long Beach office late this year with a move to new quarters at 245 Locust Street, it was announced by John B. Wells, Jr., manager.

The investment banking and brokerage firm will occupy the 5,000 square foot ground floor of a two-level building to be constructed across the street from its present quarters at 201 East Broadway.

Slated to be completed this fall, the new quarters will provide office space for 21 account executives. The present office now consists of nine account representatives.

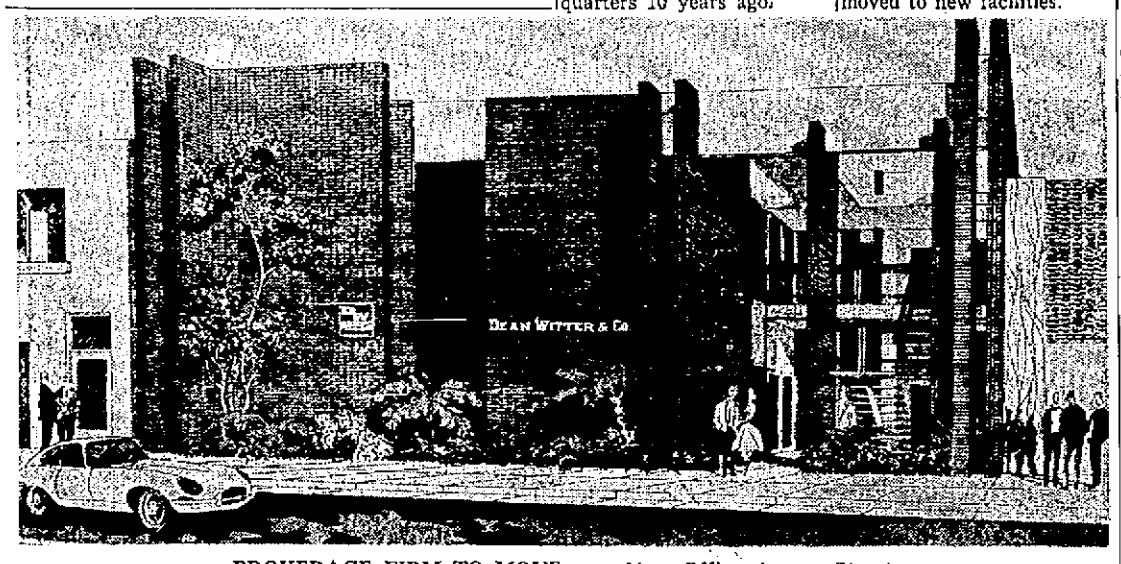

* * * *

DEAN WITTER has had a Long Beach office since 1933 and moved into its present quarters 10 years ago.

"Our move to larger offices reflects the dynamic changes taking place in Long Beach," Wells said. "We see a long-term trend of prosperity and advancement for the downtown area and Dean Witter wants to participate in this future by expanding its services and facilities," he said.

Planned and built by the O.K. Earl Corp., the new facility will be leased to Dean Witter by David Schneider, head of a wholesale jewelry manufacturing firm.

The Long Beach move is the fifth Dean Witter & Co. expansion in the Los Angeles area during the past 12 months. The firm's 54th office was opened in Newport Beach, offices in Encino and San Marino were expanded, and the Santa Monica office moved to new facilities.

Althouse Ends Long Career With Edison

Arthur W. Althouse, prominent San Gabriel Valley resident and former president of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, announced his retirement as president of Associated Southern Investment Co., subsidiary of Southern California Edison Company.

Althouse will be climaxing a business career with the Edison Co. spanning nearly 47 years.

He has headed the electric utility's subsidiary—based at the 10-story Edison Building in Long Beach which he helped plan—the past seven years.

He began his long association with Edison in 1919, and his first assignment was as a power bookkeeper at Porterville. Successive steps led to his appointment as Alhambra district manager in 1932, manager of Edison's metropolitan division in 1952 and manager of the right of way and land department in 1955. He was elected president of Associated Southern in October of 1959.

GREAT VIEW FROM HOMES . . . Offered in Yorba Linda

Fairview Homes Provide Panoramic View of Area

Luxury, single family homes, with panoramic view of the rolling hills of Yorba Linda, and green fairways of the Yorba Linda Country Club, are now being offered at Fairview, located in the 1,000-home new community of Fairmont at Imperial Highway and Orangethorpe Avenue, James McCarthy, McCarthy-Sant, builders-developers, announced.

"Homebuyers are finding the appeal of custom, three, four and five-bedroom homes on extra-large lots, many with private, spacious balconies, an unbeatable combination," McCarthy states.

* * * *

FAIRVIEW IS aptly named, for homeowners also enjoy other dramatic views, some of which extend from nearby beaches to the Santa Ana River and even as far as Mt. Baldy, including the night view of Orange County's lights.

"Our emphasis on quality workmanship and materials, plus the inclusion of luxury features, such as the private balconies, combine to give families a relaxed, resort-style way of life," says McCarthy.

* * * *

AN ADDED attraction to Fairview buyers is the recent 100% trade-in plan, whereby buyers may receive the full FHA appraised value of their present home, with no deductions whatever, enabling new home owners to take immediate possession of their new Fairview home.

Financing at Fairview includes FHA and VA loans up to $30,000 at 5¾% interest rate.

Visitors may reach Fairview by taking Imperial Highway southeast to Yorba Linda Blvd., proceeding east 1½ miles to the models. Or they may take the Santa Ana or the Newport Freeway to the Riverside Freeway, proceed on the Riverside Freeway to the Imperial Highway-Yorba Linda turnoff, then left (north) 2½ miles to Yorba Linda Blvd., then turn right (east) for 1½ miles to Fairview.

When Remodeling Home, Build Safety Into It

Remodeling your home? Plan for safety as well as for comfort.

When mapping out a home improvement project, it takes only a little extra time and effort to include elements of design that will make the house safer as well as more livable, according to a home improvement financing specialist.

"Many of the accidents that happen in a home stem from poorly planned stairways, closets, doors and windows," says William R. Hobson, executive vice president of Peoples National Fund, Inc., largest nationwide company specializing exclusively in home improvement financing.

Based on PNF's experience in financing remodeling projects throughout the country, Hobson offers the following suggestions on planning for safety.

* * * *

TO MAKE stairways safer, provide a handrail on both sides that can be easily gripped. It should be about 2-feet and 8-inches high so that it can be reached by small children and at the same time give good support to adults. Also, a stairway should be 3-feet and 4-inches wide at the minimum so that furniture can be moved from one level to another. Headroom of less than 6-feet and 8-inches over any point of the stairs can be hazardous.

Short flights of stairs with intermediate landings are generally safer than a long, straight flight. Each landing should be at least as long as the stairway is wide.

Since stirways receive little natural light, artificial lighting should be put in easy reach at the top and bottom of the stairs.

Carefully plan closets. Don't treat them just as shells to put things out of sight. For example, install storage bins for shoes and other items. This will reduce the clutter and confusion that set the stage for falls.

* * * *

PROPERLY spaced shelves allow orderly placement of articles. This is safer than stacking boxes which can topple.

In planning a child's closet, install the clothes rod at the right height for use now, with provisions for raising it as the youngster grows taller.

A movable step stool in the closet makes reaching an upper level simpler and safer than standing on a chair or other makeshift ladder. Also, be sure to have an easy-to-reach light in the closet to save dangerous groping in the dark.

Regarding room doors, remember that they should swing into rooms, not into hallways where they can cause accidents. Doors throughout the house should be at least 2-feet and 8-inches wide to allow easy passage through the openings when carrying things.

In areas where full-width hinged doors can cause problems, consider substituting sliding or folding doors.

For rooms without exterior doors, install a window that is large and low enough to provide an easy exit in case of fire. Glass doors or windows that come to the floor can be dangerous unless they have safetly glass, particularly for children at play.

Since casement or awning sash windows project from the building when open, care must be taken when they are on the same level and directly adjacent to a walkway, porch or driveway. It's a good idea to use intervening plantings to route traffic away from the hazard.

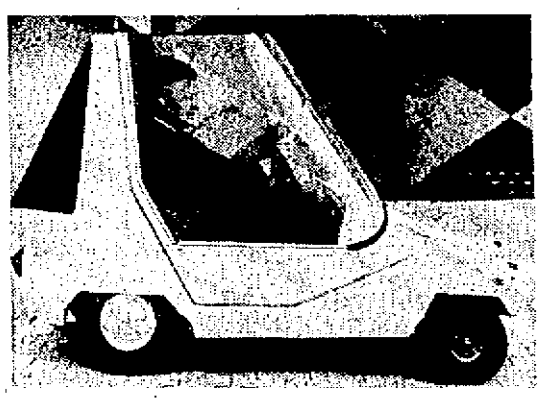

Francly, the French Are Doing Nicely

PARIS (UPI)—Of the 8 million French families paying income tax, 600 declared net annual incomes above 500,000 francs ($100,000) in 1965.

About 20% of those reporting earned between 4,000 and 6,500 francs ($800 and $1,300). 27% from 6,500 to 10,000 francs ($1,300 to $2,000) and 24% from 10,000 to 15,000 francs ($2,000 to $3,000).

Plant and headquarters are at 3636 W. 139th St.

SHOPPERS' 'FLEA' . . . From Germany

One-Passenger Flea Has Shopper Appeal

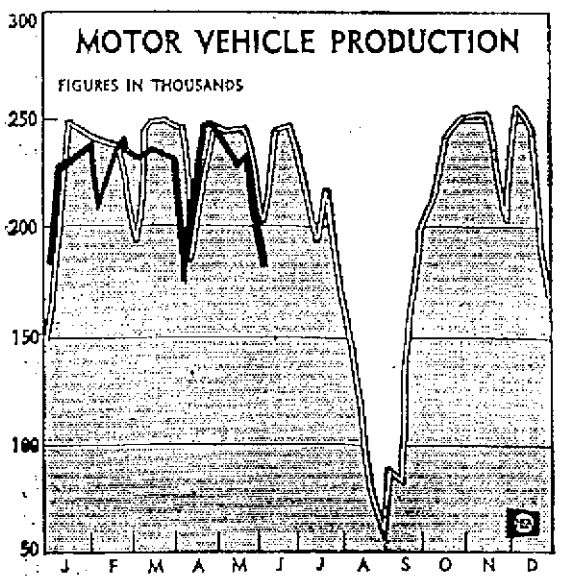

MUNICH, Germany — Introduction in the press of a miniature automobile, specially designed for city shoppers plagued by the lack of parking space, has already brought in 100 orders for the first models scheduled to roll off the assembly lines.

The designer is Munich's Anusch Samy, who also owns a fleet of small car taxis operating in the city. The new shoppers' "Flea" measures seven feet front to rear, is four feet tall and seats one person—the driver.

* * * *

THE REST of the interior is designed for loaded shopping bags. Maximum speed: 50 m.p.h. Maneuverability is a key feature of the model. it can be turned around in a space less than 20 feet wide. Dents and scratches don't necessitate a trip to the body shop: Made of plastic, the body permits owners to saw out the damage and patch in new pieces of the material at home.

A special safety feature is the driver's seat, which is constructed along the same lines as those in racing cars. Planned price on the German market: $750. For slightly more, it will also be available with fully automatic transmission.

Although an element of uncertainty has been introduced into the auto industry by the safety controversy, production for the first part of this year held close to the 1965 pattern. Newschart, based on U.S. Commerce Department statistics, shows monthly output record for last year with dark line indicating current production to June.

BRILLIANTLY LIT PAVILIONS . . . Identify Major Stores

Unique Lighting System Used in South Coast Plaza Center

Over three years ago when South Coast Plaza was in its initial stages, the unique blend of open lighting and custom fixtures was one of the first items planned, according to a spokesman for the Segerstrom family.

Lighting is important, not only as illumination, but as an architectural function for identification and creating a mood.

Surveys taken over the years by various developers have identified a major complaint of shopping center patrons; the difficulty of being able to identify major entrances to a complex.

* * * *

SOUTH COAST PLAZA brings to Orange County a modern application of an ancient lighting technique that can still be seen in Italy. Every main entrance will be highlighted by large, brightly-lit, vaulted pavilions. A skylight at the peak captures daylight as well as acting, at night, as a reflector for circular clusters of lights. This creates an overall feeling of unity for the entire mall. Pavilion entries are featured at the May Co., Sears, Roebuck and Co., plus double pavilions at the main entrance to each sideof the central mall. The theme is further carried out throughout the Plaza area, but double lights mounted on poles.

The balance between light and space was created to project an air of openness. Inside the two-story Mall, each level is rimmed by 14 floor-to-ceiling columns. The sharp line of vertical thrust has been modified by custom light fixtures designed by Victor Gruen Associates. These are cast in bronzed metal and follow a contemporary theme. Hammered glass enclosures cover the bulbs to soften the light pattern. A cluster of these 3½ foot cylinders ring each column slightly above the second level.

* * * *

A FURTHER feeling of expansiveness throughout the Mall is enhanced by large, transparent 8'x10' skylights.

Specialty shops, though individual in their Bazaar-type arrangement, have been coordinated with the overall theme through the use of lighting. This provides a feeling of size scaled to the average human so that people will not feel dominated by the huge structure.

South Coast Plaza, located in Costa Mesa at the Bristol Street offramp of the San Diego Freeway, will be the largest regional shopping center under one roof; containing over 1,000,000 square feet. The enclosed two-level connecting Mall will house 70 specialty shops featuring fashion in depth. This convenient shopping Mall will feature interior landscaping, colorful fountains, shopper rest areas and complete, climate-controlled, year-round air conditioning.

Miles of Clips for Paperwork

WATERBURY, Conn. (UPI) —One firm here couldn't care less about the huge amount of paper work which most companies deplore.

It's the Scovill Manufacturing Co., the nation's largest producer of paper clips. Scovill cheerfully reports sales of its paper slips will be more than 10% higher than in 1965. And that was 24,000 "miles" of clips.

Home Trade-In Boosted by Tight Money

Home trade-ins as a sales technique in the tight money market will be studied by real estate brokers, salesmen and homebuilders during a series of five one-day educational conferences sponsored by the California Real Estate Association, it was announced by Ira Gribin of Encino, chairman of the CREA Education Committee.

He said the Home Trade-In Conference is scheduled for Aug. 8 at the Coronado Hotel, Coronado; Aug. 9 at Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim; Aug. 10 at Pickwick Park, Burbank; Aug. 11 at Sacramento Inn, Sacramento; and Aug. 12 at the St. Claire Hotel in San Jose.

* * * *

JEROME BLANK, Realtor of Albany, conference chairman, said that he and four other Realtors with heavy experience in trade-ins will address the group.

"Trading is one of the bright spots in the tight money market," Blank remarked. "People want to buy and they are well able to, so the demand and capability are there. It's only the squeeze on sources of financing that gets in their way. That's why the Realtor who can work out a home trade-in is earning the gratitude of his clients and finds business better than ever, in spite of tight money."

Mal Sherman of Baltimore, one of the East's leading trade-in brokers, will address the conference on "Advertising and Merchandising the Trade-In Program." He has been especially successful in telling the public about home trade-in plans, Blank said.

"Why Have a Trade-In Plan?" will be the subject of a talk by Bernard Gerton, Realtor of San Lorenzo. He will cover the guaranteed trade, the direct trade and the equity loan.

* * * *

BLANK'S TOPIC will be "Financing Home Trade-Ins in a Tight Money Market." He will discuss sources of funds available for trade-ins and explain the financing of a typical trade-in transaction.

"Negotiating the Trade" will be covered by Phil Yaeger, Realtor of Covina, as he explains trade-in procedure, using a series of specially prepared new forms to guide those in attendance through a typical trade-in.

David Stone, Realtor of San Jose, one of the nation's leading authorities on trade-ins, will speak on "Putting the Trade-In Plan Into Action," explaining the importance of generating enthusiasm in the salesman for the home trade-in plan.

Advertising Role in Red Intrigue Is Speech Topic

Thursday's noon luncheon meeting of the Advertising Club of Long Beach at the Reef Restaurant will feature a talk by a U.S. Army Reserve intelligence-security officer on the use of advertising in Communist intrigue.

Max B. Schwartz, sales manager for the Marketing Division of Pacific Telephone Co., and Director of Training for Army Intelligence and Security at the Army Reserve School, Fort MacArthur, has as his topic "The Bright Red Thread." The meeting will be open to the public.

Success Story Spun by Synthetic Fibers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Yarn spun from synthetic fibers is spinning a success story of its own in the 1960s, according to a study of government figures made by a factoring and financing firm.

The survey shows that output of man-made spun yarns nearly doubled—with a 94% increase of 114,296,000 pounds—from 1960 to 1965, says Meinhard-Commercial Corp., a subsidiary of C.I.T. Financial Corp. During the same period, the company says, woolen spun yarn rose 12%, combed cotton 14% and carded cotton 6%.

Downey Parade Set for Dec. 4

Downey's traditional Christmas Parade will take place at 2:30 p.m. on Dec. 4 — a Sunday — according to Kenneth T. Theodore, parade committee chairman.

Needed for the gala event is a float to transport Santa Claus, and individuals or organizations interested in providing same are invited to contact Theodore through the Downey Junior Chamber of Commerce at earliest convenience.

Other members of the Christmas Parade Committee in addition to Theodore, who represents the Downey Jaycees, are Brownie Brown, vice chairman, representing Downey Lions Club, and Mrs. Alta Duke, treasurer, representing Downey Parks and Recreation Department.

STARTED IN WILMINGTON

Der Wienerschnitzel in Torrance Offices

Franchise organizations are proving a boon to sellers of undeveloped land whose prospects for a sale have grown bleak in recent months—if prerequisites of population density and high traffic count are present.

One franchising group, Der Wienerschintzel International, has xepanded in six years from a glamorized hot stand in Wilmington to 51 franchised locations and is contracting leases not only throughout California, but has expanded into regional markets of Houston, El Paso, Phoenix and Denver.

Formerly headquartered in Long Beach, Der Wienerschnitzel International this month moved its administrative operation into a new building at 1113 W. Carson St., Torrance.

* * * *

THE NEW offices comprise 4,000 square feet of space, floor-planned by interior designer Geri Coffin to meet the demands of the specialized operation. Facilities for a full-time design engineer, special desk space and phones for supervisors, and a large work area for cost-control equipment had to be provided, in addition to executive and general offices. Furnishings were also by Miss Coffin.

The highly successful franchising organization, whose management team averages under 3 0years o fage, has set a goal of at least one new opening each week. The present 36 Los Angeles-Long Beach area franchises will be expanded to 100, company officials say, and 2,000 is the ultimate goal nationally.

* * * *

YOUTHFUL enterprise is expected to make innovations—and thirthyish President John N. Galardi has come up with a lease arrangement that has great appeal to land owners and real estate brokers.

Ded Wienerschnitzel considers only sites where the owner will build to suit, and the parent company—not the franchisee—assumes responsibility for a 20-year lease. This assurance of financial stability is in addition to the fact that during its history no franchisee of the company has failed or has even been willing to offer his franchise on the resale market.

* * * *

REAL ESTATE brokers are happily cooperative because of the insistence by the firm's real estate director, J. Kirk Robison, a former San Bernardino realtor, that the entire real estate commission goes to the broker.

Locations must have high density of population around the site and a traffic count of at least 15,000 cars per day. Proximity to major shopping centers ,high schools and colleges contributes to the success of the operation.

Unlike some food-purveying franchisors, Der Wienerschnitzel does not shy away from other drive-ins.

The limited menu of 4 "main entrees" of Chili Dogs, Kraut Dogs, Mustard Dogs and Polish Dogs—all hut the last priced at 15 cents—makes Der Wienerschnitzel a unique operation that thrives very well even next door to another food drive-in, experienec has proved.

JAMES FURGERSON

F and M Opens in Lakewood

James Furgerson, an 11-year employe of Farmers and Merchants Banks, heads the company's new Lakewood facility as vice-president and manager. The bank will be open Monday for its first full day.

Appointed to assist Furgerson with the administration of the 5,000-square foot branch office is Lucien M. Biggs, formerly a branch manager at the Centinella Valley Bank and an assistant at the Pacific State Bank in Hawthorne and the downtown Los Angeles office.

* * * *

SINCE JOINING F and M as an' operations trainee in 1955; Furgerson, a graduate of Long Beach City College and Amarillo College, has held the posts of assistant vice-president of the F and M bank in Garden Grove and loan officer at the downtown Long Beach branch.

In addition to full-day schedules, Monday through Friday, the new bank, located in the Lakewood Shopping Center, will be open for business from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays on a trial basis "to see whether the public and the customers need that service," said G. A. Walker, president of the downtown Long Beach office.

FOUR-LEVEL HOME . . . In Huntington Beach Development

Low-Interest Home Program Offered at Grant Projects

A $1 million commitment is available for low interest loans on home resales at Robert H. Grant and Co., it was announced today by Richard Owen, executive vice president.

Grant's commitment allows loan interest rates of 5¾%, substantially below the current market, Owen said. The $1 million is set aside for financing present homes of those buying a new house under the firm's 72-hour trade-in program at three developments: Stardust Park, Fairway Park and Huntington Crest.

Under the trade-in plan, a price is agreed upon in advance by the homeowner based on the highest actual FHA inspection and appraisal.

According to Owen, proceeds from the sales belong entirely to the seller and any amount over and above the down payment on a new Grant home is returned in cash other than normal selling costs.

* * * *

AVAILABILITY of funds, committed prior to the tightening money market for refinancing, saves the homeowner additional dollars as well as easing the sale of his present home, says Owen.

Over 70% of new buyers have traded in their homes under this program which is applicable at Stardust Park, a $52 million, 1,600-home community at La Palma; Fairway Park, $40 million, 1,000-home project in Cypress; and the newest community, Huntington Crest, located in Huntington Beach.

Huntington Crest features one- and two-story and a quad-level design available in three, four or five bedrooms and priced from $31,950 to $36,950 with 5¾% FHA, VA or CAL-VET financing.

Huntington Crest may be reached from the San Diego Freeway, Beach Blvd. off-ramp south to Yorktown and left to the project.

Former Professor Heads U.S. Education Project

DR. RICHARD SCHUTZ
In U.S. Agency Post

A native Long Beacher, Dr. Richard Schutz of 5140 Walton St., is the director of a new educational research and development laboratory being established by the U.S. Office of Education in Los Angels.

The 37-year-old former professor of educational psychology at Arizona State University (Tempe) heads the Southwest Regional Laboratory for Educational Research and Development, which has a grant of $902,725 from the federal agency for its first half-year of operation.

It will study problems of education in Southern California, Arizona and southern Nevada, with special emphasis on problem-solving and communications skills for preschool and primary grade children. Another assignment is to produce teaching aids and develop instructional methods to be tested in schools.

Dr. Schutz attended Long Beach Poly High School, UCLA and Columbia University and served with the Strategic Air Command during the Korean War. His professional honors include membership in Phi Beta Kappa and American Psychological Association.

CONSUMERS

Worries Mount With Income

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—Despite continuing and widespread income gains, the American consumer is not as optimistic about general business conditions as he was six months ago, according to the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan.

Worry over inflation, falling stock prices and auto sales, higher interest rates and the prospect of tax increases caused the SRC Index of Consumer Sentiment to drop from 102.6 to 95.8 during the six-month period, says the SRC. Base year for the index is 1956.

Fresca Gives Boost to Coca-Cola Sales

Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Los Angeles raised its quarterly dividend to 35 cents from 30 cents per share, the fifth increase in the past four years.

The second quarter dividend is payable Aug. 25 on shares of record Aug. 9, A. D. MacDonald, president, reported.

Net income for the three months ended June 30 rose to a new high of $751,456 or $1.12 per share from $511,058 or 79 cents per share for the like period a year ago.

For the first six months, net income was a record $1,204,369 or $1.53 a share, up 32% from $773,812 or $1.19 per share in 1965. Per share figures are based on 671,196 shares outstanding in 1966 versus 650,196 shares in 1965.

The strong sales gain, said MacDonald, reflects the early success of Fresca, the company's newest product introduced in early May.

Landmark's Three-Car Garage Has Big Appeal to Home Buyer

INTERIOR VIEW OF LANDMARK HOME

According to the sales manager, R. C. Morrison, the feature really appreciated at the East Lakewood Landmark homesite is the spacious three car garage.

Area homeseekers are invited to visit the model area in the city of La Palma. Located at the intersection of Moody Street and La Palma Avenue, this newest Landmark Homes community will eventually comprise some 360 homes. All homes are two story. Features include underground utilities, carpeting, fencing, landscaping, sprinklers, walk-in closets and the usual long list of Landmark Homes exclusives.

* * * *

A GENERAL PLAN for developing La Palma as the community of the "Ideal American City" has been approved by city councilmen. The development of residential, commercial and industrial land is expected by 1975. The master plan calls for 190 acres of low-density residential housing, 88 acres in "town house" construction and 69 acres in high density apartments.

La Palma is considered prime residential property, located between the famed facilities of Disneyland and Knotts Berry Farm, in the heart of a rapidly developing commercial area.

* * * *

OTHER FEATURES include: Magnificent entries, spacious family rooms, deluxe built-ins, fireplaces, preparation for air conditioning, custom entry flooring, cultured pullmans, separate service areas, step-down living and family rooms, massive master bedroom suites and convenient dressing alcoves.

Prices at the homesite begin at just $28,500 with an excellent 5% down plan offered. All terms are completely flexible. For information phone 826-0640.

Sparkling Addition to Belmont Shore

ULTRA-MODERN OFFICE STRUCTURE . . . . . Belmont Savings Moves Headquarters

Belmont Savings and Loan Association is operating from the newly-completed main office, 5200 East Second St. in Long Beach. To avoid any interruption of service, all office operations were transferred to the new building during the weekend.

William J. Crawford, president of the $125-million dollar Association reported that the new 12,000 square foot building includes the most modern computerized equipment and facilities for customer service.

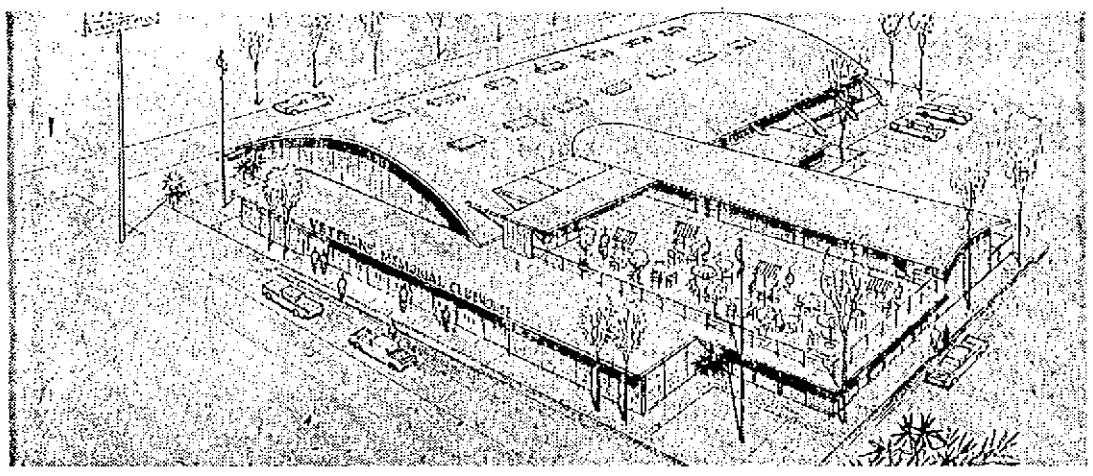

Among the new customer service facilities is a drive-in TV Auto Teller. Account holders can talk directly to and view the teller on closed circuit TV, and complete all savings transactions from their cars. "Our TV Auto Teller now provides three extra hours of service each day as well as drive-in convenience," Crawford said. "It's available from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Monday through Friday."

* * *

A SPECIAL FEATURE of the new building is the Belmont Room, a community room which will be available to local civic and club groups for meetings. Arrangements for the use of the Belmont Room, which has a capacity of 75 people, may be made by contacting the office management at Belmont Savings.

An unusual architectural feature is a giant free-standing, poured-in-place concrete and steel vault which also contains safe deposit boxes for customer use.

Belmont Savings old offices at Nieto and Second streets are being demolished, after which the ground will be converted into a parking lot for the use of the new building.

BALLROOM DANCERS CAN HARDLY WAIT

Biggest ballroom west of the Mississippi River (100x200 feet) is among features of upcoming Veterans Memorial Clubhouse to be built on 2½-acre lot near Spring Street and Atlantic Avenue, and "dispossessed" patrons of razed Cinderella Ballroom have been promised thrice-weekly use of facilities when completed about next March 15. Architect for $185,000 clubhouse is Harry W. Ganstrom, AIA; builder is Melvin S. Jensen Construction Co., Inglewood. Besides ballroom, clubhouse will contain banquet hall or meeting room and outdoor dining terrace.

Kaiser Cement to Build Plant in Seattle Area

OAKLAND (AP) — Kaiser Cement & Gypsum Corp. has reported first-phase construction of a new cement manufacturing plant at Seattle, Wash., will start before the first of the year.

A $3.5-million complex of cement storage silos will be erected on a Duwamish Waterway plant site acquired last year on long term lease from the Seattle Port Commission, said President Peter S. Hass.

He said the silo complex will be the first unit in a multimillion-dollar cement manufacturing facility at Seattle to replace the Bellingham, Wash., plant, which is being sold to Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co.

The new silos will be supplied by ship and barge until the new Seattle plant is in operation.

Bids Called on North Long Beach Units

By KEN CHILCOTE

R & B Development Co., Los Angeles, is calling for bids from various trades and material firms on the 318-unit apartment complex planned at 6465 Atlantic Ave., Long Beach.

The development, which will cost an estimate $3,300,000, will also include a recreation building, tennis pro shop and tennis courts and two swimming pools.

Part of the project will be three stories, containing 270,000 square feet, some of two levels will contain 170,000 square feet; a two-story and basement area of 11,000 square feet and a one-story area of 2,000 square feet.

* * * *

ANOTHER MAJOR construction project in this area upon which bids have been called is the Los Alamitos High School, to be built at Los Alamitos Blvd. and Cerritos Ave.

Estimated cost of the school will be $3,300,000. It will be made up of 10 buildings, all one-story, containing 180,000 square feet. Bids will be accepted Aug. 8 by the Anaheim Union High School District. Completion of the school is planned within 400 days of the awarding of the contract.

given utmost importance in the $2,500,000 Stonewood Village apartment building to be erected on Lakewood Blvd. at Ceila Ave., Downey, by Hal Weisman and Roy Norris, Los Angeles, the owners.

There will be 150 units in the big complex but car parking for 225 cars will be provided in a separate parking structure which will contain 40,000 square feet of both above and below ground parking. The 150 units will be in three-story and partial basement construction containing 125,000 square feet. The project also contains recreation rooms and tennis courts.

* * * *

AMONG OTHER pending construction projects in the area are:

IRVINE — Bids will be taken Aug. 8 on construction of University Park Elementary School on Matthews Street. It will be a 37,187 square foot structure with the cost estimated at $713,000.

NORWALK — The Norwalk-LaMirada Unified School District board will receive bids Tuesday on construction of 21 additional classrooms and some service structures at the William N. Neff High School, 14800 Alondra Blvd., with the cost estimated at $900,000.

NORWALK — Key Management Inc., Downey, has called for bids from various trades on construction of a 152-unit apartment complex and two swim pools at Studebaker Road and Imperial Highway. Estimated cost of the two-story 235,000 square foot project is $1,500,000.

ORANGE — Peter Kiatt Sons Co., Arcadia, was awarded a $9,281,790 contract by the Metropolitan Water District of Southern California for construction of the Robert B. Diemer filteration plant, warehouse and shop building at 3972 Valley View Ave., north of Yorba Linda.

MOUNTAIN VALLEY — Griffith Co., Costa Mesa, had the low bid of $87,487 for the improvement of Warner Avenue and Shard Street to Brookhurst Avenue, a city project.

LOS ALAMITOS — The Orange County Board of Supervisors will open bids Aug. 15 on a bridge on Los Alamitos Boulevard over Coyote Creek. Estimated cost is $50,000.

LA HABRA—Leon Shanahan Co., Santa Ana, is awaiting city approval on a subdivision of 21 lots on five acres between Beach Boulevard and Glencliff Street, north of Cliffield Street.

EL TORO — The county has called for bids at an estimated cost of $25,000 to install traffic signals and lighting at the El Toro Road and Paseo Da Valencia intersection.

Board to Meet

The next regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Los Altos Association will be held at the Association office, 2001 Palo Verde Ave. at 7:30 p.m. Monday, Stephen J. Harney, president, will preside.

New Flag Flying Over Port of L.B.

The Port of Long Beach has a new flag.

The flag was hoisted in front of the Harbor Department Administration Building by the president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

Designer of the flag, Charles Beeson, vice-president and art director for Curtis and Associates, selected a color scheme of gold, blue and white.

The gold represents the sunny skies, and white curving strip signifies the breaking white caps on a rolling sea, and the blue duplicates the color of the offshore waters, Beeson said.

A replica of a globe in the upper corner near the staff recognizes the city's claim to the title of "The International City."

When the Board of Harbor Commissioners hoisted a new, colorful flag for the port, the designer, Charles Beeson, made certain it would be pictured. He is shown at the left as he prepared to photograph the scene. Harbor Commissioners in the photo are (from left) Llewellyn L. Bixby Jr., James Craig Jr., William Harrington, Robinson A. Reid, and hoisting the colors, H. E. (Bud) Ridings Jr.

R. W. CARITHERS
In Leisure World Post

Carithers to Leisure World Post

New president of Leisure World Foundation, effective Monday, is Robert W. Carithers, who succeeds Kenneth E. BeLieu in the position.

Announcement was made by William G. Simon, chairman of LWF's board of trustees, who said BeLieu will continue as a member of the foundation's board. BeLieu former undersecretary of the Navy, recently was elected director of Babcock Electronics Corp., Costa Mesa.

Carithers, former national hospital consultant and economist for Leisure World Foundation, joined the organization in December of 1964 and has served in such capacities as senior vice president finance and director of medical administration.

In his new position he will head a staff that sponsors and operates Rossmoor Leisure World communities located in Seal Beach, Laguna Hills and Walnut Creek in California, Wheat, Md.; Cranbury, N. J. and a sixth being planned for central Illinois.

At the completion of the communities, a total Leisure World population of 175,000 —52 years of age and over— is expected.

Lone Ranger Again Premier Home Host

The Lone Ranger, popular hero of radio, greets visitors personally every Sunday at the Premier Homes Development in Stanton. He and Tonto, have autographed pictures and silver bullets for the youngsters.

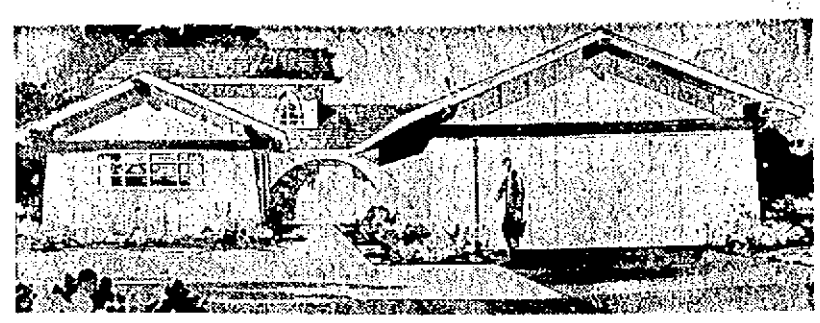

Of great interest to buyers is the distinctive styling of the Villa Roma model. Picturesque design taken from the best of early Mediterranean architecture give this popular three bedroom, two bath home outstanding quality and lasting beauty. Used brick facing and graceful arch entry accent the Mediterranean influence.

FOR ADDED individuality, new home-owners may convert the finish Premium room either into extra bedrooms and bath, or recreation room with wet bar. Located in the heart of Orange County, close to schools and shopping centers, Premier Homes have already established an amazing sales pace.

Prices range from $24,500 to $27,900, with excellent financing still available. The Lone Ranger invites his friends to meet him and Tonto on Sunday, and to inspect the five furnished models, on Chapman Avenue east of Beach Boulevard in Stanton.

From the Garden Grove or San Diego Freeways, take the Beach Blvd. turnoff north to Chapman, right to the furnished models.

Apartment Assn. Meets Monday

BELLFLOWER — Norman Moore, air conditioning consultant, will be speaker at the Los Cerritos Valley Apartment Owners Association meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in offices of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, 10140 Alondra Blvd.

Officers of the association are Francis Humphries, president; Robert Porter, first vice president; Walter Poindexter, second vice president; Lawrence Poulin, sergeant-at-arms, and Ruth Jackman, secretary-treasurer.

Ample Mortgage Funds Available

Charles A. Wellman, president of Equitable Savings and Loan Association, says his organization has a "substantial supply of funds" available for making prime home loans in both the Long Beach and San Fernando Valley areas.

In a letter to all savings account holders, he said the recent acquisition of $120 million of selected assets of Van Nuys Savings and Loan Association has proved to be a very beneficial move for account holders of Equitable Savings.

* * * *

"THE ASSETS acquired represent $100 million of selected mortgage loans on properties which we inspected prior to purchase and which we felt would be beneficial to our total investment portfolio," Wellman said. "None of these mortgage loans were delinquent.

"Ownership of these loans by Equitable accomplishes several commendable results.

"All savings account holders now enjoy a greater geographic diversification of investment. The loans are now disbursed over a much larger area, resulting in a more widespread coverage of Southern California's total economy.

SPACIOUS LIVING ROOMS FEATURED IN MANOR TOWN HOUSES

Manor Town House Dwellers Have Fun Facilities at Home

"Residents of The Manor Town Houses are not faced with jammed freeway traffic or overwhelming crowds of people when they wish to enjoy their favorite recreational pursuits," says Hal Parham, sales director of the Norwalk condominium. "The families and their friends are able to enjoy a year 'round schedule of recreational facilities located within the community."

The extensive athletic facilities are especially designed for all age groups and interests. They include Olympic-sized heated swimming pool, wading pool, football field, Little League baseball field, basketball and tennis courts, enclosed and fully equipped playgrounds, picnic areas and a $150,000 Town Hall and Community Clubhouse which has a number of hobby rooms, including a library.

* * * *

EACH OF THE facilities is jointly owned by the residents and maintained for them by professionals under a low monthly maintenance fee. The fee is levied by the community's elected board of governors.

The Manor Town Houses feature three, four and five-bedroom floor plans, all with two baths.

Fully furnished model homes and recreational facilities can be seen on Bloomfield Avenue, just south of Imperial Highway, one mile north of the Santa Ana Freeway. The model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. until dark.

Young Families Like Tanglewood

Young families with children are choosing Tanglewood Townhomes because of its variety of recreation facilities, and they show a decided preference for the four-bedroom "Waverly" model, according to Cecil Bishop, sales manager for the Cypress community.

The two-story "Waverly" floor plan features a master bedroom suite with separate dressing room, plus three other bedrooms and 2½ baths. In addition to a full size living and dining area, each of which features separate sliding glass patio doors, there is also a large family room with a ceramic counter-top bar serving to divide it from the kitchen.

* * * *

KITCHENS in all Tanglewood Townhomes include built-in automatic ranges and ovens, as well as automatic dishwashers. Also featured is the very latest in "Total-home" central air conditioning, which heats in winter and cools in summer.

Prices start at $17,950. Both one and two-story models are offered in a choice of six different floor plans and 27 exterior stylings. Financing programs include: VA no down payment, FHA, Cal-Vet, and conventional.

* * * *

TANGLEWOOD offers its residents an active recreation program centered around its three swimming pools and two community clubhouses.

Tanglewood is reached from the Long Beach area by taking Spring Street east to Bloomfield. From the San Diego freeway, take the Los Alamitos turnoff north to Wardlow, then right. From the Santa Ana freeway, take the Valley View turnoff; travel south to Lincoln; then right to Moody; then left to Ball and right to models.

GRAND OPENING—UNIT II

Like that first cup of coffee. All Influential Homes in Orange have an automatic coffee timer which will have that important first cup ready as soon as you are. A little thing, true. But a sample of the way we do things.

You'll notice a lot more little things:

LITTLE THINGS COUNT

A special place to store the boat or camper. A built-in toaster, can-opener, bath scale. Garages in the rear on many homes (that means more playing room for your own important little things!). A wall around the whole community. Modern materials which require little upkeep. A kitchen designed to save you steps with vegetable bins, pan drawers, pantries. There are plenty of big things too. Exciting, new floor-plans. Concrete driveways leading to a roomy, two-car garage with a laundry tray and plenty of room for a workshop.

REFRIGERATED AIR CONDITIONING INCLUDED IN THE PRICE. Super-sized closets in the right places, and lots of them. A large washer-dryer area near the kitchen. Decorative block wall fencing enclosing back and side yards. Underground Utilities. We've thought of other important things. Like location. In one of the nicest parts of Orange, you'll enjoy the short commuting time to job centers. There are a lot of reasons you should seriously consider an Influential Home for your next one. Some big. Some little. All Important.

BE AN EARLY BIRD! First comers get the pick of lot locations, first choice of plans and exteriors that suit you and your family best! Remember, there are only a limited number of New Executive Series homes, so come out today. Take advantage of our low interest rates and low opening prices. Be protected should rising costs necessitate an increase in prices later.

Spacious rooms, elegant baths and dressing areas/Glamour kitchens with all built-ins, luminous ceiling, and decorative ceramic tile counter and bar tops/100% continuous filament Nylon carpeting.

La Paz Home Buyers Start Move-Ins Soon

DESIGNED FOR CALIFORNIA LIVING . . . La Paz Home

Families will begin moving into La Paz Homes, Mission Viejo Aug. 22, reports the sales manager, James Manley.

Each of the five model La Paz Homes was designed to provide all the amenities found in much more expensive homes and with appeal to a wide range of discriminating buyers.

The four-bedroom, two-bath, San Angelo is characteristic of this regard for comfortable family living.

The San Angelo is informal in character and has a separate utility "mud-room" opening to the garage in the bedroom wing. Thus, the laundry facilities are close to where the children remove their dirty clothes.

* * * *

THE KITCHEN FLOWS off to one side of the family room and forms a projection on the rear with large corner counter-to-ceiling windows opening to the view. This affords the mother complete visual control over the yard for supervision of the younger children.

The fireplace in the family room is eight feet wide, extends from the floor to the ceiling, and has a raised hearth. Next to the family room is a bedroom that has been designed so that it can function as a den and has sliding glass doors to the rear yard.

The master bedroom has a wardrobe storage space 10 feet high and 16 feet wide. Its bathroom allows access from the rear yard for use as a dressing room.

* * * *

THE FIVE La Paz Homes offer a choice of 15 exterior designs, including the three-bedroom San Juan, the four-bedroom San Angelo, the two-story, four-bedroom San Lucas, the two-story, three-bedroom San Martine, and the national award-winning four-bedroom, split-level San Lorenzo.

The model homes are on Chrisanta Drive, Mission Viejo and are priced from $20,950 to $27,500. Mission Viejo is 12 miles southeast of Santa Ana and may be reached via the Santa Ana-San Diego Freeway, taking the off ramp at La Paz Road.

Glen Mar Executive Series Is Appealing

"To accommodate home buyers at the site of our new Glen Mar Executive Series of homes, we have opened a second sales office on the building site of the unit," said Ron Walker, sales manager of the Macco Leadership Homes community, located in Huntington Beach.

The new sales office is located on Magnolia between Garfield and Adams, in one of the model homes. The main Glen Mar sales office is on Brookhurst near Adams in Huntington Beach.

* * * *

THE NEW EXECUTIVE Series homes are creating a great interest among home-seekers, according to Walker. "These large homes designed for family living offer up to five bedrooms with 2,060 square feet for only $23,950. With Macco's Rising Executive Plan, a new Executive Series home may be purchased with a low down payment and long-term financing. Another feature, which appeals to home buyers, is the location near beach and recreational areas and the easy access to freeways."

Attractive shake shingle roofs are featured on the new homes. Among the custom features included in the purchase price of the Glen Mar homes are carpeting, landscaped front lawn with sprinklers, side and rear fencing, award-winning kitchen complete with dishwasher, fireplace and decorator wallpaper. Glen Mar homes are priced from $19,950 for a three bedroom, two-bath home.

Gabbert to Douglas Key Position in L.B.

Appointment of Tom Gabbert as vice president-financial management of the Douglas Aircraft Division, Long Beach, was announced by Jesse L. Jones, vice president-general manager of the division.

Gabbert succeeds Harold F. Showalter, recently appointed vice president-controller of the Douglas Aircraft Co.

A 25-year veteran of the company, Gabbert has been vice president-director financial management of the Douglas Missile & Space Systems Division, Huntington Beach.

* * * *

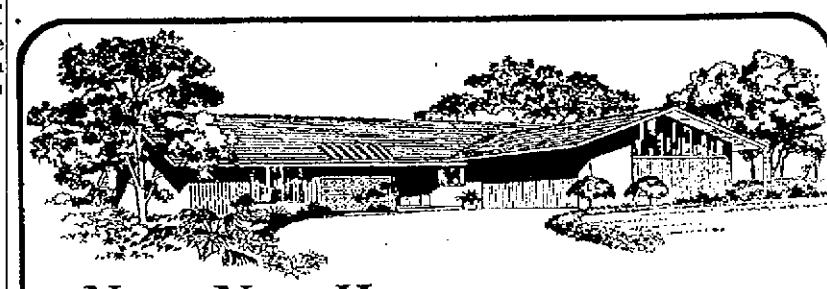

JOINING DOUGLAS in 1939, he became a supervisor in the reimbursement department at the former Long Beach Division. After two years service with the Armed Forces during World War II, Gabbert returned to Long Beach, where he became supervisor in accounting.

In 1951 Gabbert transferred to the Douglas facility in Tulsa as controller. He was named controller at the former El Segundo Division in 1958 and, when the Missile & Space Systems Division was formed in 1961, he was appointed controller of that organization.

John L. Sigrist, who had been vice president and deputy director of financial management, succeeds Gabbert in the Huntington Beach plant.

Bellflower Eastridge Offers Owner Chance for Better Home

TRI-LEVEL AMONG MODELS . . . In Bellflower Eastridge

At a recent seminar of homebuilders, the sales director of Ray Watt's Bellflower Eastridge, John Joyce commented, "presently nearly 40% of California's population is in the greater Los Angeles area.

"By the turn of the century nearly 40 million persons are expected to reside in this state. For these reasons, home appreciation is certain. But the time to buy is now, before home prices go even higher."

"Bellflower Eastridge has eliminated many of the obstacles to home buying in the Los Angeles area. With our exclusive trade-in program, a homebuyer can move-up to a luxury Bellfower Eastridge home with no cash—a trade-in of the present home is sufficient. Long-term, low-cost financing is another advantage being offered. This results in an unusual cash savings to the homebuyer in interest charges," noted Joyce.

* * * *

THE TRI-LEVEL Bellflower Eastridge homes are priced from only $35,000 with a variety of award-winning floor plans available. Included in the low purchase is a Balanced Power kitchen with built-in O'Keefe & Merritt range and oven, automatic dishwasher, food waste disposer, and wall-to-wall 100% continuous filament nylon carpeting.

Six furnished models are on Hacienda Avenue and Grand Avenue, just two blocks north and east of the main intersection of Woodruff and Artesia boulevards.

Port Publication Receives Award

For attaining a high degree of excellence in the preparation of the Port of Long Beach's annual report, "Harbor Highlights," Harbor Department officials have been given the Gold Letterhead Award.

Thomas E. Jeffry, representing the S. D. Warren Paper Co., donor of the award, made the presentation to William A. Harrington, who was president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners during the time the report was published.

* * * *

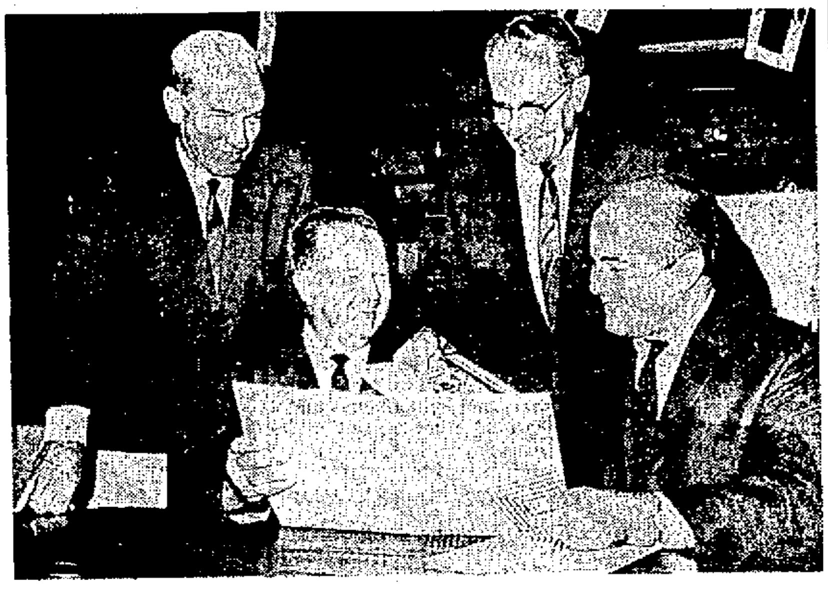

APPROXIMATELY 50,000 copies of the four-color booklet are in the process of being distributed to port customers and prospects, according to Alvin K. Maddy, acting as editor and publisher of the booklet for the department.

John Curtis and Associates of Long Beach provided the artwork and preparation for the award-winning report.

Only four other awards for such publications have been made during the past two years, reports the donors.

Health License Deadline Here

Another tax deadline has arrived — almost — as the seventh month of the year comes to a close.

Public Health license renewals were to be made by Aug. 1, according to Harold J. Ostly, Los Angeles County tax collector.

Renewal notices were mailed in recent weeks and remittances postmarked later than Monday — tomorrow — are subject to a 25% delinquent penalty.

Those requiring Public Health licenses include owners or operators of boarding and apartment houses of five or more units and operators of food handling, processing or preparation businesses, such as restaurants and food markets.

Silverado Days Entries Sought

More business and industry participants are being sought for Buena Park's ninth annual Silvarado Days parade on Oct. 15, chairman Wayne Sheppard reported Saturday. Applications for float entries may be obtained from the Buena Park Chamber of Commerce.

Sheppard, who heads the committee for the second straight year, said the 1966 parade theme will be "Silverado Days: A Salute to the Past, a Promise for the Future."

American Honda Sales Rise 37%

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — American Honda Motor Co. for the first time released the results of its annual U.S. sales and reported a 37% increase over Fiscal 1965.

For the year ended June 30, 1966, American Honda, wholly-owned subsidiary of Honda Motor Co. Ltd. of Japan, reported unaudited sales of $106 million compared to sales of $77.2 million the previous fiscal year.

American Honda is the distribution organization for Honda motorcycles, which it imports from Japan. There are more than 1,700 Honda dealers in the United States.

The company predicted its sales would exceed $133 million during the 1966-67 fiscal year.

Rowen Heads Rand Corp.

SANTA MONICA (UPI) — Henry S. Rowen, who recently resigned as Assistant Director of the Bureau of the Budget, has been named president of Rand Corporation.

Rowen succeeds Franklin R. Collbohm, who held the top job in the non-profit, research-and-development firm since its founding in 1948. Collbohm will continue to serve as special consultant to Rand.

Following his association with Rand as an economist from 1950 to 1961, Rowen was Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs until 1965.

Courts Building Progressing

From Our Los Angeles Bureau

Construction of the $4.4 million Torrance - South Bay County Building is more than 60% complete, and the structure will be ready for occupancy in mid-march, Supervisor Burton W. Chace said after touring the five-story building in the Torrance Civic Center.

"Not only will it be a beautiful structure, it will be one of the most functional facilities of its kind," he said.

* * * *

THE BUILDING will house 11 Superior Courts and four Municipal Courts. Space also is provided for offices of the county clerk, marshal, Municipal Court clerk, juvenile traffic, district attorney and sheriff, as well as the law library.

The five-acre site, which was provided by the City of Torrance, offers parking for 244 cars plus sheriff's buses.

Under terms of the original contract, four floors will be completed by March. The fifth floor will be completed while the building is occupied.

Four-plex Apartments Proving Popular

With the public showing of the new Franciscan multiple apartments three weeks ago, the latest Bayport Financial Corp.'s development has met with instant success, it was announced by Richard Brown, president.

"The wonderful reception to our new multiple apartments," Brown stated, "has been proven out with 65% of apartments now sold out. "Easy to rent is the answer most owners of Franciscan four-plexes have given when questioned about their income property, according to Bill Gordan, sales manager for Bayport.

Gordon said his staff has contacted many buyers of the more than 75 Franciscan Balanced Power fourplexes sold in Garden Grove and Westminster the past three years, and the great majority have reported they have had no trouble in renting the three income units in their buildings.

"In fact, many Franciscan buyers now are considering the purchase of a new fourplex in our Anaheim project," he noted.

* * * *

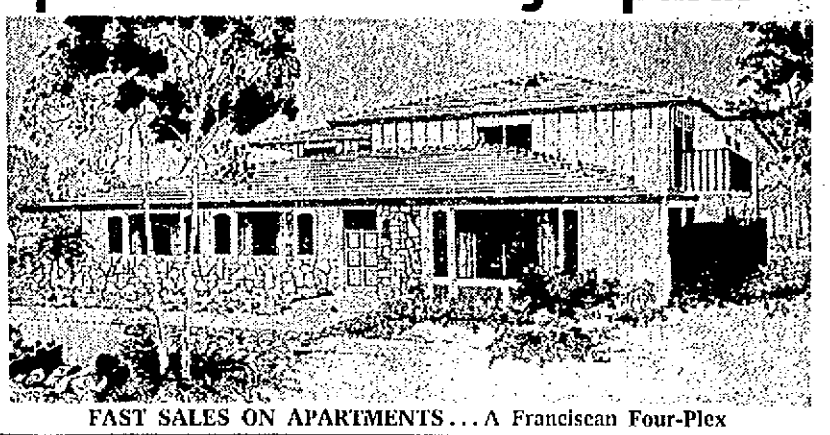

SALES TO DATE at the Anaheim Franciscan, on Lincoln between Euclid and Brookhurst, have been brisk, the sales manager said. The project is located near many large industrial plants and businesses, creating an excellent rental potential from employes seeking a residence near their place of work.

They contain a spacious three-bedroom two-bath owners suite, a pair of two-bedroom apartments (one with two baths, the other with one), and a one-bedroom unit.

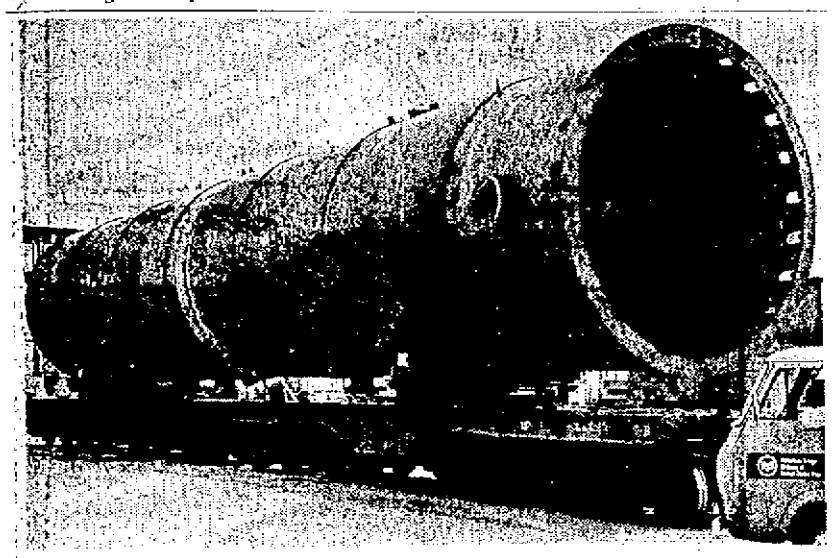

The three-bedroom residence is described by Gordon as being as spacious and luxurious as a medium to higher priced single family dwelling.

* * * *

"A FRANCISCAN owner has everything he wants in a home, plus three additional apartments that can provide him with a lifetime income. The monthly rent from the three units will more than defray the loan payments," Gordon pointed out.

La Paz Homes

This is the San Martine. It is one of the La Paz Homes in Mission Viejo. There's a 16' high entryway leading to 1½ story double Spanish doors. Here is a large three bedroom, 2½ bath home that was designed for the family with children. The living room and formal dining room are zoned so that they are completely separated from the informal area which includes the family room. Both the living room and the family room have fireplaces. The architect-designed fireplace in the family room, with its Spanish influence and raised hearth, compliments the informal tone of this part of the home. Over-sized 4" wide stairs lead from the living room to the second level. There, you'll find a large 18' bedroom, a second bedroom, bath, and the master bedroom suite—with double door entry, separate dressing area, bath, and an outside balcony. The kitchen with floor to ceiling glass has a counter extension which forms a pass-through to the patio.

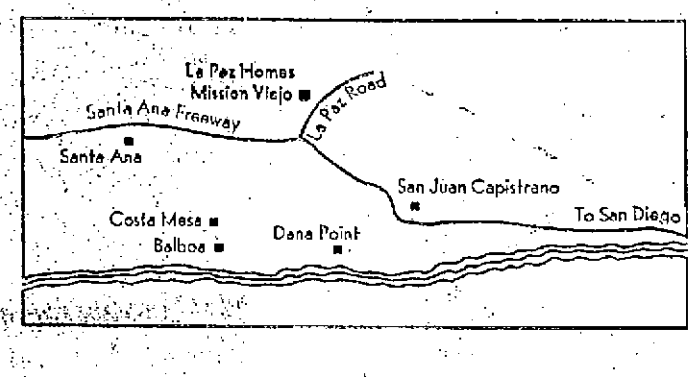

La Paz Homes are part of the first phase in the creative new community of Mission Viejo. This famous part of the historic O'Neill ranch reflects the beauty and grace of early days. The feeling and character of this peaceful land will be retained through proper respect of the rolling hills and mature trees. La Paz Homes have been designed with generous use of traditional elements such as wrought iron window grilles and railings and heavy rough sawn beams and trim on both interior and exterior.

All public buildings of Mission Viejo with their red Spanish tile roofs, are a delightful blend of traditional Spanish and Contemporary architecture. You'll notice this first in the Mission Viejo Post Office as you turn left into the La Paz Model Home area. The "mission bell" lamp posts are reminiscent of the El Camino Real. There are parks and riding trails and wide tree-lined avenues. Under construction are the high school, the shopping plaza, the Lutheran Church and the Mission Viejo Country Club, with a challenging 18-hole course designed by Robert Trent Jones. The Country Club will be available to the families of La Paz Homes.

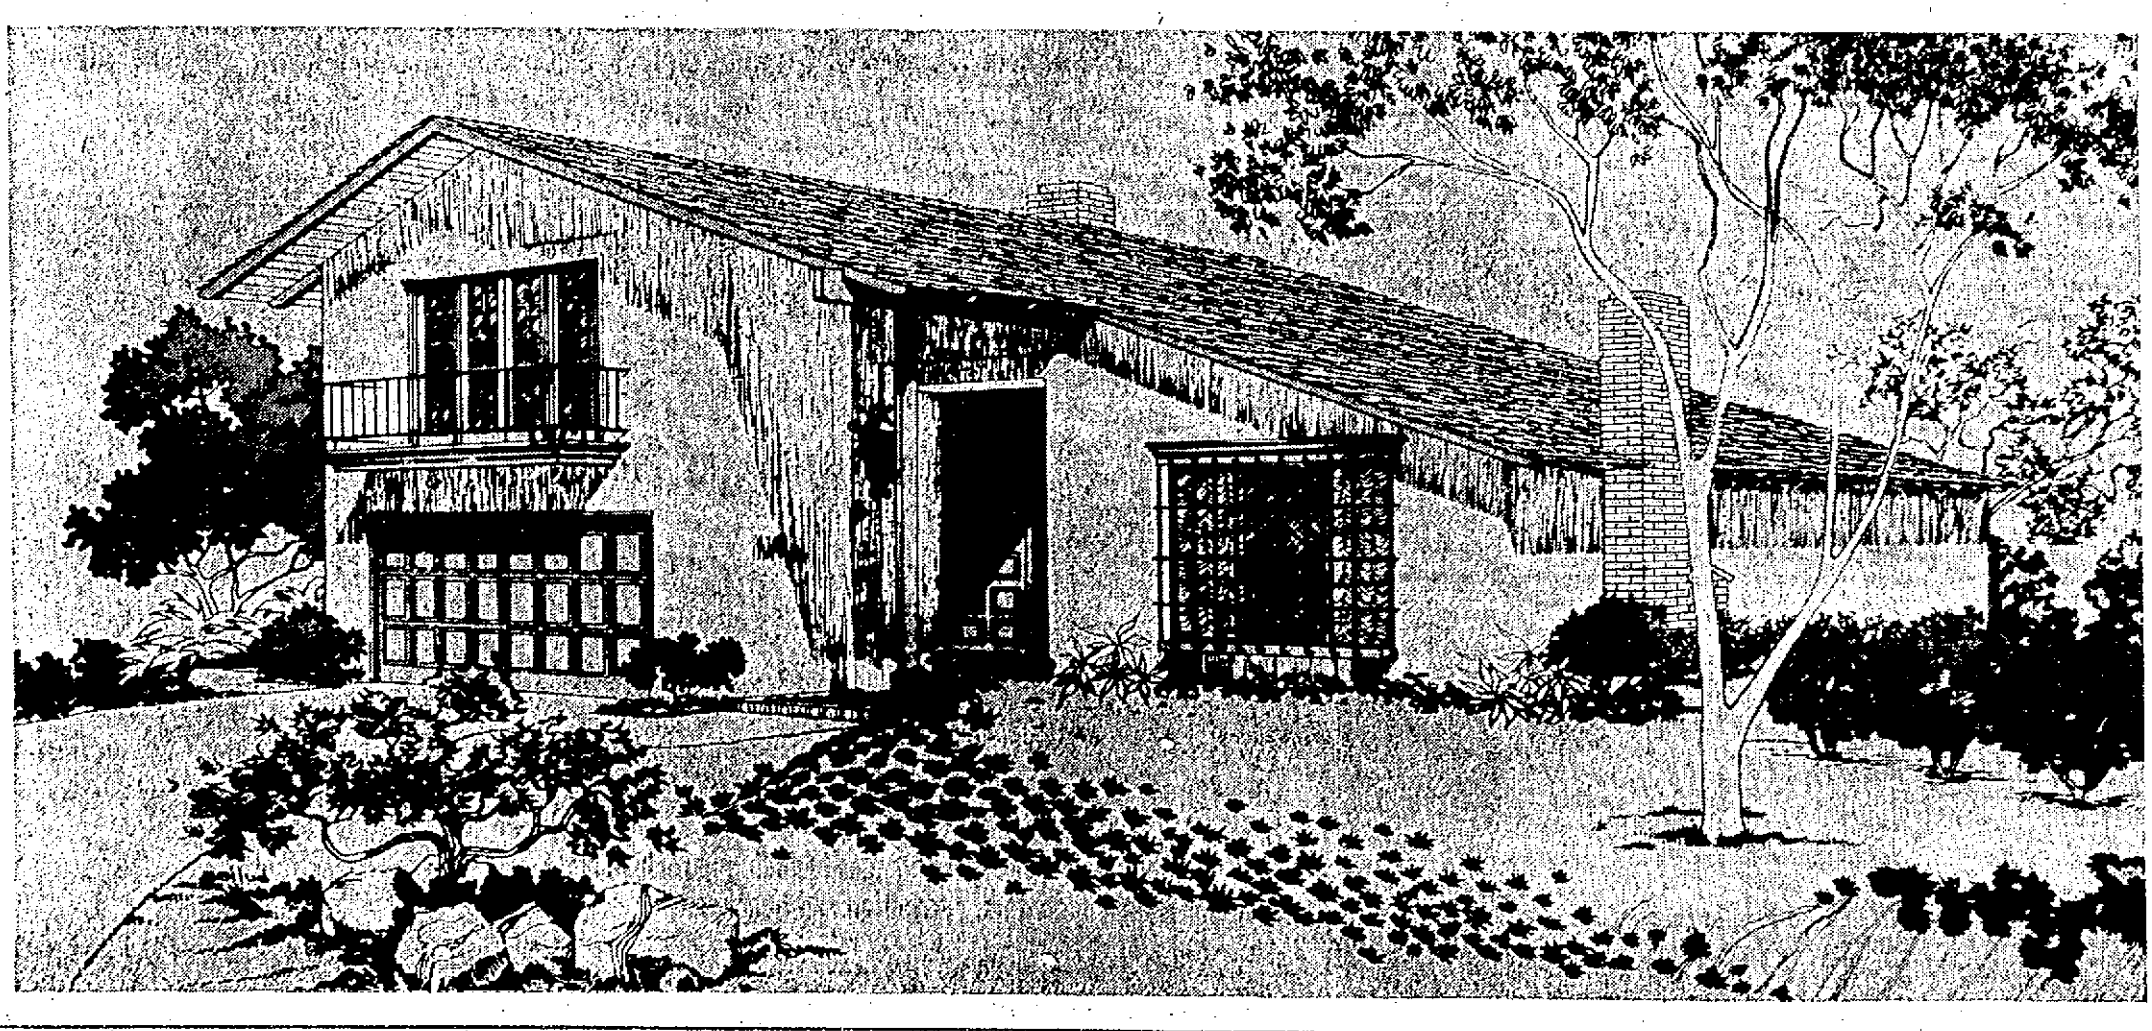

This is elegance you can afford. The price of San Martine is $27,500. This is the highest priced home of the six La Paz Homes in this series! Other models, designed with the same care and thought to fit every family need start from $20,950. Low 5¾% FHA financing is available.

Come to La Paz Homes in Mission Viejo today. Take the Santa Ana Freeway South to La Paz Road turn-off. Cross the bridge and enter Mission Viejo, California.

IT'S THEIR HERITAGE

The debutante is...

Beautiful: ...and the mirror proves young debs ARE lovely in the persons of Marsha Erb (left) and Susan Holmquist.

It was a night of gracious elegance in the manner of early California dons when Assistance League of Long Beach and its Las Hermanas auxiliary presented 18 debutantes Saturday at their seventh annual Presentation Ball.

The evening began with a party for the debs, their escorts and young men of the stag line in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Concurrently, league and auxiliary members and their guests gathered in the Embassy Room.

Then the men's floor committee directed guests through the corridor to the International Ballroom, glamorized with brilliant red drapes. In keeping with the theme, "Our California Heritage," the ballroom was transformed into a breathtaking early California mission with living pepper trees and blooming azaleas in a traditional courtyard setting.

An authentic Spanish fountain was centered in an archway where a covey of white doves hovered. Pillars, artfully decorated to resemble adobe brick, were entwined with bright red geraniums.

Each of the 60 circular tables was lighted with a large black wrought iron candle lantern festooned with bunches of fresh grapes clustered at the base. Red velvet programs and the menu, printed in Spanish, completed the romantic decor.

GUESTS WERE greeted by Mrs. Homer Grant, league president, and Mr. Grant, Mrs. David Eagleson, ball chairman, and Mr. Eagleson. Others in the receiving line were Messrs. and Mmes. Gene Bishop, Reginald Barden, Eugene Kirkpatrick, Earl Burns Miller, Richard Walker, Karl Ward, William Wilson, Wendell Wilson, Edwin Wilcox, Brewster Gray and Dr. and Mrs. Mark Kuffel.

Attired in formal white ball gowns, the debutantes—escorted by their fathers—were presented at 8:30 p.m. Dr. Earl Wallace was master of ceremonies; Marvin Cloyd announced the presentees.

Following the ceremony, dinner and dancing to the music of Joe Moshay's orchestra concluded the event.

Those presented, all daughters or granddaughters of members, were: Donna Jean Barden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Barden, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Barden.

Barbara Christine Bechler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bechler, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Wells and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bechler.

Pamela Ann Dalessi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dalessi, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian D. McIlroy and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Dalessi.

N.Y. DOG WALKERS ARE CAT'S MEOW

Meanwhile, back in the jungle...

(Garment jungle, that is)

After reporting the fall-winter fashion collections in New York City recently, Mary Ellis Carlton was grounded several days by the airline strike. While waiting out a plane reservation, she collected some interesting sidelights on the world's biggest city—on its boutique shops, night spots, cloud-nudging penthouses and that roaring giant, the garment jungle. Here is her second in a series of articles on how New York lives.

By Mary Ellis Carlton
Director, Women's News

WALKING THE DOG
...a favorite pastime in Manhattan

Some of the best-fed, most pampered, best-groomed New Yorkers are the four-legged variety.

In hand-knitted sweaters and jeweled collars, they strut in the most fashionable neighborhoods — their hair well-coiffed and often be-ribboned.

They're the poodle pup-ulation!

"A lot of 'em live better'n most of us New Yorkers," complained a cab driver as he swerved to miss an aristocratic female who pranced nonchalantly across the street with her nose in the air.

The canine charmer couldn't care less about all those honking contraptions with screeching wheels.

But the cute-looking girl straining at the other end of the leash was plenty concerned.

"Man . . . that was a close one!" barked the cab driver. "Her career would have ended then and there if anything had happened to that dog."

"What career?" I inquired.

(You can pick up worlds of interesting information from Manhattan cab drivers . . . all 30,000 of them! They're often described as "the oracles of New York.")

"She's a professional dog-walker," he explained. "Didn't you see that blazer jacket with the shield on it? She's one of Jim Buck's girls. He calls his company 'Jim Buck's Dogs—Fitness First.'"

MR. BUCK, it seems, collects ever-so-many bucks for the services of his corps of chic, pretty dog walkers . . . most of them college coeds.

"Boy, they're the cat's meow," said a cliff-dwelling bachelor who owns an intelligent, well-mannered Doberman pinscher named George.

He explained that, like thousands of other Manhattan dog owners who work all day, he wouldn't be able to keep his dog in town without the dog-walking service.

The girls take their canine charges on two-hour hikes each morning and each afternoon. Doormen at the various apartment buildings usually have

WILD WAVES

The arty set goes its swingin' way

By Iola Masterson
Society Editor

LONG BEACH Museum Association members pursue culture, sure. But they do it in such a swinging, un-long-hair-like ways they have a ball as they go about keeping up with current exhibits.

Louise (Mrs. Cliff) Millspaugh has taken over the gallery tour chairmanship from Sylvia (Mrs. Bill) Reid. Sylvia pioneered those fun excursions the past five years. Louise's first venture was this week's trip to the LA County Museum of Art to see the American Painting exhibition. All reservations for the charter bus tour into Angelsville were snapped up. As a result part of the overflow crowd was taken up by Virginia Benedict in her nine-passenger Greenbrier station wagon and the John Watkins filled their car to the brim with others.

As is customary, the gang zoomed up to a popular restaurant, this time General Lee's in Chinatown, for pre-exhibit cocktails and dinner. The restaurant blew a fuse just after they arrived so they chatted and sipped by candlelight for 20 minutes while electricity was restored and the food show could go on.

A few in the big crowd to see the exhibit on loan from the Metropolitan Museum and featuring two centuries of American art were Irvine and Norris Bernstein and guests, Shirley and Larry Kavanau, who missed the bus connection from Petroleum Club and hastened along in own car to join gang at Lee's. Also Emily Cottrell, Roger and Emily Coleman, Vera Goodrich, Lois McKibben.

Incidentally, membership in the association offers many privileges other than the art tours and is open to the public. Application forms are available at the desk of the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd.

LIFE-LONG friends having a high old time on a tour of the Caribbean and now home to tell about some ring-a-ding experiences are Shirley Holmes, 3605 Pine Ave., and Enid Cloper of Sunset Beach, both school teachers. Shirley is at Whaley Jr. High, Compton, and Enid at Pacifica High in Garden Grove. They flew to Miami and cruised on the Bahama Star to Nassau, The Bahamas.

The two didn't stop there. They were in St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, Kingston and Ocho Rios in Jamaica and Haiti. In Ocho Rios they took the famous river raft ride and were caught in a wild storm with lightning and thunder booming all around them. Enid had planned to visit with relatives in Miami before returning so they didn't travel home together.

Haven't managed to reach Enid or her mother but Shirley's mother told me her trip home was difficult due to the airlines' strike. She was, of course, passenger on standby and came home, of all things, via San Diego with frequent stops in such places as Shrevesport, Tampa, etc., ets., etc., on a hedge-hopping flight like olden days.

SPARKLING champagne and midnight buffet supper given by Lloyd and Evelyn Whaley topped the evening with a crescendo flourish Tuesday following summer's second Starlight Serenade concert in Recreation Park. Honored guests were night's conductor Harry Farbman of University of Indiana and Delcina Stevenson, featured soloist.

Evelyn's alma mater is U of I so she found particular pleasure in having the brilliant conductor from Indiana in her home.

Hit of the night was Evelyn's 80-year-old aunt, Melania Steffan of San Diego. She is a lady of Austrain descent with great wit and charm. Other linguists present, like Judy Maypes, there with husband, Frank, Dr. Alex and Luba Kadvany, chairman of the concert, chattered with her in native tongues.

Others present in the crowd of 100 included Joe and Frieda Bishop, Leo and Virginia Benzini, Harry and Ellen Landis, Dave and Jane Smitheran (Lloyd's daughter and son-in-law), Ralph Duckwall, IU alum and now instructing at Cal State, Long Beach, Duane and Lucy Kuster, Father Donald Behm, Dr. Ed and Eva Harvey, Bill and Ethel Grant, and Harvey Waggoner.

Don't go way yet. Add Carl and Betty Dahlin, John Kocher, new manager, and his wife, Noble and Dixie Millie, John and Sue McDonald and Akira Endo, new director of LB Symphony, and wife, Susie.

LIVING IT up like millionaires on vacation in Ocho Rios, Jamaica (this seems to be my week for having stories on Caribbean travel), were Jess and Evelyn Grundy, "Chic" and Loraine Cicoletti, John and Betty Parkhurst and Jerry and Betty Mills. And how they managed to live like millionaires is a pretty fabulous story.

It was the Mills who had heard how to do it. The four rented an estate complete with beautifully furnished mansion AND five servants—and the whole bit cost them $375 (for all eight) for a full two weeks. The estate, named Cottonwood, is a four and a half acre property right on the beach. Lushly wooded with tropical fruit trees, flowers and bushes it took them two days before one of the group roamed down the beach a little way and discovered there was a huge, modern hotel adjoining the property!

It seems there are many of these estates in Ocho Rios owned by wealthy New York area people which are leased out during the summer—the "off season," they tell me, in the Caribbean. Easterners go there in winter months.

They made arrangements to lease Cottonwood through Lord Ronald Graham, who has offices in that resort city and who handles a number of such estates. The five servants who manned the mansion were trained in the English manner. Meal service was formal with vacationers ringing the little silver bell as they were ready for each course. Weather was divine, sort of like Hawaii with trade winds et al.

Due to the airlines strike this gang had to get back by catching flights where and when they could.

IT'S DEFINITE and the date's been set. Joyce Dixon Sr. and John Sarver will be married Nov. 5 at Wayfarers Chapel with just members of their families present. A reception will follow at the home of Betty Arntzen. They are tearing down John's house on Appian Way and will rebuild a two story plus third floor sundeck to overlook Marina and Alamitos Bay which they hope will be completed before Christmas.

A "COME dressed to represent the place you're going on vacation" party was a fun-for-all affair at Tom and Beth Newton's lovely penthouse on E. Ocean the other night. It was a cocktails-potluck supper.

Oscar and Trudi Ullery, who are going fishing in the Sierras, wore fishermen's hipboots, old fishing hats, etc. Beth and Tom, who will go to Hawaii, had it easy in muu muu for her, aloha shirt for him. Ed and Virginia Alford wore Mexican straw hats to represent their proposed jaunt to South of. Judge Ken and Kay Sutherland will go to Europe but she cheated by wearing a muu muu.

Also present, but not costumed, were Gladee and Al Jewett and Ted Sten and Marge Demler.

ARE YOU a Sigma Nu alum? Well, then, old buddy, you're invited to the alumni's annual pool party Aug. 20 and may bring your wife or date. Are you asking if you have a choice? No, old buddy, not if you're legally married and reasonably happy, you Sigma Nu you.

It's going to be a "juice" party and informal steak fry at the home of Pete and Dolores Lingle, 4250 Pacific Ave. Any alum new to the area or those who haven't participated before are urged to go and get acquainted. Make reservations with Bob or Sue Driscoll, 5530 Lonna Linda Dr., the Lingles or Gene or Thelma Dreckman.

There'll be a big volleyball match with Neil Philips, officiating. Those who want can come prepared to swim in the pool. It's a bring your own steak, potables, affair but they'd like some idea of how many to expect so give 'em a call.

LONG BEACH Yacht Club's annual Sweetheart cruise to Avalon was just that—a sweetheart of a trip. Most of the 100 present went over on their own boats or with friends on theirs. "Bud" and Debbie Weinheimer did the honors as chairmen and if they have taken a few days of pure rest they deserved it because dinner dance at the Country Club was indeed a smashing success.

Among pre-party cocktail parties was one given by Jonah and Helen Jones at exclusive Tuna Club at Avalon. Helen and Jonah's boat guests aboard their lovely cruiser, Nada III, were Clare and Helen Hamman.

Other well known yachters on cruise were Don and Dee Horton, Frank Rupert, Norm and Bea Scott, Lee and Bernie Perry, Johnny and Aggie Miller, John and Norma McIntire, Dick and Vera Brookins, Frank and Margaret Mansuy, plus, plus, plus.

Christian Women's Clubs plan joint session Aug. 9

Dale Evans, actress, singer, author and popular speaker, will be special guest when 600 members of Christian Women's Clubs of Long Beach and Palos Verdes join for a luncheon Aug. 9 at Ports O' Call Village, San Pedro.

Miss Evans has co-starred with her husband, Roy Rogers, in more than 35 films. She has written numerous books including "Angel Unaware." President of Hollywood Christian Group, she was honored with the title of "Churchwoman of the Year" in 1965.

Mrs. L. Kent Lueb of Long Beach and Mrs. Leslie Cox of Palos Verdes are co-chairmen of the luncheon. Mmes. Richard Dickinson, Long Beach, and Lois Leonard, Palos Verdes, are special features chairmen.

Others from Long Beach assisting are Mmes. Allen Ward, D. J. Peninger, Boyd Needham, William Coon Jr., Minnetta Plesscher and Robert E. Boze.

MOLLY MAYFIELD

Unchaperoned meetings bad idea

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My dad says it's "indecent" to have boys over during the day, that I have no self-respect, that I'll lose my reputation and should "hide my head in shame."

Dan is in the Air Force and works nights. He is stationed about 90 miles from here and I get to see him only on Saturday and Sunday nights. On Sundays he usually stays over with a cousin and comes out to see me on Mondays during the day.

Last Monday Dad came home and caught us. I was embarrassed and so was Dan. Dad made it very plain he didn't approve!

Don't you think it is more fitting to have a boy come to the house than go running around?

M.A.

DEAR M.A.:

I must admit it is in bad taste to have your boy friend over when you are alone in the house. And, it might lead to temptations neither of you could resist.

It's much better to take a walk, go for a ride or just out for a snack.

I go along with your dad even though he put it a little stronger and blunter than I do.

M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I was going steady with a boy my mother didn't like. When we broke up she said I couldn't go steady any more till high school. That's at least a year away.

I didn't argue with her but I can't even have company without Mother listening to our conversation and watching every move I make. When I leave the house I get the same lecture every time: Don't talk to boys; don't get in anyone's car; don't smoke; don't get into trouble.

I've never done any of these things, but she always thinks the worst and I'm getting mad.

Don't you think she's overdoing it a bit?

DISTRUSTED

DEAR DISTRUSTED:

Your mother is doing now what she should have done when you started "going steady." Let's see, high school is a year away, so that makes you about 12 or 13 and you have already gone steady. You got an early start!

I think she's on the right track now except for the "don't talk to boys." Boys and girls should talk, and they will. No one can (or should) stop that, but right now that should be all.

She might be overdoing it a wee bit now but you've had too much freedom in the past.

M.M.

MRS. LONNIE GIBSON

OES to honor Mrs. Gibson

Mrs. A. E. Lonnie Gibson, deputy grand matron of 81st District, Grand Chapter, State of California, Order of Eastern Star, will be honored at an 8 p.m. reception Friday in Palos Verdes Masonic Temple, 5155 E. Pacific Coast Highway.

Given by Mrs. Gibson's chapter, Long Beach 173, with Mrs. Gene Harris as general chairman, the event will attract members and guests from each of the chapters within 81st District: Long Beach, Palos Verdes, Service, Searchlight, Catalina Island, Belmont Shore and Paramount. Mabel Jorstad and Earl Marshall will preside.

Among dignitaries will be Mrs. Grace M. Hoffman of Seachlight Chapter, grand matron in 1958; and Dalora K. Burnham of All States Chapter, grand patron in 1961.

MRS. RICHARD E. PARKS

Miss Parks now is Mrs. Franz

At home at 4105 Maybank Ave., Lakewood, awaits the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Parks (she is the former Nancy Ann Franz) upon their return from a honeymoon along the Northern California coast.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin B. Parks, Lakewood, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Frantz, Torrance, exchanged vows Saturday in St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

The bride wore a gown of silk organza over satin styled with a bouffant train. Her attendants were Linda L. Payne, maid of honor; and Ima Hutchins, bridesmaid.

Larry Parks stood as best man, while Dmonic Pinterpe, Bill Franz and Ricky Franz ushered the 175 guests to their places.

A reception followed in Eagles Hall.

Stone, Steven Rhorer, Wayne C. Twedell and Steve Moore.

PROCEEDS FROM the ball go to maintenance of the seven Girls Clubs established in Long Beach junior high and elementary schools by the league offering character building programs to hundreds of local girls. Scholarships, based on need, are given at Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach. The service of league, Las Hermanas and Rick Racker members make these continuous community programs possible.

A deb is fashionable: . . . and sociably inclined debs gather around punch bowl to chat before presentation. They are Anne Sawyer (left), Katherine King, Joan Webb and Jan Homolka.

Staff photos by Curt Johnson

A deb is outgoing: . . . exchanging ideas how best to hold dainty Spanish black lace fans, used during bow to society, are Julie Peek (left), Pam Dalessi and Donna Barden.

Young men invited to be members of the stag line, a must for any lively deb ball, were Marvin Prichard, Rich Payne, Gregory Lockett, Craig McCune, Stephen Turner, Brian Berger, William Kessler, John Sprague, Steven Green, John Hannaman, Fred Beland, Kent Meager, Craig Peterson, Gary Whitcomb, Ross Millie, John Faris, Steven Landis, Jack Hosier, Jerry Banks, James Buttery, Jack Davidson, Gregory Douds, William Graham and Paul Spring.

Members of the men's floor committee assisting the ball committee included Ed Losch, Harrison Moore, John Watkins, David Eagleson and Dr. Vernon Brickey.

A deb is friendly: . . . last-minute coif adjustment for Marcia Knutson (left) is cheerfully provided by Linda King.

Life under Big Top family tradition

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Behind the scenes, what is the circus performer like?

Does he enjoy his gypsy existence?

How does he raise and educate his children?

Would he like to settle down to a 9-to-5 job and live in a vine-covered cottage?

Not on your life!

At least this is the opinion of several troupers who will appear Thursday through Sunday at Long Beach Arena in the 96th season performance of Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

ONE FAMILY which literally has show business in its blood is the Stephensons, a bareback-riding troupe composed of Mrs. Stephenson, daughters, Florence and Diana, and sons, Frankie and Bill.

The Irish-born family, which also is billed with its bareback-riding dogs, has performed under the big top for three generations.

The Stephensons transport their 27 dogs in a ton and a half air-conditioned truck converted into a portable kennel.

When on the road, son Frankie drives the kennel truck and Bill drives a cab hitched to a trailer stabling three horses and a two-bedroom mobile home.

As for costumes, Ringling Brothers furnishes wardrobes for performers at a cost of over $250,000 each season.

Do circus people make friends in the towns they appear?

"I'm afraid not," Florence Stephenson said.

"CLOSEST CONTACT we have with townspeople is when one of us checks into a motel with swimming pool.

"Then all of us go there—to the consternation of the motel owner who finds his pool overrun with circus performers trying to outdo each other with aquatic tricks."

Proof that the family is pursuing its chosen work is that even World War II didn't prevent performances.

"We were in Ireland for the duration and formed a small show," Mrs. Stephenson said. "Due to gas rationing, we used horses to pull our wagons and equipment from town to town."

Asked how she managed her children's education, Mrs. Stephenson said, "It was awkward."

"Circus children usually obtain their first few years of schooling by living with their grandparents," Florence said.

"By the time I was eight, I knew I wanted to be a performer, so I joined my parents and began practicing.

"IN ENGLAND, circuses sometimes are in residence in one city for three months. Whenever this happened, Mother would go to the schools and hire teachers to tutor us in accelerated courses."

WOULD SHE like to see her grandchildren make their living in the circus?

"I'm sure my 7-year-old granddaughter, Patricia, will be a trapeze artist.

"Whenever she visits us and disappears, we know where to look. She's climbing about the flying rigging."

ONE OF THE most astonishing acts in the spectacular array of clowns, animal trainers, barkers and dancing girls is the stilt-walking performance of Barry and Sheila Sloan.

The English couple travels with its 2½-year-old son, King Dean Henry Barnum Yelding Sloan.

"King's name started as a joke," Sloan said.

"We have circus friends who took on show business titles such as Lord and Sir. After five years' marriage, our son was born and we decided to do them one better. Only thing is, the name stuck and he was christened King."

Grandson of a former world champion stilt-walker, King had a pair of stilts made by his grandfather before he was born.

"King walks on them now," said Sloan. "I was an old man of four before I learned to master them."

ALTHOUGH SLOAN is a second-generation performer, his petite wife, educated to be a teacher, is a newcomer to the circus.

"We met when Sheila was a teenager. Each afternoon after school she'd come to the circus to practice on the tight rope," he said.

How did her family take to her joining the circus?

"After many long talks, my father finally said if I was that determined to join the circus, then I should be allowed to because I'd do it to the best of my ability," said Mrs. Sloan.

She admits learning to walk on stilts one and a half times her height took a great amount of patience, practice and courage.

During the training period, she had several falls, one of which broke two ribs.

AS FOR SLOAN, he says he feels as much at home walking on spindle-thin pegs 15 feet in the air as he does walking on ground.

MR. AND MRS. PULVER GARNER

Mr., Mrs. Garner mark golden year

Mr. and Mrs. Pulver Garner celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday at a reception in the home of their son-in-law and daughter, 2825 Monogram Ave.

The couple cut the first slice of a tiered wedding cake. Coffee, punch and cake were served to 150 friends and relatives.

The Garners were married July 30, 1916, in Estancia, N.M. They came to San Pedro in 1925 and in 1945 moved to Long Beach where they reside at 3448 Lime Ave. In April, as part of their 50th year celebration, they visited family and friends in New Mexico.

Mr. Garner is a past elder of Uptown Church of Christ where he and Mrs. Garner have been members for 26 years. They have two grandchildren.

Miss Champlin to marry Richard Horner in fall

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Champlin, Long Beach, have announced the betrothal and early fall wedding plans of their daughter, Kay Maureen, to Richard James Horner.

The prospective bridegroom is son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Horner, Los Angeles. He is a member of the summer graduating class at California State Polytechnic College at Pomona.

Miss Champlin is an alumna of Millikan High School and University of Iowa and affiliated with Alpha Chi Omega. She is a teacher in Walnut City School District.

Janice Bingham now Mrs. James Proctor

A reception at Petroleum Club followed Saturday nuptials in First Baptist Church which united Janice K. Bingham and James S. Proctor, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Proctor, Rossmoor.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester H. Bingham, 6110 Belen St., wore a gown of silk organza and Alencon lace over taffeta. A crown of matching lace held her veil of illusion.

Honor attendants were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kent Bingham.

Judy Bronston, Denise Enos, Pam Burcombe and Cheryl Stewart were bridesmaids. Van Cessna, Johan Fordell, Joe Kelly and Doug Martin seated the 350 guests.

The bride attended Long Beach City College; her husband attends California State College at Long Beach.

The couple will return Aug. 15 from a honeymoon at San Francisco and Lake Tahoe to establish residence in Los Alamitos.

MRS. JAMES S. PROCTOR

I,P-T photographers in art show

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Three Independent, Press-Telegram photographers have pictures in "Photographic Exhibition 1966" which opens Wednesday in the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park.

Chief photographer Roger Coar has two abstractions in color. Tom Shaw has one and Curt Johnson three black and white photographs on display.

The 221 prints in the exhibit were chosen from more than 400 submitted to illustrate the theme "Southern California—its past, its present, its ever-changing scene." The show will become an annual event.

Judges were Howard Kelly, president of Professional Photographers of Southern California; M. M. Phegley, past president of the Photographic Society of America; and Oren A. Smith, advertising designer.

The show will remain through Oct. 30, then many of the prints will be placed in the museum's permanent archives for future reference. One photograph, for instance, shows the old Pacific Electric Venice Short Line on its way—and "the big red cars" no longer are a part of Los Angeles life.

The museum is open daily except Mondays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

Opening Tuesday and remaining through Oct. 30, is another exhibit of more than 50 sizes, shapes and patterns of early day barbed wire based on the collection of J. S. James of Maywood.

Invented just after the Civil War, barbed wire was called "the fence that tamed the West." Dozens of patents were issued, covering small differences in design. Before the present day version was standardized, the essential idea, the barb, was incorporated in many ways.

AUGUST is Treasure Hunt Month in Long Beach Art Association Gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Each year this summer sale attracts more viewers and buyers and this year the offering of original paintings, sculpture and other art objects will completely fill the gallery, says gallery director Deen Rickert. Most items will be priced under $50.

Gallery visitors are invited to sign the guest book, thus becoming eligible for a free oil painting, framed and ready to hang. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily except Mondays.

"TOO LITTLE attention has been given to artists whose high professional standards have been overshadowed in recent years by flamboyant movements," believes Curt Opliger, art coordinator of Los Angeles Municipal Art Department. "As a result, people have few opportunities to visit a major collection of important current work of this nature.

"It is with this in mind that the department has prepared 'The Persistent Academy' exhibit made up of work by artists discriminately selected by museums, galleries, critics and fellow artists for their contributions to conservatism in painting."

The work of 50 Southern California artists may be seen at Los Angeles Municipal Art Gallery, 4800 Hollywood Blvd. from Wednesday through Sept. 4. There is no admission charge; hours are 1 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays; 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, closed Mondays.

MORE THAN 500 entries are expected to compete for prizes totaling $1,150 in the outdoor art exhibit at Catalina Island's art festival at Avalon Sept. 17 and 18.

In addition to the regular competition, the Catalina Art Association, which sponsors the show, has invited outstanding American artists to exhibit in a separate category. Special prizes also will be awarded for paintings by children.

Artists who wish to participate may write for information to P.O. Box 235, Avalon.

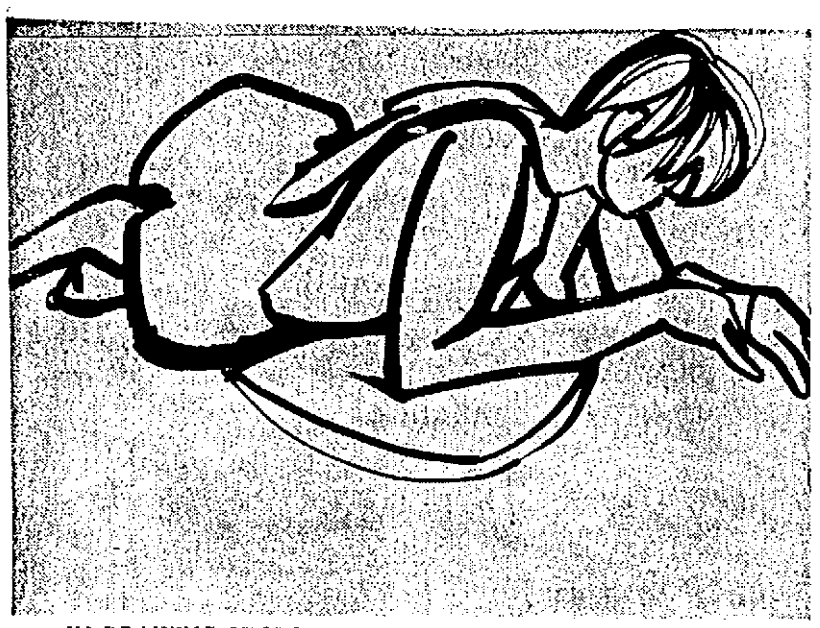

AN EXHIBITION of 73 paintings by Belgian surrealist Rene Magritte go on view Tuesday at Pasadena Art Museum, 46 N. Los Robles Ave., and will continue through Sept. 4.

Organized by the Museum of Modern Art, the show covers 40 years of the artist's development illustrating his contribution to 20th century art.

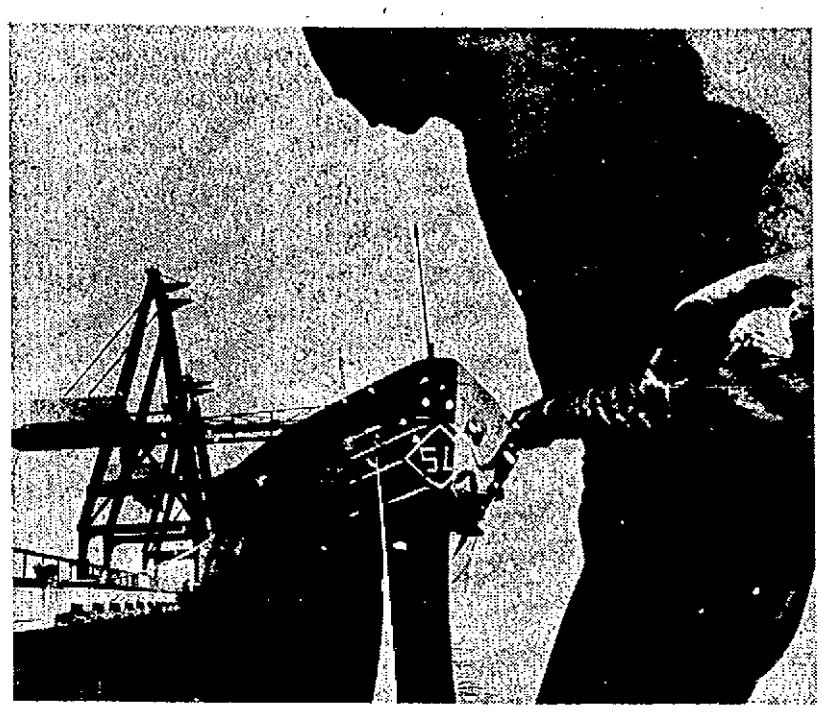

In the catalog, James Thrall Soby writes, "Perhaps more consistently than any other painter of his generation, Magritte has sought what Guillaume Apollinaire called art's greatest potential—surprise. Magritte tells jokes and invents puns in a quiet voice. Many of us listen with avid attention and our number is growing."

The show was seen at Brandeis University and the Art Institute of Chicago; after its Pasadena run it will go to UC, Berkeley.

LOS ANGELES County Museum of Art, 5905 Wilshire Blvd., has announced a new policy for its Lytton Gallery. Admission will be charged, 50 cents for adults, 25 cents for children under 18 and for full-time university and art school students.

IN DRAWING SHOW: 'RECLINING NUDE' BY ROBERT BROWN

'Photography Exhibition 1966'
This photograph by Curt Johnson, I,P-T photographer, is in exhibit which opens Wednesday at Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History in Exposition Park. It has a line by Tennyson for a title: "O young mariner, launch your vessel."

Budget cut poses problem for museum's ASC series

Next Sunday, Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., will open an exhibit, one in a series it organizes, "Arts of Southern California-XIX: Drawing."

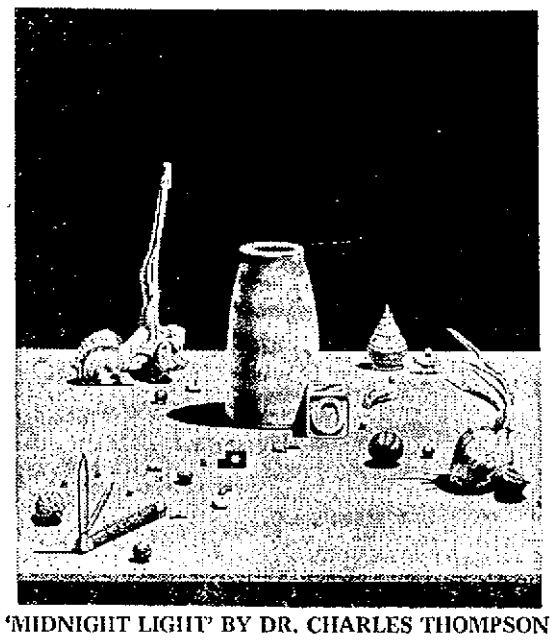

The 35 drawings by 25 Southland artists are in several media—oil crayon, ink and wash, chalk, charcoal, pencil and gesso wash.

First in the series, "Arts of Southern California-I: Architecture," was organized in 1957 by the then museum director, Jerome Allan Donson. His purpose was "to show the vigor and importance of the creative medium in Southern California."

The purpose was served not only locally where each of the 19 exhibitions has first been shown, but throughout the United States and in Canada, for the shows circulate to museums and galleries for two years under auspices of the Western Association of Art Museums.

BECAUSE the touring shows spread information about Southern California, the Long Beach Museum has been granted $10,000 annually by the County of Los Angeles to produce two traveling shows a year.

During Donson's administration, subsequently through Frederick Black's and now in Jason Wong's, the exhibits have included many facets of art, including prints, ceramics, architecture, films, prehistoric and indigenous Indian art of the region, interior design, collage painting and sculpture.

'MIDNIGHT LIGHT' BY DR. CHARLES THOMPSON

The $10,000 a year pays the salary of a museum staff member who handles the office and mechanical tasks of organizing the exhibits, and covers such expenses as catalogs, photography, promotion, printing, etc.

LAST YEAR, the museum requested an increase to $15,000 annually. This was refused. The request was made again this year and Wong has just been informed that the previous $10,000 allotment has been cut to $7,500 for 1966-67. County supervisors have cut the budget for exploitation 25% across the board.

This also reduces the allotment to Pasadena Art Museum—but that situation is a bit different.

In 1962, Pasadena asked the county for $25,000 a year to produce its once-every-three-years "California Design" exhibit. The request was granted and $25,000 was budgeted in 1963-64, 1964-65 and 1965-66. This would represent an expenditure of $75,000 a show for an exhibit that does not circulate. "California Design" was produced, with county funds, in 1965.

BEFORE the county money was received, the Pasadena museum has produced a design show a year, having its eighth in 1962.

With the 25% decrease in the 1966-67 allotment, Pasadena will receive $18,750 this year for its Design Show—but the next exhibit won't be produced until 1968. The money pays for a curator of design and an assistant, as well as related costs of the exhibition.

Now, Long Beach director Wong is pondering this problem—how to produce two quality traveling exhibits a year that will continue to reflect credit on Long Beach and Southern California, on $7,500 a year?—ELISE EMERY.

Bus to go to bowl despite Romania

When the Romanian Folk Ballet Wednesday canceled its scheduled eight performances at Hollywood Bowl, it created a huge problem for impresario Sol Hurok, under whose auspices the company was touring the United States, and for Hollywood Bowl Association.

It created a lesser problem, but a vexing one, for Long Beach Auxiliary to Southern California Symphony Association.

The ballet company, which was a rousing success at The Music Center in March, was scheduled at the Bowl Monday, Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and next Sunday through Aug. 10. It was a major attraction of the Bowl season. Reason for the cancellation, the company announced, was "strong public opinion in Romania against the U.S. war in Viet Nam."

THE LONG Beach auxiliary had sold more than 150 tickets for a chartered bus to Bowl, including box supper and a choice seat, for Saturday night.

"We will, of course, refund to those requesting it," said Mrs. Leroy Carlisle, 2015 Pine Ave., ticket chairman.

"We are telephoning everyone whose name we have and explaining that, as a group, we won't be pushed into doing something we hadn't planned by Communist retaliation for Viet Nam.

"The trip was planned to be a fun-filled evening and many of our patrons want to go anyway to enjoy the Pops concert which will be substituted for the ballet. There is a growing feeling of resentment against the Romanians."

THE BOWL Association has announced that the substitute program for Tuesday, Aug. 9, will star Dorothy Kirstin and Richard Verreau in an all-Puccini program with excerpts from "Madam Butterfly," "La Boheme" and "Tosca." James K. Guthrie will be guest conductor.

The regularly programmed concerts by Van Cliburn, pianist, Tuesday, and Leontyne Price, soprano, Thursday, are unaffected. Both will perform with Kiril Kondrashin who will conduct the Los Angeles Philharmonic.

Other substitute programs for the ballet company will be announced shortly.

Ray Kerciue develops 'phase of pure art'

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Ray Kerciu's one-man show of spanking-fresh paintings at Gallery Carnot, 142 Main Street, Seal Beach, will continue through Aug. 14. The collection consists of an even dozen larger canvases and groups of smaller works to be hung in series.

Kerciu was the art faculty member at "Ole Miss" who was jailed because of an exhibit of his paintings which reflected the goin's on during the period when James Meredith attended the university.

IN HIS PRESENT development, Kerciu has moved into a phase of pure art. Gone are the words in paintings, the referential passages. This show sings with glorious high acrylic color, extraordinary craftsmanship. His painting now is a synthesis of "Pop" and "Op" becoming something more . . . perhaps "Op Nouveau!" Linear flow and fine penline texturing (in the smaller works) give a heightened, dynamic excitement.

The smaller works are virtually peep-show boxes. Masked shapes open to show fantastic, fine texturing, dots, lines, colors together like purple with scarlet, vermillion with yellow, a hundred surprises to intrigue and delight.

LIKE OTHER very contemporary painting, Kerciu's larger works grow and bloom during protracted viewing. The forms glow, change, pulsate. They are optimistically powerful statements, a mastery of the most exacting elements. They are one answer to the question: "After Op and Pop, What?"

Gallery Carnot is open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

L.B. Barbershoppers to sing out in Grove

It will be "Family Night With the Barbershoppers" Wednesday for the Concerts in the Grove audience in Soroptimist House patio at California State College, Long Beach.

Beginning at 8 p.m., the Pops program in the Associated Students special events committee's summer series will spotlight a 30-voice chorus, four quartets, soprano Patricia Hugen and tenor Clarence Treat.

Oldest chapter on the West Coast, Long Beach Barbershoppers have become one of the largest and strongest groups in the United States. Under direction of Les Woodson, the chorus will sing old-time favorites.

Four Southland quartets—the Song Shoremen, Mickey Mouse Four, The Chordsmen and The Farwesterners—will sing.

SOLOISTS will be Miss Hugen and Treat. A winner in Long Beach Symphony's Young Artists Competition, she studied at USC and has sung in opera and oratorios throughout the state. He has toured with the New Christy Minstrels and currently is a member of the Roger Wagner Chorale.

Concerts in the Grove will continue each Wednesday through Aug. 31. A free picnic area opens at 5:30 p.m. each evening before performance. Tickets, at $1 and $1.50, are available at the box office.

Old Vienna is theme of musicale

The garden of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters' home, 1485 La Perla Ave., will be the setting Friday evening for Das Dritte Sommerabendfest der Camerata Gruppe — which translates from the German as the summer festival of Camerata dei Musici.

The musicale will feature melodies of old Vienna and will be preceded by wine and cheese tasting. Tickets will be available at the door.

This evening of music and fun is the only annual fund-raising event of the Camerata, a chamber music group which presents unusual music programs during the year.

'Sound of Music' is billed

Metropolitan Opera star Patrice Munsel and baritone John Tyers play top roles in "The Sound of Music" which opens a two-week run Tuesday night at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim. David Tihmar directs.

CASTING for "Call Me Madam," which opens Aug. 16, has undergone another switch. Ethel Merman originally was set for the title role, but withdrew when the East Coast revival of "Annie Get Your Gun," in which she starred, was continued indefinitely.

Miss Merman was replaced by Kay Starr, who now has bowed out because of illness. Rose Marie, in Valley Music Theater's "Bye Bye Birdie," now has been signed for the role.

Comedy at Greek

Victor Borge will bring his "Comedy in Music" to Greek Theater the week of Aug. 15. Parisienne dance star Claire Sombert and Michel Bruel of the Ballet de Marseille will share the billing.

The Borge show will follow comedienne Carol Burnett and Jackie Vernon, deadpan comic, who open Monday for a week's engagement.

The nine Goodtime Singers will complete the bill.

IT HAPPENS EVERY SPRING . . . (fall, too) . . . the fashion show ritual for nation's store buyers who swarm Seventh Avenue to bring latest fashions to Main Street, U. S. A. This scene is Pauline Trigere's showroom.

. . . the roar of the garment jungle

the dogs ready and waiting at appointed hours.

Average income for the girls, I was told, is $75 a week.

The fee charged a canine owner depends on location of his apartment and services required. One dog-lover who lives on fashionable Sutton Place pays $50 a week for his dog's daily romps in the park.

But it's the evening hours that all Manhattan dogs come out at the same time.

After offices and stores close . . . after the city's two or three million commuters are swallowed up in subway tunnels and commuter trains . . . the on-islanders walk their dogs.

A FEW YEARS back, poodles were the most popular pooches promenading on Fifth Avenue.

Now, according to J. J. Osborn, an inspector for the Humane Society of New York, the schnauzer is king of the canine set.

Also popular with Manhattan Islanders are dachshunds, Yorkshire terriers and pekingese.

"New Yorkers are great pet lovers," Osborn went on to say. It reminded me of the many pet cats I'd seen perched in apartment windows, gnashing their teeth at pigeons they can never catch.

He told me about a call he'd had the day before. It took him to a woman's apartment in the Washington Heights area. In her five-room apartment . . . "and a beautiful apartment it was!" . . . she had 47 cats, four dogs, one parrot and two parakeets.

"Her apartment had no animal odor whatever," he went on to say. "And she had some of the most beautiful animals you ever saw. Her food bill for the animals each week is $37 to $40!"

Why did she call the Humane Society? To report a hungry, stray animal in the alley. She apologized that she couldn't "keep the poor little thing."

IN ADDITION to all those cats and dogs, there are 320 horses living in the man-made cordillera of buildings, bridges and tunnels called New York.

During the city's recent hot spell, the Humane Society ran a mobile water truck just to make sure horses didn't go thirsty.

The equine city dwellers pull vegetable carts and Central Park's hansom cabs, populate riding stables and canter through Central Park.

Speaking of Central Park . . . the female gender, it seems, has invaded another male domain.

Two pretty young women have joined the ranks of cabbies who navigate the horse-drawn hansom cabs through the wooded wonders of Central Park.

In their coachman garb (complete with the high silk hats), the female cabbies are giving the old-timers a lot of competition in the carriage trade.

And then . . . there's the roar of the garment jungle!

There aren't many animals down on Seventh Avenue, the 18-block area referred to in the trade as the Garment Jungle. But there's plenty of roar!

Active as a hornet's nest, this congested segment of New York has been described as the world's most productive 0.1 of a square mile.

It houses a $3 billion industry—fashion.

In fact, next time you go to your favorite department store or boutique shop to buy a button or your new fall costume . . . say a silent word of prayer for store buyers, who pad around New York by the thousands like so many worker ants on a hill.

As the summer thermometer reaches fever pitch (it was 104 the day I was there), the asphalt streets soften, heels sink almost out of sight. Push-carts, trucks and man-pushed racks of clothes fight and snarl with city traffic.

And about those buyers, who come from small stores and large, hamlets and big cities . . . all concentrating on selections of fall-winter clothes for the women back home:

Before they find what they think you—the object of their frenetic activity—want in the way of new togs, they must trudge up and down steaming, screaming Seventh Avenue. Also, dozens of shows must be seen.

THE FASHION shows themselves frequently are an exercise in rigid sitting. Rows of chairs of the bridge set variety are set three and four deep—one chair smack against the other.

Penned in, the buyers must watch like hawks while the fast-stepping models parade up and down the showroom.

A typical show lasts one hour and 100 or more new dresses, suits, costumes are shown by some designers. That's better than a new offering a minute.

For their seasonal safaris to the garment jungle, buyers—who keep women along Main Street, U.S.A., fashionable—dress conservatively, in general.

The fishnet stockings, mini-skirts, little girl shoes and other trappings drummed in by fashion seers are in the minority. Mostly they're seen on staffers from the fashion magazines.

And here's big news: American women, according to comments by some buyers, are getting larger. Stores are clamoring for more sizes 17 and 20!

But whether size 6 or 20, it's no exaggeration to say that nearly every woman in America is influenced by the pulsations and roar of Seventh Avenue.

Just be glad you don't have to fight the jungle to buy your fine feathers!

NEXT: How some of the garment industry's most famous designers live when they're away from the rag race.

Biggest single industry in N.Y., the 300,000-worker garment trade, is divided into 13,000 little companies concentrated in 18 wild blocks known as the garment jungle.

Style show geared to the sewing set

"Sew to a fashion beat." That's the word from Buffums' who will present a zippy, swinging fashion show for chic, young moderns who want to sew with a flair as modern as Fifth Avenue. Show, co-sponsored by Seventeen Magazine and McCall's patterns, will take place Thursday at 2:30 p. m. in Buffums' fourth-floor fashion fabrics department.

Fashion stylist Michael-Ann Norton from McCall's will commentate. Many clothes to be modeled are from patterns featured in Seventeen's July issue.

Such things as the pant suit from Paris, the sweater dress, the zingy T-shirt dress and all the rest of the newest "in" look will be shown.

All you need is a needle and a thread. The show's co-sponsors will provide you with the ideas to turn you into one of fall's most fashionable swingers.

East wins club lead with ace

Today's hand was played in the days before anyone had thought of a four no-trump convention to ask for aces.

Therefore, South made no effort to reach a grand slam in spite of knowing that all he would need from dummy would be two aces plus the king of trumps.

To say South was disappointed by the dummy is an understatement. He glared as if it were a poisonous snake.

East won the club lead with the ace and returned the suit. South wanted to be in dummy immediately so he discarded his ace of diamonds and let dummy win.

Then he led a trump and finessed his queen. West produced the king and returned a third club for South to ruff. South played out his ace of trumps. West showed out and South was down two.

The hand is shown for two reasons. The first is to point out the folly of North's immediate trump raise.

We generally approve of raising partner's first bid suit with three trumps and no other logical bid. But here North held such a minimum opening that it behooved him to discourage his partner by a two no-trump call rather than to encourage him by an immediate raise.

SECONDLY, the hand shows the classic safety play situation. Playing at six, South could not afford to lose a trump trick.

His best play for all the tricks was the one he adopted. It would win for him against king-small or king and two small in the East hand.

Had the contract been five, South would have made six. His best play to avoid two losers would be to lay down his ace. That would drop the singleton king whereupon he would go to dummy and finesse against East's jack.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Spoonbread his specialty, y'all

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

If there's humor about, he'll find it; and both his wit and his laughter are infectious. Robt. S. Lumsden, today's Chef of the Week, comes from Virginia and succeeded "Chef" Ray Ferlan, last February, as manager Western Union Telegraph Co., Long Beach.

Influenced by his early invironment, a farm in Rocky Mount, Va., Lumsden majored in agriculture and economics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

He worked for the State of Virginia as an agricultural extension agent for six months. Then the Army intervened, and he was stationed in Germany from 1952 to 1958.

Returning to the United States, he again enrolled at V.P.I. for his master's requirement in business. All he lacks for that is his thesis. Economics dictated that he go to work.

LUMSDEN is a firm believer in the speed of sound, so in 1960 he joined Western Union and was sent on a four-months management training program.

After hitches in New York, Charlotte, N.C., and Roanoke, Va., he was sent to Los Angeles as traffic supervisor and became senior supervisor there prior to his appointment to Long Beach.

He and his wife, Karen, have a son born at 10:30 New Year's Eve. Incometaxwise, Lumsden believes that to be "planned parenthood."

A member of Long Beach Rotary Club, Lumsden also anticipates activity in civic work as soon as he's a bit better established.

He golfs "only for exercise," loves to fish and camp. 'He's a handy-man-to-have-around-the-house; and if he had his druthers, a steak would be on the menu of every meal. Southern Spoonbread would, too, of course!

SOUTHERN SPOONBREAD

1 cup white corn meal
¼ tsp. salt
½ tsp. baking soda
½ tsp. baking powder
2 cups boiling water
2 cups sour milk
2 tblsp. melted butter
4 eggs (beaten separately)

Scald corn meal with boiling water and cool. Mix milk, soda, salt and baking powder together and blend with meal and water mixture. Add melted butter and mix well. Blend in beaten egg yolks, then add beaten egg whites. Bake in greased casserole at 375 degrees 40 minutes.

DEAR ABBY

Son orders her to 'shop' for a father

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with a 13-year-old son. This lad has delivered me an ultimatum. He is to have a "father" of his own by the next Fathers and Sons dinner at the "Y." I have tried to assure him that I've been looking, but haven't found one yet. He threatened to get his own, and believe me, Abby, if you could see some of the playmates he brings home, you would understand my concern.

ABBY

When I say I have been looking I am not joking. I have joined the church choir, Parents Without Partners, Girl Scouts (leader), and have even volunteered to chaperone teen dances hoping to find an eligible male my age.

I have even gone to some of the better bars and lounges thinking I might meet a nice, lonesome guy who wants a ready-made family. No dice. There IS one young man, however. He's my age. He doesn't drink and doesn't date. (He's shy). I think I can wrangle a date with him. Should I go after him (subtly) or should I be honest and tell him what I have in mind for him? —"LOOKING"

DEAR LOOKING: If you TELL him what you have "in mind," you are out of yours. Now you deliver your son an ultimatum. Tell him you are not about to sit across the breakfast table for the rest of your life with a hastily grabbed off character just so HE can go to the next Fathers and Sons dinner at the "Y."

DEAR ABBY: A good-looking woman, who doesn't have such a hot reputation, lives near me. Last week I saw one of my friends in the market, and she said, "I saw Milton (that's my husband) driving down the street with Bobbie (that's the woman with the not-so-hot reputation) the other day." I laughed it off.

When Milton got home that night I asked him how come he was riding around with Bobbi in his car. He said she was walking toward home, so he gave her a ride. When I asked him why he didn't tell me about it, he said he forgot. Do you think he could really forget? Or should I check with Bobbi to see what her story is?—SMELLING A RAT.

DEAR SMELLING: Don't check with Bobbi. If your husband has behaved himself in the past, believe him. If he hasn't, believe him anyway. A man who is playing games with a woman of not-so-hot reputation is not about to parade her around in broad daylight.

Problems? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069. For a personal reply, inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DESIGNER PATTERN

Sleveless styles suited to summer

It's the newest suit approach—younger, softer and sleeveless, or with short sleeves. Definitely the crisp way to approach mid-summer and the changing seasons.

Printed Pattern A939 reflects the fine cut and line characteristic of the Larry Aldrich collections.

The brief, paneled front jacket has today's favored collar—widened to stand charmingly away from the neck. The slender skirt is eased by gathers below the waist. Choose linen, shantung, wool knit or tweed. Pattern includes ¾ sleeve version, too.

Printed Pattern A939 is available in Misses' Sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18. Size 10 top requires 2 yards 35-inch fabric; skirt requires 1¾ yards 35-inch fabric.

Send one dollar for Printed Pattern A939 to Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, Pattern Department, P.O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York, N.Y.

AZTEC AND OLD SPANISH

The Land of Manana globetrotters' mecca

By Mary Neiswender

Ten thousand years before Christ, pre-historic Mexicans were hunting mammoths in the Valley of Mexico — this was 10,000 B.C.

Almost 2,000 years after Christ, Mexicans are hunting tourists in every valley and town in Mexico—this in 1966.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

And you can find tourists —Americans, Europeans, Asiatics — tourists from every corner of the globe traipsing through the country.

But tourists are there for good reason.

Modern Mexico is a blend of three of the most dynamic cultures the world has known and has become a mecca for all travelers, whether they be scholars, archeologists, artists or playboys.

And the routine traveler is just now discovering this.

* * * *

THE COUNTRY below the border is a land more diverse than any in the world.

Its vital youth is in its tall new towers and smart resorts.

Its magnificent age is in its archeological sites from 20 centuries in the past.

And Mexico City is the soul of the country.

The crossroads of the nation since Aztec days, the city is fast becoming the hub of the hemisphere. It boasts not only the finest hotels, hundreds of international restaurants and nightclubs, a world famous university, modern museums and galleries, sophisticated roof-top cafes, smart shops and handsome boulevards, but everything for the sportsman from baseball to bullfights.

The opera, the theatre, the symphony and the world famous Ballet Forklorico are also part of the Mexico City fare.

* * * *

FOR THE tourist there's no time to sit in the hotel room reading James Bond when within easy reach is Chapultepec Castle displaying the relics of Archduke Maximilian, the grand ornate Cathedral of Mexico—the largest church on the continent—the colorful floating gardens of Xochimilco — and the temples, pyramids and courts of the huge Aztec ritual center at Teotihuacan.

The pyramids are one of the country's 11,000 reminders of its ancient Indian civilization which stretches as far away as the jungles of Yucatan.

Avenues—by land and air —lead in every direction out of the city to tourist delight.

There's Cuernavaca, the mountain resort favored since the days of Cortes.

There's the colonial silvercraft center of Taxco and the tiled city of Puebla and Oaxaca, a Colonial capital still proudly Spanish but also sheltering ancient temples and tombs of the Zapotec Indian civilization.

Then there's sophisticated Acapulco — the gay Gulf port of Veracruz and the secluded Burton-Taylor town of Puerto Vallarta.

It's all Mexico.

* * * *

AND IT'S available to Southland tourists via car as well as by air.

Super highways lead from Texas into the Mexican capital.

And super airlines—including Mexicana, Mexico's proudest and oldest in the Hemisphere—lead from almost every major airport. Flights from International Airport in Los Angeles fly out almost 10 times a day to the city at a rate—$186 round trip—available to all.

Hotels range from $8 up for double occupancy.

Food is delightful and delightfully inexpensive.

Mexican wares are "bargainable" but always well worth the price.

The people are what every tourist seeks—kind, helpful and justly proud of their country.

Mexico City is built upon the ruins of the beautiful templed city of Tenochtitlan —the Aztec capital—then the world's largest city.

The Spaniards overlaid in the 16th and 17th centuries their own graceful Old World heritage.

Out of the Indian and Spanish cultures has sprung Modern Mexico.

You missed the Aztecs and the old Spanish—don't miss the modern Mexico.

WITHIN THE SHADOWS of the Latin American Tower — tallest structure in Latin America — is the soul of Mexico — Mexico City.

NEW ORLEANS' ISLE OF PLEASURE

French Quarter booms with coarse and sensuous delights

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

Drawing by Clyde Winslow

NEW ORLEANS — Coming back to this Paris of America is like having a recurring dream of riding a rocket into the heart of a glittering star and on through an Old World kaleidoscope of course and sensuous pleasures.

First, streaking high over southwestern America in one of Delta Air Lines' sleek DC-8s, and then:

Narrow streets, their neons winking knowingly. Shapely artists of the undress. The raucous voices of carnival barkers. The lullaby of Dixieland jazz. Disconcerting discotheque. Artists with their easels and colors. Sazeracs in atmospheric courtyards. Pralines and antiques. Gourmet palaces. Steamboat whistles drifting in from the eerie rim of night.

The French Quarter — when a visitor thinks of New Orleans he's really thinking of that tiny nine-block-square world around the Vieux Carre—never had it so good as now. It has exploded in tourism. Visitors who are coming back for more of that gay, carnival-soaked — and a sometimes bit-naughty—atmosphere.

New Orleans is reaping its biggest visitor harvest. It is estimated the tourist crop will bring at least $175 million to this hustling, bustling, burgeoning metropolis before year's end.

* * * *

MANY are lured here by the haute cuisine, which is the city's tradition. Stuffing at Brennan's, Galatoire's, Antoine's, the Royal Orleans Hotel and a half-dozen other notable emporiums attest that the blend of culinary art practiced in these imposing or lackluster restaurants is no fable.

This is the city that gave Jambalaya, which is a Creole dish—and you must taste it to believe it—to the world, along with shrimp remoulade and seafood gumbo. Antoine's claims to have originated oysters Rockefeller and pompano en papillote, by no means a dubious distinction. Dunbar's is noted for its Creole dishes served Creole style. And what style!

Brennan's (no shirt sleeves, please, but never fear; coats are furnished), offers an adventure with its "Typical New Orleans Breakfast" beginning with grilled grapefruit, then eggs Hussarde, hot French bread, bananas Foster, and steaming cafe au lait. The tab: $4.25.

Expensive? Perhaps, but not prohibitive. Gormandizing is one of the prizes of visiting the Quarter. Budgeted travelers will find other food, maybe less esteemed but delicious, that somehow seems native — poor boy sandwiches, weiner schnitzels, even chitlins and black-eyed peas. And oysters on the half-shell, fresh from nearby banks at numerous oyster bars, just like in Sydney.

Wherever and whatever they eat, visitors should insist—and most do—on savoring Creole coffee, "black as night, strong as love and hot as hell," with the flavor of chicory.

* * * *

NO ONE goes to New Orleans without a stroll down Bourbon Street. Jazz, born in the shadows of the Vieux Carre, drifts down the narrow street in frenzied blasts as if trying to drown the voices of barkers of the strip parlors.

Figures count here. One stripper is advertised at 42-21-38, and they tell me that's not bad. Maybe not naughty, either, because one barker acclaims to all that his show is "recommended by the P-TA, the Ladies Home Journal, and has the Good Housekeeping seal of approval."

Of course you may take in all these delights with a drink in hand. Test a mint julip at the Court of Two Sisters, whose pleasantly-picturesque patio is paved with stones carried as ballast on some of the first ships sailing into the mouth of the Mississippi and up to this French colony in the early 1700s. Or purr to the pleasures of a Sazerac or Ramoz gin fizz, both the inventions of thinking New Orleans bartenders.

* * * *

AT CANAL Street, which separates the old New Orleans from the new, Old Man River is 125 miles from its outlet into the Gulf of Mexico. Indians called it the misi sipi, meaning "Great Water," and great it is, to New Orleanians. Here it is 2,200 feet wide. Its general cargo port is now second only to New York in dollar volume of its foreign commerce, and completed within the last year on the river's banks is the 33-story International Trade Mart, a $40 million complex devoted to the bustling waterborne trade.

The Trade Mart is a sample of New Orleans' changing skyline. Under construction is the 45-story Plaza Tower, whose developers are now talking of building a 75-story convention hotel.

* * * *

CONSTRUCTION has started on a six-story hotel in the Quarter after a mild controversy over design. City planners insist new or redone exteriors must conform to the Quarter's inimitable architecture.

The hotel will be a valuable asset. While many good ones—like the comfortively new Royal Orleans and the Monteleone — are available, rooms remain at a premium, especially during the tourist season and Mardi Gras. It is recommended that visitors reserve accommodations well in advance of their visit to get what they want, at the price they wish to pay.

Motels are numerous in the Quarter, too, among them the clean-and-modern Provincial Motel, only two blocks from Bourbon Street at 1024 Chartres. This one is completely modern and clean, with car parking space, pool, dining room and bar, and the management is friendly and courteous. Single rooms here bring $12-14, doubles $14-16.

* * * *

GETTING to New Orleans is easy, swift and economical. Delta Air Lines has two flights daily: one nonstop leaving Los Angeles International Airport at 1:50 p.m., and a direct flight with one stop at 4:20 p.m. The round-trip fares: first class, $248.70; day coach, $203.20; and a 30-day "Discover America" excursion fare, $152.30; plus tax.

Traveling with Stan Delaplane

MEXICO — Here's my checklist for driving in Mexico: Basket-weave seat rests let air get all around you and keep you from sticking to the seat.

A chap stick: That dry air cracks your lips.

Sandals are better than shoes for driving. Buy Mexican huaraches. Anywhere from the border down.

A knife with a blade (for peeling fruit); a bottle opener; a corkscrew; a screwdriver blade. (Nearly all hotel bathrooms need something tightened.)

A pen-size flashlight: Don't wander around strange rooms in the dark. Mexican hotel rooms arre booby-trapped. The handle of the door is placed so that it pinches your thumb. The bathroom is one step up, or one step down.

Two Thermos-type bottles: Fill one with purified water in the morning. The other with coffee.

"Do we need special car insurance for driving in Mexico?"

YOU DO. I buy mine by mail from Dan Sanborn, McAllen, Texas. Tell him which way you're going. He'll route you and send you a package of excellent tips for Mexico driving.

* * * *

"Please send whatever information you have on campers, camp sites, etc. in Europe."

A GOOD starter is Wilson's Motor Caravan Centre, 36-38 Acre Lane, London, S.W. 2. They sell or rent campers and trailers. And they have a deal where you can buy and use them. They guarantee to buy them back, discounted according to mileage. Ask for a booklet.

British Travel, 680 Fifth Ave., will send you free "Caravan and Camping Sites and Farmhouse Accommodations." The New York offices of all national tourist offices will send you lists of camp grounds for their countries.

* * * *

"Can you tell us how the weather will be in Europe in September?"

PROBABLY the best of the year—an average 70 degrees. But Spain and Italy don't really start cooling off until mid-September.

* * * *

"How much will it cost to ship a car home from Europe?"

IT COST me somewhere around $250 two years ago. London to San Francisco.

March AFB rodeo slated

MARCH AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — Bucking broncos will upstage B-52 bombers when March Air Force Base holds its first annual rodeo Sept. 24-25.

The announcement that a rodeo will be held at this Strategic Air Command base was made by Lt. Gen. W. K. Martin, commander of 15th Air Force.

The rodeo will be March AFB's "Salute to California Fiesta Days."

A committee headed by Col. R. J. Wright, vice commander of March's 22nd Bomb Wing, is making arrangements for the two-day program to be conducted under the auspices of the Rodeo Cowboy Association.

Expected to compete for national title points are top veterans on the professional rodeo circuit. The slate will include saddle, bronc, bareback and bull riding as well as calf roping, bulldogging and team tying events.

Andy Jauregui of Newhall, a leading figure on the rodeo circuit, will furnish the livestock.

There also will be a gymkhana for boys and girls on the first day of the rodeo. It will include such events as barrel racing, pole bending and barnyard jumping.

Tickets to the rodeo, available just inside the base's east gate access from Perris Blvd., are expected to go on sale Monday.

Airline opens L.A. offices

Philippine Air Lines has opened new ticket offices at 515 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, under the direction of Ramon Barreto, district sales manager for Southern California. A striking feature of the offices is the decor, which employs native Philippine material throughout.

TRAVEL and RESORTS

Uninhibited Aruba

Houses are painted purple, orange and dozens of other uninhibited colors on the Caribbean island of Aruba. Many also are trimmed with "hex" designs.

Signs for Vegas

Marguerite Piazza, a Roman delight herself, has been signed to headline the lounge at Caesars Palace, the new $20 million Las Vegas hotel scheduled for a gala opening Aug. 5.

Miss Piazza's appearance, set for this fall, will include the wide variety of ballads and Italian folk songs with operatic overtones that have made her an outstanding personality and performer in television, the theatre, opera and nightclubs.

Big Summer Cruise

Come cruise the sparkling Mediterranean for a month—aboard Cunard's Caronia (now more luxurious than ever).

Your holiday begins on Friday, August 26th, when you sail away for 31 luxury-filled days of resort life at sea.

The dazzling, historic Mediterranean will open its heart to you. Each port city can be an entry to many fabled places beyond. Journey through countrysides carved from solid scenery to Florence, Rome, Taormina, Madrid, Granada—cities of greatness, grandeur and just plain fun! From the Straits of Gibraltar to the shores of the Adriatic you'll explore, tour, shop and see more of the nooks and crannies of the Mediterranean than shore-bound vacationers ever get to know. (Optional shore excursions are expertly arranged by American Express.)

And all the while, you'll call the Caronia home. And what a home! Thirty-five thousand tons of British luxury and elegance. The new Lido Deck sports a country-club-sized pool. Every beautifully decorated, air-conditioned stateroom has private facilities and ship-to-shore telephone. Every meal is a gastronomical adventure. And at every turn, there will be impeccable Cunard service to pamper you. All for as little as $895*.

*Minimum rate subject to space availability.

Steven Stregers take trip

MRS. STEVEN MICHAEL STREGER

Honeymooning in Northern California after their Friday marriage in First Baptist Church of Lakewood are Mr. and Mrs. Steven Michael Streger (Linda Kay Lovejoy).

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. Lovejoy, 4551 Pepperwood Ave., the bride wore an empire gown of silk organza over taffeta with re-embroidered Alencon lace bodice.

Mrs. Raymond Ellstrom was matron of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids were Mmes. Gary Lovejoy, Dennis Dahl, Richard McIntosh and Richard Pardee.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Streger, 3507 Kallin St., was attended by Gary Robertson as best man and Gary Lovejoy, Dennis Dahl, Richard McIntosh and John Allen, ushers.

A reception in the church hall followed the vow exchange. The newlyweds will reside in Lakewood.

MRS. STREGER was graduated from Lakewood High School, Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach.

Daughter of a long-time Long Beach school principal, she is a teacher at Clara Barton Elementary School. Her husband is a graduate of Millikan High, LBCC, where he affiliated with Vidar, and UCLA School of Business.

Crestline honeymoon for couple

Marriage of Linda Lee Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Davis, 2201 Vuelta Grande, to Martin Bradford Ostler of Los Angeles took place Saturday afternoon in Los Altos United Church.

The bride wore a sheath gown of peau de soie styled with a bodice of Chantilly lace. She was preceded to the altar by her sister, Mrs. Ronald Beinessner, matron of honor, and Kathy and Karen Davis, bridesmaids.

The bridegroom, son of Earl Ostler of Oregon and Mrs. Evelyn Ostler of Los Angeles, was attended by George Ross as best man. The 100 wedding guests were seated by Ronald Beingessner and Alan Lathrop.

After a church reception, they departed on a honeymoon to Crestline. They will reside in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Ostler is a graduate of Millikan High School. Her husband graduated from Los Angeles City College.

KORK-EASE

An Ideal SANDAL of Imported Water Buffalo

Made entirely by hand of genuine Water Buffalo. Water Buffalo is an extremely durable and good looking leather imported from India. It comes in a natural color, tawny tan, which reminds one of a sandal hand crafted for royalty. The wedges and platforms are made of hand shaped genuine cork, pre-shaped to fit the arch. This is covered with matching color leather.

Garry Moore Bucks 'Bonanza'

By TERRY VERNON

COMPETING against "Bonanza," the nation's top TV rated show, is like trying to climb Mt. Everest with a pair of roller skates.

Any such mountain climber would soon hit the skids and so does any program—ask "Perry Mason" — that attempts to combat "Bonanza."

Mt. Everest will have to wait. For champ "Bonanza," however, there's a new challenger in the fall video ring.

Introducing at five-feet and a couple of inches plus, weighing sacks of pasteurized feathers, the one and only, Battlin' Garry Moore.

"I welcome," said Battlin,' "the opportunity to oppose 'Bonanza.' At my stage of life, there's no sense in going into something easy."

* * *

GARRY CHEERILY looked at several CBS-TV representatives and wryly added: "Could be that's what I have to say."

If it is what he had to say, it's also something he believes — within reason.

Part of the advance publicity program includes the distribution of sweatshirts emblazoned, "Beat Bonanza." But Garry isn't buying that target 100%.

"Maybe they'll just move over a little," he said. "There's such a big availability of audience, we don't have to knock them off to be a winner ourselves."

So how is he going to make them move over?

"Television," replied Garry, "has unconsciously turned itself away from what made it great in the first place, an ability to com-

PATRICK McGOOHAN

Secret Agent Drake Gone--But the Image Lingers On

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The remarkable Patrick McGoohan of "Secret Agent" is working on his new series in a small office at MGM studios at Elstree outside London. Recently I dropped in to see what he has in preparation for the American networks next year.

This is not as casual as it sounds — it takes a bit of negotiation to get to see McGoohan. For one thing he is shy, for another he feels his views on sex and violence in television are well known — he won't have any of the first and limits the second to the action absolutely essential to the plot.

And he insists on keeping his private life private: He is happily married to the woman he described as "my first and last wife." So the handsome U.S. born Irishman tends to find an interview a repetitious ordeal in ordinary circumstances. But my visit did not come at an ordinary time.

For McGoohan had only just crystalized the conception of his new series "The Prisoner" and was excited enough about its possibilities to forget the 15-minute limit he usually imposes on questioners. This time he did most of the talking, and if he manages to bring off before the camera the many facets of drama he sees in its basic situation,

NEW 'PHONE HOUR' FORMAT

Plan Wider View of Today's Musical Life

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC-TV's "Telephone Hour," for years a revered 60-minute musical yawn that never seemed to realize it had switched from radio to television, is finally about to get with it.

The Sunday evening series, tired of being taken for granted — which it certainly was—this fall will drop its old traditional approach of music-to-offend-nobody-by:

A distinctly characterless format offering the safest performers with the safest selections of the safest part of show business' variety program middleground. And when I say middleground, I mean middleground.

Not that the "Telephone Hour" is about to get revolutionary — not at good old mainstream-consensus-balanced programming (some good, some bad) NBC-TV, perish the thought.

* * * *

BUT IT IS—when it returns Sunday, Sept. 25 — going to experiment a bit by offering itself as a series of 16 documentaries that attempt to involve the viewer in various aspects of contemporary musical life.

In short, the pay phone on the wall in the hallway (nickel, please) provides a fond memory, but the television phone is now upon us. Romberg is swell, but long live Bernstein (Lennie —and Elmer too).

As the "Telephone Hour" departs from its studio-performed musicals of the past, and sets out on its color documentaries that are expected to average out to about $400,000 each in cost (according to spokesman), two projects have been announced officially:

A study of Gian Carlo Menotti's Festival at Spuleto,Italy, a program seeking to fashion an anatomy of the occasion, showing the composer as a creative director, and trying to involve the watcher.

A closeup look at the famous Berkshire Festival in Massachusetts, how it came to be and its cultural importance. As with all the contemplated projects, this hour, says the spokesman, will by no means be merely a musical concert.

* * * *

A NUMBER of other projects are also in the process of being fleshed out:

An hour about an international jazz festival at Comblain-La-Tuur, near Liege, Belgium, which, according to the spokesman, has a dramatic aspect in the sense that it involves an ex-GI named Joe Napoli who fell in love with a town and decided to do something for it.

A program trying to understand what makes a prodigy, and how one develops, and why some survive and others don't.

A broadcast hopefully involving four world-famed divas, contrasting their personalities and development.

A study of a small American city that is suddenly awakening to the world of culture—in short, one that is part of the current popular renaissance. The hour, at this point, hopes to tell the story of a typical city through its cultural development.

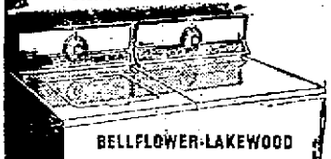

A program which would be an anatomy of a legend in music—a famous maestro now dead.

There would also be topical holiday hours during the Christmas and Easter seasons.

SPECIAL

SENATE HEARINGS—Taped highlights of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's (D-Mass.) subcommittee hearings on the U.S. position in regard to refugees and escapees are aired in a 90-min. special at 1:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Witnesses include Sec. of State Dean Rusk, AID chairman William S. Gaud and Abba P. Schwartz.

THE UNIVERSITY in America—Paul Newman and Jack Lemmon, acting as concerned citizens, co-host an hour's exploration of the problems of today's university, with its restless, protesting students, and its impersonal, frustrated professors. Taking part in the 4 p.m. color hour, ch. 7, are Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, Justice William O. Douglas, attorney Arnold Grant and Dr. Rosemary Park, president of Barnard College.

THE BIG EAR—Robert MacNeil reviews the wide extent to which illegal bugging and telephone wiretapping of private conversations are carried on in America during an "Encore" hour at 6:30 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Reuven Frank produced the repeat hour, which includes interviews with private detectives, the inventor of the "martini olive," and former Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy.

LONDON PALLADIUM—Fess Parker is host for the fifth of six special music-variety hours taped at London's famed music hall-theatre, screening at 190 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Performers include Royal Ballet stars Rudolf Nureyev and Svetlana Beriosova, comedians Dickie Henderson and Dave Allen, acrobatic dancers the Browsky Twins, comedian Dave Allen, and regular singer-dancer Millicent Martin. (Roger Moore hosts the final Palladium hour Aug. 12.)

FESS PARKER and Millicent Martin are on "London Palladium Show" at 10 p.m. Sunday on channel 4.

SPECIAL

WHERE THERE'S SMOKEY—Some of these unsold pilots, like last week's supposedly-camp Merriwell yarn, are so bad they make the re-runs welcome. But this "Vacation Playhouse" film bears the production stamp of Desilu, so you might want to take a chance. Soupy Sales and Gale Gordon co-star at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2, as the reputation of a small-town fire chief finds itself on shaky ground due to his well-intentioned but bubble-headed brother-in-law. Hollis Irving, Louise Glenn and Jack Weston are featured.

ABC Sets Joey Bishop

New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Joey Bishop will be the host of a new 90-minute late evening variety show that the American Broadcasting Company network will begin televising next April. It will be presented from 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., Mondays through Fridays.

The Bishop show, originating in Hollywood, will be similar in format to Johnny Carson's "Tonight" program on the National Broadcasting Company network. Bishop just completed a two-week assignment as substitute host on "Tonight" while Carson was on vacation.

In addition to appearances by guests, the ABC show will establish a permanent cast of performers.

SPECIAL

TORME'S BACK in Town—In the first of five taped musical hours to air each Tuesday during August, the singer does "Riding High," "When the World Was Young" and his new composition, "Tracy." Joining in at 7:30 p.m., ch. 11, are Marian Montgomery, the Polka Dots and British comedian Roy Castle. Later shows will spotlight Shirley Bassey, Vikki Carr, Count Basie and Peter Nero, with each hour repeated the following Thursday.

UFO: Friend, Foe or Fantasy — Walter Cronkite explores the mystery surrounding unidentified flying objects during a repeat "CBS Reports" colorcast at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Participating are persons who claim to have seen UFOs, and scientists with varied theories on the origin of the phenomena. (Next week, an hour split between KNXT's report on students' work with deprived children, and CBS' postponed "Essay on Bridges.")

HUSBAND HUNTING in L.A.—The trials and tribulations of the single woman in a rootless society, and unusual aspects of the mating game, are described by a panel of unmarried women in a repeat hour with Jerry Dexter, at 10 p.m., ch. 13.

Secret Agent Drake Gone But the Image Lingers On

"The Prisoner" may be one of the more gratifying TV successes of 1967.

"The Prisoner" is an effort to take the curious world of counter-espionage into a new and deeper dimension. It will be a one-hour show in color limited to a minimum of 13 episodes and a maximum of 30.

* * * *

"THE TROUBLE with television is that it takes an idea and milks it to death," McGoohan said. "They keep it going until they're scraping the barrel for plots—we did 86 'Secret Agents' and we went through the bottom of the barrel. But the of the barrel. But 'The Prisoner' will be different.

"Each episode will be self-contained but part of a continued story line. It will be absolutely essential, however, to see the first segment for an understanding of the series. So we are going to publish that one as a book and anyone who misses it and who is intrigued by later episodes can get the book and read all the basic information."

McGoohan will be taking on a difficult acting (as well as producing) job but he feels he is ready for it; he has awards in Britain both for stage and TV acting. He talked about his hopes while flashing camera slides of the strange location he has found for "The Prisoner" on a portable screen.

* * * *

"JOHN DRAKE of 'Secret Agent' is gone" he said, "but we're not foolish enough to try to change the image we have established with TV audiences.

"In 'The Prisoner' I've worked in a top security job and I've had enough of it so I resign. But I have a lot of secret knowledge which could be of use to the other side. So I am abducted from London and I awaken in a holiday village.

"It is a prison — but who is the warden? Who are the captors? Are the British trying to find out whether I am still reliable? Or is the other side trying to pump me?"

The drama will go on in a village in Wales built as an architectural whimsy by a wealthy man. It is a fantastic melange of styles — Grecian temples and thatched cottages, turreted villas. McGoohan starts filming there in September.

"We might have gone on with 'Secret Agent'" he said, "but the American network took so long to make up its mind we decided to close it down. I had a lot of help on that series but as star and producer and even writer of some of the scripts of 'The Prisoner' I'll have only myself to blame if its a lousy show.

"And that's the way I like it."

SPECIAL

JOHN GARY SHOW—Riddle me this. Who laughs on ABC early this evening, and then turns impressionist for this hour? Doffing his costume of Batman's Riddler, Frank Gorshin turns to impressions of historical figures as they might have been played by Richard Burton (Washington), John Wayne (Patrick Henry), Edward G. Robinson (Jefferson), Richard Widmark (Benedict Arnold), Boris Karloff (George M. Cohan) and Broderick Crawford (Lincoln). Joining the singing host in musical portions of the 10 p.m., ch. 2 color hour, including a salute to Rodgers and Hammerstein in a state fair setting, are Jimmie Rodgers and Vikki Carr.

SPECIAL

CHANGING CLIMATE in Watts — Novelist-screenwriter Budd Schulberg talks of the success of a creative writing class he opened last year in a coffee house converted from a riot-wrecked store in Watts as he joins host Keith Berwick on "Speculation." Taking part in the 8 p.m. discussion, ch. 28 (with a repeat Sat. at 9 p.m.), are Stan Saunders, community organizer in Watts and Rhodes scholar student; Johnnie Scott, poet and playwright; and Sue Welch, director of Watts Towers Teen Post. (A network hour on the same subject, with both Schulberg and Scott, screens Aug. 16 at 7:30 p.m. on NBC.)

Moore Bucks 'Bonanza'

"I FIRMLY BELIEVE most people are lonely. If you get a chance, you should talk to a man, 'Hi, Sam. How are you? It's been a week since I've seen you.'"

That's Gary's format for his new fall series. He's going to talk to Sam. And if you're watching, he's going to talk to you, too.

There's a little bit more to the format. The emphasis will be on comedy, rather than variety.

"Look," said Garry. "You get good writers, good producers and you do funny things. What else is there?"

* * * *

THERE IS something else and it's a worrisome thought that Garry doesn't let nag him too often. The something else is an industry slide-rule, a ratings' point of view, although Garry didn't so specify. What he did specify was:

"What you must have today is an instant hit. If not by the time you're six weeks old, you're in bad trouble.

Garry's previous hits have included "I've Got A Secret" and "The Garry Moore Show," the latter having left the air two years ago. His radio - TV experience goes back to the 1930's.

It's experience which has taught him something he intends to utilize in the new Garry Moore series.

"If you get an idea," he said, "try it.

"It may be a dog, but you haven't killed the world."

Sports Today

FOOTBALL, 7 p.m., ch. 7, has Chris Schenkel, Terry Brennan and Bill Fleming at Chicago's Soldier Field for the 33rd annual College All-Star game, with top seniors from the 1965 collegiate season meeting the NFL champion Green Bay Packers. (Live coverage preempts most regular ABC programming, except for "Summer Fun" and "Addams Family" which shift to post-game slots.)

SPECIAL

JOHNNY GRANT'S Hollywood in Viet Nam—Last June, Grant's "Operation Starlift" took Dick Contino, Leigh Snowden, Julie Gregg and Max Horton on a two-week USO-Hollywood Overseas committee tour of U. S. troops in Viet Nam. Color films of the trip, plus those of others who have made the tour, including Bob Hope, John Wayne and Eddie Fisher, will be narrated by Grant at 8 p.m., ch. 5.

A WHITE HOUSE Wedding — Preparations for tomorrow's wedding of Luci Johnson to Pat Nugent will be the subject for an hour-long special at 10 p.m., ch. 2. Harry Reasoner and Roger Mudd will anchor the coverage of the preparations for the first wedding by the daughter of a President in office since that of Eleanor Wilson on May 7, 1914.

TV MOVIE TIPS

SUNDAY

STORY ON PAGE ONE, 9 p.m. (7) — Rita Hayworth, Anthony Franciosa, Gig Young (1960). Clifford Odets suspense drama of the trial of an unhappy wife and the widower who loves her, charged with slaying her brutish husband.

WEDNESDAY

GLASS MENAGERIE, 9 p.m. (7)—Jane Wyman, Kirk Douglas, Gertrude Lawrence, Arthur Kennedy (1950). Tennessee Williams' award-winning play of a strangely introverted St. Louis family.

IMITATION OF LIFE, 11:30 p.m. (2) — Claudette Colbert, Warren William, Louise Beaver (1934). Fannie Hurst story of romance, comedy and tragedy, far superior to the Lana Turner remake.

THURSDAY

FEVER IN THE BLOOD, 9 p.m. (2)- -Efrem Zimbalist Jr., Angie Dickinson, Jack Kelly, Don Ameche (1960). Sensational murder trial, whose idealistic judge is caught up in a gubernatorial battle.

FRIDAY

VIVA ZAPATA! 11:30 p.m. (2) — Marlon Brando, Jean Peters, Anthony Quinn (1952). An Oscar for Quinn in excellent historical drama of Mexican revolutionary leader, following his rise from peon to President.

SATURDAY

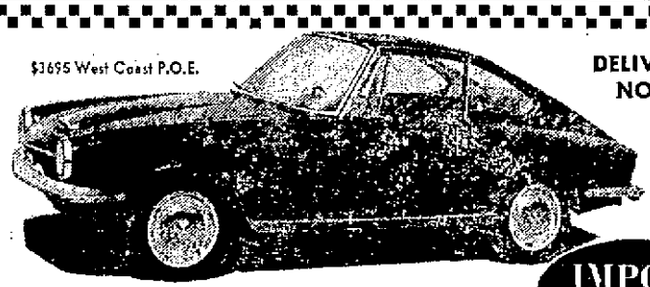

IT HAPPENED ONE NIGHT, 11 p.m. (9) — Claudette Colbert, Clark Gable (1934). The granddaddy of all sophisticated comedy romances, and a multi-Oscar winner.

"SUNSET BOULEVARD," starring Gloria Swanson and William Holden, will be shown again on "Saturday Night at the Movies" at 9 p.m. Saturday on channel 4.

New Process Used Exclusively by HERMAN'S on Wall to Wall Carpet Cleaning!

Eliminates Cause of Rapid Soiling

Prolongs the Life of Your Carpets

If your carpets are soiling more since you had them cleaned, the reason may be due to a detergent build-up.

Ordinary cleaning methods and/or home remedies merely add to the problem of rapid soiling.

Herman's ADSORBENT Process used exclusively by us, removes the residue of detergent build-up. The carpets are then shampooed with our Soil Retardant Process that is scientifically formulated and warranted to preserve the life of your carpeting, brings back the resiliency of the pile, colors are bright and clear again. Adds extra years of luxury to your carpets. Carpets cleaned by Herman's stay cleaner up to 5 times longer.

'Dick Tracy' To Go Network

William Dozier, the television producer who brought "Batman" to A.B.C., has reached an agreement to produce "Dick Tracy" for the N.B.C. network. His independent company, Greenway productions, soon will begin making a half-hour pilot film. It was reported that "Dick Tracy" might make its debut midway during the 1966-67 season.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT FOR TV TUBE

By JACK GOULD
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A wise viewer never counts his specials before they bloom in the picture tube. But for the first time in many years there is an encouraging restlessness in the TV industry and it may augur an era of expanding creativity.

Come mid-September, the potboilers designed to soothe the pliant masses assuredly will still be around in all their profusion. The grounds for cautious cheer lie at different directions. Here and there, in commercial television and non-commercial television, there are signs of a rebirth of video theater, of recognition that the home screen is starved for occasional substance in entertainment.

* * * *

HERE ARE some of the developments: The American Broadcasting Co., which received its full share of lumps for fathering a cycle of violence, is inaugurating a regular Wednesday night series called "ABC Stage 67."

The contemplated attractions include "The Love Song of Barney Kempinski," an original comedy by Murray Schisgal, with Sir John Gielgud and Alan Arkin; a musical comedy based on Oscar Wilde's "The Canterville Ghost"; an original David Karp play entitled "The Confession"; Jean Cocteau's "The Human Voice," with Ingrid Bergman; "A Night Out in London," produced by David Frost, and many others.

* * * *

THE COLUMBIA Broadcasting System has announced a project designed to uncover original properties deserving of two hours of prime time. It has set a preliminary budget of $500,000 out of which it is prepared to go $25,000 for a fresh script, with no legal barriers to the drama's subsequent presentation in either stage or film form.

National Educational Television is planning a series of 40 presentations to be called "N.E.T. Playhouse." Maxwell Anderson, Thornton Wilder and Arthur Miller are scheduled to be represented, as are several British playwrights.

The National Broadcasting Co. plans a presentation of "Othello," with Sidney Poitier. In addition, George Schaefer, producer of "Hallmark Hall of Fame," plans to offer "Anastasia," with Julie Harris, Noel Coward's "Blithe Spirit," Maxwell Anderson's "Barefoot in Athens," with Peter Ustinov, and James M. Barrie's "The Admirable Crichton."

What Your Name Means

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801 for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Kindly give the origin of DENNIS. —J. D., Torrance.

DENNIS of Ireland, a widely used American given-name, is also an Irish clan-name. The early Gaelic form was O'Donnghusa, meaning "Descendants of the brown-haired, superlative one." This clan was native to Ulster and Cork, and in the Middle Ages was noted for holding positions both as laymen and prelates in the church. The Dennis shield has three gold fleurs-de-lis and three red rings on a chevron across a red background.

MISS RULE: Kindly give data on SIRAGUSA.—S.S., C.S., Long Beach.

SIRAGUSA represents an Italian family whose ancestor came from the Sicilian city of Syracuse, called Siragusa in medieval Italy. This place was named by Phoenician settlers at the dawn of history, and was given the root-name "Serach," describing the locality as "place with a bad odor," referring to a nearby swamp. No armorial shield is recorded for the Siragusa family.

MISS RULE: May we have the source of MARTIN.—J.L., Artesia, R.W., Lakewood.

MARTIN may be English, French or Spanish in background. In all countries this surname traces to an ancestor baptized Martin from the Latin "Martinus" meaning "warlike." The Martin armorial shield from Cornwall, England, granted in 1400, is silver, crossed by three red stripes. The Spanish Martin shield is red, emblazoned with a silver castle tower.

MISS RULE: Please explain SCHUG.—P.H., Long Beach.

SCHUG is a dialectical German surname derived from Schuck, which in turn was of "Schuh" meaning "shoe." The figurative meaning of Schug is "shoe-maker."

MISS RULE: Kindly explain JAKYMIW and YACHIMOWICZ.—M.J., F.K., Long Beach.

JAKYMIW, of Polish background, means "From the farmstead of Joachim," the ancestor's home location. YACHIMOWICZ of Poland describes "From the place of the son of Joachim." The Bihlical "Joachim" deciphers

COVER

While a sheriff's department helicopter hovers overhead a ground unit completes the chase in an example of the nation's newest law enforcement technique. The experiment, under way now in Lakewood, is being watched by police agencies all across the nation. For the story of the first helicopter chase that ended in an arrest much like the one on today's cover, see "The Angry Hornet That Chases Criminals" on Page 9. Cover photo by Sheriff's Department.

NEXT WEEK

The title of the feature article in next week's Southland Magazine is "Who Would Believe the Sea Horse?" It's a question that is explored by writer Chuck Cheatham who has been enchanted by the little creatures most of his life. The sea horse is the subject of one of the strangest facts of life on earth. Read about it next Sunday.

Miracle Coating Eliminates House Painting

An exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is Fiberglas TEX-COTE.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

THE CIRCUS IS COMIN'

with lions 'n tigers 'n four super-spectacles

By Betty DeWeese

RINGLING BROS., Barnum & Bailey Circus opens its four-day midsummer run in Long Beach Arena Thursday with a 2:45 p.m. matinee. During the engagement performances will be given twice daily: 2:45 and 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday; 2:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, and 2:30, 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Traditionally, four splendorous super-spectacles are included in the 2½-hour performance. This again is true for the 96th annual consecutive edition. They have been produced with attention to originality, costuming and regal processionals that are participated in by a cast of more than 400 people and hundreds of domestic and wild animals.

The 1966 edition of The Greatest Show On Earth has as its principal super spectacle and imaginative production number, "Prince Charming," which is a story-book fantasy featuring the entire cast in glittering costumes, with fantastic floats, enroute to the Royal Palace Gardens where Prince Charming and his Princess welcome and pay honor to the Maharajah on his visit to their "never-never land."

"This Is New — Pussycat" is the feature elephant production number that is a modern "swingeroo" version of what can be accomplished with 144,000 pounds of lumbering pachyderms when turned loose to modern swing. It's a genuine Go-Go, with beautiful circus girls dressed as pussy-cats riding the elephants. Trainers of the huge rock-and-rolling beasts are dressed as tom-cats. The number reaches a climax with one curvaceous damsel a-go-go-going down the hippodrome track atop an elephant and garbed as a Pink Panther.

THIS YEAR'S aerial ballet spectacle carries the title of "Clown Surprise," in which the entire chorus of 50 gorgeously costumed ballerinas appear as circus clowns. The famous North Stars and Starlets present daring and incomparable feats aloft in a display of acrobatic pulchritude that features, high over the center ring, a newcomer to America, Miss Mara, in challenging trapeze feats that defy gravity.

"Grand Finale" is the fourth and final spectacular of the talent-filled performance, crammed with breath-taking thrills, glamour, beauty and awesome sights. It brings out the entire circus cast in a rousing finish that is actually a musical salute from memory lane, honoring the bands and ballads of yesteryear and featuring many tunes from previous circus productions. The entire musical score for the show is prepared and executed by the world famous Merle Evans and his Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus band.

One of the most sensational of the newcomers to this year's performance is Adolph Althoff and his bare-back riding tiger direct from the 300 year old Circus Althoff in Germany. A tiger named King performs all the standard riding tricks on the back of a horse named Tiger, and these two natural enemies give a performance that can only be believed by seeing. Four sensational European teeterboard acts are featured in one display that has the Eight Halasis in the center ring, in ring number two the Vrady Troupe performs acrobatic miracles, and in ring three the Six Forays toss human beings into the air as though they were tennis balls.

The Bruski Duo, agile unicycle artists on the high single wheel cycles, perform juggling feats while aloft. In all three rings and on the hippodrome track performers from all over the world perform a variety of equilibristic acts, including the Six Ivans, Miss Lillian, the Amazing Fudi, Jana & Mirek, Miss Helena, the Alberts, and others, most of them newly-arrived, first-time-in-America acts.

FOR THE kiddies of all ages, dogs dominate the three rings in another display called Canine Capers and Dog Days. Nagana's Poodles, Mogyorosi's Dogs, and Stephenson's Canines, flip-flap, twist, turn and tumble through doggy antics in a dog-gone good display that keeps up a lively pace. Three superb troupes of spirited liberty horses in difficult drills occupy all rings with Edmund Meschke, Alicia & Roman Lesniewicz, and Ellort Nidohr, accomplished European horsemen and horsewomen, directing them through intricate maneuvers. Starring in the center ring is Swedish horsewoman Madame Rhodin and her famous Lipizzaner horse, "Baby."

In the center ring, a sensational new riding act features the Riding Saxons, and has the famous Russian

WILD WEEKEND AT BIG BEAR

The Donkey Racers

By Helen Gilbert

MOVE over Calaveras County and your famous jumping frog. For the Old West at its wildest, nothing compares today with the wild burro races at Big Bear Lake.

It's a weekend of family fun, Thursday through next Sunday, with opportunity for parents and children to relive a colorful part of our western heritage as residents and visitors join in celebrating Old Miners' Days.

This year the three-day burro derby will follow an entirely new route through areas more particularly associated with early gold miners. Beginning at a drive-in theater facing Metcalf Bay off the south side of the lake, the route goes east following State Highway 30 to Big Bear City, then west along the north side of the lake, following Highway 18 to Fawnskin and the first night-stop. Much of this is unsettled country with ample room for visitors to park and watch the runners.

THE SCENE before the race is one of wild confusion as 60 to 80 unruly, untrained burros struggle to regain freedom. They kick, bite and buck with fierce determination. Some simply lie down in the road while others take off in opposite directions in clouds of dust. When packracks finally are cinched, wranglers struggle to hold the lead-rope and keep up with the running, bucking burrows, cheered on by the "hoots and hollers" of the crowd.

Wranglers do not ride the burros but try to push their charges over the course—some 40 racing miles distant—using only a halter rope. An unusual aspect of the race is that wranglers draw lots to decide which burro they will receive for that day, "punching" a different animal each day.

The second day, wranglers will begin the hot, steep climb up Del Mar Road to Holcomb Valley, with a noon stop at the Forest Service campground. Continuing the length of the valley, the route winds east over Gold Mountain, past Doble mine and ghost town, circling the east end of Baldwin Lake, to Shay's ranch. Some contestants may be forced by heat and exhaustion to drop out in the rough terrain and the 7,000 feet elevation. Perhaps only half the number who start will make it to Shay's for the second night-stop.

WHILE WAITING for the burros, visitors will be rewarded by time spent exploring the area, rich in legend and history. Ghost towns of Holcomb Valley are best reached by a graded road that branches off Highway 18 on the north side of Big Bear Lake, following Polique Canyon. The road circles Dalamar Mountain and enters the valley near the Forest Service campground. Holcomb is an area of Jeffrey pine forests and quiet meadows. Here Old Hangman's tree, a crumbling arrastre, the remains of old dugouts and cabins are lonely reminders of Belleville, once a thriving mining town. The past becomes reality for parents and children alike when they stand on the ground where history was lived.

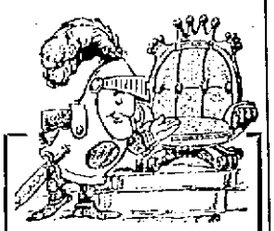

The old log cabin in the stand of giant Ponderosas on the Shay ranch was built in 1870 by Elias J. "Lucky" Baldwin, who developed the Doble mine. It later was owned by Will Shay who ran cattle in the valley. The Doble mine may be reached by a short side trip of two miles off Highway 18 on the north side of Baldwin Lake.

The second day of the derby can be a real fun day for parents and children who are busy getting acquainted with

A Threat to the Magic Formula for Plunging Into Business

So You Want to Be Your Own Boss...

Here are some tips from experts for those considering entering a franchised business.

● Study carefully what nature of business suits you best. Those who are mechanically inclined might do best in a service business. Two up-and-coming franchise operations are auto detailing (cleaning) and auto accessories.

● Consider your investment as though buying stocks. Do you want a solid business with a smaller, safe return or would you rather prefer to buy into a new trend (such as recreation) with the possibility of making a quick, large capital gain.

● Study the trends in public taste. Talk to people about their preferences.

● Don't fall in love with a particular line of business until you have thoroughly investigated it. There is little room for sentiment in choosing a business.

● Watch out for franchisers who employ exaggerated appeals. The get-rich-quick boys often do —at someone else's expense.

● Search carefully for any record of failure within a company. Be wary of franchisers whose real business is selling franchises only. Franchising should be a joint venture all the way, with profits equitably divided.

● See the company's franchises in operation. Talk with the franchisee. Review actual case histories. Check the company with the International Franchise Assn.

Editor, Southland Magazine

IT HAS BEEN CALLED "The last chance for the small-businessman."

It has been called "The guaranteed way to independence."

Too, it is often called "The little man's weapon against big business."

Those are the praises for franchising, the licensing system of commerce that has swept across the country in recent years and has brought back the era of the "mom and pop" stores.

The praise for franchising is lofty, indeed, for it is being said that this system that can make anyone with a few thousand dollars part of a multimillion-dollar operation is growing so fast that it eventually will become the basic pattern of American business.

With automation carving through industry, making old skills obsolete, the lure of getting a little business for one's self is becoming stronger and more and more families are withdrawing their life's savings, remortgaging homes and plunging hard-earned money into franchise operations.

But amid all the unbridled enthusiasm for franchising there is a warning; there are dark clouds coming into view.

Fast-buck men have invaded the field and pose a distinct threat to the rock-solid reputation that franchising has built.

One of those sounding a warning is Aaron Rothenberg, a franchise management consultant who also teaches franchising at UCLA.

Says Rothenberg: "I would say that of the new franchise operations starting out today, maybe as high as 85% will fail because of the current boom."

Rothenberg is referring to new franchising companies, not new stores opening within the framework of established companies.

"A lot of people are starting franchise systems that are not proven, and not sound," he says, adding a warning to anyone considering entering franchising to stay away from a company that does not have a history of success.

Rothenberg explained that the proliferation of franchise operations has been brought on by salesmen breaking away from established franchising companies—both successful and unsuccessful companies —to set up their own organizations. Too often they are not equipped with the experience, with the necessary knowledge.

"I'm worried that a lot of nice old people, and a lot not so old, are going to invest their life's savings in a scheme that is destined from the start to fail."

The failure rate in franchising is startlingly low. Though figures vary, it is estimated widely that the rate of failure of a franchised operation has been only one-sixth that of a truly independent small business. The most authoritative source on the subject says the rate of failure for franchising is 8%.

Rothenberg points out that there is no policing agency for the business of franchising and "too many fast promotion people are jumping in." Rothenberg offers some guidelines to those considering investing in a franchise. Among these is a cardinal rule: check the franchising company with the Better Business Bureau.

Other avenues of investigation should be pursued, including a careful study of the company's program by someone experienced in franchise operations and careful scrutiny of the contract by an attorney.

An official of the National Better Business Bureau recently said, "I'm afraid that as franchising becomes more and more popular there will be more and more swindles on its coattails." He noted that one company recently was organized to sell waffle shop franchises but dissolved after collecting $25,000 in fees and before opening any shops. The investors lost their money.

Other companies are interested only in extracting large franchise fees, caring little whether the business fails. Others will cancel the contract with a successful franchisee, repossessing the store on a falsified or trumped-up charge. For this reason the investor should have the contract carefully studied by an attorney, to be assured of adequate protection.

Though the franchising system is by no means new—Rexall started it all in 1902 and auto makers and gasoline companies have made huge use of it for many years—it was not until the end of World War II that franchising reached into general merchandising.

When the servicemen returned they searched for a new start rather than going back to mundane jobs. They longed, after months and years of taking orders, to be their own bosses.

Franchising was the answer for many.

Franchising combines the two essential elements in successful merchandising: the shopkeeper works long and vigorously (because it's his money and potential profit that's invested) and the manufacturer is afforded a chain of high-efficiency outlets.

Today there are more than 1,200 franchising companies. "In a few years," says Rothenberg, "we will look back on the franchising situation of today and we'll hardly recognize it. The future (of franchising) is enormous. Soon there will be franchised stores and services in fields that aren't even considered as fields for franchising now."

An example of this is the recent entry of franchising into medicine. A national firm currently is setting up "Medicenters" adjacent to hospitals. Patients will receive care at these Medicenters during the time between intensive hospitalization and their return home. The hospitals, in effect, will "farm out" patient care at less cost to the patient because medicenters won't be required to maintain expensive emergency equipment. It is claimed by the franchiser that this method will make possible a significent reduction in hospital bills.

Franchising also may soon reach into another aspect of medicine — to establish nursing schools to meet the added demands brought on by Medicare.

The more common franchising operations are in small restaurants (hamburger and doughnut shops, root beer stands) and auto accessory stores, though the industry is expanding rapidly into new fields. A fast-growing facet of franchising is bookkeeping-accounting. In recent years franchised motel operations have spread across the nation.

Government figures say that franchise operations gross $60 billion annually, a full 10% of the gross national product. The bulk of this is accounted for by auto dealers and gasoline stations, the two largest factions in franchising. General Motors is the world's largest franchiser.

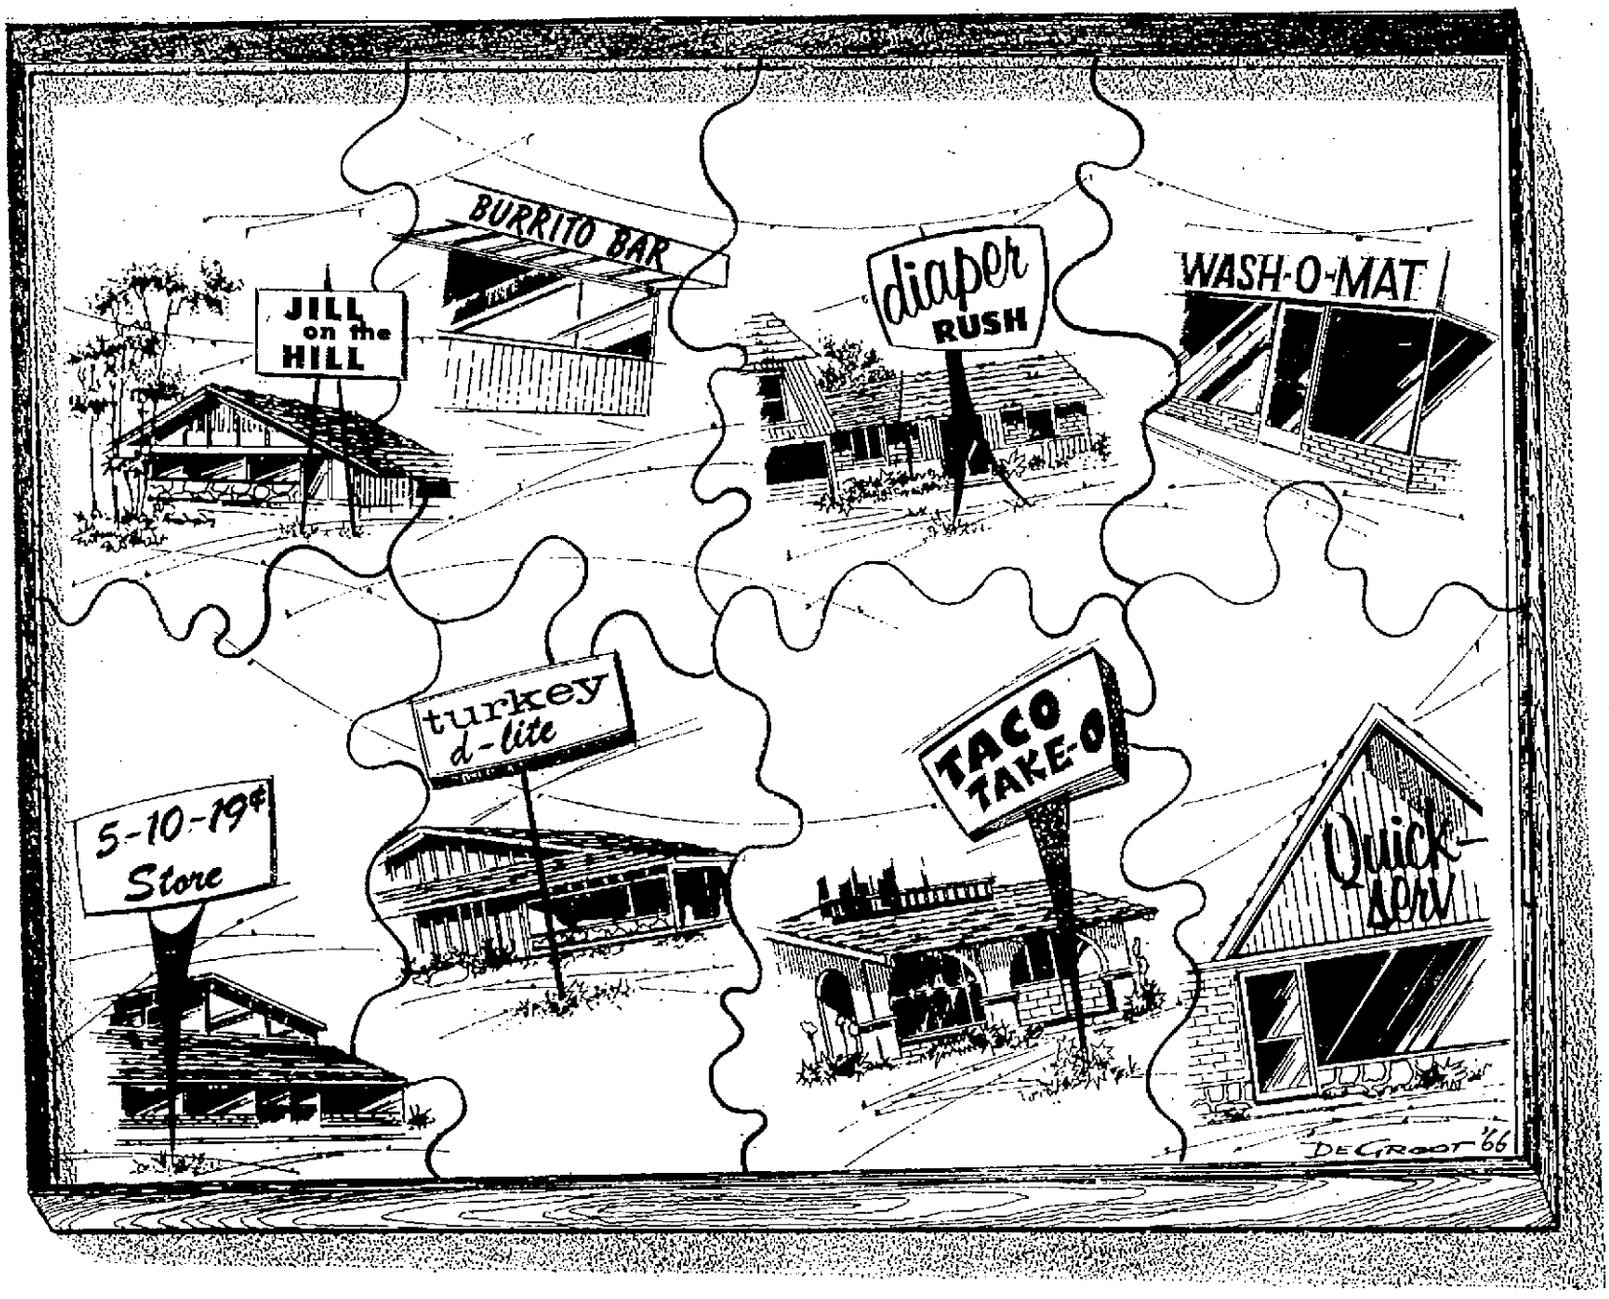

Essentially, franchising is a licensing of an individual by a large company. Usually a franchise fee is charged—anywhere from $1,000 to $12,000 for small businesses—and for his money the franchisee gets the use of large-purchase pricing from the distributor and varying degrees of supervision.

The individual joins an organization that offers the efficiencies and economics of big business. This boosts him over the hurdle that has led to high mortality rates among

They call it MIT, which stands for Motor Inn Tech, a school for teaching motel franchisees how to run business. Lone coed looks scornful as classmates struggle with bedclothes.

small businesses. The International Franchise Association points out that "well over 90% of theese new (franchise) businesses flourish, an amazing figure when compared with the 13% of all new business starts which succeed." Records show that only 5% of small businesses are still operating after 10 years.

The IFA proudly points out that franchising is growing at a faster rate than any other segment of our private enterprise system. From some 200 franchising firms in the country in 1945, the industry grew to a total of 1,100 franchising companies in 1961. Though the rate of new franchising companies has slowed, the chains have grown larger. Currently more than 30,000 new franchise stores-restaurants are opened each year, making the current total about 350,000 individual operations.

In return for the guidance by the parent company, the individual pays a percentage of his profits to the franchiser, usually from 2 to 8% of the gross.

Since the franchising company has such a large potential of profit it usually sets down strict rules for the independent operator. "Like any chain," says Rothenberg, "a weak link can do irrepairable harm. If one store in a chain of eating establishments serves below-par food in an effort to cut corners and boost profits, the other stores in the chain will suffer."

For this reason, Rothenberg advises the man who cannot take orders, the man who has a fiery ambition to be the boss, to be most careful about the variety of franchise operation he invests in.

"Generally speaking, the better operations are the ones that maintain the tightest control, so when the company's representative begins telling the independent operator how to run his business the hard-headed type man is likely to become unhappy and say 'I bought this store to go into business for myself, to be my own boss.' The result often is dissatisfaction on both sides.

"There is nothing magic about the success of franchising. It's simply a blending of the things that big business can offer the individual and the things the individual can offer big business. And the big thing that the individual must be willing to offer is time. He'd better be willing to work a lot of 12 and 16-hour days."

Marcel Trehan is 43 years old. He lives in Long Beach and works for a large corporation in Los Angeles as a middle-level executive. Trehan has mortgaged his house to make a deposit on a Taco Bell handout restaurant.

Though Trehan got in early in the startling success of Taco Bells, he still is on the waiting list. At the current rate of openings he may not get his location for another 15 months. He doesn't know where his place of business will be, for the company, which has more than 40 outlets in Southern California, has full control over sites.

Trehan paid only $7,400 for his franchise. The current price is $16,000. For that sum the franchisee buys the right to use the name and the business methods of the parent organization, which also provides close supervision to assure success. Taco Bell, with headquarters in Palos Verdes and Torrance, is a Southern California operation that has gained a nationwide reputation as one of the better franchising groups. The rate of failure is infinitesimal.

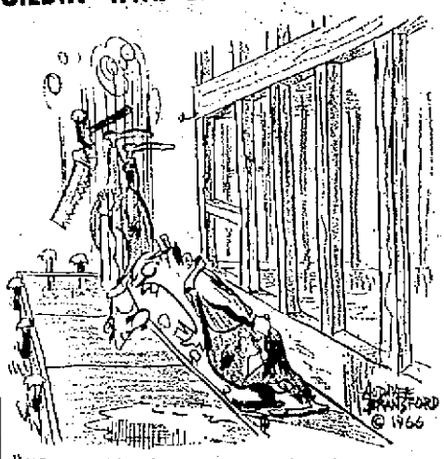

When Trehan went shopping for a franchise he had a wide choice, for he is not a restaurant man. "I chose the company that had the most thorough training and supervising setup," he says. Though he intends to hire a manager to run the store until retirement from his present employer in six years, Trehan knows that he will still have to spend long hours keeping books and overseeing.

But Trehan has been assured by the Taco Bell company that his schooling by it will prepare him for his new role of independent businessman. And he has the added assurance that a company representative

The Angry Hornet That Chases Criminals

By Andy Park

Working in unison, ground units are assisted by helicopter surveillance in police experiment in Lakewood that has national importance.

Photos by Sheriff's Department

THE WHIRR-FLAP buzz of the helicopter overhead hardly drew an inquisitive eye, for the townspeople of Lakewood knew without looking that it was just a couple of patrolmen on their beat.

But then the wail of an airborne siren shrieked out and an angry little hornet with SHERIFF emblazoned on the side was flashing a red light, emitting a mournful sound that sent motorists to the curb, their heads peering cautiously up through car windows.

They were watching a police operation that is being studied carefully by law enforcement agencies all across the nation, a police operation that, combined with other ultra-modern methods, is leading a good many law enforcement officials to conclude that the odds in the war against crime are finally beginning to swing in favor of the police.

One such policeman is Los Angeles County sheriff's deputy Sgt. Claude Cooper, who was in the wailing helicopter above the streets of Lakewood, directing a chase that marked a milestone in police activity.

DELIBERATELY, carefully, Cooper was keeping a bright orange sports car in sight. Just as deliberately he spat terse phrases into a thin, reedlike microphone curved around his jaw in front of his lips.

"Northbound on Lakewood," Cooper said. "132-A, he's turning west on Silva. That's 'S-Sam, I-Ida, L-Lincoln, V-Victor, A-Adam . . . Silva,' . . . now he's turning south onto Graywood."

What was happening . . . what made Cooper feel "the odds are in our favor . . ." was the first time in American history that a regularly scheduled law enforcement helicopter patrol was in the process of making a felony arrest.

As the chase continued, word was flashed to Los Angeles County Sheriff Peter Pitchess who immediately turned on a monitor radio in his downtown office to follow the chase.

THOSE WHO SAW him as he inclined an ear toward the radio speaker said he reminded them of photos of U. S. Presidents watching launches from Cape Kennedy, so intense was he.

Pitchess would not agree with what Claude Cooper called "the odds." Pitchess, who argued at tradition-bound oldtimers, and pushed for a pilot program for this first around-the-clock police helicopter patrol, says sternly: "Law enforcement is not some kind of 'game' or 'contest.' The criminal is not smarter, or luckier, or better informed than the policeman. He is just riding the crest of a population explosion coupled with the public's failure to utilize the available tools to stop him in his tracks. Project Sky Knight is an attempt to turn that tide back to where it should be . . . in favor of the public."

Project Sky Knight is a 12-month experimental program of cooperation between the City of Lakewood, Pitchess' Sheriff's Department, the Hughes Tool Company's aircraft division, and the federal government to see if Pitchess was right in his contention that utilization of "available tools" would stop the criminal in his tracks.

THE ANGRY WAIL over Lakewood that day last month was the first test.

A 26-year-old man who later said "I just wanted to steal a car," had walked onto a used car lot, stepped into a fast sports car with the keys in the iguition, and sped off.

Two men stood stunned as the car thief gunned the hot little car. Reacting, they jumped into their own car and started to follow him.

Looking through his rear view mirror at the pursuing civilian car, the man just fed more gas to the powerful engine and started turning corners.

In the pursuing vehicle, the man on the passenger side looked up out of the windshield and noticed the helicopter on its regular patrol over Lakewood.

"Lemme out at that phone booth," he said to the driver. "I'm calling the sheriff. You stay on his tail."

When the call was relayed to Sgt. Claude Cooper with the description and direction of the stolen car, he pushed the stick forward and to the left in his 'chopper and settled slowly over the main thoroughfare of Clark Avenue. Within seconds he had spotted the fleeing orange car being followed by a blue sports sedan. Cooper mashed on the communications button on the control stick and started Project Sky Knight into full gear.

ON THE GROUND, Deputy Robert Ewen heard Cooper's directions.

South on Clark to Del Amo, the chase progressed. West to Lakewood then north to Silva and west to Graywood. As the thief turned east on Arbor, frantically trying to shake his pursuers he first heard the wail that would be his downfall—Cooper turned on the red light and siren overhead.

Knowing no solution but more speed, the car careened around a corner to Whitewood and—now in the City of Long Beach—the little vehicle jumped across Harvey

The Neighbors Howl and Holler, but...

VIP Doesn't Give a Hoot!

By Pat McDonnell

LIFE USED to be rather quiet in Newport Beach.

Sure, there was an occasional boat explosion, a murder or two and the springtime and summertime teenage eruptions.

But things have really been popping in recent months because Virgil Partch is moving back to town, a move that should be accomplished within a matter of days and one that might ignite again the fires of neighborhood indignation.

But don't bother Partch, the famed cartoonist whose hook-nosed characters have become a national giggle, for he couldn't care less about his neighbor's wrath.

What did VIP do?

He hired an architect who designed a home that projects 26 feet further than neighboring ocean-bluff estates.

The ostentatious tri-level structure, called the Partch Hilton by many, obliterates one-half the view of coastline from Long Beach to Laguna for more than 20 homes in the Corona del Mar section of Newport.

Since foundations were laid, a resounding ruckus has been reverberating in municipal—or is it county or state?—planning meetings.

IN DEFENSE of her controversial home, Mrs. Partch states:

"We'd owned the Corona del Mar lot for years. In fact, we had it listed (for sale) for one year before we decided to build. If neighbors were so concerned over protecting their view, why didn't they buy the last vacant lot on the ocean front?

"During our nine years in Capistrano, there was a vacant lot next to us. We knew people some day would build on it and we would lose our view. We waited until it happened. Then we moved."

Her rebuttal to threats of civil rebellion, neighbors' uprisings and/or overt destruction of the Partch home?

"What would the neighbors have done if we'd built a shack on the lot and really lowered property values?

"People accuse us of being inconsiderate. They complain a family of three doesn't need such a large home.

"I really don't see that it's anyone's business how large a home we have. We're people who make a concentrated use of our home. We live in it and work in it 24 hours a day.

(VIP's studio will fill one level of the house.)

"As for neighbors, we don't care whether we make friends with them or not. We go out rarely—entertain less. We've built a home to suit our needs."

AS FOR ARTIST Partch, his future studio-home has become a monumental pain in the neck as hysteria mounts over the structure.

Not only does he refuse to discuss the ultra-modern dream home, but has made only two visits in the 10 months of construction, first estimated to take no longer than six months.

Costs, too, have risen from the initial sum of $70,000 to a total well in excess of $100,000.

"There were little things like having to put in an elevator instead of a stairway," explained Mrs. Partch.

"Then there was the constant harrassment at city council meetings, delays in construction when objectors managed to put through a variance on condition the roof overhang be cut from 3½ feet to 2½ feet.

"The construction crew forever was being told to halt work," said Mrs. Partch.

"Building inspectors prowled around at all hours, looking for loopholes. Then there was a hassle over whether or not the top level was legal, since the area isn't zoned for home with more than two levels. That argument was solved when it was proven the third level is 50% open."

CARTOONIST Partch merely sighs whenever the house is brought up by friends who accuse him of building a monument to himself.

The future master of the Partch Hilton yawns and mumbles to his wife:

"Go ahead with your plans, dear. Tell me when you're through and I'll move in."

After hearing neighbors bellow in unison that they'll get VIP, the cartoonist has vowed to wear a flak jacket at all times once the move is accomplished.

"That is, if the neighbors don't burn it down first," he said.

"The only thing that can happen now is for the state to decide to build a freeway through it."

Asked if she designed the home, Mrs. Partch said:

"I thought I did.

"It's the first time we've hired an architect and I'm satisfied.

"I'VE LEARNED that any owner has a mental picture of his dream house. The architect also has his idea. The incredible problem is to get both conceptions across to the sub-contractors.

"When the neighbors, city council and professional complainers get into the act—the going really gets rough.

"You might say the architect comes up with design features that are impractical, non-functional and expensive—but always good to look at.

"One of his brainstorms was what Virgil and I call the 'Leg Breaker Feature.'

"For beauty's sake, he wanted a two-foot space between walkway and driveway to remain uncovered and unfenced. The visual aspects were terrific. But a tipsy guest was liable to fall just about one story. You know, not steep enough to kill, but enough to maim or break a limb."

No matter how elegant the design of the house, nor how impressive its furnishings or unequalled view, chances are future guests will go away most impressed by an insignificant $3.50 engraved sign at the front door which reads:

Cpl. Virgil Franklin Partch III (Ret.).

A Conversation Piece

Displaying a Hobby

Flower-like pattern results from Mrs. Yvonne Shaver's method for showing spoon collection.

By Helen L. Gillum

DISPLAYING small treasures garnered through the years sometimes can be a problem. This especially is true when storage space is limited, as in an apartment, or when the home decor undergoes a change, demanding a new look in furnishings, too. Ingenuity and planning, however, can bring new and interesting methods of "showing off" a hobby or collection.

Such was the case with Mrs. Raymond J. Shaver of Seal Beach, who collects souvenir spoons.

"When we moved into our new home several years ago, we changed from maple furnishings to Danish Modern," she says. "Reluctantly, I took my spoons off their maple racks and prepared to put them away."

Since their new home has a fireplace, Mrs. Shaver also desired something out-of-the-ordinary to fill the space over it. So she came up with an idea that not only displays about fifty of her 112 spoons in a unique manner, but adds beauty to the wall over the fireplace as well.

"I FIRST purchased two pieces of brown decorator cork," she says. "I experimented with placing spoons on them in various designs, until I arrived at a flower-type arrangement that pleased me. Then with a large darning needle and brown thread, I literally 'sewed' some spoons to one of the pieces of cork. To give the exhibit a balanced look, I cut the other piece of cork in two pieces and 'sewed' the smaller spoons in fan-like designs on them."

Friends who see the arrangement the first time comment on the attractive "flowers" over the fireplace. Then they realize the flowers actually are spoons, making them conversation pieces, too.

While none of Mrs. Shaver's spoons is old enough to be classed as an antique (her oldest dates to 1917, which her father purchased in Paris, France, before she was born), her method of showing them can be an inspiration to those who do possess small heirloom items, such as coin silver spoons. And with the new tarnish-retardant polishes for silver now available, one need not worry too much if the items are on open display instead of behind protective glass.

Exhibits easily can be created to blend with individual home decor whether it be modern, Victorian or traditional.

Mrs. Shaver sums it up this way, "I like to have my spoons in a prominent spot where I am constantly reminded of good friends who gave them to me . . or of interesting places where I purchased some of them."

Williamsburg in Santa Ana

By Ellen Krec

WILLIAMSBURG WEST! A Colonial home in the center of Santa Ana is owned by the Frank Joseph Galinas family. Mr. Galinas is manager of the Chamber of Commerce in Santa Ana and Mrs. Galinas is an artist of note and art dealer—and together they share the joys of restoring an old 15-room home to its original state.

American eagle above front door accentuates Colonial lines of Galinas home in Santa Ana

So authentic is this home that it has been used as background for several historical films.

The exterior is white clapboard and red brick with black shutters. A portico on one side boasts a gargoyle lavabo that has served neighborhood animals as a drinking fountain for many years. The living room entrance is through French doors beside the fountain. A brick veranda lines the other side of the home and leads through a black door, with an American federal eagle "flying" above the fanlight, into the foyer.

The family's ultimate goal in decorating this house is a complete return to Williamsburg.

Pride of the family is 14-year-old Jeanine, an accomplished artist, busy at the moment illustrating a book. Jeanine is as enthusiastic as her parents about the joys and challenges of the past.

THE PATINA of magnificent hardwood floors sets the tone of the semi-formal living room. Two lounge chairs in cabbage rose toile with a matching ottoman face each other in front of the red-and-white brick fireplace.

A baby grand piano fits comfortably in one end of the room and two rose velvet Victorian chairs are perfect companions to the toile-covered sofa.

All the furniture has been acquired in out-of-the-ordinary places. The Galinases will tell you they find great satisfaction in haunting junk shops, Good Will and Salvation Army stores. One lovely sofa came from the back of a truck. Mrs. Galinas saw it, recognized its value and immediately purchased it.

This home is proof positive that one can do great things with little money, lots of energy, good taste and knowledge. Practically everything in it has been purchased and restored with all these qualities.

A favorite occupation is to find something just right for the home, then to buy it reasonably. The woods have been rubbed or refinished and most of the furniture recovered in a coordinating color and authentic fabric.

Living room accessories have been accumulated the same way. The fine Victorian lusters in deep cranberry stand on the fireplace mantel. An old English silver tea service with a pineapple top is an heirloom, as are the mirrors. The tea service rests on a cedar lowboy that was a gift from Galinas to his wife, and while it is not particularly old, it is a fine reproduction of a John Townsend chest.

The living room walls are completely covered with draperies giving the illusion of windows. Paintings are hung from these draperies for a greater effect. A tall white silk upholstered grandfather's chair also is an important addition to the living room.

THE GALINAS family always has been interested in history. Mrs. Galinas' grandparents were acquaintances of Abraham Lincoln and they have a few pieces of Lincoln memorabilia left them as their share of that era of history.

While the home is a potential museum, the Galinases are not interested in living in a museum atmosphere. They like people and gracious—but never stuffy—living.

Possibly the only contemporary note in this house-of-the past is the paintings. They are in all media—watercolors, sketches, oils. They include scenes, marines and abstracts. All are originals by Mrs. Galinas or a close friend of the family and a well known artist, Donald Nicholson.

Antiques—William and Mary mirror above fireplace, Victorian cranberry crystal on mantel, Sheffield silver biscuit tin—mark Colonial living room.

Like Alice going through the looking glass, you pass through more French doors to the foyer where the gold-and-white wallpaper, hung by Mrs. Galinas, takes a pink glow from the small Chippendale love seat. This was one of the more recent acquisitions along with the pair of French chairs, and all are upholstered in the deep pink velvet to blend with Oriental rugs.

THE FOYER is large enough to hold a double dresser, mahogany with carved fans. This is another 18th Century reproduction left to Mrs. Galinas by her mother.

Other than the slightly curved staircase that adds an elegant note (and also provides a flat new "rack" for school books) the foyer contains an elevator. It works! "And believe me," says Mrs. Galinas, "this is certainly appreciated on cleaning days when I just stack the equipment and push the button!"

It is very unobtrusive, but when you have 14 rooms and numerous baths, it almost becomes a necessity.

More French doors open into the dining room to expose the rosewood Jacobean chest with its rose paterae and marble top. A handsome black cherry sideboard came from the governor's mansion in Boston. The imported French wallpaper also was hung by Mrs. Galinas. It is a hand print, typically 18th Century with an Oriental theme. A hooked rug makes a perfect setting for the Duncan Phyfe table. Galinas is pround to tell you his wife purchased the 12 Chippendale chairs, in perfect condition, from the Salvation Army for $120!

TWO HEPPLEWHITE commodes flank the windows overlooking the gardens. The color scheme for this room was set by the wallpaper which is in the same shades of pink, soft blues and sharp greens as the hooked rug. This gives a rather opulent effect and the look of the 18th Century. A silver bowl from the early 1800s rests on a loose-footed base. All the accessories have a story, too. A Canadian silver casserole holder with a Dresden insert was found at a church bazaar for 75 cents. An early 1800s silver bowl now used to hold sugar originally was used for Mrs. Galinas' christening. Unusual pressed glass made from triple molds add color. Two of the pieces were brought to California on the first Overland Stage from the East.

All of the chandeliers — there is one in each room — are rare silver with crystal. This requires much polishing, but the effect is one of grandeur.

The final French doors allow a perfect view straight through to the small contemporary and 18th Century den. This room, with its beige grasspaper walls, makes a fine gallery for paintings. Paintings move readily, since Mrs. Galinas has been known to exchange some of her fine work for something she needs or wants to make this home historically valuable.

THE KITCHEN is well on its way to becoming Early American with the exception of the last word in equipment, a concession any woman would insist upon. No pumps or open-hearth cooking here. The wall paper is a Gloucester print and the balance of the walls brick veneer. A fine wrought iron dining table seems quite at home.

Five upstairs rooms are just beginning to take shape. The signs of progress, authenticity and accumulation all are there. This is time consuming and the steps are slow.

Most of the furniture in Jeanine's bedroom-bath is rock maple; some pieces were gifts from grandparents and some very credible colonial chairs came in kits to be assembled. These are copied from pieces still in an Eastern museum.

GALINAS IS A history buff and his den-office is mostly American Federal since his main interest is in the Revolutionary War. The colors of the Flag are appropriately used in this room and the look is as patriotic as the Herbert Hoover toby jug.

There is a pink-checked sewing room that is both useful and cheerful. The baths are all large enough to hold lounge chairs and all have Victorian decor. Pre-Victorian prints from "The Lady's Friend" decorate one of the baths.

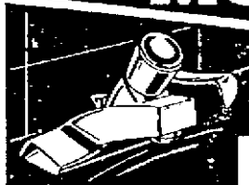

The master bed-sitting-room is capacious and comfortable. An antique library table now being put to use as a desk is a proud part of this room. A family heirloom is a pegged Chippendale rocker. A curved courting chair takes its color from the roses in the draperies. This room has a tiled fireplace and an air of a French country house. Red roses and white tile coordinate the master bath with the bedroom and the bathroom has its own small but elegant chandelier.

For A Real Ducky Dinner

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

FOR A REAL "ducky" dinner, serve Barbecued Duckling Quarters. And to add a real gourmet twist, accompany it with Sweet Cherry Relish. A perfect complement is a handsome canned Bartlett pear and strawberry salad, heated French bread, a green vegetable or corn on the cob and an iced beverage.

Frozen ducklings are available in the freezer cases of most supermarkets. Plan to let the ducklings defrost overnight in the refrigerator, then they're ready to fix in a jiffy.

Duckling and Pears in a Red Wine Sauce are equally delicious. That recipe is included, also.

BARBECUED DUCKLING QUARTERS WITH SWEET CHERRY RELISH

- 1 frozen duckling (4½ to 5 pounds), defrosted and quartered
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup liquid reserved from Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish, see recipe below

Wash, drain and dry duckling quarters; sprinkle salt evenly over cut surfaces. Arrange quarters on grill over low glowing coals, cut side down. Brown lightly; turn and cook until skin is crisp and brown. Turn again and continue cooking until meat on breast and leg is fork tender, about 1 to 1½ hours total time. Baste frequently during last 30 minutes of cooking with liquid reserved from Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish. Yield: 4 pieces, 2 to 4 servings.

SWEET CHERRY BARBECUE RELISH

- 1 can (1-lb.) light or dark sweet cherries, pits removed
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ½ cup white wine
- 1 (1-inch) stick cinnamon
- 3 whole cloves
- ½ cup chopped celery
- ½ cup sliced stuffed green olives

Drain cherries, reserving liquid. Combine cherry liquid, lemon juice, wine, cinnamon, cloves, celery and green olives. Return to mixture and refrigerate to blend flavors.

Use part of liquid to baste duckling as it barbecues. Heat remaining liquid and cherry-olive mixture in saucepan over low heat. When duckling is cooked, remove to serving platter and garnish with hot Sweet Cherry Barbecue Relish.

SWEET AND SOUR CHERRY BROILED DUCKLING

- 1 can (1 lb.) light or dark sweet cherries
- 1 can (11 oz.) mandarin orange segments
- ½ cup vinegar
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tablespoon soy sauce
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 frozen duckling (4½-5 lbs.), defrosted
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon water

Drain cherries, reserving syrup. Drain orange segments. Combine vinegar, brown sugar, soy sauce and salt with cherry liquid. Return cherries and mandarin orange segments to liquid.

Wash and drain duckling; pat dry. Cut duckling into quarters. Place in large bowl and pour cherry-orange mixture over. Marinate 3 hours. Place duckling, cut side up, on broiler rack 8 inches from broiler. Broil 25-30 minutes, turn and continue broiling until duckling is brown and crisp (about 20 minutes). While duckling is cooking, remove cherries and oranges from marinade with slotted spoon. Thicken marinade with cornstarch and water mixed together. Cook over low heat until sauce is thickened and clear. Add cherries and orange segments and heat through. Remove duckling to serving platter, serve with sweet and sour cherry sauce as accompaniment.

DUCKLING AND PEARS IN RED WINE SAUCE

- 1 can (1 lb., 13-oz.) Bartlett pear halves
- ½ cup red or rose wine
- 1 lemon thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon grated onion
- ⅛ teaspoon allspice
- Dash garlic powder
- 1 frozen duckling (4½-5 lbs.), defrosted
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 1 tablespoon water

Drain canned pears, reserving liquid. Combine pear liquid, wine, lemon, onion, allspice, and garlic powder.

Wash and drain duckling; pat dry. Quarter duckling. Place quarters in large bowl with pear halves. Pour wine mixture over pears and duckling and marinate 3 hours. Place duckling on broiler rack 8 inches from broiler, cut side up. Broil 25-30 minutes, turn and broil until brown and crisp (about 20 minutes).

Place marinade in saucepan over low heat. Combine cornstarch with 1 tablespoon water. Stir into marinade and cook, stirring, until sauce is thick and clear. Add pear halves and simmer to heat through. Serve pear halves and sauce with broiled duckling.

Recipe of the Week

Tasty orange blossom muffins with a spicy topping result from a $5-prize-winning recipe submitted this week by Mrs. William J. Morgan, of 401 S. Deming St., Santa Ana. Her recipe:

Muffins

- 1 slightly beaten egg
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ cup orange juice
- 2 tblsp salad oil or melted shortening
- 2 cups biscuit mix
- ½ cup orange marmalade
- ½ cup chopped pecans or slivered almonds

Combine egg, sugar, orange juice and salad oil; add biscuit mix; beat vigorously for 30 seconds. Stir in marmalade and pecans. Grease muffin pans or line with paper bake cups; fill ⅔ full. Sprinkle with spicy topping.

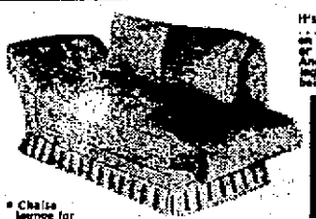

Topping

- ¼ cup sugar
- 1½ tblsp. flour
- ½ tsp. cinnamon
- ¼ tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tsp. butter

Combine sugar, flour and spices; cut in butter until crumbly. Bake muffins in hot oven (400 degrees) for 20-25 minutes or until done. Makes 12 muffins.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipe along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

Q. Why does "to lead the life of Riley" mean to lead an easy life? C.I.

A. The phrase has been traced back to a comic song hit introduced by Pat Rooney in 1883, "Is That Mr. Riley?" Mr. Riley was the owner of a hotel and therefore presumably able to lead an easy and pleasurable life. The song had numerous parodies.

Q. By whom was Memorial Day originated? S.D.

A. General John A. Logan, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Memorial Day was first observed officially on May 30, 1868. Originally the holiday was held to honor the dead of the Civil War only, but subsequently the honor was extended to those of other U.S. wars.

Q. In connection with solar energy, what is the "solar belt"? D.T.

A. The "solar belt" extends beyond the tropics to about the 40th degree of latitude, north and south, and comprises the area of the earth's surface within which solar energy will be most ef-

A Mixed Bag

PHILIP RAHV, professor of English at Brandeis University, a founding editor of Partisan Review and author of a number of studies of American literature, has come up with a new, mixed bag of goodies. In "Modern Occasions," published by Farrar, Straus and Giroux, $6.95, he has collected works of 21 authors heretofore unpublished in English. The collection reflects current trends in fiction, poetry, drama and criticism.

Rahv says in the foreword that this collection, while containing some experimental writing, is not experimental in the meaning this word acquired in the first 30 years or so of this century—experimentation with verbal and structural forms. There is some experimental writing, as he points out, but it is mostly confined to adapting the latest colloquial speech to literary purposes. Rahv adds in an apologetic tone that though he is disposed to encourage sweeping experimentation, none was forthcoming.

What we do find, however, are some of the more immediate and spontaneous modes of expression. Like a box of strawberries at the supermarket, the best is on the top. The opening piece, "The Elbow," a novella by Thalia Selz, is superb. It's an easy-flowing story of a young, free-loving woman living in a Chicago Greenwich Village-type neighborhood who is majoring in film at a progressive school. It is funny, pathetic and wise—a keenly carved slice of life.

A POEM by Robert Lowell, with classical themes, follows. Other poems contained in the book are by A. R. Ammons, Steven Katz, Jane Cooper and Harold Schimmel.

In the field of criticism are pieces by Hans Magnus Enzensberger, writing on the Avant-Garde; Robert Brustein on new American playwrights; Maurice Cranston on the later thought of Jean Paul Sartre, and Stephen Donadio on some younger poets in America.

Enzensberger's piece on the Avant-Garde is scholarly but suffers from heavy Germanic writing. Buried under the badinage, however, are some gems of truth, and Enzensberger, despite the heavy going, offers a definitive look at Avant-Garde as a concept of the arts.

Robert Brustein's criticism of current American playwrights is excellent. The gist of Brustein's thought is that although each of the several playwrights he dissects shows talent and potential along one or more lines, all have shortcomings and have not developed into mature artists of first rank. Edward Albee seems to be the outstanding member of the current crop.

CRANSTON POINTS out the strengths and weaknesses of Jean Paul Sartre and Sartre's inconsistencies in defining the Existentialist movement. Sartre can be forgiven this, however, since to this date no one has been able to define Existentialism in clear, succinct and brief terms.

Donadio gives us brief, illuminating sketches of modern American poets along with criticism of their works and a look at new poetry trends.

Rahv also gives us plays by Peter Spielberg and Jascha Kessler.

Several other stories and excerpts from longer works round out the selections. The stories show the experimentation, as Rahv calls it, in American fiction. It is the type of writing one encounters in Esquire, Playboy and a number of other periodicals.

The writer seems to be writing for himself alone—spewing out words as if he were lying on an analyst's couch. To hell with the reader and with comprehension. Words are piled atop words and they seem to bear no logical relationship to one another in carrying out a train of thought. These catharses are interspersed with occasional lucid passages and spiced with colloquial shock words. One takes this not to be so much experimentation but a slavish emulation of Henry Miller.

With the exception of the opening story by Thalia Selz and the fine story by Paul West at the end, the best feature of the collection is the selection of critical essays. The criticisms are a first-rate description and analysis of trends in contemporary letters.

Writers Focus on Two Worlds

Harsh Life in Quebec Recalled

A SEASON IN THE LIFE OF EMMANUEL, by Marie-Claire Blaise. Farrar, Straus, $4.50.

There is a second French literature, written closer to home than the one we know, yet a million miles away from even the most knowledgable of American connoisseurs of good writing. True, French Canada has produced no Balzacs, nor even Zolas, but it has its gems nevertheless. Creator of some of these is Marie-Claire Blais, a mere slip of a girl as fine writers go, but a polished craftsman and a maker of tales that, once read, defy forgetting.

"A Season in the Life of Emmanuel" is a simple annal of the poor, of a Quebec family's struggle to survive. The mother has borne 16 children, the father is an unlettered farmer, a resenter of the lettered. Most memorable of the brood is Jean-Le Maigre, tormented by tuberculosis, but precocious, who reads the precious little he can find and hungers for more, uncowed by the father's "We don't want books in this house!"

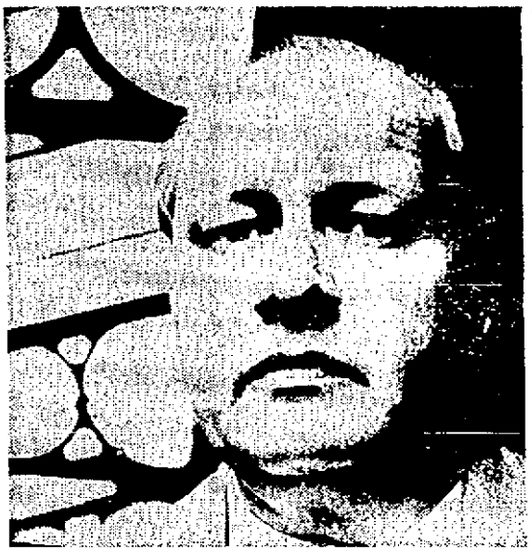

A sister, Heloise, has been dismissed from a convent, as a self-appointed saint, and the brothel claims her. Ruling over them all is Grand-mere Antoinette, sharp of tongue, unsparing of the cane but dispensing lumps of sugar to the children. This is the bleak, bigoted world of peasant Quebec as witnessed by the boy Emmanuel in his first years of life.—Nat Honig

Books in Brief

THE SONG OF HIAWATHA, by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Introduction by Mina Lewiton, illustrated by Howard Simon. Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.95.

EVANGELINE, by Longfellow. Introduction by Mina Lewiton, illustrated by Howard Simon. Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $3.95.

These magnificently illustrated editions of two long poems that are a basic part of our heritage are especially aimed at introducing young readers to the beauty and excitement of the Longfellow works. They will delight older readers, too.

The Pulitzer Prize, two National Book awards, the coveted Bollingen award, the Levinson award, Tietjens prize and a couple of Guggenheim fellowships have been won by poet Theodore Roethke (above). "The Collected Poems of Theodore Roethke," Doubleday, $5.95, contains some of the finest lyric poetry of this generation.

Israeli Activist as Seen by Greats

By Morry Rabin

MEYER WEISGAL AT SEVENTY. Edited by Edward Victor. Weldenfeld and Nicolson. 25 S.

THE LATE Dr. Chaim Weizmann, eminent British scientist who was the first president of the State of Israel, is revered by world Judaism as the architect of that statehood. His disciple, Meyer Weisgal, is the activist who, by extraordinary talent as editor and writer, theatrical impresario, propagandist, fund-raiser and patron of science, has propelled Weizmann's great visions to fulfillment.

Less than a third of the Weisgal story is biography; the rest is testimonial by Nobel laureates in science, literature, heads of government who have worked with the Polish-born, American immigrant who conceived and now heads the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovoth, Israel.

In only one decade, under Weisgal's dynamic promotion, the $100-million complex with its faculty of 460 and staff of 760 has become, according to President Lyndon B. Johnson, one of the 10 leading scientific institutions in the world and "has helped make Israel one of the foremost scientific resources of the world."

Some of the tributes which illuminate his personality are by Louis Lipsky; Maurice Samuel, writer and lecturer Pierre Van Paassen, author and foreign correspondent; Cass Canfield, chairman of Harper & Row, and Ritchie Calder, professor of International relations at Edinburgh University.

The Nobel laureates are Dr. I.I. Rabi and Niels Bohr, physics; Sir Robert Robinson, chemistry, and Dr. Ernest B. Chain, medicine and physiology. And from Israel, Abba Eban, foreign minister; and David Ben-Gurion and Moshe Sharett, former prime ministers.

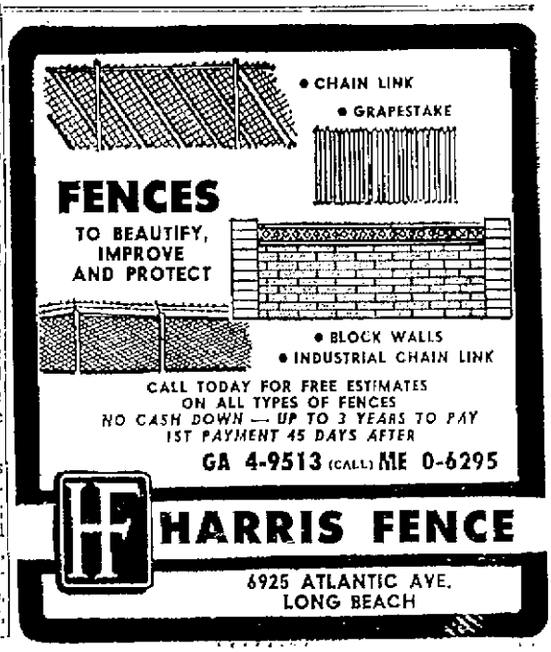

'New Japan' Dissected in Stories

DEATH IN MIDSUMMER AND OTHER STORIES, by Yukio Mishima. New Directions, $5.50.

These are the first of Yukio Mishima's short stories Americans are privileged to read. Mishima's novels have made his name a byword around the world for masterly craftsmanship. In Japan the short story is a major and always burgeoning art, whereas it is a dying one with us, and Mishima is one of its finest practitioners.

Nine of his stories have been translated here. The best of them are the title tale, "Death in Midsummer," of a triple tragedy at a beach, and "Patriotism," in which a young army officer and his wife expiate disgrace in a violent but traditional way. The dead weight of the past still falls heavily upon Mishima's modern Japanese, sophisticated though they consider themselves.

The bizarre ending is a specialty of Mishima and few writers, Oriental or Western, are his equal at it. A further facet of this Japanese giant's talent is in the modern "No" play sandwiched among the stories.—N. H.

ANGRY HORNET THAT CHASES CRIMINALS

Way, smashed through a line of bushes on the campus of Long Beach City College and rammed into a tree on the college grounds. The force of the impact threw the thief out the open door of the car.

THE DAZED man was just picking himself up when several sheriff's cars pulled up. As he looked up he saw two airborne deputies hovering over, ready and waiting. Claude Cooper couldn't resist a slight smile.

"Score one," Cooper muttered as he turned the 'copter back to regular patrol.

Day and night, every day of the week, Project Sky Knight hovers over Lakewood, poking its blunt plastic nose into the public's business. Three shifts of deputy-pilots from the Sheriff's Aero Detail man the angry hornet. A wino ducks into an alley behind a building, a man stoops to look into a parked car, a young girl returns home late at night from work . . . Sky Knight watches and buzzes overhead.

The experiment will continue for a year, funded by the City of Lakewood, the Sheriff's Department, Hughes Tool Co. and an agency of the National Crime Commission. Every move the 'copters make will be recorded and funneled into the office of a dispassionate professor at Long Beach State College. There the data will be evaluated.

Pitchess hopes the program will prove effective. He hopes the crime rate will be cut, money saved, and—most important—the odds changed in favor of the people against the criminal.

ONLY THE objective evaluation at the end of the experimental year will tell the full story. Only then will it be known for sure if the buzz above is worth the savings in life, limb and property.

Companion experiments are also being tried—like the silent revolving beacon on top of the liquor store which illuminates an insistant call for help when a would-be robber pulls a gun on the lone store clerk. And like the sunburst beam that illuminates a football field-size area when Sky Knight spotlights a crime in the dark.

The results aren't in yet, but one comment is on the record. It's the confused words of a would-be car thief suspect when he looked up at Sky Knight overhead:

"That's not fair," the man muttered.

"This is not a game or contest," Pitchess has said.

Q. Please give some personal information on jockey Alex Maese, who won the 1966 George Woolf Memorial Award. V.K.

A. Alex Maese is 37 years old, 5 ft. 5 in. tall, and weighs 112 pounds. He is of Mexican descent; on his mother's side he is a third-generation Californian. Maese is married, has five children, and lives at San Marino, Calif. In high school (Anaheim, Calif.) he played football, basketball, and softball, and ran on the school's relay team; he remains an all-around sports fan. He became an apprentice jockey when he was 24, and is now a director of the Jockeys' Guild. The Woolf Award—a bronze miniature of the statue of a noted jockey who was killed in a riding accident at Santa Anita track 20 years ago—is awarded by vote of turf writers and sports editors; the winners are chosen on the basis of character and other personal qualities as well as their track records.

Q. How did Texas and Massachusetts rank in 1965 in the list of states getting big military contracts?—K.N.

A. In fiscal 1965, Texas ranked third (up from fourth place in 1964), geting 6.2% of the prime military contracts, $1,447 million in money value. Massachusetts and Connecticut tied with 5.1% of the contracts; Connecticut ranked fourth and Massachusetts fifth in money value, with contracts worth $1,180 million and $1,179 million respectively. Massachusetts was up from seventh place in fiscal 1964. California and New York remained at the head of the list in 1965: California, 22.1%, $5,154 million; New York, 9.6%, $2,229 million.

Gals Suffer Scaly Skin

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

STANFORD UNIVERSITY researchers, who have been conducting an extensive study of psoriasis, have come up with findings such as these:

Slightly more women than men suffer from the scaly skin disease.

It occurs more commonly in white than Negro populations.

Most patients get worse in the winter. They fare better in the summer when there is more exposure to the sun.

Thirty percent of a series of 1,500 patients had relatives with psoriasis.

Thirty-nine percent of the patients studied disclosed that their psoriasis appeared at times of worry, and 37.2% said their condition worsened when they were under stress.

More than half said psoriasis preceded arthritis, and 24.5% had arthritis of various joints besides psoriasis.

LONG-TERM use of birth-control pills has not resulted in any adverse effect in subsequent pregnancies, a large-scale study discloses.

This has been reported to the International Study Group for Steroid Hormones by Dr. Edris Rice-Wray, director of the Physiology of Reproduction Study Center in San Luis Potosi, Mexico.

A study of 6,770 women who took the pills shows that those who later decided to bear children suffered no ill effects during pregnancy. Offsprings were normal.

INTERNATIONAL port cities are expected to start showing more and more victims of tropical parasites, predicts a New York City physician.

Dr. Manfred Simon of Montefiore Hospital says New York City already is starting to look like the tropics. Responsible, he says, are population shifts from areas such as Puerto Rico and the South.

There is a rising occurrence of tropical parasites in nontropical places, he says in a report in Modern Medicine.

THE USE of asbestos in brake linings may represent a new urban hazard, one researcher says.

Another investigator believes that more chest tumors attributable to asbestos exposure will turn up in the future.

Dr. Harriet L. Hardy, Boston, assistant medical director of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, puts it this way:

"Evidence is impressive that asbestos exposure, often delayed in effect, will in the future be responsible for an important amount of pulmonary disease, especially chest tumors."

She says new evidence points to an association between asbestos and abdominal tumors.

Her report is in American Journal of the Medical Sciences.

WATERLOGGING of the lungs, a condition that sometimes occurs at high altitudes, is not expected to be a hazard to athletes competing in the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

Mexico City has an elevation of 7,500 feet, and the condition, technically called pulmonary edema, is not seen at less than 9,000 feet, says a Stanford University physician.

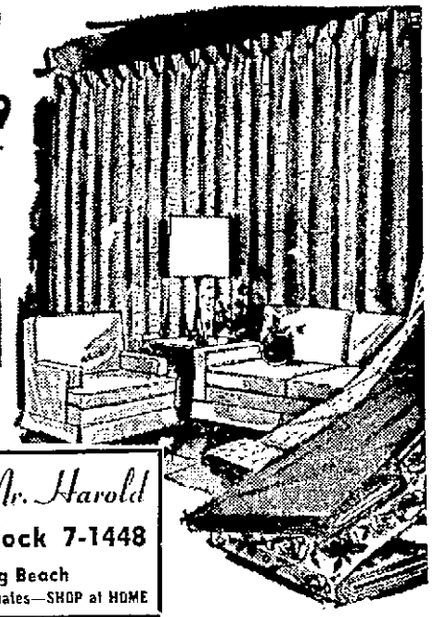

TWO CASES of aplastic anemia, often a fatal disease, have been linked with exposure to insecticides, Australian researchers report.

One patient was a 39-year-old woman who had washed her dog once a week over a two-year period with a preparation containing benzene hexachloride.

The other patient had used a garden spray containing DDT and lindane.

The report is in Medical Journal of Australia.

COIN ROUNDUP

Legal Gold

By Maurice Gould

MY MAILBAG DURING the past few months has been bulging with inquiries about U.S. gold coins: Whether they can be legally held in collections? Whether the coins can be purchased in foreign countries? Is it permissible to hoard them for investment? And so on.

Actually, there are no restrictions upon dealings in genuine and lawfully issued gold coins situated within the U.S. The coins must have been made prior to April 5, 1933, and located within the U.S. prior to July 20, 1962.

Also, coins made prior to 1933 or ruled to be rare and held outside the U.S. on July 20, 1962, by a person subject to the jurisdiction of the U.S., but imported prior to Jan. 1, 1963, or received under a special authorization from the Treasury Department, may be legally held.

Gold which the office of domestic gold and silver operations of the Treasury Department determines to be of exceptional numismatic value may be imported after receiving a license and authorization from Washington.

One fact little known to both collectors and public alike is that the holding of mutilated coins within the U.S. since 1933, and outside the U.S. since 1961, has been prohibited. Any solder on the coin or the drilling of a hole in it constitutes mutilation.

I would think that many millions of people would be involved in this ruling, as what family does not have an old gold piece or piece of jewelry which was made from mutilated coins? But to the best of my knowledge, this ruling has never been strictly enforced.

Gold certificates issued before Jan. 30, 1934, may be held by collectors. There are a great number of gold certificates outstanding and no doubt many of these will now find their way into the hands of paper money collectors.

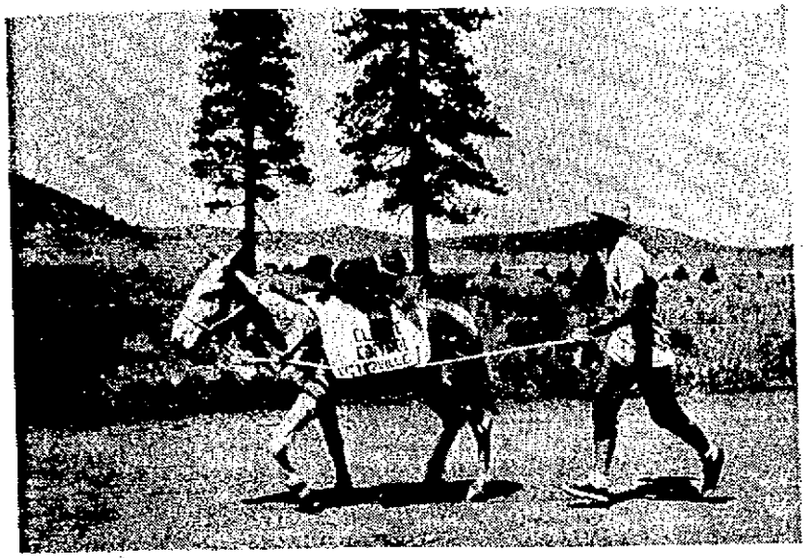

This is early Greek silver coin from 323-281 B.C. Obverse is head of Alexander the Great.

IT IS ALMOST unbelievable, but coins produced more than 2,000 years ago are considered among the finest examples of artistic work produced since minting began. The workmanship of the Greek artists, for example, is legendary and their beautiful silver coinage is eagerly sought after by collectors.

The Greek gods and goddesses were pictured on the beautiful coinage, among the most famous being Zeus, who ruled over gods and men. Animals were frequently used and the Athenian owl is a symbol known to all numismatists.

Even in this early period of recorded history, the Greek victory at the famous battle of Marathon was the occasion for the issuing of a commemorative coin with Athene on the obverse and an owl on the reverse. History is permanently recorded for coin collectors in this manner.

Joseph Spearman, winner of last year's race, "steers" his burro last, long mile to Shay's Ranch, near Baldwin Lake. Some 60 to 80 burros will compete.

as "The Lord will judge."

MISS RULE: Please explain SHELLEY.—BB., T.M., Long Beach.

SHELLEY of England commemorates an ancestor from the town of Shelley in Suffolk. In 972 A.D., this place was called "Scelfleah," deciphered as "Town on the meadow by the ledge or cliff." The Shelley armorial shield is black, crossed by a gold stripe placed between three gold whelk shells. Notable ancestors include Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1792-1822, famous English poet.

MISS RULE: Please give genealogy of JARNAGIN, JOURNIGAN. — R.J., Long Beach, I.M., Paramount.

JARNAGIN and JOURNIGAN are Irish clan names based on the thousand-year-old Gaelic root word "Gearnagain," meaning "young spearman." There is no shield recorded for Jarnagin or Journigan.

MISS RULE: Kindly explain JAENICKE and JENYK. — C.H., J.P., Long Beach.

JAENICKE and JENYK are German-Slavic formations of the baptismal name Johann or John, meaning "God is gracious." Both Jaenicke (formerly Janicke) and Jenyk indicate "Young John." The Janicke shield from Prussia has one eagle wing on a gold background for the left half and a half fleur-de-lis on a red background for the right portion.

amiable "outriders" and officials. Tension mounts as the first contestants are seen skirting the east end of Baldwin Lake. Every one is anxious to get a close-up and officials have a hard time preventing them from spooking the burros as weary, bedraggled wranglers head down the home stretch.

THE THIRD day of the race is a tough sprint of seven miles from Shay's Ranch to the Elk's Club at Big Bear Lake, where larger crowds are on hand for the finish.

Thousands of wild burros still roam isolated sections of California and Nevada, east of Death Valley Monument and along the Colorado River. Burros that participate in the races are rounded up and corraled for two weeks prior to the race, and every effort is made to see that they are not subjected to any cruelty. Ronald J. Robinson, new president of Old Miner's Association, assures that the same precautions will be taken as in the past. Animals will be inspected before the race and a detail of Humane Society officers will ride the course with contestants. Judging from past years, however, the wranglers, who have been stomped, kicked and bitten severely, need more protection than the burros.

THOUGH THE races may seem unnecessarily rigorous for men and animals, they still reflect the hardships that early-day prospectors and their pack-burros endured. Burros are tough creatures that have carried heavy burdens for centures. The pack-burro toted the miner's grubstake and equipment and was punched ahead to break the trail. Often they were used to drag heavy stones or crude arrastres that crushed the ore.

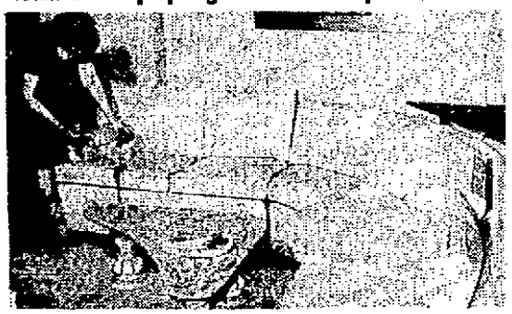

Several access routes to Big Bear Lake are open to the motorist, but the most direct from coastal cities is State Route 38 east of Redlands. This takes the motorist through Camp Angeles and one of the most beautiful conifer forests in the Southland, then east to Barton Flats recreational area. Beginning at South Fork camp, the Big Bear Loop penetrates the Big Meadow country where the Division of Beaches and Parks is now negotiating for land along Heart Bar and Coon Creeks for a new state park.

The highway encircles Sugarloaf Peak giving the motorist splendid views of San Gorgonio Wilderness; then descends, through pinyon pine forests, to Bear Valley in the vicinity of Baldwin Lake.

A carnival spirit prevails during Old Miner's celebrations. Tree climbing and log splitting contests, the old-time costumes worn by local residents, as well as the burro races, all take one back to the days of the gold miners and of the cattlemen who followed them into Bear Valley.

Breeder-owners Everett and Barbara Fopma of Bellflower, show their champion German Shepherd, Ray O'Bee's Starke. She is judging in Anaheim today.

THE AWARD

Shepherds Are Dependable

By Eleanor Avery Price

THE GERMAN Shepherd Dog Club of Orange County presents a puppy match next Sunday at La Palma Park, Anaheim. Mrs. Barbara Fopma of Bellflower, will start judging the two to four-month puppies at 10 a.m., but other entries, including obedience, will be taken until noon. Mrs. Fopma is pictured today showing her fine new champion, Ray O'Bee's Starke.

Words of warning from Mrs. Fopma: "If you are playing with a ball the size of a tennis ball or smaller, DON'T. Starke had a ball catch in his throat. Only quick thinking saved him.

"Never fight a dog by trying to retrieve a ball out of his throat by way of his mouth. The dog may accidentally chew your hands. After he has passed out, you still have a couple minutes to work to remove the ball. Work from the OUTSIDE. Locate the ball just under his chin. Use your hands to push the ball up towards his mouth. While he is struggling and gasping, throat muscles are tight. When he is relaxed, throat muscles relax, too.

"After the ball is out, revive him by applying artificial respiration on the chest, over the heart."

From Judy Dale of Sherman Oaks, another German Shepherd fancier, comes word that the Sentry Dog Branch at the training center of Lackland Air Force Base has revised its standards for German Shepherds back to the original specifications. Dogs must be from 1 to 3-years-old, be a minimum of 23 inches, and weigh not less than 60 pounds. Females must be spayed at least 60 days prior to shipment.

The training center wants only German Shepherd dogs (no other breed) of highest caliber. They must be aggressive, not gunshy, healthy enough to start training at 5 a.m. and continue until noon, then work again in the field several hours at night.

Build a Low-Cost 'Board

By Steve Ellingson

SURFING MAY not be one of the oldest sports in the world, but it's just about the newest craze in America today. After building up momentum in Hawaii and on the Pacific Coast for the past six seasons, surfing invaded the Atlantic Coast in 1964. And now with the advent of "boat wake surfing" it has spread to all inland areas where there are lakes and rivers. No question about it, it's here to stay.

The reasons, of course, are obvious. Besides being lots of fun, it's an ideal activity for those who love the out-of-doors, who desire a healthy, tanned skin and need more exercise.

One of the reasons that surfing isn't even more popular today is that surf boards are expensive to buy. But—when you build them yourself, they are within the reach of practically all families. The board shown here with television's Pamela Rogers is designed to be used either on the ocean or behind your boat on a lake or river.

It's a project that any amateur can undertake with confidence when he uses the full size pattern. A list of needed materials along with lots of illustrations showing the various stages of construction are included. The directions are easy to understand.

Also included with every pattern are a series of pictures and instructions showing how to "wake surf" behind a boat.

To obtain the full size surf board pattern number 351, send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., P.O. Box 2383, Van Nuys.

One way to cut cost of surfboarding is to build your own 'board — with plans from Southland.

will spend several days each month scrutinizing his procedures. Too, the parent company operates a commissary so that foodstuffs are supplied regularly and uniformly. For these services Taco Bell takes 8% of the gross.

Says Rothenberg: "The whole key to success in running a franchise business is training and the proper use of that knowledge.

"Through franchising a man can invest his money wisely, make a good living during his working years and retire to take a large captial gain. Formerly all he could get when he retired was a gold watch."

Rothenberg, whose franchise consulting firm has set up operations in such diversified fields as asphalt road surfacing, home remodeling, portable hot dog stands, computerized bookkeeping service and jet-powered surfboard rentals, says enthusiastically:

"Our whole economy is changing and franchising is the motivating force. Every time a franchise is sold it has an important effect on that area's economy.

"Franchising will give the U. S. economy more strength than ever. European countries are scrambling right now to get in on the system. Europeans can see clearly the advantages to the individual when a big company offers its knowledge to a small investor so both of them can make a larger profit."

So, too, do Americans clearly see these advantages.

clown bareback rider, Kochmanskis, performing thrilling leaps and somersaults as the horse trots its measured pace about the ring. Display number ten has the Los Belios on acrobatic bars, the Four Titos performing unbelievable feats of acrobatic skill, and the Five Tokajis performing with acrobatic dexterity.

Peerless performers all are the Adams & Jeski Troupe, the Three Mecners and the Lillian Keler Trio, in a series of hair-raising haud-vaulting, tumbling, and daring adagio tricks. One of the few holdovers from last year are two of the wild animal trainers, Charley Baumann with his Royal Bengal and Siberian tigers, and Adela Smeja with her ferocious jungle-bred lions in the big cage. Konyots Chimpanzees present their own version of a Western Chimpanzee Rodeo, and in all three rings, the Ferkos Duo, Los Tonitos and the Balaz offer a triple display of wire wizardry.

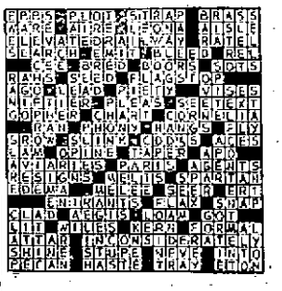

The Flying Gaonas and the Flying Waynes occupy the air space over all three rings with daring flying trapeze acts that include every trick known to trapezists the world over.

Many new European clowns have also been added to Ringling Bros. Circus clown alley and it boasts such famous names as Kochmanski, Lou Jacobs, Otto Griebling, Bobby Kay, Gene Lewis, Prince Paul, and many others.

"Pussycats on Parade" is one of new features in this year's edition of Ringling Bros. Circus.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE
(See Page 26.)

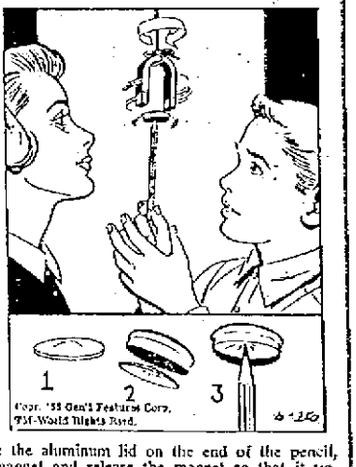

Science for You

By BOB BROWN

PROBLEM: An induction motor.

NEEDED: An aluminum lid from a jar or salt-shaker, a strong horseshoe magnet, a length of string and a sharp-pointed pencil.

DO THIS: Suspend the magnet by the string. Twist it several dozen times and have someone hold it so that it will not unwind. Balance the aluminum lid on the end of the pencil, hold it under the magnet and release the magnet so that it unwinds rapidly. The aluminum lid underneath will turn.

Copr. '55 Gen'l Features Corp. 9'56-World Wides Rsrd.

HERE'S WHY: This is the principle of the induction electric motor which is used to operate many of our appliances. Aluminum is not a magnetic metal, but as the magnet turns above it, electrical currents are induced in it which causes it to become a magnet. It then turns because of the magnetic field principle — "like magnetic poles repel and unlike magnetic poles attract." A piece of cardboard prepared and placed in the lid as shown in the drawings will keep the lid balanced on the pencil point. If a thin card or piece of glass is held between the magnet and the lid, the lid will turn as before, showing that any air current set up by the turning magnet has little or no effect on the turning of the lid.

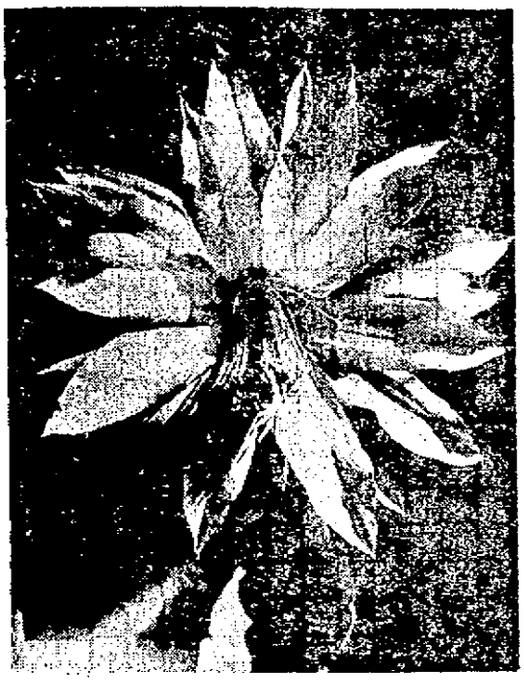

Popular Tree Perchers

By Joe Littlefield

EPIPHYLLUMS ARE epiphytic (tree perching) plants growing from Mexico to Brazil. They are popular potted plants for shaded gardens protected from frosts and may be used for porch decoration. Some are grown in cool greenhouses, others in a lath house. Many folks consider them the showiest and gayest succulent one can think of.

Epiphyllums usually are taking it easy after their blossoms have worked hard to produce lovely flowers. As blossoms fade gradually they begin to grow again. Epiphyllums are perhaps one of the showiest species of the succulent plants. It's time to give them some attention as to repotting them if roots have become heavily pot-bound. The soil mixed with some organic matter should be of a coarse texture for good drainage yet the medium holds some of the moisture so roots benefit from the water and fertilizer.

Where epiphyllums need shade protection, Primavera chrysanthemums need sun or more sun than shade. If you've noticed yellow color low growing pompom mums in 4 inch clay or plastic pots at your local nursery, and have passed by these special kind of mums, primavera, you are missing having some yellow color flowers twice a year in your garden! The plant's overall height growth is about 10 inches, but the plant spreads out to about 15 inches or more spread. The bright yellow blossoms literally smother the plants. Old flowers should be cut back partially into the leafage growth and fed some balanced plant food. About three or four months later they burgeon forth with masses of yellow blooms again. This plant also is a good pot plant specimen for patio or porch.

Crissy epiphyllum, a lovely orange variety, is beautiful succulent mostly grown as pot plant.

Plant a couple of Statice (Limonium) perezii, sea lavender plants back of the primavera mums and that garden planting will look like a tastefully arranged live plants flower arrangement, because the purple color of the sea lavenders provides an attractive pleasing color foil for the bright yellow primavera mums.

The sea lavender blossoms sprays may be hung up and dried for a month or so, then taken down. They furnish an attractive dry arrangement indoors far more interesting than the falsie plastic flowers.

BUGS LIKE plants, too. Thrips, which are minute, narrow pests, love to feast on rose petals, gardenia buds and flowers, carnations, and some other plants. Add a little oil emulsion to the insecticide spray you use for control of thrips, or other plant pests for that matter. The soil emulsion or a regular spreader sold at nurseries for this same purpose adds more sticky quality to the insecticide spray, therefore making it more effective for pest control.

Spider mites attack underside foliage of poinsettias, hydrangeas, roses and other plants. They hate to go to bed with wet feet. Wise gardeners hose foliage with a sharp stream of water on the underside leafage of the plants during late afternoon. Plants that are susceptible to mildew fungus infestation or rust should not be sprayed except in the morning—and it must be sunny.

The water spray discourages spider mites from becoming established in your garden. Nontheless, gardeners still should insecticide spray the plants just to be sure they are eliminated.

Gardeners can discourage heavy infestations of pests by hose foliage spraying shrubs and plants that stand sharp stream of water, usually at about two week intervals. The sharp spray dislodges any accumulation of leaves that drop in the crotches of the branches, thereby removing possible housekeeping areas where pests might breed.

HYBRID BERMUDA lawns are becoming increasingly popular due to being practically evergreen, taking 5 degrees more of cold than the "native" varieties, and, more importantly, they don't produce viable seeds that might sprout in unwanted places such as flower beds or cracks of blacktop driveways. "Viable" means capable of growing-developing.

William Brown, a former nurseryman who sold out his nursery in 1955, and was just about the first to experiment with hybrid Bermudas, knows whereof he speaks: "In test plots where we have made a little effort to remove weeds, we find after a summer's growth that few weeds remain. These new hybrids are much finer-bladed than the old type and produce a tough turf that withstands a great deal of traffic and play, as well as producing beautiful lawns and eliminating much of the necessity of expensive control of lawn moth, crab grass and other pests."

Update Borders

Sometimes we tend to get in a rut where our perennial borders are concerned. Shasta daisies, delphiniums, phlox and other permanent flowers bloom so dependably from year to year that it's a temptation to leave them just where they are, never adding to them or subtracting the ones that don't make the fullest show.

This is a mistake. A successful perennial border has to be updated from time to time if it's going to keep its full interest and sparkle. Gaps should be filled—and filled with the newest and best. Old plants that have lost their vigor should be replaced with the finest varieties you can buy. Maybe it's time to try some new combinations — tall yellow columbine, for instance, with light pink penstemon and blue delphinium. A blue delphinium you shouldn't miss is the airy Connecticut Yankee, a prize-winning, low-branching beauty that's terrific as a medium-tall background. Members of the California Association of Nurserymen recommend that soil for delphiniums be deep and rich, and it's a good idea to work a cupful of lime or bonemeal into the holes at planting time.

GARDEN CLUBS

THE NORTH LONG Beach branch of the American Begonia Society will hold its 4th annual begonia and shade plant show Friday and Saturday in Machinists' Hall, 728 Elm Ave.

Joe Littlefield, Southland Magazine garden columnist will be master of ceremonies.

Show hours are 2 to 10 p.m. Friday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday. Persons entering plants in competition should bring them Thursday between 6 and 10 p.m. or Friday from 8 to 9 a.m.

A PROGRESSIVE luau dinner will be given on Saturday by the Los Altos Garden Club for members and their escorts.

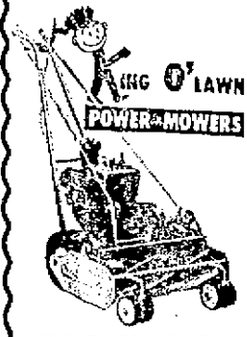

Reservations and information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Walter Thiessen or Mrs. Wallace Rosser.

NEW OFFICERS will be installed at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday of the Garden Grove branch of the California National Fuchsia Society, at Peeks Terrace Room, 7801 Bolsa Ave., Westminister.

The officers are Emile Erickson, president; Bill Loos, vice president; Violet Allen, secretary; Mrs. James DeVore, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Eastwood, membership secretary; John Martin, national representative, and Clarence Eastwood, alternate national representative.

Featured at the meeting will be a plant exhibit, and each person attending is asked to bring a plant, arrangement or blossoms.

Cotton Stages Comeback

Tricks in the Shade

By A. C. McLeod

SOME PRETTY Tricks are happening in broad daylight all over the country this summer making the "victims" the happiest homeowners under the sun. The newest tricks in cotton canvas shading are making homes more liveable and lovely than ever with a brand new concept in the art of exterior decorating.

Poolside cabana (above) is but one of many canvas products being marketed this summer for leisure-time living. Another example is patio shelter (below), to provide privacy.

Canvas awnings have shrugged off their purely functional garb and have emerged as important adjuncts to home architecture. Window awnings still perperform their essential duty of cutting glare and costs of cooling in the summer . . . but now they do it with a chic and flair not seen until recently except in the most lavish residential settings.

Box-like awnings in conventional dull colors have given way to soaring shapes in bright florals and prints and delicate pastels or vivid solid colors. The new designs are tailored to the individual home and often are used to redeem or minimize architectural defects.

AS MORE and more families take to the backyard for expanded living space in the summer, the demand has grown for shelter devices to make the outdoors more comfortable. And canvas dealers are keeping up with the demand, reports the National Cotton Council.

The "canvas shelter" of yesteryear was more often than not simply a pup tent in the backyard to amuse the children and usually an eyesore to exasperate parents. Now that parents have invaded the backyard the canvas shelter has come of age and made a very successful debut into the leisure society of outdoor living.

The old-fashioned summerhouse may never stage a comeback but its modern canvas substitute bids fair to take its former popularity. Many new versions are popping up all over the country, ranging from spot shades for the patio to lavish poolside cabanas.

One of the most popular version is a simple patio shade, usually attached to the house and supported by a framework that can be dismantled at summer's end. For individuals who want something different there is, among others, the "circle of shade." Cantilevered from the house or from a free-standing pole, it can be tilted any direction for maximum shade any time of day. Sun lovers who want their shade and suntan, too, might choose a retractable canvas awning.

POOLSIDE CABANAS that eliminate the need for permanent bath houses come in all sizes and shapes, as do shading devices that protect bathers and watchers from the harsh consequences of too much full sun.

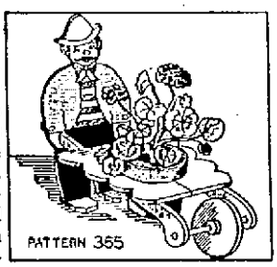

Free-standing "privacy shades" are the beautiful last touch for garden areas. Such units can provide just the needed amount of shade for delicate plants that can't tolerate full sunlight and make a shady refuge for the lounger who likes solitude.

The popularity of the "new" cotton canvas is largely the result of scientific research. New chemical treatments developed in recent years have given cotton canvas longer life and added sturdiness so the traditional old favorite is once again the most economical buy in shading and shelters. The usual minimum wear guarantee is five years and once the frame for the installation is installed, replacement of canvas is less than maintenance on most wood or metal shelters.

Improved dyeing and weaving processes have made it possible for manufacturers to produce cotton canvas in a spectrum that ranges from delicate pastels to the latest in vivid decorator colors, as well as florals, stripes and prints to suit the most imaginative taste. Thanks to the new advances, the modern family room is as big as all outdoors, and its decorative appointments limited only by the imagination.

YOU MAKE IT

This bright-jacketed little man knows geraniums. You can tell by the way he displays a bouncing plant on your lawn. Pattern 365, which gives actual-size cutting and painting guides for making this figure and his plant-holder wheelbarrow, is 35 cents. It also is in the House and Yard Packet No. 57, which contains a collection of full-size designs—all for $1. Trailer maker James L. Frey points at model of new idea, tower-like trailer parking lot.

Trailers in the Sky?

A FUTURISTIC HIGH-RISE "trailer parking lot" is envisioned by one of the leaders in the mobile home industry.

A solution to the problem of finding space for trailer parking in crowded metropolitan areas, says Elmer Frey, president of Marshfield Homes, Inc., may be circular towers — somewhat resembling a Long Beach beach front apartment building.

TRAILERS WOULD be parked on upper levels with lower space reserved for automobiles. Shopping centers and other facilities within the structures would make them self-contained communities-within-communities.

Frey, of Marshfield, Wis., insists this idea is not far in the future. "We've come a long way from the trailers of only a few short years ago," he says, "and the future possibilities are unlimited."

Gourmet's Guide

by Todd Thomey

Southland Dining at its Finest in the Long Beach and Orange County Area

NOTHING makes me feel more like a gourmand than the pleasure of a glass of wine with dinner. If the wine happens to be included in the price of the dinner, then my pleasure is double, making me feel like a thrifty, canny Scotchman as well.

So that's one of the reasons I enjoy dining with my family at Nik's Restaurant, 3400 Cherry Ave. at Wardlow Road, near the Signal Hill-Long Beach boundary. The wine dinners are served every night except Sunday in the attractive Viking Room adjacent to the coffee shop. The prices are as agreeable as a winning politician on election night. Monday night the special is a spaghetti dinner, $1; Tuesday it's hamburger steak, $1.20; Wednesday, veal cutlet, $1.20; Thursday, fried chicken, $1.35; Friday, broiled lobster tail, $2.45, and Saturday, tenderloin steak, $1.50. The prices include chablis, vin rose or chianti (a different one is served every night); soup de jour or a fresh, crisp green salad; potato, roll and butter and coffee.

Those who wish a glass of wine with their dinner on Sunday can pay a small stipend for it. The regular menu also offers several fine dinners in the $2 range, proving that owner-hosts Nick Nickoloff and his son Carl have discovered the golden knack of serving distinguished food at undistinguished prices. For those interested in more expensive fare, the Viking Room offers an epicurean steak-and-lobster combination dinner for $3.85.

The service at Nik's is also worthy of high praise.

CARL NICKOLOFF

Hoot, Mon, It's Included!

The Nickoloffs have assembled one of the most talented groups of waitresses in town. They are more than merely efficient; they're pert and witty enough to engage in light banter with the guests while catering to their whims and wishes.

TEMPTING TREATS—Although closed on Sundays, the three Hubert's Cafeterias in downtown Long Beach are open Mondays through Saturdays, serving amazingly fine foods at prices anyone can pay. Located at 318 E. Fourth, 643½ Pine Ave. and 218 E. Broadday, these attractive restaurants are owned by Hubert Hust, a disciple of restaurateur Andy Gassaway. Like Andy, Hubert gives generously to charity, lives by the Golden Rule and takes wonderful care of his customers. His $1.25 roast beef dinner is a remarkable value.

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, Parade, 733 3rd Ave., New York, N.Y., 10017. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Is there a feud between J. Edgar Hoover and Sen. Bobby Kennedy? I have read that there is no love lost between them.—H.T. Lewis, Seattle, Wash.

A. No feud. When Senator Kennedy was Attorney General in charge of the Justice Department, he did not see eye-to-eye with Hoover on several problems and procedures. Mr. Hoover, because of his long government service, established national reputation and wide political influence, has long been regarded as a law unto himself.

Q. Everybody knows that Ursula Andress has been fooling around with Jean-Paul Belmondo. My question is: Does Belmondo's wife know about this? Also how many children do the Belmondos have?—Lois Jenkinson, Upper Darby, Pa.

A. Belmondo's wife, former club dancer Renée Constant, has long been aware of her husband's extracurricular activities. The Belmondos have three children.

Q. Is it true that Beatle John Lennon, a millionaire, won't give a dollar to his father who earns $20 a week?—Nola Green, Vancouver, B.C.

A. Fred Lennon, who earns $22 a week as a bartender at the Tony Jug Hotel in Surrey, says: "John has forgotten me all right. We've only met once since he became famous." John Lennon's parents were divorced, and the Beatle has been most generous to his mother.

Q. How many U.S. Presidents were Army generals before they reached the White House? — Bernard Riche, Newark, N.J.

A. Of the 35 U.S. Presidents, 11 were generals: Washington, Jackson, W. H. Harrison, Taylor, Pierce, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Benjamin Harrison, Eisenhower.

Q. A friend of mine says that neither he nor any other ordinary person is allowed to be tattooed in New York state. Isn't it a constitutional right for a man to get tattooed if he wants to?—Pierre Joffre, New York, N.Y.

A. New York City's new health code outlaws tattooing. New York State's Court of Appeals has upheld the constitutionality of the code on the grounds that "The record shows . . . that the prohibition of lay tattooing was an advisable procedure for the security of life and health."

Q. I would like to know if a pocketbook version of Ralph Nader's book, Unsafe at Any Speed, is available.—F. Tremaine, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A. It will be in November.

Q. Is Helen Keller still alive? If so, how old, and where does she live? — Bennett C. Alvarez, San Diego, Calif.

A. Miss Keller, 86, resides in Easton, Conn.

Q. What is the real reason Frank Sinatra was banned from Mexico? Is it because he tried to introduce gambling on behalf of the Las Vegas syndicate?—E.L.E., Chicago, Ill.

A. Sinatra was banned from Mexico because he produced Marriage on the Rocks, a film which held Mexicans up to ridicule.

Q. What's happened to young John Barrymore? — Vicki Henstchel, Wichita, Kans.

A. Young Barrymore is working in television. See photo (1).

Q. In 25 years of movie-going I have never heard more obscene dialogue than in the film Virginia Woolf. Will you please explain to me how Warner Brothers obtained official producers' approval of this film?—D.L., Denver, Colo.

A. Originally approval was denied. Pressure was then brought to bear upon the Motion Picture Producers' Association. The denial was reversed by a group of outside producers.

Q. Is it true that in the present Bing Crosby marriage, Bing goes his way and his wife, Kathryn, goes hers? What is she doing now, still working as a nurse?—Julian Knox, Palo Alto, Calif.

A. Kathryn Crosby has been playing summer stock throughout the country. She is a professional actress although she has qualified as a nurse.

Q. Is it true that Isabella Rossellini, one of the twins Ingrid Bergman had with Roberto Rossellini, is quietly dying of a mysterious bone disease in Rome? Why has nothing appeared in the American press?—Diane Hyams, Jersey City, N.J.

A. Reportedly Isabella, 13, is suffering from scoliosis, an abnormal curvature of the spine, making her appear smaller than she really is. She is being treated by Professor Scaglietti in Florence, may require a fusion operation. Her mother, Ingrid Bergman, who gave custody of her three children by Rossellini to their father, has canceled her acting commitments, will stay in Italy at Isabella's side for the length of her recovery.

Q. Who said: "When you become used to never being alone, you may consider yourself Americanized."?—Roberta Vaughn, Princeton, N.J.

A. André Maurois, born 1885, French writer.

Q. Max Schmeling, former heavyweight boxing champion — where is he living? Is he married? — Victor Weiss, Baton Rouge, La.

A. Schmeling is in Hollenstedt, south of Hamburg, with new wife Anny Ondra.

Q. A few questions, please, about Lorne Greene of Bonanza. Is he an American or Canadian citizen? How many times married? How many children? How old is he? His present wife? — Dan Froley, Superior, Wis.

A. Greene retains his Canadian citizenship. He has been married twice, has 21-year-old twins by his first marriage, which ended in divorce in 1960. His son Charles is a student at MIT. His daughter Linda is now Mrs. Robert Bennett, lives in Santa Monica, Calif. Greene is married to Nancy Deale, who once acted under the name Liza Cummings.

Q. If Red China with 600 million people is ever to sit in the United Nations, what will happen to Formosa or Nationalist China?—Evans Ritchie, Baltimore, Md.

A. One possible solution: permit the people of Formosa to vote in a free election under U.N. supervision whether to become an independent nation with their own U.N. representatives.

Q. There is only one physician in Congress, Senator Gruening of Alaska. How many physicians are there in the British Parliament?—Sydney Buchman, Boston, Mass.

A. 24.

who's got what:

If you're confused about which airline has the lowest fares—we don't blame you. So much has been said lately about Family Plans, Youth Fares, Excursion Fares, etc. The fact is no airline has an exclusive on these special fares or on regular fares! The Civil Aeronautics Board establishes airline fares and we think that's the way it should be.* These are called "tariffs" and they determine the cost of a ticket over a given route for a certain type of airplane and service. In other words, cost is not a factor in choosing an airline! What, then, is the difference between airlines when even the fares are the same? On Continental, the difference is pride—the pride Continental's people have... in their jobs, in themselves, in their airline. You can't see it—you feel it! And you feel good, comfortable, confident. This extra measure of pride comes from the fact that Continental, as major airlines go, is not a big, impersonal one. So Continental's people maintain their interest and involvement in how their airline is run. That's what you feel. Come travel with us and feel the difference pride makes. Your travel agent or Continental will arrange the fare that suits you best... please call.

*There are rare exceptions (aren't there always?) and these are usually based on the type of plane or service. For instance, between Houston and Los Angeles it is less expensive to take Continental's economy class Golden Jet service because no other airline offers this class of service on that route.

FOR MOTHERS AND WIVES A REASSURING MEDICAL REPORT FROM VIETNAM

98.5 percent of our wounded GI's survive

by JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON.

In the rice paddy or the steaming jungle, the Vietnam War is one of the most vicious conflicts ever fought. But when an American GI is wounded, he benefits from medical care that's unsurpassed in military history.

With the speedy transport and treatment techniques used by U.S. forces, only one and a half percent of wounded reaching hospitals are lost. This compares with 2.5 percent in the Korean War and 4.5 percent in World War II.

The battle stories inspire the headlines but behind them lies a daily drama of heroism: the fight of American medics and doctors to save the lives of the wounded.

The drama begins with the courageous medic on foot, slogging toward the hostilities, toting a first aid kit instead of an ammunition pack. Many a medic, often wounded himself, has administered life-saving aid under hot enemy fire. Many a medicopter has gone in where armed copters feared to follow to bring out the wounded from the midst of action.

Even the Viet Cong has reason to thank the American medic. Time and again a wounded enemy left behind by his comrades has felt the gentle hand of a kid from Seattle or Dubuque, impartially dispensing painkiller or bandage.

The end of the Vietnam struggle is not yet in sight. But, in addition to reducing mortality among the wounded taken to hospitals, the war to save lives has already produced startling victories. Consider these dramatic facts:

- Most wounded are rushed to the nearest hospital faster than an auto victim injured in the U.S. More often than not, the wounded are out of the jungle and on the operating table within an hour.
- Specialists are available for any kind of emergency operating, except occasionally brain surgery. There is still a shortage of brain surgeons in Vietnam. But in general, GI's can count on better medical treatment on the edge of the jungle than their families at home can expect in the average hospital emergency room.
- Sums up Army Surgeon General Leonard Heaton, "I personally visited the major medical units operating in Vietnam in October last year. No soldier in Vietnam today is lacking adequate and effective medical care."

As in all wars, germs are still more dangerous than bullets. But even the germs are being beaten. Of every 1000 men serving in Vietnam, one a day ends up in the hospital. A startling 75 percent are disease cases; only 11 percent are wounded. The remaining 14 percent are nonbattle injuries, including some snake and scorpion bites. When the military buildup began, Army doctors expected the disease rate to be even higher, 6 to 1 instead of the present 4 to 1.

They have confidence in their new drugs, anesthetics and techniques. They are grateful for the generous supply of whole blood, contributed not only by Americans but by the people of Okinawa, Japan, and Korea. New equipment helps them to preserve plasma and have it available near the fighting fronts. There is also the modern miracle of air conditioning which brings a temperate climate to the sun-bathed humid land. Without air conditioning, instruments rust and sterile dressings become infested with mold in the monsoon dampness.

But most important of all have proved to be the flying ambulances, those great ungainly helicopters that can whisk the wounded to safety in minutes over otherwise impassable terrain. The Army Medical Service has more than 50 medicopters, each with a three-man flight crew and at least one flying medic. Sometimes a doctor goes along, too. One medicopter can evacuate four wounded or three litter cases, but there have been tighter squeezes during battle.

The medicopters carry no arms and display the Red Cross on their sides. According to one flying medic, the Viet Cong usually respect the Red Cross. But occasional guerrilla snipers will pepper them, knowing they can't fire back.

Conducted with test tubes, but no less dramatic, is the war against disease. Most GI's come down with mild dysentery soon after arrival but recover in a day or so. If the bug buries deeply into their intestines, it can prove fatal. Doctors feared a high rate of this severe amoebic dysentery but there has been virtually none. The best guess is that some of the new drugs given for malaria are killing off the amoeba.

One of these drugs is dapsone, an antileprosy drug, which seems to be effective against the falciparum strain of malaria which turned up in the Vietnam highlands and has resisted the chloroquine and primaquine antimalarials regularly taken by U.S. troops in Southeast Asia. The Viet Cong, entrenched in the highlands for years, have gradually acquired immunity to the disease but our men get it when they come in contact with enemy dead, wounded or captured.

Spec. 5 Aubrey Johnson, in Walter Reed Hospital, is so grateful to Army doctor who saved his foot that he wrote back to his outfit to be sure to thank the doctor.

Though dysentery cases lead in volume, malaria is still the most serious challenge because it keeps a man out of action longer—from six to eight weeks. The Army's Walter Reed Hospital has assigned more than 60 research contracts in a crash program against falciparum malaria at total cost of more than $29 million.

The Army's unsung victories in the hospitals and medical laboratories are being shared with the Vietnamese people. At the village level, the medic trudging along with his platoon has become a saint of healing. Worried, weeping mothers bring their sick children to him, old people totter to his side, peasant men and women show him infected wounds. Sometimes, he helps at difficult births.

PARADE talked to a typical medic, Sgt. Thomas P. Marrinan, a company medic of the 173rd Airborne Brigade. With four platoon medics, he was responsible for the welfare of 180 men who, for nine months, were flung into one desperate action after another.

He estimates that about 20 men in his company were killed in action, another 50 wounded during the nine-month period. Of all the wounded who could be evacuated, only one man died. But there were 15 cases of malaria, two fatal.

Added Marrinan, "We had lots of trouble with scorpions. Some men can stand them, others can't. One captain was in such pain that he writhed in convulsions. I had two poison snake bite cases and one heat exhaustion case. It was the guy's own fault; he didn't take his salt."

What happened if Marrinan came across a wounded guerrilla? "I'd give him a shot of morphine to kill the pain, stop the bleeding and give the required first aid." To Marrinan there was no difference between friend and foe when it came to saving lives.

I thanked Marrinan for his story and reached to shake his hand. He grabbed mine with his left hand—his right arm had been destroyed by a guerrilla grenade.

He had been given the same first aid that he had given to so many others. Within 15 minutes, he was undergoing surgery in a 60-bed hospital 50 miles away. Now he has an artificial arm.

The average medic—almost always a volunteer, though some are now assigned—gets 10 weeks' training at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and is then assigned to a platoon. In battle, he crawls from wounded to wounded, administering first aid, applying tourniquets, giving on-the-spot transfusions with blood substitutes, tying splints to broken bones.

Such a medic was Specialist 4-C Raymond Ortiz of the 1st Cavalry. His unit parachuted to the rescue of other cavalrymen trapped near the Pleime Special Forces camp. Ortiz advanced within 20 feet of the enemy to treat wounded men. He was hit three times. The first bullet rendered his left arm useless. But he went on. Hit a second and third time, he continued giving aid until he collapsed from loss of blood.

Ortiz carried six men to waiting medicopters but refused to be taken out himself until all other wounded had been cleared. After a night of hideous battle, he at last was plucked from the heart of the battlefield. Now serving at Fort Bliss, Tex., he wears the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second-highest award for bravery.

For the badly wounded, nine hospitals are strategically located so that no wounded man should be more than a 30-minute helicopter ride from any of them. The beds are emptied as fast as possible so they will be ready in case of heavy fighting. Occasionally, after a big engagement, a forward hospital is swamped with casualties.

Capt. Albert Linden, 28, Waterman, Ill., lost a leg when hit piloting helicopter, was with doctor in five minutes. He calls care "better than if I'd been a civilian."

Then a terrible responsibility falls on the "triage" officer—a title taken from the French word for "sorting." He must make an almost split-second, soul-wracking diagnosis to decide who requires immediate surgery, who can get along for a few hours with first aid, and who is beyond help.

In all South Vietnam, there are 1600 military hospital beds, handling some 3500 patients a month. Caring for them are some 250 doctors and 330 nurses, one-third of them male. There is a shortage of nurses both at home and in Vietnam, but those in the war zone are serving with distinction. Nine were decorated last year.

The Army, with the largest medical service, has had no difficulty in recruiting doctors. Some volunteer out of a sense of duty, others because "you can get more experience in one month in Vietnam," as one told PARADE, "than in a year's private practice at home."

Spec. 4 Frank Goldsmith, 33, took sniper's bullet in hip. Helicopter arrived in 15 minutes; doctor removed slug within 45. "Oh, yeah," he recalls, "we got the sniper."

Patients who can be returned to duty within 30 days usually remain in Vietnam. Those requiring 60 days are flown to military hospitals in Okinawa, Guam and Japan. If the cure is expected to take more than 90 days, a man is flown stateside — usually to the military hospital nearest his home.

Have the wounded any complaint against the medical service? Certainly not against the medics in the field. PARADE talked to several Vietnam cases, who spoke with awe at how swiftly they were given a new chance at life. One after another reported that he was out of immediate danger and getting skilled care within 10 minutes to an hour. Here are a few typical testimonials:

Spec 4 Frank Goldsmith, 33, Simpsonville, S.C., struck in the hip by a sniper: "It took only 15 minutes for the chopper to reach us. In less than 45 minutes, I was on the operating table. Oh, yeah, we got the sniper."

Pfc. John Kenneth Hart; 22, Cleveland, blasted by his own artillery: "The medic was right there. He worked on me, put a splint on my arm. Then he carried me to the chopper, which flew me to the field hospital where my leg was removed."

Spec. 4 Troy Taylor, 20, Canton, N.C., got morphine and tourniquet 10 minutes after Viet Cong shot him in leg, says, "Treatment has been the best you can get."

Spec 5 Aubrey Johnson, 25, Nashville, Tenn., severely wounded after his truck ran over a landmine: "I was rushed by truck to a marine hospital. They took X-rays and operated on me at once. I had a shattered ankle, and the doctor who operated saved my foot. I wrote back to my unit and told them if they ever saw that doctor again to thank him."

Sgt. Richard Lewis, Ocean City, Md., injured by a grenade: "It just so happened that a medic was right there, and he put a tourniquet on me. Within five minutes, I was at the battalion aid station where I was given treatment and pain pills. They put two pins in my wrist to hold the bones together. Then I was flown by chopper to Saigon. They finally had to amputate the arm."

Staff Sgt. Douglas Harlow, 39, Charlottesville, Va., badly crushed by a landmine: "I was picked up by a chopper within 30 minutes. In another 15 minutes, I was in the hospital."

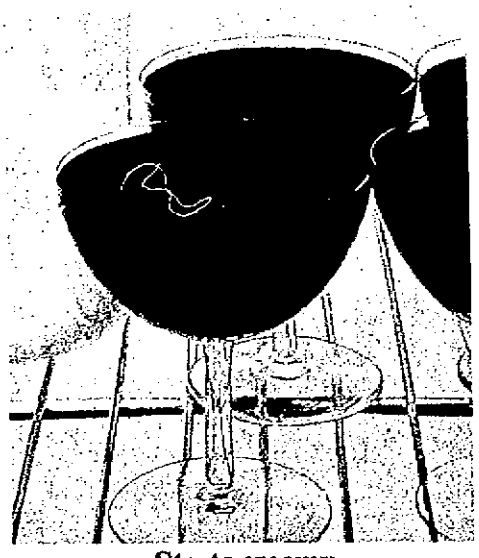

Not all are satisfied with the treatment they have received back home. There is some grumbling about overcrowded hospitals, lack of attention, lack of understanding. To some, it seems as if the doctors here—far from the hot war where bullets fly, where men live from day to day and have an instinctive sympathy for each other—are indifferent.

By the end of the year, nearly half a million troops may be in the war zone. There are signs that the big crunch may be coming. Whether this is so or not, more men in the field mean more work for the medics—more wounded, more cases of disease, more accidents.

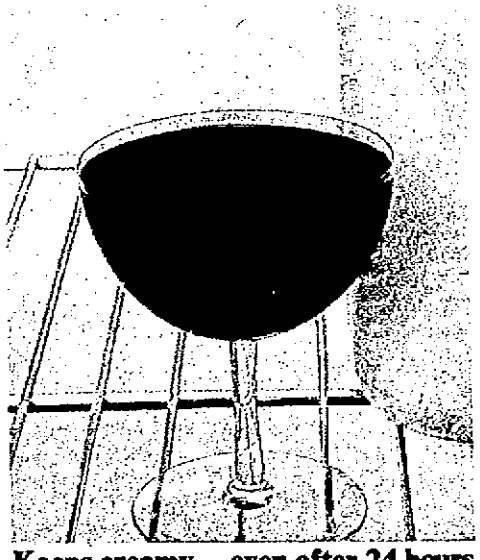

Have we at home made preparations to receive these victims of war? Already the country's medical services are beginning to feel the new pressures of the Medicare program. America should be capable of taking care of both its old people and its young fighting men. It is not a question of priorities but of planning.

The military medical services are doing a superb job, but they need our support. ■

my favorite jokes by simmy bow

EDITOR'S NOTE: Simmy Bow, 40, one of the few bachelor comedians, began his show business career in Chicago. He wanted to become an actor, but World War II interrupted that ambition. After his stint in the Air Force, however, Simmy moved to Hollywood where he not only studied drama at the Ben Bard Theatre but was hired as an instructor. In the late 1940's Simmy decided to major in comedy. He wrote an act for himself—it consisted mostly of topical, offbeat one-liners —got bookings in small nightclubs. In the past decade he's graduated to all the major nite spots: the Playboy Club circuit, the Blue Angel in New York, the hungry i in San Francisco, the Slate Brothers in Los Angeles. Simmy also acts on TV from time to time, has appeared in The Untouchables, The Whirly Birds, Sheriff of Cochise, etc. Recently he returned from a successful tour of Australian nightclubs. The following jokes are those he told in his last appearance at the Hollywood Playboy Club:

A rich hillbilly died and left his money in a trust fund for his wife. Only thing is she can't touch it until she's 12 years old.

I put a tiger in my tank. He drank the gas.

More than twice as many people drown in tubs as in swimming pools, so you're better off taking a bath in a swimming pool.

A guy tossed a nickel in a blind man's cup but didn't take a pencil. The blind man called out, "Whether you take one or not, pencils cost 10¢ each now."

Even though we've got fast-drying paint today, painters who work by the hour still work slow.

The difference between socialism and capitalism is that under capitalism man is exploited by man. Under socialism, it's the other way around.

If you "fly now" and the plane crashes—do you still have to pay later?

Elephants are not afraid of mice—unless they get threatening letters.

Automobile manufacturers have been crashing cars with dummy passengers in order to study injuries. And to a large degree they've succeeded in making automobiles safer—for dummies! This is a good thing because there are an awful lot of dummies driving automobiles.

Last week a friend of mine lost all his teeth—they were repossessed.

I know a farmer who has a cow that grazes on synthetic grass. She gives plastic milk.

Just finished a great book. Don't miss it. It's called, What Makes Wyatt Earp?

What's wrong with politicians in Washington these days? Why don't they give the common man what he really wants? A common woman!

Sometime soon, the Jones boys' father will ask himself if he has enough life insurance.

(And how much is enough, anyway?)

It's a question that often comes up when new responsibilities come along. You've probably asked it yourself.

A quick answer is a minimum of four to five times annual income.

A better one is it all depends. On the size of the family, as well as income. On the financial responsibilities still ahead. On how far other assets will go towards meeting them.

Chances are you've already decided that your other resources can't do the job alone. Especially if you have a family to support. Kids to put through college. A mortgage to pay off. Retirement ideas that call for more income than social security or your company pension will provide.

That's why you own life insurance. It gives you an important advantage over all other types of thrift: the full amount is guaranteed from the start. It's unique that way.

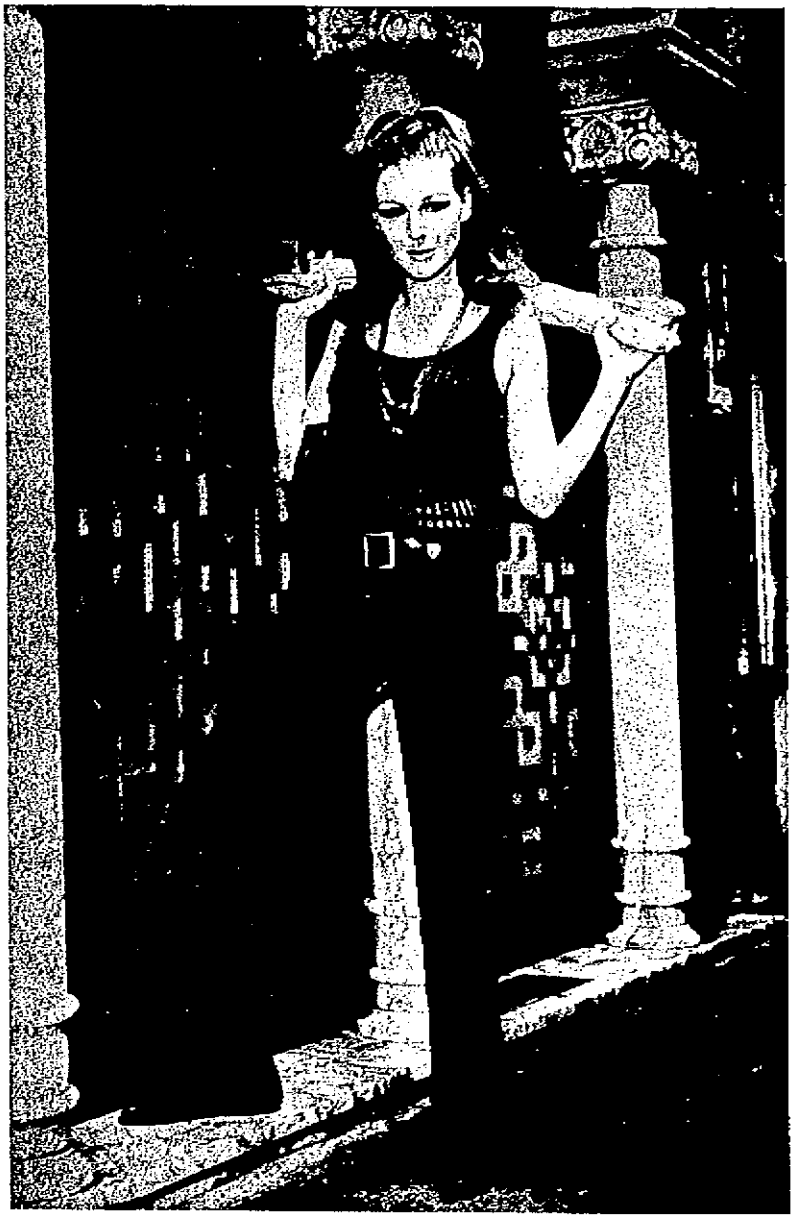

But remember that family circumstances change. Needs never stand still. Enough life insurance today may be too much—or too little—tomorrow. To keep your protection up-to-date, review your policies regularly with your life insurance agent. He's trained to help you.

JOANNA PETTET

SHE'S GOING PLACES

by LLOYD SHEARER

"New, hot, young New York actress" in Paris: Joanna Pettet keeps apartment in Manhattan, but would rather be "loner in Europe."

PARIS.

Joanna Pettet, London-born, Canadian-reared and New York-trained, is convinced that she is en route to becoming a major screen star.

"I just have to," she says, "because I'm terribly ambitious, terribly lucky and terribly driven."

Twenty-two and independent, honey-haired and cat-eyed, photogenic and talented, Joanna to date has worked in two films: The Group and The Night of the Generals, which she recently finished here.

In The Group, Mary McCarthy's story of what happened to eight Vassar alumnae, Joanna delighted the critics with her portrayal of Kay, wife of a sadistic scriptwriter. In The Night of the Generals, she acts the sadistic daughter of a Nazi general. She falls in love with her father's corporal, played by Tom Courtenay.

The Night of the Generals concerns itself with the manhunt for a German general, a sex fiend who had brutally murdered prostitutes in Poland, France and Germany during World War II. Some of the film was shot in Poland; much of it was photographed here. Peter O'Toole plays the psychopathic killer, Omar Sharif the dedicated police major who tracks him down. The film will be one of Columbia Studios' major productions of the year. And Joanna Pettet is not alone in thinking it will help launch her to stardom.

"IF I AM AGGRESSIVE..."

Anatole Litvak, the director, and Peter O'Toole, the star, are both sure Joanna will hit it big. "She's not the type," says O'Toole, "to let opportunity pass her by." "Her big advantage," claims Litvak, "is that she knows how to act. This is not necessarily required for screen success, but certainly it does no harm." Says Sidney Buchman, the writer who cast her in The Group, "This girl is no shrinking violet. She is pleasantly aggressive."

"I may be aggressive," Joanna concedes. "But I'm not tough or bitchy. I'm not one of those girls who'll do 'anything' for a part, and I'm not a knife-wielder.

"If I am aggressive, it's because I have to be to survive, especially in this business. I'm alone in the world. My father, who was a fighter pilot in the RAF during the war—his name was Harold Salmon—was shot down when I was just a few months old. I have a photograph of my father, but I don't remember him. My mother died last year. So you can see I'm pretty much on my own.

"I like to think that I'm terribly independent," she goes on, "and maybe that's not a good thing. Men don't cotton to career girls who are terribly independent. We sort of frighten them off. But that's the way I am — self-reliant. Perhaps when I fall in love with some strong, wise man I won't be quite so independent. But strong, wise men aren't easy to come by."

Joanna Salmon was born in London in 1944. After her father, a pilot in the Royal Air Force, was shot down at age 33, she was taken to Vancouver, Canada, by her mother. She was a cute, attractive, golden-haired child. And on the train from Montreal to Vancouver, one of the passengers, Charles Pettet of the Canadian Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Company, asked her if she'd like some chewing gum. She declined, but introduced her mother to the "nice man." As these things sometimes happen, Charles Pettet took a liking to Mrs. Salmon. The liking developed into love, and subsequently the pair got married and settled down in Montreal.

There Joanna attended several schools —Trafalgar House, Miss Edgar's & Miss Cramp's and later Westmount High School, from which she was graduated at 15.

"As a child," she remembers, "I was rather shy and afraid. I used to hold on to mother's apron strings, but as I grew older, I grew a little more outgoing. I decided to make acting my career. I was tall and precocious as a teenager, and I had a boy friend, Allan Schiach, who now writes in London under the name of Allen Scott. He had written a play, Got It Made, and I got a job in it for $60 a week.

"I took that money and the $1000 my mother had saved from the Widows' Pension Fund — the British government used to send Mother $25 a month for me, and she had never spent it—and I went to New York to study drama.

"A 16-year-old girl in Manhattan—well, she either swims or sinks. I learned to swim. I attended the Neighborhood Playhouse. I moved out of the Y.W.C.A. because it was too expensive. I shared an apartment with another girl. She turned out to be a bitch. So I moved to another apartment. I learned to survive. In my second year at the Playhouse I won a scholarship, so that cut down some of my expenses."

Joanna's first break in New York came when she got a bit part in the comedy

In The Group, her first movie role, Joanna plays Kay, one of eight Vassar alumnae, opposite Larry Hagman (r.).

Take Her, She's Mine. She also understudied the lead, later played it in the road company at $125 a week. "It takes that first job," she says, "to get the second. After eight months on the road, I got another play, The Chinese Prime Minister, then a starring role in the Jean Kerr play, Poor Richard."

Sidney Buchman, the writer-producer of The Group, watched Joanna in Poor Richard and called her to read for him. An old pro by then, Joanna read beautifully and got the part, filmed in New York.

"NEW, HOT, YOUNG..."

When producer Sam Spiegel started to cast The Night of the Generals, he heard about this "new, hot, young New York actress" and asked to see her in the uncut version of The Group. They wouldn't show Sam the unreleased picture, so he got hold of a TV film Joanna had acted in, Trials of O'Brien, proved to himself that she was photogenic. He then flew her to Paris to read for director Anatole Litvak. Again Joanna came through under pressure. Columbia signed her, got her an apartment on the Rue Washington for $750 a month and here at the moment Joanna Pettet remains, "free, white and 22, beholden to no one, responsible to no one but myself," and most sadly, "with no one to be proud of me no matter how good I am, how well I act, how much I achieve."

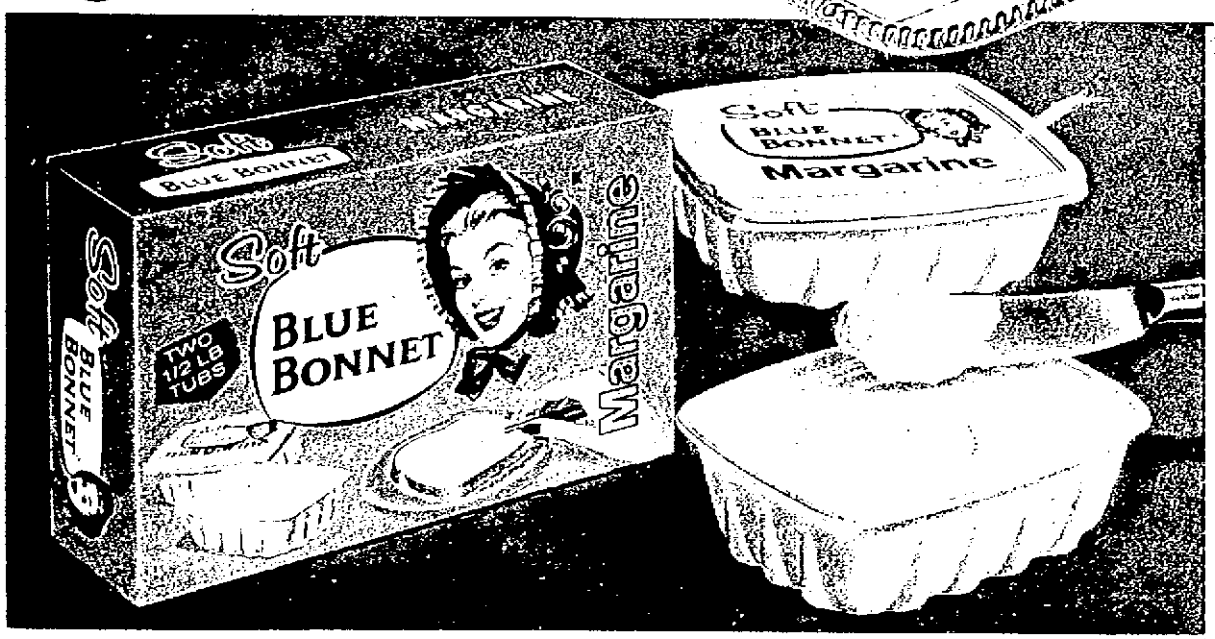

Joanna has an apartment in a brownstone on East 36th Street in New York which she shares with another actress, Beverly Rich, and a Corvair she used to drive to Rhode Island for weekends. But now she's not so sure she wants to return to that life. "I'd much rather be a loner in Europe," she says, "than a loner in New York."

The chances are considerable, however, that she will remain in neither place too long. Hollywood has heard of her. Hollywood is beckoning. And it's to that wavelength ambitious, talented Joanna Pettet is tuned in. ■

In The Night of the Generals, she plays starring role of general's daughter, with Peter O'Toole and Coral Browne (l.).

beef and bacon burgers

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Something new has been added to the hamburger to make it special party fare. The extra flavorful ingredients added to the beef patty are raisin-bread crumbs and smoky bacon bits. They impart an entirely new taste to an age-old favorite. Bacon burgers are wonderful served plain on a bun, but even better with a choice of toppings and condiments. Try them on your grill; you'll love them.

Bacon Burgers

3 lb. lean beef, ground
2 cups soft raisin-bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper
2 eggs
½ cup steak house catsup
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
6 slices crisp-brown bacon, crumbled

Combine all ingredients; mix thoroughly. Shape into 12 large cakes. Grill over charcoal and cook to your liking, turning once. Serve in heated hamburger rolls, with slices of tomato, Swiss cheese, onions and pickles. Don't forget the condiments, such as mustard, chili sauce, steak sauce, catsup and prepared horseradish.

Now she has painted the most irresistible and playfully appealing grouping of kittens ever created. All the universal appeal of these unbelievably lovable creatures with their big eyes, playful manners and innocent facial expressions has skillfully been captured by the artist.

You'll understand why these adorable kitten prints steal the heart of anyone who sees them when you receive yours. You cannot truly appreciate the beautiful colors and exquisite craftsmanship used by the artist by looking at the small black and white reproductions shown here. When you receive your large full color prints you will appreciate the charm and beauty they will add to your home.

Hello, young lovers: From all over the nation have come gifts and greetings of affection for Luci Johnson and fiancé Pat Nugent.

THEY LOVE LUCI

ON THE EVE OF HER WEDDING, HERE'S WHAT WELL-WISHERS WRITE

by OPAL GINN

WASHINGTON.

Of all the showers of the nation's most famous bride, the one that has touched Luci Baines Johnson most is the spontaneous shower of sentimental gifts and greetings from well-wishers around the world. She will be married to Patrick J. Nugent Saturday in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception—first White House bride since Eleanor Wilson, President Wilson's youngest daughter, married Secretary of the Treasury William Gibbs McAdoo in 1914.

From Poona, India, to Eden, Texas, the plain people of the world have deluged Luci with songs, poems, recipes, advice and congratulations. They want to make sure the President's daughter gets a good start in marriage.

They have sent her gifts old, new, borrowed and blue. There have been religious medals, candles and statues. A three-foot statue from a New York admirer was gently declined. Grandmothers have offered family Bibles, crocheted pillowcases and hand-sewn doilies. Even teenagers have sent Luci their prize sewing.

A 15-year-old girl from Rochester, N.Y., sent two pillowcases and two sheets trimmed in delicate crochet work. An elementary school class from Penns Grove, N.J., sent coasters the children had made in school. One practical donor contributed a pair of plastic mittens to keep the bride's hands from getting sticky while handling the wedding cake.

All told, the President's younger daughter has been collecting about 250 letters and 50 gifts a week. Many commercial concerns, hopeful of publicity, have been sending her expensive gifts. These have been politely returned. Gifts from friends, of course, are accepted. Anything from strangers costing more than $10 is sent back—though allowances are made for sentimental homemade presents. Luci has been stacking the gifts in the second-floor bedroom and the third-floor solarium.

She has given as much time as she can spare to acknowledging gifts and answering letters — with help from Willie Day Taylor, a family friend and employee.

One of the most startling letters was signed by Pat Nugent:

"My name will undoubtedly sound familiar to you," he wrote from Anaconda, Montana, "since it is Patrick Nugent. Because of you I have seen my name in the news on various occasions. Even though the persons are different, we do have one thing in common, our names."

Another Pat Nugent, this one from Philadelphia, turned out to be only 7 years old. Wrote his seventh grade sister: "It is a shame you are not marrying my brother, whose name is Patrick J. Nugent. He is really taking a ribbing because of the name and gets embarrassed every time someone says he is marrying you. He is only 7 years old and doesn't appreciate the importance of the similarity. . . . I think you're trading your famous name for a name to be proud of."

A Perth Amboy, N.J., girl sent the President's daughter a sixpence. She explained: "I imagine you will have 'something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue.' But there is a bit more to this that many people don't seem to know about: 'A sixpence for your shoe.' I am enclosing a sixpence just in case you wish to carry out the above tradition in full."

The White House didn't comment as to whether Luci will slip the sixpence into her shoe.

There were letters, too, from foreign lands. A student from Poona, India, recalled studying in the United States and meeting the President. Luci had said a few words. "Thank you for giving color to that function," wrote the student, "by being there and talking. I find Americans as very nice, friendly, good-humored people. I read that you have been engaged, so I desired to congratulate you on that. Since my return to India, I am going to school now. I wonder what you are doing? It would be such a great honor for me to receive a letter from you."

A miss from Dumbarton, Scotland, wrote: "I was delighted to read in the papers that you are being married on Aug. 6, the same day as myself, and would like to know if you wish me to send you a sprig of white heather for good luck, as this is an old Scottish custom."

Indeed, many couples who will be married on Saturday felt compelled to write to the President's daughter.

Wrote a typical bride from Oakmont, Pa.: "To say the least, I am very proud to know that we will be married on the same day, Aug. 6, 1966. We're probably two in a million who have chosen this date, but I find I must write."

The nation's most famous young couple loads back of car with gifts from a shower.

Many with birthdays on Aug. 6 also brought it to Luci's attention.

"I wanted you to know that you are getting married on my birthday," wrote one little girl from Kansas City. "I will be 8 years old on Aug. 6. I would like to come to Washington to see you get married but I will have a birthday party and think of you that day."

Another, also writing in a childish scrawl, from Dallas, Tex., wrote joyfully: "I'm gald that you are getting married on my birthday. That is happiness. I love you."

Old folks whose own weddings had taken place on Aug. 6 also wrote.

One Coral Gables, Fla., grandmother commented typically: "How wonderful, for on that day my husband and I will celebrate our golden wedding anniversary."

An Alexandria, Va., housewife noted another similarity. "I, too, am a Texas girl married to an Illinois boy," she wrote. "We have been married seven lovely years and have a 9-month-old daughter. . . . From experience, as a Texas girl married to an Illinois boy, I can truly say Illinois gave me a wonderful husband."

A Niles, Mich., housewife offered a special recipe on "How to Preserve a Husband." The directions included this admonition: "Some insist on keeping them in a pickle, while others keep them in hot water. This only makes them sour, hard and sometimes bitter. Even pure varieties may be made sweet, tender and good, garnishing them with patience and sweetened with smiles and flavored with kisses to taste, then wrap them in a mantel of charity, keep warm with a steady fire of domestic devotion and serve with peaches and cream."

Of course, the teenagers from coast to coast bubbled over the wedding of their most famous contemporary.

Wrote one from Whitestone, N.Y.: "Congratulations on your engagement to Patrick Nugent. I think he's really cute."

Another, more serious, wrote from Cincinnati: "I am writing this note to congratulate you on your upcoming marriage and to commend you on the upholding of the reputation of the American teenager. You have not only caused a new warm light to fall on us, but you have also forced older Americans to look upon us with seriousness as well as humor."

Among letters from children a first-grader wrote: "At present we are studying the Post Office. We decided to send our best wishes to you using our postal system."

A 10-year-old girl from Evanston, Ill., wrote: "Dear Lusy: I am going to look for your wedding picture in the papper when you get married. I like to look at pretty white wedding dresses and black and white tucedoes. I like to see the bride's vale too. I think weddings are wonderful."

A whole nation seems to agree.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF LARGE MAIL VOLUME, PARADE CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES.

WORLD'S BEST ARTISTS. Know anything about painters? Who in your opinion are the 10 best painters in the world today? Connaissance des Arts, a French art magazine, recently listed 250 outstanding artists, asked 35 world authorities to choose the 10-best.

Every authority listed Pablo Picasso as No. 1. Joan Miró, another Spaniard, was No. 2. Max Ernst was third, followed by Dubuffet, Bacon and Chagall.

PABLO PICASSO IS GREETED BY AN ADMIRER—A FRENCH PEASANT GIRL.

RUSSIAN LADIES OF THE NIGHT. The Soviets have finally admitted what many American tourists know: there are call girls in Moscow. Most of them can be seen at the various currency bars, only late spots in the Russian capital, where all tabs must be paid for in Western money. The girls gather at the bars, usually after 11 o'clock, flirt with prosperous tourists and businessmen, organize orgies in "foreign flats." Komsomolskaya Pravda, the Communist youth newspaper, maintains that there is no Soviet law to curb the call girls, describes the arrest of Svetlana Trofimova, a 19-year-old blonde, at the National Bar opposite Red Square "as a disgrace. She was kicking and screaming all the way to the police station, shouted brazenly: 'Why should I work when I can easily make $100 a night?'"

IN DEMAND. Konrad Adenauer, long-time chief of West Germany, is being swamped by offers from painters and sculptors who want to immortalize the former chancellor in oil, watercolor, wood or stone. Reason: Adenauer's portrait, painted by Oskar Kokoschka, is now on exhibition. Kokoschka's fee: $50,000. All offers to date quote far lower fees.

INFORMATION SUPERMARKET. Heads of American companies are submerged with information. It's been estimated that it would take one executive 500 years to read all the economic and technical literature published in the U.S. last year. To make the task easier, IBM has just concluded a deal with Dun & Bradstreet to classify and program all data received on some 390,000 firms. The purpose of the project is to make inexpensive market studies available to all interested businessmen.

CAMPUS, FRENCH-STYLE. The French are trying a new formula in university education, the American campus. Last fall 410,000 students registered at French universities, twice as many as in 1960. By 1970 more than 750,000 are expected. Most French universities are located in ancient, inadequate city quarters that cannot be expanded. To meet the physical problems of mass education, it was necessary either to split up the universities and disperse them in branches throughout the city or to try a totally different idea in education: the campus.

The first of these opened last year at Orléans. At first students protested against losing the freedom and cultural advantages of the city, but experience has justified the decision to move to suburban campuses. Students at the Faculté des Sciences in Paris protested against being "deported" to Orsay. But at the end of the first year, 77% of them had passed their exams, compared to 54% in Paris.

"To accept the campus," explains one student, "is to accept studying. France should be grateful to the U.S. for this idea in education."

WHERE THE MONEY IS. The Supt. of Documents, Washington, D.C., 20402, is selling for 15¢ an excellent pamphlet entitled, "How Our Income Is Divided." It is based on statistics collected by the Bureau of the Census. It reveals that at the lowest income level in 1959, nearly 14 million families and unrelated individuals received cash incomes of less than $2000 (about $40 a week). These units made up about one-fourth (23%) of all families and individuals in the U.S. and they received one-twenty-fifth (4%) of the income. At the other end of the scale there were slightly more than one-half million families and individuals with incomes of $25,000 and over. They made up 1% of all families and individuals and received 8% of the income. The pamphlet contains a small mine of fascinating information on just how much money is received by families and individuals at each income level.

GEE, I'M EMBARRASSED. THAT'S THE ONE "JUNK" DRAWER.

THAT'S ALL RIGHT! EVERYBODY HAS TO HAVE A "JUNK" DRAWER!

ARTHUR, DO YOU HAVE THE HEALTH FILE?

SURELY, MISS CRYSTAL..!

—RIGHT HERE!

ARTHUR, WHERE IS THE LETTER FROM THE BANK?

RIGHT HERE, MISTER GRIMMIS!

ARTHUR, I NEED THE MAILING LIST...

COMING UP, MISS PEACH.

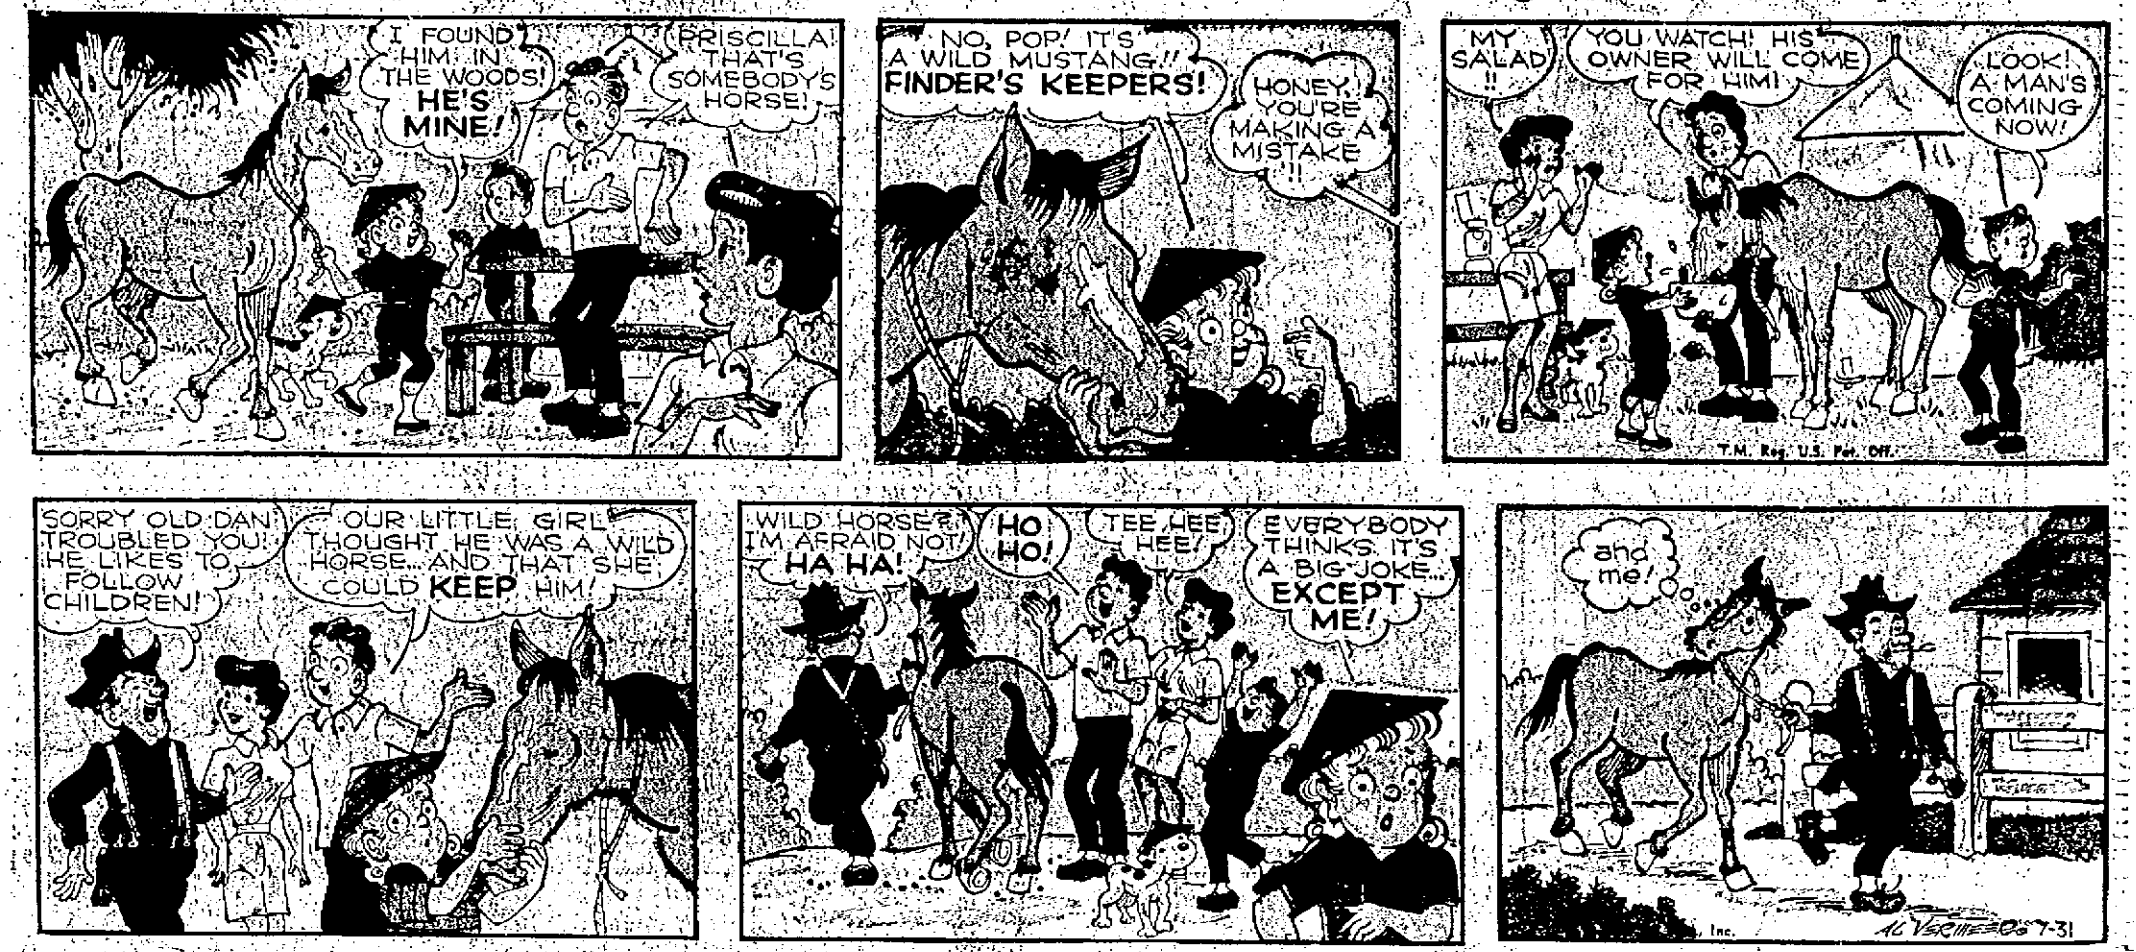

ARTHUR, GET ME THE SPORTS REPORT...

RIGHT AWAY!

LIKE YOU SAID, FRANCINE, EVERYBODY HAS TO HAVE A "JUNK" DRAWER—IT'S WHERE YOU KEEP EVERYTHING YOU NEED...
